R-100 IS RIDING OUT STORM 90 MILES FROM MONTREAL

Thunderstorms Had Started In the Vicinty of the Airfield—It Is Expected the Dirigible Will Steer South Until the Weather Conditions Improve—Damaged Fin Had Reduced Speed of the Airship to 20 Miles An Hour—At 9.13 E. S. T. Last Night the R-100 Had Been In the Air Exactly Three Full Days.

ST. HUBERT AIRPORT, Que., July 31.—(AP)—Radio advices from the British dirigible R-100 tonight said the airship is running into heavy weather 90 miles from Montreal and will still steer south until conditions improve. Her time of arrival is problematical.

Field officials said thunderstorms had started in the vicinity of the field and the storm was moving down the Ottawa valley.

"The ship was reported 90 miles from Montreal at 7:00 p. m., (EST), and under these conditions it is expected the ship will steer south until weather conditions improve making the time of arrival uncertain," an announcement issued at the field said.

At 7:30 p. m., the ship was 30 miles below Three Rivers and its speed was estimated at 55 miles an hour.

A later dispatch from St. Jean Des Chaillois, ten miles farther along the dirigible's route, said the craft passed over there at 9:30 o'clock, and had covered a distance of only four miles in the last hour and a half. This indicated the ship had run into a storm and was cruising with the wind.

At 9:13 o'clock the R-100 had been in the air exactly three full days since leaving England.

MESSAGE FROM THE R-100 TELLS OF DAMAGED FIN

ST. HUBERT AIRPORT, Quebec, July 31—(AP)—Repairs made to a damaged fin which delayed her progress several hours, the British dirigible R-100, largest of aircraft, tonight was making slow progress down the St. Lawrence river valley, headed for this airport. She passed over Quebec at 4:55 p. m. (EST).

Messages telling of the damage did not detail its extent, nor its nature. It was recalled that the ship scraped a fin in being walked from her hangar at Cardington, England, several weeks ago. The fabric apparently was damaged then, so that it could not withstand the battering of the angry winds over the north Atlantic.

When the big silver cigar neared Quebec at 4:10 this afternoon it was apparent she was in trouble as she was making slow headway and at times appeared to be standing still or drifting with the wind. A few moments later Squadron Commander Booth wirelessed the field here that he had a damaged fin and probably would not arrive until tomorrow.

The R-100 wirelessed at 4:50 p. m. (EST) that she had completed temporary repairs to a damaged fin and was 18 miles from Quebec, heading for St. Hubert at a good 20 knots.

SAW RENT IN FIN OF THE DIRIGIBLE R-100

ST. HUBERT AIRPORT, Que., July 31.—(AP)—Captain Hervey St. Martin, of Montreal, who flew over the R-100 at the Island of Orleans today, reported there is a large square flap of loose fabric in the top of the dirigible's envelope.

Captain St. Martin said the flap seemed different in color from the surrounding fabric, and believed it was a patch the crew had used in repairing a rent. He said the airship seemed barely to be moving.

The R-100 hovered over the Island of Orleans for nearly two hours this afternoon. It is believed the damage was repaired during this time.

DIRIGIBLE R-100 TO CRUISE ABOUT TILL MORNING

ST. HUBERT AIRPORT, Quebec, July 31.—(AP)—Flying field officials in an official statement issued tonight said the dirigible R-100 would not be moored here until tomorrow morning. The statement said the ship is expected over the airport around midnight, (EST) but will cruise about the field until morning.

DEM. STATE CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN NEW LONDON

BRIDGEPORT, July 31.—(AP)— The democratic state central committee today picked New London as the city for the state convention which will be held, it is expected, between September 10 and 15.

The committeemen and women, meeting here as luncheon guests of National Committeeman Archibald McNeil, placed selection of the date, the keynote speaker and the time of the state-wide primaries in the hands of a committee.

The committee, McNeil, State Chairman James J. Walsh, Secretary A. S. Lynch, and former State Senator Alton T. Miner, of New London, will arrive at a decision within a few days.

Only one other city—New Haven—was advanced. William R. Palmer, of Oxford, in opposing New London, favored New Haven as a city with better railroad facilities.

The vote for New London was 43 to 7, and formal acceptance of that city was made on the motion of Col. John L. Purcell, of Hartford.

The name of one possibility for gubernatorial candidate was brought to the floor of the meeting, but an effort to recommend him to the convention was defeated by adjournment.

Robert O'Connell, of Hamden, after scoring the party for its apathy, put forward the name of Burton E. Mansfield, of New Haven, former insurance commissioner, as an acceptable candidate. As soon, however, as he had finished his fiery five minute speech with a plea for a discussion of Mansfield's qualifications—or those of any other possibility—the meeting was promptly adjourned.

NEW VERSIONS OF THE DROWNING OF LASSMAN

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP)—Comptroller Leroy Kimball of New York university announced today that an investigation by the university had disclosed that Al Lassman was drowned in Long Lake, Maine, attempting to save the lives of three small boys and not under circumstances set forth at the time of the accident.

Lassman lost his life in attempt to hoist the third boy onto their overturned canoe after having raised two to safety, Comptroller Kimball said. The accident occurred in the afternoon of July 6 and not late at night, as was originally stated.

Authorities at New York university were moved to conduct a private investigation following the receipt of an anonymous letter from Harrison, Maine, several days after the accident. The information in that letter differed completely from the facts in the case as revealed at Camp Zalelo, where the accident occurred, and in the coroner's investigation.

CONFIDENT OF SOLUTION OF MURDER OF LINGLE

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP)—The July grand jury in its expiring breath today expressed its confidence in an early solution of the murder of Jake Lingle, Tribune reporter, and washed away the general smirch of racketeering from the record of other Chicago newspapermen.

The jurors in a final report to Chief Justice Dennis J. Normoyle of the criminal court, held that the rumors associating several reporters with gangsters and criminal activities were unsupported by evidence.

They gave a vote of confidence to the state's attorney and the investigators working on the Lingle murder.

They adopted unanimously a resolution commending Captain John Stege as a highly efficient police officer and asking Mayor William Hale Thompson to reinstate him as chief of detectives. He resigned that place when William F. Russell quit as police commissioner.

RADIO ROMANCE THAT IS TO RESULT IN MARRIAGE

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP)—A radio romance was revealed today by the filing of intentions of marriage at Portland, Me., by W. Bruce McNamee, radio publicity man, and Marcella L. Shields, radio entertainer.

Mr. McNamee, who has been employed by an advertising company for seven years, handled the publicity for the hour in which Miss Shields took the part of "Dixie Dugan" in the radio presentation of "Show Girl." Their friendship grew from their first meeting.

Miss Shields has been a member of the staff of the National Broadcasting company for nearly two years and has been appearing in the weekly series of "The Two Troupers," with Helene Handin. She also has had parts in other programs.

She got her training for the radio on the stage, where she made many vaudeville appearances. She dates her theatrical career from the age of four.

FOREST FIRES IN MONTANA DRIVEN BY HIGH WINDS

MISSOULA, Mont., July 31. —(AP)— Driven by high winds, fires in the Selaway, Nez Perce and East Selway forests today swept over fire lines and began eating into new sections of timber.

Reinforced crews sought to regain ground lost in the gale.

Several fires were characterized as dangerous. Weather conditions were extremely unfavorable.

Three dangerous small fires on McNelly creek in the Trout creek area were fought by about 60 men.

Fire in the Selaway forest covered 500 acres and was spreading in all directions. It threatened much timber in a country where fire-fighting is extremely difficult. Officials flew to Grangeville, Idaho, today to aid the 275 men combatting the destruction there.

Flames are eating into timber on the Old Nez Perce trail in the Nez Perce forest. It also is a region difficult of access and containing much timber.

TO ASK 25 PER CENT INCREASE IN DRY ENFORCEMENT FORCES

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)— An increase of approximately 25 per cent in the number of federal prohibition agents is to be asked of congress by the reorganized enforcement bureau.

This announcement was made late today by Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition, after a two-day series of conferences with the administrators in charge of enforcement in the field.

To the present force of approximately 2,000 agents, he said, about 500 are to be added. He described this number as tentative and subject to revision.

Nearly all of the administrators, he explained, were definitely of the opinion that the present staff of agents is inadequate and that the efficiency of their work could be greatly increased by adding to it.

SECRETARY LOWMAN TELLS OF LIQUOR SMUGGLING

WASHINGTON, July 31—(AP)—Assistant Secretary Lowman of the treasury said tonight only two per cent of the intoxicants sold in this country come from Canada.

Speaking in the National radio forum of the Washington Star and the Columbia Broadcasting company, Lowman said $25,000,000 of liquor was exported from Canada to the United States last year but that much of this was "short-circuited" back into that country where they have "bootleggers and speakeasies who thrive after 6 o'clock when the government liquor stores are closing..

Lowman, who formerly was in charge of prohibition enforcement, touched upon the Canadian liquor question in a review of the work and organization of the customs and coast guard border and sea patrols. He approved the plans for a unified border patrol as one which would simplify the work and make it more effective.

Most of this work now falls under his supervision in his new post.

The assistant secretary separated smugglers into two classes; those who smuggle for profit, and those who try to escape paying duty on personal belongings purchased abroad.

Those in the first class he said, were unusually skillful and dangerous criminals, but the others were mostly women who "just cannot understand why they should pay duty on foreign made finery and jewels they bring home from abroad."

He told of one woman who paid over $200,000 in penalties this summer.

The chase of the criminal smugglers provides the real thrill of the customs service he said pointing to the 4,500 miles of borders and the long stretches of seacoast, the coast guard and customs service must guard to prevent smuggling.

Lowman said all provisions of the tariff law must be vigorously enforced by requiring all goods imported to pay a full tax and to keep out goods produced by convict labor or surpluses of other countries which might be dumped here.

HELD FOR EMZEZZLEMENT FROM HARTFORD BANK

HARTFORD, July 31.— (AP)— John F. Morris, 19, a clerk in the stenciling department of the Hartford National Bank and Trust company, of this city, for the past six months, was arrested by Hartford police Wednesday afternoon on a charge of embezzlement of about $1,200 in the bank in which he worked, it was learned here today.

In police court this morning, the youth was bound over for a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Robert H. Alcorn at New Haven, through whom a warrant charging embezzlement was issued today.

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP)—The Binga State bank, one of the largest Negro banks in the country, with deposits of $1,200,000, was closed today by the state auditor at the request of its directors, because of frozen assets and a shortage of cash.

FIRE IN THE HOLD OF THE LINER PRESIDENT HARRISON

JERSEY CITY, N. J. July 31.—(AP)—Although fire still smouldered in the holds, and the stern of the Dollar liner President Harrison rested on the bottom of the Hudson river, officials of the line today said the ship would be in condition to start her round-the-world cruise tomorrow.

Officials expressed the belief that as soon as the great quantities of water poured into the holds to extinguish the stubborn fire could be pumped out, the ship's stern would float again.

LOS ANGELES, July 31.—(AP)—Dolores Del Rio, film actress, announced today she will be married next Wednesday to Cedric Gibbons, film studio art director. The place of the ceremony has not been selected but the actress said the wedding would be "very quiet."

Precautions In Paris Against Communists

Premier Tardeau Has Forbidden any Parades, Meetings Or Interference With Work

PARIS, July 31—(AP)—Two thousand republican guards, mounted and afoot, reached Paris this evening and were distributed at various strategic points as reinforcements for the [illegible] police as a precautionary measu[illegible] against a much advertised communist manifestation tomorrow.

"Preventive arrests," as Prefect of Police Chiappe calls the placing of communist leaders behind bars overnight, have reached nearly 200.

Among those held was Florimond Bonte, managing editor of "L'Humanite", the communist daily newspaper in Paris.

Tomorrow is the sixteenth anniversary of general mobilization for the World war and has been proclaimed by the communist party "International Anti-War day."

Premier Tardieu has forbidden any parades, meetings or interference with work.

SPANISH GOVT. READY TO SUBDUE COMMUNISTS

MADRID, July 31.—(AP)—The Spanish government has ordered police and civil guards to be in readiness to prevent any attempt to disturb the public peace during tomorrow's communist manifestation.

Officials tonight said they did not expect violence, declaring there were but few communists in Spain. They decided on precautionary measures following recent arrests of communists in Paris charged with attempting to launch a red movement in Spain.

The police are also seeking to prevent the distribution of communist literature.

GEHLBACH STILL LEADS IN ALL-AMERICAN AIR DERBY

CHICAGO, July 31—(AP)—With only one lap yet to go, Lee Gehlbach, of Little Rock, Ark., was again in first place tonight in the All-American air derby.

The Arkansas aviator flew to Chicago from Lincoln, Neb., today in 3 hours, 48 minutes and 27 seconds. This was ten minutes slower than the time made by Lowell Bayles of Springfield, Mass., second place man, who won today's lap from Lincoln.

Gehlbach's unofficial elapsed time is about four hours less than the Massachusetts flier and virtually assures him of victory unless an accident befalls him in the final hop to Detroit tomorrow.

Seven other fliers of the 20 who started are still in the race but have little chance of overtaking the leaders. Herman Hamer of La Salle, Ill., who had taken the lead in the west, was forced down yesterday in Nebraska and dropped from the race.

COUNTERFEIT $10 AND $20 NOTES IN CIRCULATION

PROVIDENCE, July 31—(AP)—Counterfeit $10 and $20 notes on the federal reserve bank, of New York, again are appearing in some numbers in this state and Connecticut, according to U. S. Secret Service Operative James E. Fitzpatrick, who today recovered three bills that appeared in bank deposits in widely separated parts of Rhode Island.

Mr. Fitzpatrick upon returning from Hartford, Willimantic and other nearby cities where he took over seven counterfeit bills from banks, received a bogus $20 which had been passed on the Riverside branch of the Providence post office on Tuesday in payment for a money order.

The opinion was expressed by Mr. Fitzpatrick that the bills recovered in Rhode Island and Connecticut are the outcroppings of two recent epidemics of bad bill passings in the east.

FREIGHTER IS ANXIOUSLY AWAITING SALVAGE STEAMERS

GIBRALTAR July 31—(AP)—The British-India Steamship company's freighter Nerbudda, which was in collision with the Spanish steamship Legazpi 100 miles east of Gibraltar, was anxiously awaiting salvage steamers tonight.

The Nerbudda sent out a wireless message stating that her freeboard was less than seven feet. The water flowing into No. 3 hold was partly stopped but was slowly rising in the No. 4 hold.

The ship's message concluded, "Position hopeful if salvage steamer arrives quickly." Several salvage steamers are now on their way. The Legazpi reported that her engines were out of commission.

The Nerbudda is a vessel of 4,328 tons and the Legazpi of 2,563 tons. So far as known no passengers were aboard either vessel.

FLOODS IN INDIA MAKING THOUSANDS HOMELESS

KARACHI, India, July 31—(AP)—The flood waters of the mighty River Indus, sweeping over the low lying plains of the upper Sind, today drove thousands of natives before them in refuge in Karachi and centers of safety.

The river, which has been known in the past to rise 80 feet above low level, mounted rapidly during the past twenty-four hours. For the past week, it has spread disaster over the countryside, destroying villages, swamping fields and breaking railway communications.

Skikapur, in normal times a flourishing trade city of 56,000 inhabitants, today numbered only 2,000, water 15 feet deep swirled through some of the low lying streets. The floods had completely encircled it.

KING GEORGE HAS SIGNED THE LONDON NAVAL TREATY

LONDON, July 31—(AP)—King George has signed the instrument of ratification of the London naval treaty which already has been ratified and signed in the United States.

Error Found In The Parker-Smith Co. Trial

Suprem[illegible]urt Decision Gi[illegible] Convicted Men a [illegible] to New Trials.

[illegible]FORD, July 31.—(AP) —In an [illegible] from which Chief Justice [illegible]e W. Wheeler dissented in part, [illegible] supreme court of errors on Thurs[illegible], found error in the case of the [illegible]tate against John E. Parker, Clarence V. Smith and Paul M. Smith, officials of the defunct Parker-Smith mortgage investment house and ordered a new trial for all three.

The three men were found guilty by a jury in the superior court at New Haven last October 24 of embezzling $166,400 of their investors' money and were sentenced to long terms in state prison by Judge Isaac Wolfe. Parker, president of the firm, was given three to six years on the eleventh count of the information and one year on each of 30 other counts, which were to run concurrently. Clarence V. Smith, treasurer, and Paul M. Smith, secretary, each were given five to eight years on the eleventh count and one year on each of the 30 other counts, to run concurrently. Pending their appeal, Parker and Clarence V. Smith each were released in $25,000 bail and Paul M. Smith in $30,000.

The majority opinion, written by Justice George E. Hinman and concurred in by Justices William M. Maltbie, Frank D. Haines and John W. Banks, held that the trial court erred in its rulings on the applicability of paragraph 6315 of the general statutes, under which the first 26 counts of the information were brought and which reads as follows:

"Every officer or agent of any public, municipal or private corporation, every executor, administrator, guardian, conservator and every trustee under a testamentary or express trust, who shall wrongfully appropriate and convert to his own use the money, funds or property of such corporation, estate, ward, trust or other person, shall be fined not more than ten thousand dollars or imprisoned not more than ten years or both."

Justice Hinman's opinion says:

"We conclude that a due regard to the terms of paragraph 6315 of our statutes and the observance of the rule of construction which is incumbent upon us, require us to hold that the applicable provision of this section does not support a prosecution of officers of a corporation trustee for misappropriation acting as such officers, for and in behalf of the corporation. Therefore, such portions of the charge as express, and such ruling as were founded upon, a contrary view were erroneous."

POLICE CAPTAIN DENIED MACDONALD TESTIMONY

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., July 31.—(AP)—Testimony of John MacDonald, recanting witness in the Mooney-Billings bombing trial, today was emphatically denied by Police Captain Charles Goff before the California supreme court, hearing testimony on application of Warren K. Billings for a pardon recommendation.

Goff in detail, denied allegations that he, as sergeant of the city bombing squad, had coached MacDonald to falsely identify Billings and Thomas J. Mooney. Both Billings and Mooney are serving life prison terms for the preparedness day bombing here in 1916 in which ten persons were killed.

MacDonald, the policeman testified, voluntarily identified Billings and Mooney from photographs before he had seen either.

MacDonald, a Baltimore waiter, yesterday and the day before, testified he had perjured himself at the trial which resulted in the sentencing of the two men. At that time testified he saw the defendants near the scene of the bombing.

The captain said MacDonald walked ahead of him at city prison until he came to Billings and, pointing to the prisoner, said: "Here is one of them." In the case of Mooney, MacDonald was hesitant in identifying the photograph because Mooney wore a mustache. Goff said he put his thumb over the mustache in the picture and that MacDonald then tentatively identified him, saying: "I think that's him."

Of Billings, Goff said MacDonald told him "Here is the one that put the suitcase (containing the bomb) down."

CHASE BANK ACQUIRES HARRIS, FORBES COMPANIES

NEW YORK, July 31—(AP)—Acquisition of the Harris, Forbes Companies by the Chase Securities Corp., an affiliate of the Chase National bank, to form the largest security distributing organization in the country, has been agreed on, subject to legal formalities and approvals.

Announcement of the transaction was made late today. The Chase is acquiring the entire central stock of Harris, Forbes Companies, which owns the various operating concerns bearing the Harris, Forbes name. The Harris, Forbes interests will become large stockholders of the Chase National bank, largest banking institution in the world, and Chase Securities Corp. Terms of the exchange of stock were not revealed.

Word of the transaction took Wall street by surprise, although officers of the corporation involved said the deal had been under discussion for about two and a half years.

The Harris, Forbes Companies have taken a prominent part in foreign financing since the war, and have been especially active in bringing out loans of Central European countries, particularly Germany.

GOVT. SUIT FILED AGAINST NORTHERN PACIFIC ROAD

SPOKANE, Wash., July 31.—(AP)—The federal government today filed against the Northern Pacific railroad a suit expected to involve at least $10,000,000. The action seeks removal of certain indemnity lands from operation of the federal land grant act of 1864, as modified in 1870 to quiet title of those lands, to secure an accounting and "for other purposes."

The suit was authorized by congress on June 25, 1929, and was filed in federal court here.

The amount involved is stated as in "excess of $100,000," but the value of lands concerned and taxes thereon, attorneys believe, may amount to as much as $50,000,000.

U. S. OFFICIALS IN CHINA SEND REPORT OF DISORDERS

They Do Not Consider Additional Gunboats Necessary to Protect Americans In Chingsha — Report Was Made After 50 Chinese Communists Had Been Killed In Clash With U. S. Bluejackets — Pillaging Bands of Chinese Communists Were Reported Within 25 Miles of Hankow

WASHINGTON, July 31. — (AP) — American officials in China do not consider additional gunboats necessary to protect lives and property of their nationals at Changsha.

Fragmentary dispatches from Admiral Charles B. McVay, Jr., commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet, transmitted this view to the navy today while the state department was being informed that all Americans except Allen Cameron of Lawrence, Kansas, were safe. The American consul at Hankow, Richard P. Butrick, sent a list of Americans evacuted from the city.

Admiral McVay radioed a report of the disorders to the navy department saying all foreign residencies in Changsha were safe, except the Japanese club, which was destroyed when the communists took the city.

Only the last half of the report was received today, but that portion said he did not consider another gunboat necessary to assist the Palos in its fight with communists. The message said communist firing had almost ceased.

Admiral McVay added that Father Brainman, Italian missionary captured by the communists at Changsha, was reported safe. It concluded with a terse "more later." Navy officials said he probably would not include in later dispatches the names of the five men aboard the Palos wounded yesterday unless they died.

Another gunboat, the Panay, had been ordered to Chinglingfow, about 100 miles from Changsha, but naval officers here said they believed in view of Admiral McVay's statement that the Panay would be held at Chinglingfow. Once all foreigners have been evacuated, they said, the Palos and the Panay might be withdrawn to Hankow to await a rise in the river next spring before returning to Changsha.

In the face of possible attacks on other cities in the Yangtse area, Admiral McVay was confronted with the alternative of relying on gunboats with their three-inch guns to protect foreigners and their property, or leaving large vessels, such as destroyers, in the region of Hankow, 600 miles from the sea, until next spring. The nearest destroyer, the Edsall, is at Shanghai, 800 miles from Changsha.

Butrick informed the state department that all Americans except Cameron either had left Changsha before the communist attack, or had been taken aboard the Palos.

U. S. BLUE-JACKETS KILLED 50 CHINESE COMMUNISTS

SHANGHAI, July 31.—(AP) —Communistic activity in south central China that reduced the rich city of Changsha to a shambles and resulted in an attack yesterday on the United States gunboat Palos, tonight was sweeping on unchecked in an apparent effort to clamp the red grip on the Yangtse river valley with its many important cities.

Pillaging bands of Chinese communists were reported within 25 miles of the important industrial cities of Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, and authorities of the Japanese concessions in Hankow were erecting barbed wire defenses. Kiukiang and the nearby summer resort at Kuling were reported being evacuated by foreigners. Communication was fragmentary and the exact situation was unknown.

An effort by the Palos to approach Changsha to determine the situation there, where looting and burning has been in progress several days, resulted in a clash in which five bluejackets were wounded and 50 communists killed and other wounded. The vessel was raked with machine fire and the attackers silenced only after it opened up at close range with its three-inch rifles and machine guns.

The Palos, which had rescued foreigners from Changsha prior to the communist raid, was in command of Lieut. Commander R. D. Tisdale of Baltimore. After the attack the gunboat, undamaged, withdrew down the Siang river.

Indications the communists were preparing to establish themselves throughout Hupeh and Hunan provinces were contained in dispatches from the affected area. They told also of plundering along the Peking-Hankow railway.

Even Shanghai's foreign settlements were under special guard. Police patrols were doubled and authorities prepared to crush any disturbance.

Meanwhile Hu Han-Min, as president of the administrative section, announced the government would be responsible for whatever happens. The foreign office indicated an early reply would be made to a Washington state department communication concerning Americans at Tsianfu, Shantung province, reported endangered by nationalist air raids against the rebels.

With the bulk of its military forces massed north of the Yangtse to check the threatened incursion of northern rebel armies, the government was in a weakened position in its efforts to cope with the communists. It also was faced by defection within its ranks.

Refugees from Changsa reaching Hankow painted a ghastly picture of the destruction of that wealthy industrial city. A reign of terror continued for 24 hours, they said, during which there was uncontrolled murder, incendiarism and pillaging.

Fostered by civil war, which has engaged government troops, so-called communists armies have despoiled several provinces of China for months, looting, burning and slaying wholesale.

Red ranks have been augmented by starving peasants encouraged by red leaders to prey upon their more fortunate fellows.

Ostensibly promulgating communistic doctrines, the reds in China have acted as bandits and assassins. It has often been asserted without confirmation they were directed by the internationale at Moscow.

Although mostly irregular organizations, some bands are well armed and disciplined with efficient leaders. Chang Teh, trained in military affairs and educated in Europe, is one of the widely known leaders.

LABORITE MEMBER OF COMMONS ADMONISHED

LONDON, July 31.— (AP) —Elijah Sandham, laborite member of parliament, today was formally "admonished" by the speaker of the house of commons for accusing his fellow labor members of receiving bribes. The charges were made in a speech on Saturday at Manchester.

Charges of drunkenness in commons also were contained in the same speech but the house concentrated on the bribery accusation as more serious.

The scene in the house during this formality was almost unprecedented. There was absolute stillness as the speaker put on the three-cornered hat over the wig which forms his normal head gear when in the house, and, remaining seated, which also is contrary to usual custom, told Sandham:

"It must always be clearly understood that a member may not attack and may not make a public utterance outside this house which is derogatory to the house of commons without committing a breach of privileges and being called to account by his fellow members."

The speaker solemnly declared that Sandham made no attempts to justify his accusations and ended:

"It only remains that, in accordance with the decision of this house, I admonish you—which I accordingly do."

Sandham had risen in his place when the speaker first called his name before addressing him. Then as the speaker continued he sat down with folded arms and remained thus until the proceedings came to an end.

MILLIONAIRES POLITICAL OPPONENTS IN OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 31.—(AP)—Two Oklahoma oil millionaires will be pitted against seasoned politicians when democratic voters, August 12, go to the polls at a run off primary to select candidates for United States senator and governor.

Thomas P. Gore, who represented Oklahoma in the senate for 13 years, will oppose C. J. Wrightsman, Tulsa oil operator, in the senatorial run off. William H. Murray, who was president of the Oklahoma constitutional convention, speaker of the state house of representatives and congressman before attempting to establish Oklahoma colonies in Bolivia, will contest Frank Buttram, Oklahoma City, in the gubernatorial race.

Senator W. B. Pine, republican, who will meet the winner of the Gore-Wrightsman contest in the November election, had nearly a four to one lead over the combined votes of his two opponents for the republican nomination.

Ira A. Hill of Cherokee, state senator, had a lead of nearly two to one over his two opponents for the republican gubernatorial nomination.

PATROLING STREETS OF BOSTON'S CHINATOWN

NEW YORK, July 31— (AP) —Soo Bock Ling, Chinese curio shop attendant, died in a hospital tonight and the special police detail patroling the ominously quiet streets of Chinatown were on the alert to forestall further fighting between enraged Tongmen.

Ling, the second victim of Tong guns, was shot down last night as he stood behind a counter in his Mott street shop. The shooting occurred only a few minutes after Nap Ling, a laundryman, had been killed a short distance away.

Police activities, which started at the sound of the first shot, resulted in the eight Chinese and a Negro servant and the seizure of three pistols and nine home-made bombs.

FOREIGN BUYING SENDS PRICES OF WHEAT UP

CHICAGO, July 31—(AP)—Foreigners bought wheat in great bulk today at pre-war prices, and buyers were attracted into the corn pit by increasing alarm for the dought-afflicted crop.

Wheat prices turned up from the bargain cellar where records unreached since 1914 had been established yesterday. Corn prices jumped as much as 3 1-4 cents a bushel.

Even with the day's advance of 1 to 1 5-8 cents a bushel, wheat for delivery today, the closing day for execution of July contracts, was two cents cheaper than July corn. More commonly 30 cents above the bushel value of corn, July wheat finished at 84 3-4 to 7-8, September at 86 5-8 to 3-4, December at 92 1-4 to 3-8 and March at 96 5-8 to 3-4.

COLCHESTER

THE LATE REV. G. I. BROWN HAD BOROUGH RELATIVE

Many of the older Colchester residents were saddened to learn of the death Tuesday of Rev. George I. Brown, 65, at his home in Washington, Conn., following a short illness. Rev. Mr. Brown was a frequent visitor here in past years, being a cousin of Miss Sarah W. Bigelow of South Main street. Failing health recently forced his resignation from the rectership of St. John's Episcopal church in Washington, Conn. He had served as rector of St. John's church in Stafford, Trinity church, Hartford and St. John's church in Bellefonte, Penn. He was a graduate of Trinity college and of Berkeley Divinity school, was an active member of the Sons of the American Revolution and was prominent in Masonic circles. Funeral services were held Thursday at Old Trinity church, Brooklyn, Conn., with burial in Old Trinity church yard.

Colchester readers of the "Bulletin" were interested in the item in Thursday's Jewett City news regarding the disturbance created in that community recently when a young woman visior in "shorts" meandered through the village main street. Almost daily, Colchester's business section is visited by young women from the various summer hotels in this vicinity, many of them dressed in bathing suits of the one and two-piece type. Many of the townspeople are getting aroused and it is rumored that a movement will be started soon to stop the practice, as has been done recently in Norwich.

The "Where Next" Bridge club is to be entertained Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Samuel Noyes Morgan, on Hayward avenue.

DANIELSON

FUNERAL OF REV. G. I. BROWNE IS VERY LARGELY ATTENDED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 31.— Following services at St. Paul's church in Washington, this state, at 10 o'clock this morning, there was another service for Rev. George I. Browne at Old Trinity church, Church street, Brooklyn, this afternoon at 2:30. The Washington service was conducted by Rev. J. B. Carey, who came to Brooklyn with the body, and with other Episcopalian clergymen from parishes hereabouts, assisted at the service at history Old Trinity. Other clergymen having parts in the Old Trinity service were Rev. J. Rees Jones, rector of St. Alban's, Danielson and Trinity, at Brooklyn; Rev. Richard D. Hatch, Brooklyn; Rev. Leonard R. Richards, rector of Christ church, Pomfret; Rev. Frank Bigelow, head-master of the Rectory school, Pomfret, and Rev. Arthur Lewis of Naugatuck. Preceded by a committal service, the body was interred in Old Trinity churchyard, where sleep the early rectors of this, the oldest Episcopal church in Connecticut. The bearers were Judge Oscar F. Atwood, Frederick Miller, Charles Blake and E. Irving Frink. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Rev. Mr. Browne, who had been in failing health for a long time, was a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Browne of Brooklyn, his ancestry dating back to early Colonial days.

Young Opossum Found

That remark about "See what the cat brought in" still intrigues and appears to be in full force. Lester Wheeler, resident on East Franklin street, reported this morning that his cat showed up with some strange sort of kill in her mouth.

Being a good kitty, she graciously submitted to her capture being taken away from her for inspection. What she had was something like a mouse and yet not so much so. It had a rat-like head, tawny hair, a tail too long for the average mouse, hind legs shorter than the front ones and other characteristics not at all regularly mouse-like.

Whereupon all amateur naturalists got busy and after due consultation and consideration decided it was a tiny baby opossum. This likely is true, but the significance back of it all is that opossums appear to be making their way into this section of eastern Connecticut and getting ready to settle down permanently.

Dayville Man Seriously Hurt

Edgar Mathieu, of Dayville, was reported in serious condition at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam early this evening. Mr. Mathieu was injured last evening when working with his employer, Alcide M. Page, a Dayville ice dealer. The ice truck, with which they were making deliveries, was over in Goodyear when Mr. Mathieu, riding on the rear of the truck, in some unexplained manner, fell off the machine without being observed by the operator.

After he was found in an injured condition he was taken to Dayville and given treatment and then removed to the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. He is under the care of Dr. C. R. Garcin. Mr. Mathieu has a fractured skull, and his condition tonight was such as to be regarded as precarious. He is 29 years of age, married and the father of five children.

That matter about who shall have the contracts for transporting Killingly's school children during the school year beginning in September flared up again today, following publication in this column of awards of routes, with prices for doing the work, to various car operators.

Interests that have protested the awarding of contracts without putting them up for bids are still up in arms about the matter. It may be stated, to make the matter clear, that those protesting are public service operators who insist that they are being discriminated against.

The upshot of the whole matter is the likelihood that these protestors will circulate a petition for a special town meeting, and will ask that meeting to register its opinion as to whether the town school committee may award transportation contracts without advertising them in such manner that all qualified persons may bid for the work.

One of those persons who loves to delve into history, suggested for mention in this column this morning that Killingly will reach its 225th anniversary of incorporation as a town in 1933. It is recalled that Killingly staged a memorable series of events in observance of its 200th anniversary, some 22 years ago this summer. The days of celebration attracted thousands of people to Danielson, which was bedecked and all aglitter for the parades and displays and formal meetings and one thing or another arranged to do honor to those who selected this area for their homes back in the days when their neighbors were Indians.

Back of all that is being written here today about the 1908 celebration is the idea of the person looking forward to 1933, that Killingly should start now to get ready for the 225th anniversary celebration — save its money, plan things and make its fame known. The average citizen would wager that it all would be good advertising.

On the assurance of a representative of the state fish and game position there will be liberal releases of trout in state-leased and other good streams hereabouts during the remainder of the summer and in the early fall season. The state has an abundance of fish this year, and they will be released as rapidly as distribution facilities permit.

Farmers of the county, under the auspices of the Windham County Farmers' association, will have a clambake as a feature of their outing on August 13, at the Brooklyn fair grounds. D. A. Murdock of Providence will be the principal speaker, his subject: The Market Demands of the Consumer. A social committee that has been appointed will arrange various events to keep interest at a high pitch.

Sunday, August 17, has been set as the date for the annual outing and clambake of the Danielson Firemen's association. This year the event is to be held at Old Killingly pond, and King George Jacques, who has refrained from doing over-much work this year, has agreed to take charge and produce a dinner that will be the best ever.

Frank Barber, Casino Bowling alley proprietor, who has been designated to get the talent together for the great charity boxing show to be staged here in September in aid of the Day Kimball Hospital Nurses' Home fund, is not so uncertain that he will have the famous Gene Tunney, retired, undefeated world's champion boxer on hand to take a bow at the state armory, and maybe box a few rounds for the capacity crowd that is expected.

Homer H. Judd, field representative of the state fish and game commission, came here from Bristol today on business concerned with department affairs.

A one-way traffic rule is now in effect on the Wauregan-Danielson state road, beginning at the Wauregan schoolhouse and extending northward for a considerable distance.

Another half-holiday today left Danielson's business section during the period after noon about as deserted in appearance as on a Sunday.

The July ending today was marked by the creation of a new record as to the number of cases considered in any like period in the Killingly town court. During the 31 days, and there have been no sessions the past two days, 47 cases were considered.

It was stated today that excavations have advanced to such a point that foundation work for the new booster station of the A. T. and T. on the West Side, opposite Day street, will be in full swing during the coming week.

Of general interest to parents of children is the Well Child clinic to be held next Wednesday at Killingly high school, and it is especially desired that parents of children that are to see their little ones enter school for the first time in September have them on hand for free examination.

Another record that July appears to have made has to do with consistently turning in more static than has been known before in any single month, according to old radio fans who say their memory is good. In this particular are hardly a day of the month was free from static interference.

Residents of Brooklyn are looking forward with the coming of August to the establishment of the cornborer inspection service. Corn grown hereabouts is now coming into the market in quantities. There is nothing to indicate that the borers are more plentiful than last year, when they were kept in good control.

BENEFIT THEATRE PARTY IS LARGELY ATTENDED

PUTNAM, July 31—Dasnee, an unusual firm, portraying the life of the natives on the island of Bali was heartily received by practically a full house at the Bradley Theatre this afternoon. The film was taken by Andre Roosevelt of Thompson and his son-in-law, Armand Dennis, after they had spent two years on the Island of Bali. The picture is not a travelogue but is complete drama and all of the characters are played by natives of the island. The cast does not act its parts but seems to be re-enacting its everyday life. Although the acting seems at times to be strained, this caused by the Balinese, who are taught from childhood to restrain any show of emotion. The picture has some of its scenes in natural color and the beauty of the landscape is brought out in its subdued hues. The scenes of unusual beauty are the various religious rites and the palace of the king. The plot of the film is of the age old eternal triangle of two men trying to win the hand of one girl, but the solution is somewhat different than that which we are used to as it shows the Balinese method of dealing with the situation and their regard for honor.

One of the most thrilling scenes of the picture is a fight scene where the actual wounds are shown and these wounds are not faked as they are in American motion pictures. This performance was the premier of the film as it was the first time that it was shown to the general public anywhere in the world.

Other features in the program today were the sale of the book "The Last Paradise", by Hickman Powell, who is a close friend of Mr. Roosevelt. This book also deals with the Island of Bali. Flowers which were donated by Volney Reed of Putnam were sold at the theatre. Everything that realized on this performance is to be donated to the Nurses' home fund of the Day Kimball hospital.

Miss Emma Kinney was in Worcester on Thursday, attending the funeral of Mrs. Emma T. Sargent, who formerly lived in Putnam.

The headquarters of the 43rd division of the C. N. G., left at eleven o'clock this morning to spend 17 days at Camp Devens. The Putnam company, together with a company from New Haven and another from Hartford will act as an advance detachment for the rest of the division which will arrive in camp on Saturday. The local company is under the command of Capt. J. J. McGarry, First Lt. Charles Woodward and Second Lt. Francis Murphy. The headquarters company will take care of the mess for eight men of the motor convoy and fourteen men of the advance detachment of the 11th medical regiment, six men of motor convoy C. This, howmen of Motor convoy C. This, however will only be for two days when the rest of their regiment will arrive at camp.

The Boy Scout camp on Laurel pond, North Woodstock, will stay open for another week for the girls of St. Mary's parish. The boys who are now at the camp will return home and the girls will go to camp on Sunda[illegible] is expected that about 50 girls w[illegible] to the camp for the period from August 4th to 11th. Four Putnam women will act as counselors during the camping period. They are Miss Dorothy Keefe, Mrs. Eugene Bonneville, Mrs. Estelle Phaneuf and Mrs Lionel Charron.

A meeting of the committees of the various towns in the Nurses home fund was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. A. A. Vonsiatsky of Thompson and the various chairmen made their reports. Miss Noyes reported that $2,200 of their quota of $5,000, has already been raised in that town. Among the events discussed yesterday was a dinner to be held in September at the Russian Bear tea room in Thompson. It will be a large dinner with real Russian singers and dancers furnishing the entertainment. The dinner will be under the direction of Mrs. Lev. Bec Marmedoff, who is the owner of the tea room and she has offered to donate half of the proceeds to the nurses fund. It is expected with the money derived from the showing of Dasnee and that received from the two card parties that were held during the last week the fund will go over the $6,000 mark.

Dr. Karl T. Philips and family left today to spend the month of August at Seabrook beach, New Hampshire.

Although Galenski identified himself and showed his registration and driver's license to the officer who investigated the accident he disappeared and abandoned his car.

REPORT CONDEMNS AUBURN PRISON MANAGEMENT

AUBURN, N. Y., July 31—(AP)—Severe condemnation of the management of Auburn prison before the two serious riots there last year was contained in the report of the Cayuga county special grand jury handed up after an investigation of prison conditions which required nearly seven months. No indictments were returned.

"The life of Auburn prison, which led up to the disastrous riots of July 28th and December 11th, 1929," said the report, "is a history of mismanagement, neglect and incompetency. The administration had almost ceased to function, whatever functioning there was, was nearing the automatic; headless, spineless and worthless." The officials in charge were held responsible.

FINDING THE RIGHT MAN

Finding the right man to fill a position of public service always presents difficulties and it is reported on authority of Senator Smoot that President Hoover is having that experience in trying to induce the right man to accept positions on the tariff commission. Three eminently fit men, according to the Utah senator, have already declined the chairmanship of the commission, and Mr. Hoover is scouring the country in efforts to find men who are at once fit to serve and willing to serve.

One explanation of the reason for the difficulties in the president's search is that he wants $100,000-a-year men for positions that will pay only a small fraction of that salary and that there are not many willing to make this sacrifice. When President Roosevelt was looking for a man to build the Panama canal, he had to give up his search for a high-salaried engineer from private life, but he solved the situation by drafting an army engineer whose modest salary was in inverse proportion to his efficiency.

But besides the possible surrender of a large salaried position to accept public appointment, perhaps the root of the trouble is not so much in the pecuniary sacrifice that is called for as in the treatment often accorded to men of affairs who enter public life solely as a matter of public duty. In spite of efforts to render the best service, they are liable at all times to partisan attacks, charges of unfairness, favoritism, and catering to a privileged few, which are exceedingly hard to bear. In various ways, too, federal laws handicap business men of ability and distinction, if they assume public tasks in response to appeals of the president. They must renounce sundry corporate interests and connections, must dispose of certain kinds of investments, and must retire from directorates. They are viewed with suspician by politicians from the start and are liable to attack by frantic partisans without a shadow of excuse. The wonder is, indeed, that public executives in high position so frequently prevail upon successful men of affairs to accept appointments despite the unjust criticisms to which they are bound to be subjected by persons with special interests to serve. The public, in its own interest, should demand that private citizens eminently qualified for official service and sought after by executives who desire to promote the general welfare shall not be harried without cause, if they consent to give their time to the solution of perplexing public problems.

BARBARISM IN CHINA

A relapse to barbarism that could scarcely be credited in this age of the world is apparently indicated by the news from China, where the Nationalist government is fighting "rebels" who in turn are fighting other rebels under the leadership of warlords, and into the welter of blood and destruction come the so-called communists with acts of rapine and outrage that go back to the worst of the dark ages. The rich city of Chang-Sha in the province of Hunan has been sacked and burned in regulation bandit style, according to the reports sent out and which enlist a special interest in Norwich because it was in Chang-Sha that a Norwich man, Dickson Leavens, labored so long at "Yale in China." The escape of Americans from the city was favored by the fact that Chang-Sha is on a navigable river, on which it is hoped all were able to get away by boats, but this is not certain. The animosity of the bandit attacks was especially shown towards foreigners, and beheading, outraging, butchery, robbery and pillaging were features of the affair.

To the western world this outrage obtains special significance, in addition to the circumstances of horror which attach to it, in the advertisement of the fact that the Chinese brand of communism, which has been inculcated through Soviet Russia propaganda, is once more brought to the front in Chinese affairs. The Chinese disciples translate the doctrine of the supremacy of the proletariat into terms of rapine and murder and invite the nations of the civilized world to raise the question of just how long this condition can be allowed to continue in China.

LIMITS IN THE AIR

Cruising aviators whose flights would partake of the freedom of the bird in the air are to find this freedom is a fiction if they happen to fly without permit over lands of any nation but their own, if the experience of Roger Q. Williams is any criterion. Williams recently made a non-stop flight from New York to Bermuda and back and has now been penalized by a suspension of one week because the British authorities made a protest to our state department that Williams had violated international law by flying, without permission, into the air zone over the tiny speck which Bermuda makes in the ocean. By this suspension the commerce department is giving notice that other nations, the British at least, will no longer regard unauthorized trips by air over their dominions with the leniency and good humor that have obtained in the past.

There must always be a first time in everything and in this case Williams is unfortunately the goat. It is obvious that on a daring 1,700-mile dash over the open ocean he was using the island merely for a navigation point, but technically, he was guilty of the offense charged. The penalty first announced was a 90-day suspension, but this was cut down in view of the fact that there was no unauthorized landing. Williams' representative in New York, it appears, asked the consul there regarding the flight and was told there would be no objection. But the consul exceeded his authority, for permission can only be given by the governor of the area to be visited. The circumstances justified a modification of the original penalty, but the department of commerce has accomplished the purpose of broadcasting the word that unauthorized flights over foreign lands will hereafter be regarded with the utmost seriousness.

PENSION BENEFITS

According to the figures of Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, director of the United States veterans' bureau, there are about 156,000 world was veterans who are now entitled to pension benefits under the terms of the bill signed by President Hoover on July 3. It has been announced that the first pension checks so authorized will be sent out August 1. The benefits range from $12 to $40 per month, depending on the degree of disability, and are paid without regard to the cause of it. The pension provision is separate from the compensation law which provides for the payments on account of disabilities incurred in the war.

Reports from veterans' organizations indicate that men entitled to the new pension have the impression that it will be paid to them automatically. This is not provided for in the law, nor is it possible. The government has a record of disabled who are not on the compensation list only if the veteran applied for compensation and was rejected on account of lack of proof of a war source. It has no way of knowing all the possible beneficiaries, or the extent of their disability. No award of pension will be made until the veteran has applied on a form that will be supplied to him by the veterans' bureau at Washington, or at one of its regional offices, or through organizations interested in veterans' welfare.

Now that the law has been passed, every aid should be extended to veterans entitled to the pension, especially in cases where men have been compelled to seek town aid for the support of themselves and their families. The law relieves them of a classification as public charges and puts them on the basis of deserving veterans of a great war.

RATIONAL DRY ENFORCEMENT

In a manifesto on the enforcement of prohibition laws, heads of well known dry organizations and other leaders in the move in America against intoxicants express views which every believer in reason and moderation, whether his own personal inclination makes him dry or wet, will receive with satisfaction.

Those leaders make denial of the charge that the drys favor enforcement of prohibition by fanatical and extreme methods, condemning violations of constitutional and personal rights or of the privacy of the home. They affirm that the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution should be done with due regard to every other article or clause of the organic law of the republic. Further, they insist that the government and its agents shall never invade the field of private morals and private habits except in flagrant cases.

These are significant declarations and should be accepted by friends of prohibition everywhere as fixing a rational boundary beyond which agents of prohibition should not be permitted to go. Not all dry leaders have lived up to the sound principles thus set forth. It is notorious that grave abuses under the prohibition law repeatedly have been condoned or minimized by misguided public officials and others. That course had made enemies for prohibition. The public stand of dry leaders on the side of scrupulous regard for all provisions of the constitution is a good sign.

The signers of the manifesto might have gone farther and expressly repudiated the demoralizing and highly injurious policy adopted by some dry organizations in supporting hypocrites in political life who, although they vote dry, are unfaithful public servants, making their votes for prohibition serve as a license for evil actions of many sorts.

THE BROWN AND THE BLUE

The snow was piling in drifts against the windowpane. It was the first severe storm of the season. Hitherto there had been several "squaw winter" flurries, but this promised to develop a regular blizzard. The pretty hall nurse, seated at a desk where she could look up from writing every now and then to gaze outside, didn't mind snow, hail nor all the winds that might blow straight from the caves of Aeolus! For that morning was the momentous occasion on which she had doffed the brown uniform to don the blue, and she felt the weight of importance attached to emerging from the embryonic state into a "regular!" Would he notice?—was the question that rose uppermost in her mind.

"He" was the resident physician; a young man who was now due to make his daily rounds. Alas! At that very moment the annunciator droned unemotionally, "Dr. Linwood! Dr. Linwood! Dr. Linwood!" Suddenly the pretty nurse became conscious that it was a tempestuous day; that Dr. Linwood was wanted elsewhere; that in a half-hour she would be off duty! Therefore Dr. Linwood would miss the pleasure of seeing her in the new blue uniform, and, probably if he had seen her, wouldn't have noticed whether she was attired in brown or red, white and blue!

Why expect otherwise? Behind his back most of the nurses called Dr. Linwood "a grouch"; they had long ago given him up as incurable. He never joked with them; never stopped to converse and never attended the dances at their home across the way.

"Three thirteen' is getting impatient," remarked a special.

The pretty nurse had failed to observe that the red light on the board above that number was winking and blinking like an angry eye! She placed the record she had been working on in a pigeonhole, jumped up and hurried down the corridor.

"Three thirteen" wasn't a serious case, but one that required a great deal of attention; a middle-aged woman, whose habit it was of coming to the hospital at regular intervals because she feared "symptoms were developing."

"It's time for my eggnog!" she exclaimed tartly, soon as the pretty nurse opened the door. "It seems strange that I should be compelled to call your attention to the fact! I'd like to know—"

The pretty nurse didn't wait to hear more, she turned and fled to the diet kitchen.

The beverage compounded to a nicety, she started for room 313. She had almost reached this destination when, stopping short, ejaculated, "If I didn't forget and put sugar in it." "Three thirteen" insisted that eggnog with sweetening was not fit to drink.

The pretty nurse returned to the diet kitchen to go through the measuring, beating and mixing all over again.

Ready, finally, with the tall glass on a small server, she ran swiftly along the hall aware that her charge was likely to get in a fume, so must be appeased quickly as possible. Arriving at the main corridor she made a sharp turn and bumped plump into some one coming from the opposite direction. She uttered an exclamation of dismay as on to the floor went tray and eggnog. Horror was added to dismay when she realized that not only was her dress steaked with the rich golden liquid, but that a pair of immaculate white trousers and a blue serge coat were in much worse condition.

"Oh! I'm so sorry—" she began, contritely, then glancing up she beheld Dr. Linwood and was struck dumb.

"Too bad to spoil that nice new uniform."

Could she believe her ears? Yes! There was no mistaking that odd drawl. This gave her courage to look again. An amused expression was twinkling in his handsome eyes.

"But your trousers!" she cried, "they—"

"They'll wash!"

The absurdity of their situation now struck the pretty nurse and she began to laugh. So infectious was her mirth Dr. Linwood laughed too. Then presently recollecting, she cried, "Won't I catch it for keeping '313' waiting so long for her eggnog!"

Instead of replying Dr. Linwood asked, "Do you remember old Jeremiah Flintwinch in "Little Dorrit'?"

The pretty nurse affirmed that she did.

"If '313' should be implacable let me know," he resumed "and I'll settle her as Jeremiah used to settle Affery; I'll give her such a dose!"

As the pretty nurse returned once more to the diet kitchen the severest "bawling out" that "313" was capable of held no terrors for her. Hadn't "he" observed that she had discarded the brown for the blue? Best of all, made a joke of the accident. Though, to be sure, she had always surmised that Dr. Linwood wasn't as much of a "grouch" as the other nurses declared.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 31—Editor and Publisher, that magazine of newspapers and newspapermen, has disclosed the desire of a veteran of the Washington press gallery to return to that field of activity.

No name was given, but the experience and qualifications of the veteran were set out. And immediately old timers of the Washington political group set about trying to guess who was who.

For the qualifications stated were unusual. The applicant, it appeared, not only had more than a decade of previous press gallery service in his experience, but had been a candidate for high state office "in a mid western state," and had seconded the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for the presidency.

It was rather a tough job to check up on all the Washington political writers of the last two or three decades and try to fit them to the picture.

Old timers finally came to the conclusion that Frederick Landis of Indiana, one of the two Landis brothers who sat in congress from that state years ago, must be the man.

Incidentally, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis is the most noted member of the family although all five of the Landis brothers have held public office of some sort.

Whether Frederick Landis is seeking another round of Washington life or not, the Bystander does not know.

He is set down in the books, however, as "one of the organizers of the progressive party in 1912" and also as candidate for governor of Indiana on the progressive ticket in that year. It is recalled by Indianans here that he did second Roosevelt's nomination. Clearly he seems to fit.

Frederick Landis was an unsuccessful candidate for re-election to the 60th congress after having sat in the 58th and 59th.

And that reminded Mark Thistlethwaite, veteran correspondent of the Indianapolis News and other Indiana papers, also eight years private secretary to Vice President Thomas R. Marshall, of a story of that campaign.

There was opposition to Landis but he said it reminded him of the boy who contracted to provide a hotel with six dozen bullfrogs a day, but showed up with only three the first day.

"Where are the rest of 'em?" the hotel keeper remanded.

"Oh, there ain't any more," said the boy. "They made so much noise I thought there was dozens of 'em, but there was only three."

That story was published in Landis' district. As a result "Bullfrog Clubs" to oppose him were organized by the dozen.

"So he got bullfrogged out of congress," Mark said.

YOUR HEALTH

Fear

By Abraham Myerson, M. D., Boston Mass

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute, Washington, D. C.)

Yesterday we discussed some of the aspects of fear. Today we shall concern ourselves with some of the causes of fear and a few words of counsel to those who for one reason or another, are in danger of becoming a victim of this dread affliction.

The causes of abnormal fear are many. Some of it arises unquestionably through being a square peg in a round hole; through unhappy marriage; through thwarted egotism, when the individual finds it impossible to express himself adequately yet cannot accept his thwarted life and becomes stricken with fear as he contemplates it.

Another group of conditions are those arising out of impaired physical structure. The body and mind are fundamentally one. Emotions long protracted cause physical damage and physical damage produces abnormal emotions. It is a superficial view of life to separate mental and physical health. Over-eating, not enough sleep, a general fatigue may breed fear and pathological anxiety. The health habits in their widest sense involve mental health as well as physical health.

The subject of fatigue and its relation to fear is especially important. It is the belief and opinion of many that chronic mental fatigue is one of the curses of civilization. In an age where everything has been done to eliminate physical fatigue there are more people who say, "I am tired," than ever before.

This means that somehow or other life has been sped up and mental rest is less possible than before. I fancy that a man who rides a week in an automobile at a high rate of speed is far more tired at the end of a week than a man who has walked for a similar period of time. The electric light which has made it possible for us to transform the night into day is by no means an unmixed blessing. Night excitement, night stimulation forces people to shove aside a natural tendency to rest and sleep at night for a series of activities from card playing to lectures, from dancing to study. This brings about fatigue through disordered sleep. Sleep is feminine; put off when shoe woos, who is not so easily won when wanted.

Without going beyond the limits of this article, one may counsel the reader as follows, with the proviso that he is not to take this counsel too seriously and too literally: When the pleasures of life commence to disappear and one cannot find satisfaction in the everyday joys, one is fundamentally tired and the deepest fatigue has possessed one. Then is the time to relax, to stop being too serious, to seek the change which is the true vacation, to go to bed early, to take the short afternoon nap—the lifesaver of the European peoples. The next thing is not to build purpose beyond ability. "Hitch your wagon to a star" is good poetry but poor policy. It is much better to hitch it to a horse. America is full of preachment about ambition, and I, humbly, somewhat shamefacedly, preach contentment. There is more value in peace than in the hurry and hullaballoo of roadways crowded with vehicles and great sets towering toward Heaven.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jim Crow's Eyes Are Opened

Far more often than you dream
Things are not just what they seem.
—Jim Crow.

For three days Jim Crow had been a member of the flock, of which his father, Blacky, was the leader over in the Green Forest. At first, Jim Crow had thought it very wonderful. He had flown away from Farmer Brown's dooryard with the other Crows and gone over to the Green Forest. It was the first time he had been in the Green Forest since he had fallen from the nest and had been taken home by Farmer Brown's Boy. All the time the other Crows had been telling him about the joys of freedom and independence. It was early in the afternoon that Jim Crow had gone away with the other Crows. After a while he grew hungry. Now Jim Crow hadn't had to hunt for his own food since he was hatched. First, his father and mother had provided food for him and then Farmer Brown's Boy had seen to it that he never was hungry.

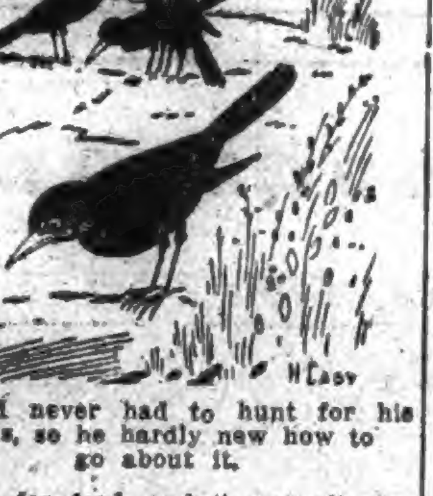
The other Crows evidently were hungry at about the same time and it was proposed that they go get something to eat before bedtime. So the flock flew over to the Green Meadows and there they scattered, each one looking for something to eat. Now, Jim Crow had just as bright eyes as the other Crows, but he had never had to hunt for his meals, so he hardly knew how to go about it. He had "slim pickings," as the saying is, and when at last the signal was given to return to the Green Forest, Jim Crow was still hungry.

There was a great deal of talking and gossiping in the treetops and the other Crows were very friendly and kept asking Jim Crow if he didn't think it was fine to be free. But as the Black Shadows came creeping into the Green Forest, the noisy tongues became quiet, and one by one those Crows disappeared. Before they disappeared they appeared to be nervous. In fact, it seemed to Jim Crow that they were afraid of the Black Shadows. He was himself. You see, he had been accustomed to sleeping in Farmer Brown's barn, where he had felt quite safe. Presently, Jim Crow found himself quite alone. Even his father and mother had disappeared. He crept in where the branches of a big hemlock tree were thickest and there he huddled very much afraid.

However, even a frightened young Crow can go to sleep, and in a short time Jim Crow was fast asleep. He was awakened at once by a terrible sound. He awoke with little cold shivers running all over him. It was the terrible hunting cry of Hooty the Owl that had wakened him.

He had never had to hunt for his meals, so he hardly knew how to go about it

With the coming of daylight the fears of the night were forgotten. All the Crows reappeared and there was a great deal of gossiping, so that the Green Forest was a noisy place. Then, together, all the members of the flock flew away to hunt for breakfast. Of course, Jim Crow went with them. He enjoyed that morning fly. You see, they went a long distance before they finally settled down to hunt for food, and it was all new and strange to Jim Crow.



He had never had to hunt for his meals, so he hardly new how to go about it.

But he didn't enjoy having to work so hard to get a little to eat. You see, he had to do a great deal of walking about, whereas he had been accustomed to having all he could eat without having to hunt for it. It seemed as if he never would get enough. Then, too, he couldn't get used to this constant fear that all the Crows seemed to feel. Always when they were eating there was a sentinel on duty, a watchman. Whenever a man appeared there would be a signal from the watchman and all the Crows would take to their wings. Jim Crow wasn't afraid, but his companions were, and it was all very hard for him to understand. By the end of the second day Jim Crow was getting his eyes opened and he was doing some real thinking. This so-called freedom wasn't so fine as he had thought it would be.

How Sleep the Brave

How Sleep the brave who sink to rest
By all their Country's wishes best!
When Spring, with dewy fingers cold
Returns to deck their hallowed mould,
She there shall dress a sweeter sod
Than Fancy's feet have ever trod.
By fairy hands their knell is rung,
By forms unseen their dirge is sung;
There Honor comes, a pilgrim gray,
To bless the turf that raps their clay,
And Freedom shall a while repair
To dwell a weeping hermit there.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

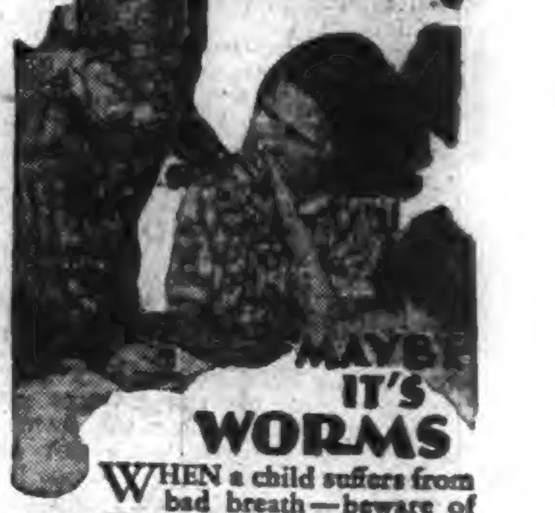
The Warrenton Woolen Company, Torrington.

When Samuel Workman crossed the broad Atlantic nearly 100 years ago, he little dreamed, perhaps, that the concern with which he later affiliated himself was destined to become one of the principal industries in the thriving Connecticut city of Torrington.

It was in 1836 that Mr. Workman, with his wife and family, left England for America. In early life, he learned the wool sorting business and upon arrival here he found employment with the Wolcottville Manufacturing company, originally started in 1806 by a relative of Governor Wolcott. In due time he became financially interested and a director of the concern. Three of Mr. Workman's sons, George D., John and James, were actively identified with the business, the first mentioned succeeding his father as wool buyer and in 1878 becoming secretary and treasurer. The company, subsequently changed its name to the Union Manufacturing company, and on January 1, 1894, assumed the name of The Warrenton Woolen company, moving in March, 1909, to the handsome brick structure which it now occupies in the north end of the city.

The late Samuel C. Workman, and the late Frank E. Coe, grandsons of Samuel Workman, and former presidents of this concern, played important parts in the development of the company in recent years.

Frank R. Appelt, prominently associated with the company for many years, is now president and treasurer, and under his leadership The Warrenton Woolen company enjoys an enviable position in the nation's woolen circles. Franklin E. Coe is secretary of the company and Miss Anne J. O'Meara is assistant treasurer. The directors are Nathan A. Tuttle, another pioneer Torrington settler, ex-Senator John N. Brooks, Mr. Appelt, Mr. Coe and Miss O'Meara. The company manufactures a diversified line of goods, consisting of wool and worsted indigo dyed uniform cloths, broadcloths, billiard cloths, spat cloths, tennis ball cloths, woven felts and army and navy officer's cloths.



OFFENSIVE BREATH?

WHEN a child suffers from bad breath — beware of worms. They are much more common than most mothers think.

Look also for the following symptoms: grinding the teeth, picking the nose, crossness, crying in sleep, loss of appetite or weight, nausea or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present.

Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. Even if worms are only suspected then give the child

If You Have Bad Feet

Read What This Grateful English Woman Writes About Radox

"Fifteen years ago I began to suffer with bad feet and corns, and as time went on they got from bad to worse, thus making life a misery. I was recommended to try Radox (after spending a small fortune in one 'cure' or another). I found very great relief in a very short time. I am pleased to say that my corns, also the hard skin from the soles of my feet have disappeared, and walking, which was a torture, is now a pleasure. I can assure you that I recommended Radox to all my friends."

23rd September, 1929.

Mrs. L. P. W.,
Peterborough, England.

When you put your feet into a footbath containing Radox, the salts soften the hard outer layers of the corn, and the oxygen which Radox liberates enters the pores, opens them, and penetrates further and further, carrying the corn-softening salts right into the root of the corn, which is thus loosened so that it can be lifted out bodily.

Get a generous box of Radox at Lee and Osgood or any druggist in America—a 15 minute bath three or four successive nights will rid you of corns and callouses.

World's Oldest City Made Capital of Newest Republic

The oldest city in the world becomes the newest capital by the recent French proclamation creating the republic of Syria.

Damascus, 4,000 years old, will be the center of the new government which is a successor to the proud kingdom of Assyria, a name linked with dread and terror in the Old Testament.

"France has carved the republic of Syria out of the Syrian mandate granted her by the League of Nations," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"In creating the republic," the bulletin goes on to point out, "France has followed in the footsteps of Great Britain. Out of the Palestine-Transjordan and Iraq mandates Britain created the kingdom of Transjordan and the kingdom of Iraq.

"The republic of Syria, however, appears seven years after the establishment by France of the first republic in her Syrian mandate, that of the Lebanese republic which incloses the famous mountains of Liban or Lebanon and runs down to the Mediterranean shore. The new republic with its capital at the ancient Moslem center of Damascus, includes by no means all of the area of the mandate. In addition to omitting the Lebanese republic it also excludes the state of the Alouites, and the state of Djebel Druze, mountain home of the fiery Druze tribesmen, the Unitarians of Islam.

BOY'S BODY FOUND IN FIVE FEET OF WATER AT GARDNER LAKE

The body of Frank J. Burnat, Jr., 13, son of Frank J. Burnat of Flushing, L. I., was recovered Thursday morning from Gardner lake. The boy, vacationing at Camp Mohican, was drowned late Wednesday afternoon in five feet of water, a few yards off shore. He took part in the intercamp aquatic meet held Wednesday afternoon.

The boy was one of a crew of six boys who finished second in a boat race. After the race all six boys jumped overboard for a swim. One of the other boys knowing that young Burnat was not an expert swimmer told him that he had better see if he could touch bottom where he was and that if he could not he had better go inshore where the water would be within his depth.

Young Burnat dropped his feet downwards in an effort to sound the bottom, but it was beyond his depth and he went down, and, according to several of the boys who were swimming nearby, never came up again. An alarm was immediately raised and several of the older boys as well as a number of the camp instructors began diving in an effort to find the boy's body but their efforts went unrewarded and after darkness had settled over the lake, dragging was resorted to.

Throughout the night Trooper Peter Busch of the Groton state police barracks, officials of the various camps on the shores of the lake and all year round residents of the vicinity joined in dragging the lake for the boy's body and their efforts were finally rewarded at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, the body being found lying on the bottom about 75 feet from the point at which he had gone down.

Permission was given for the removal of the body to undertaking parlors in New London, and instructions are awaited from the boy's father who is in Quebec. The body will probably be sent to Flushing today (Friday).

WARNS AGAINST PASSING VEHICLES ON THE RIGHT

Passing vehicles on the right hand side has caused a large number of serious accidents on the state highways of the state, according to a statement issued Thursday by the Connecticut Motor Vehicle department. The department warns against this practice and calls attention to the fact that "passing to the right" on the open highway is against the law.

Robbins B. Stoeckel, commissioner of motor vehicles, in a statement broadcast Thursday afternoon from WTIC, Hartford radio station, said:

"As to the dangers which surround this driving act, no reasoning individual can deny that many unexpected things may happen to cause trouble when a car leaves its proper pathway. It is evidence of poor judgment on the part of any operator to pass to the right, and unquestionably, in every instance, constitutes reckless driving. It is admitted that there are many times when going up a long hill an operator finds conditions which are trying. He may get behind a slow moving vehicle when there is a line of traffic on the other side. Perhaps there is room enough on the right side of the slow vehicle so that the operator honestly believes he can go safely by. Even first class operators confronted with a situation of this kind are sometimes tempted beyond resistance."

"From the standpoint of the disciplinary authority, it must be realized that such passage is undertaken at the risk of arrest. Every policeman knows that he cannot allow exceptions to a rule of such great importance as that of passing to the left from the rear. If he did wink at this offense occasionally, it would not be long before it would become an accepted practice. A lot of drivers who are not qualified to exercise reasonable judgment in circumstances of this sort might try it and get killed or kill somebody else."

"Another point which ought to be considered by anybody who contemplates an act which is against the law, is that he is an outlaw while he is doing it. If anything under the sun happens to him he has no redress in court."

Connecticut police have been warned to be on the lookout for Moor and the girl, who are believed to be headed back towards that state in the automobile in which the three attempted the hold-up of a filling station here Wednesday night.

When the three drove up to the station Marvin Brown got out and asked for cigarettes, offering a $2 bill in payment. When the filling station proprietor returned with the change Brown pulled a gun but it was wrested from him by the filling station attendant. While they were struggling the two in the car drove off and Marvin Brown also got away but was arrested here today.

MOOSEHEART JUNIOR HELD ALL DAY PICNIC

Mooseheart Jr. Legion, No. 92, held their first picnic Wednesday, when they accepted the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson, of Bozrah, who donated the use of their home and the broad fields around it to the Junior Legion for the day. The members, in charge of their governess, left the Moose home at 10 o'clock in the morning in a truck, the use of which was very generously donated by Edward Caughey. They arrived at their destination at 11 o'clock. Immediately upon arriving they donned bathing suits and an hour was spent in bathing. Just before lunch there was a tug-of-war by every one with Wilfred Lariviere and Charles Corbeille as captains. Wilfred Lariviere's team won the event. On a long table under a large walnut tree, a basket lunch was enjoyed, and every one did ample justice to it. Fancy cookies were served by Past Regent Minnie Smith of the women of Mooseheart Legion, after which various games were enjoyed. The winners were as follows:

At 5 o'clock a light lunch was enjoyed and there was a large cake donated by Mrs. Bessie Wilson. The picnic was a complete surprise to Miss Gladys Wilson who is a member of the Junior Legion and who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson. At six o'clock the truck arrived and after all were seated the Mooseheart declaration was given by the members, with a hearty cheer for Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Minnie Smith for her hospitality.

FLORIDANS START STATE'S FIRST BIG SHEEP RANGE

PUNTA GORDA, Fla.—(AP)—And now Florida has gone in for sheep ranching.

Down on the west coast, far removed from civilization, there exists "Big Slough," a range where 5,000 sheep graze in tropical surroundings, while mounted herders tend their duties in true cowboy fashion.

The experiment is being tried by three Florida cattlemen, Tom L. Smith, William Bryant and Walter Mann. Sheep have been raised in Florida for many years under farm conditions and have been profitable, but this is believed to be the first attempt to capitalize the open range for large scale herding.

A modern Garden of Eden has been laid out on Avery Island, near Iberia, La., by A. E. McIlhenny. Rare flowers were imported from all parts of the earth.

CREDIT FOR STORED WHEAT ASSISTS NEBRASKANS

LINCOLN, Neb.—(AP)—For the first time in history the farmers of Nebraska, second wheat state in the union, can get money on their grain without moving it from the bins.

Under a new state law permitting farm storage in conjunction with the federal farm loan board, certificates will be issued by state supervisors and the certificates will be held as collateral by federal farm loan banks. Thus immediate credit to the producer is insured.

Sam R. McKelvie, grain member of the farm board and former Nebraska governor, says the law will be of great advantage to farmers, in that it gives them the advantage of farm storage—the cheapest available, and best for keeping burdensome supplies out of market channels and the terminals.

In addition, the law permits farmers to store wheat in state supervised elevators with the same credit provisions embodied in the farm storage plan.

Drafted last spring by a special session of the state legislature as a means of preventing market gluts, the law became of immediate benefit. Estimated at 65,675,000 bushels, Nebraska's harvest of winter wheat exceeds the 1929 harvest by 12,011,000 bushels.

It is not the largest yield on record in the Cornhusker state, but it is 12,000,000 bushels more than the average.

Confronted six months ago with adverse growing conditions, the Nebraska crop thrived under June sunshine, and threshers found it had matured in perfect condition.

Although never as large as that of Kansas, Nebraska's crop occupies a peculiar spot in the American wheat situation. Repeatedly farm board headquarters have referred to the amount of wheat necessary to price improvement through removal from the market as "about as large as the Nebraska crop."

BIG NEW AMERICAN SHIPS TO OUTCLASS 'LEVIATHAN'

NEW YORK—(AP)—A $90,000,000 shipbuilding program, designed to give America supremacy on the rich North Atlantic ocean trade routes, has been launched by the United States Lines.

In 1929 this country stood seventh among the world's shipbuilding nations. Then Paul W. Chapman, who was born on an Illinois farm and never had crossed the ocean, decided to go into the shipping business.

He bought the United States Lines for $16,000,000 from the government. A policy of expansion, encouraged by the Jones-White bill, which provides government aid for shipbuilding and operation, went into effect. Now America has more merchant ship tonnage under construction than any country except Great Britain and Ireland.

Contracts already are signed for the first two units of the United States Lines' program. They will be two huge 20-knot, first-class liners, the largest ever built in this country, says Chapman.

Costing jointly more than $21,000,000, the ships will be 705 feet long, with a beam of 86 feet and gross tonnage of 30,000. Each will accommodate 1,300 passengers.

These ships, to be launched in 1932, will be similar in design to the Leviathan, but will have two funnels instead of three. Their interiors will be even more luxurious than the present flagship of the American merchant marine.

In keeping with an agreement with the shipping board at the time the line was purchased from the government, the United States Lines program also includes plans for construction of two super ships of more than 45,000 tons displacement, with a speed of about 30 knots. Their cost is tentatively placed at about $35,000,000 apiece.

Mississippi is expected to purchase 352,050 motor vehicle license tags for the year 1931. Twenty-five sub-motor vehicle tags will be included.

WYOMING SEES DANGERS IN RAISING MORE COYOTES

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—(AP)—Commercial production of coyotes in a state that has fought for their extermination has invited criticism from the Wyoming department of agriculture.

Raising of coyote pups for sale and for the trade in pelts is increasing, the department says.

Attention was called to the serious infestation of New York state as a result of coyote pups being sold as pets in the east. Doubting the value of the pelt trade, since coyotes usually become mangy and are worthless by fall, the department says the greatest danger lies in the likelihood of escape.

NEW CROPS FOR GEORGIA SINCE BOLL WEEVIL CAME

ATHENS, Ga.—(AP)—Coming of the boll weevil to Georgia cotton fields 16 years ago has brought development of many new crops in the state.

John L. Anderson, extension economist in marketing at the state college of agriculture, points out these results:

Georgia has become a leading peach producing state; watermelon production has increased from 5,000 to 21,000 cars; tobacco, unknown as a crop in the state 16 years ago, now brings the farmers $6,000,000 annually and poultry also has become an important source of income.

BOSWELL AVENUE TREE SITTER "FORCED DOWN"

After establishing a local tree sitting record of 160 hours, Daniel Brennan, son of Mrs. Humphrey Brennan of Boswell avenue, was "forced down" about 10 o'clock Thursday morning by parental objection. He started his tree sitting endurance contest a week ago yesterday (Thursday) evening at 8 o'clock and when "forced down" Thursday morning had completed 160 hours in his tree.

A friend of the family, after considerable argument, induced the boy Thursday morning to give up the contest. After descending from his lofty perch young Brennan joined several of his chums and they adjourned to the Shetucket river where they spent the afternoon swimming.

NORWICH POLICE WILL NOT TAKE UP AUTO DRIVERS' LICENSES

The Norwich police will not take up the driving licenses of motor vehicle operators arrested on charges of reckless driving or driving while under the influence of liquor. Announcement to this effect was made by Chief George Linton late Thursday.

Recently, Robbins B. Stoeckel, state commissioner of motor vehicles, requested all police departments in the state to seize the licenses of all drivers arrested for reckless driving or driving while under the influence of liquor, before the accused drivers have been brought to trial in the courts. This, the Norwich police department declines to do. The police departments of New Haven and Bridgeport have also declined to follow the motor vehicle commissioner's request.

The state police will comply with the request of Commissioner Stoeckel and in making announcement to this effect Commissioner Robert T. Hurley states that: "Where we find a person operating a car while under the influence of liquor we will take up his license forthwith. Should we find one driving recklessly or evading responsibility, and there is prima facie evidence that he is under the influence of liquor, we will take away his license and present him in court on charges of operating while under the influence of liquor and with reckless driving or evading responsibility as the case may be. If we find no indications of his being under the influence of liquor but he is guilty of reckless driving or evading responsibility, we will not take away his license but will present him in court on a proper charge as we are now doing."

The above applies to operators licensed to drive cars on the highways of the state. With relation of out of state drivers Commissioner Hurley says the licenses will not be taken up but the accused will be brought to court and placed under bonds on any of the three charges mentioned.

CITIZENS PLASTER THERMOS TEAM, 8-2, BEFORE LARGEST CROWD OF THE SEASON

They came, they saw and they were satisfied. Over 3,000 fans, at least 2,800 of them apparently anti-Bottlers, jammed every inch of bleacher space and nearly every square foot of available standing room at the Academy campus last night and saw Bill Hastedt's Thermos club decisively beaten by the Polish Citizens. While Boots Greene, youthful N. F. A. hurler, curved the leaders dizzy the Cit artillery bombarded Mike Nickerson for a total of 11 hits and won by a score of 8 to 2.

Mixing an underhand outshoot with a slow, tantalizing drop, Boots had the league leaders entirely baffled and at no time were they in a position to even threaten, let alone win. Three hundred hitters, nearly everyone of them, the Bottlers were held hitless for four full innings, registering but three singles, one very scratchy, in the entire period of play. Greene, who two years ago was doing duty in the Junior league, whiffed six of the Hastedtmen and with the exception of the fifth inning, did not allow one of them to get past second base.

On the other hand Nickerson's offerings were smacked freely, the hits being bunched for runs. In the first inning the Cits counted three times, two of the runs coming as a result of Tony West's swipe over the centerfield fence. Cimmy, the leadoff man, went out, N. Lemieux to Hart, and Leo Jarvis got to second while Hull was making a wretched play of his fly ball into right. He scored a moment later on Lamory's single over second. The Citizen catcher galloped in ahead of West when West's hit to center bounded over the fence for the circuit. Finn popped to third and Lloyd Jarvis hit safely to right, stealing second on the next pitched ball. Johnny Greene ended the inning by fanning.

Two innings later, however, Johnny redeemed himself by tagging the centerfield scoreboard for two bases. He scored West with the clout and came in himself on Carlie Krauss' error of Gaudette's grounder.

The Polish clan added another pair in the fourth and scored once again in the fifth.

As previously mentioned, the Bottlers only good inning was the fifth. After Nickerson grounded out, Finn to West, Hamil drew a walk and scored on the first Thermos hit of the game, Mullins one ply drive to center. Kotch, who went to right in place of Hull in the third, scored Mullins with another single into center.

The only other Thermos hit was E. Lemieux's scratch to short in the sixth.

During the course of the evening a number of spectacular plays were made afield, the outfielders grabbing off the largest percentage of the glory. The two outstanding plays were made by the rival outfielders, Lloyd Jarvis and E. Lemieux. In the fifth Lemieux went almost to the foul line to spear Gaudette's line drive and in the next inning Lloyd backed up into the bushes near the left field fence to drag down Carlie Krauss' lift.

Cimmy, Citizen shortfielder, earned an opportunity to lift his lid in the fourth after he made a running one hand spear of E. Lemieux's hard grounder and made the play at first.

Lamory led the hitters with a double and two singles, West getting a one base hit in addition to his homer. The score:

Ideals Play Tonight

The City league's most popular club, Tony Bernard's Ideals, show at the campus tonight, meeting the Italians in a postponed game. Last week when the service station men beat the Citizens they began to gain the favor of the fans but it was not until Tuesday when they upset the league leading Thermos Bottlers that the following actually went wild over them.

Since they showed last Bernards pets have been mixed up in a flock of protests, counter-protests, etc., and tonight will be their first actual appearance since the legal technicalities began to appear. Whether the 48 hour wrangle that developed with the outcome of the Thermos game will have any effect on their playing is not known at this time but one thing is certain, it certainly has not lowered them in the estimation of the fans.

The crowd at last night's game proved that the questionable affair stirred up interest in the league and there is little doubt but that the turnout will be equally as last this evening with "the party of the first part" on exhibition.

In regards to the ball game itself, tonight's affair should be a real good one. The Italians, it is understood, have taken on additional strength and are confident of snapping the winning streak now enjoyed by the Ideals. Rumor has it that the Italians have lined up one or two Sub base players and that Lefty Lucier is again ready for duty.

BERNARD FILES PROTEST WITH ARBITRATION BOARD

Claiming that the City league arbitration board took a one way stand in handling Bill Hastedt's protest of the Ideal-Thermos game, which was played at the campus Tuesday evening, Tony Bernard, Ideal pilot, filed a counter-protest with Al Bliven, president of the board, Thursday afternoon.

As a result of Hastedt's protest, the league governors at a special meeting Wednesday evening, ruled that the score of the game in question should be 4-4 instead of 5 to 4, in favor of the Ideals, as it stood at the end of play Tuesday night. The board sliced one run off the original score, declaring that the Ideals were entitled to one run instead of two on a passed ball in the first inning of play.

Bernard's letter to the board cites the play in question and also mentions another play, which in his opinion was a misinterpretation of the league's ground rules in favor of the Bottlers.

The letter follows:

Mr. Alfred G. Bliven,
President City League.
Dear Sir:

We hereby enter our protest of the decision rendered by your arbitration board as printed in this morning's paper relative to action taken on protest of The Thermos Bottle Co., in reference to game played Tuesday night, July 29th.

We base our protest on the following contentions namely:

1. The two runs cited, scored in the first inning after a so-called passed ball, were the result of an error by the catcher of the Thermos team, who touched the ball after the batter had offered, and was not a wild pitch or passed ball subject to local ground rules. In support of this contention, we offer as evidence the official score sheet of this game which records this play as an error.

2. A ball hit to right field by a Thermos batter in the second inning, struck an obstruction in the field bounding over our right fielder's head, rolling to the manual training building, and hitting same bounded back and was then fielded as the batter went to third base, resulting in three runs being scored that inning instead of but two, had this batter been restricted to two bases as he should have been.

In support of this contention, we offer as evidence the local ground rule, that a ball hit to the manual training building shall be for two bases only if batter be able to make it.

This game was scored by official scorer appointed for that purpose, and I strongly feel that if this score sheet was given proper consideration during the arbitration this situation would not have arisen, making it necessary to enter this protest.

I for my part regret the necessity of having to play any ball game anywhere except on the ball field, but believe that I am justified in playing this game over on paper in the interests of sportsmanship.

Very truly yours
ANTHONY J. BERNARD.

LOWLY PHILLIES TURN ON LEADERS AND WIN 12 TO 7

PHILADELPHIA, July 31—(AP)—After eleven straight setbacks, the Phillies finally found some use for the hitting that has made them the leading batting club of the National league and turned on the Brooklyn Robins today for a 12 to 7 victory.

Ray Phelps, who started for Brooklyn, was hit by a line drive from Chuck Klein's bat in the second inning and forced to retire. Fred Heimach followed and was the victim of the first of two five run rallies by the Phils. They scored five in the third inning and as many in the fourth off Clise Dudley to clinch the triumph.

Sugar Sweetland went the route for Philadelphia although he was hit freely. Babe Herman had a perfect day against Sweetland's pitching with five hits in five trips to the plate, including two doubles and his 33rd home run of the season.

PIRATES AGAIN NOSE OUT CARDS BY A RUN

PITTSBURGH, July 31—(AP)—Pittsburgh swept the three game series with St. Louis, all by one run margins, winning today, 4 to 3.

Larry French won his own game by doubling in the ninth with Bartell and Bool on base. Suhr, Pirate first baseman, hit a home run.

Grimes, a former Pirate, pitched well for the Cardinals, but was removed in the seventh for a pinch hitter. Lindsay who relieved him, was charged with the defeat.

EDDIE MCKAY WINS PRIZE IN LAWYERS' TOURNEY

NEW LONDON, July 31.—(AP)—Robinson Cook, of Hartford, today was crowned champion golfer of the Connecticut Bar association.

He led a field of 40 fellow lawyers and judges over two 18 hole rounds at the Shenecossett Country club, Eastern Point, turning in cards of 79 in the morning round and 80 for the afternoon, a total of 159 strokes. The rest of the field lagged far behind with scores of 200 strokes and more far from common.

Judge W. G. Larkin, Jr., of Waterbury, aided by a 19 stroke handicap for each of the 18 hole rounds, won the trophy for low net with a 77 and a 66 for a total of 143 strokes. The other prize winners of the day were Judge A. C. Baldwin, of New Haven, and Edward G. McKay, of Norwich. Judge Baldwin, with a 25 stroke handicap, turned in the low net of 70 for the morning round and McKay, while his 77 gross for the afternoon round and seven stroke handicap, rated him only second to Judge Larkin who was awarded the prize on a ruling that no contestant could win more than one prize.

Up to a late hour this morning there was no report of the Thermos management having protested their 8 to 2 defeat of last night. However they have three days in which to protest.

In talking with a member of the arbitration committee last night at the ball game this member implied that Hank Morin was out on a limb and that a couple of more breaks and Hank would cease to be a league umpire. Watch your step, Hank, old kid.

Asked what the breaks were the member of the committee said that Hank was always passing the buck. Or in other words, when he made a ruling or failed to make a ruling, as the case may be, he said it was upon orders of the committee. Now ain't that sumpin'?

And if you ask my opinion, which nobody has, I would say that I don't blame Hank in the least. If I was umpiring under the conditions that Hank is I'd feel the same way about it.

Can you imagine trying to umpire a game and knowing that a decision you might make could be over ruled by a committee of five, some of whom may be in the bleachers. What would you tell the committee? That's right so would I.

A committee with that kind of power over an umpire is no good to a league. An umpire is in that game to call them as he sees them and should not have to look around to find the committee to get their approval before deciding some technical point.

If the umpire cannot be depended upon to make correct rulings without the aid of a committee why not let the committee get right down on the field and umpire the game themselves. If they can do so well from the bleachers they certainly ought to do a hundred per cent better job from behind the plate.

If the committee wants to keep Hank from passing the buck why do they tie his hands? Why not give Hank full control of the game and then he can't pass the buck, the entire blame will be on his shoulders. Hank knows his baseball and it would be hard to find a better umpire.

Hank Morin certainly has my sympathy.

GEHRIG HAS PERFECT DAY AS YANKS BEAT RED SOX

BOSTON, July 31—(AP)—Lou Gehrig once more blazed the way to victory for the New York Yankees today as they eked out a 14 to 13 victory over the the Red Sox in a poorly played game.

Gehrig had a perfect day at bat, hitting his 33rd home run of the season and two doubles in three official times at bat. He drove in eight runs and scored three. The homer was made in the seventh inning with the bases full and scored the runs that eventually won the game.

The teams got a lot of bad baseball out of their systems in the two hours and 45 minutes of play. The Yankees committed seven errors and Boston six. The Red Sox outhit the winners, 17-12, but they had 14 men left on bases. Rabbit Warstler, new Boston shortstop, also hit a homer and was the outstanding Boston player at bat and in the field.

GIANTS BEAT BRAVES IN RAGGED GAME

NEW YORK, July 31—(AP)—The Giants took their fourth straight game and their second from the Boston Braves today by winning a ragged encounter, 11 to 5. The Giants rolled up a total of 20 hits and only once was their early lead threatened.

Neither starting pitcher had much success. Clarence Mitchell failed to hold the lead the Giants gave him, Boston driving him from the mound with four runs in the fifth inning. Tom Zachary was the victim of poor support while Fred Frankhouse, who followed him, was chased from the field by Umpire McGrew in the seventh for arguing over his strikeout.

Hub Pruett relieved Mitchell and gave but three hits in 4 1-3 innings, getting credit for the victory.

LYONS PITCHES BRILLIANTLY TO GIVE CHICAGO DOUBLE WIN

CHICAGO, July 31—(AP)—Ted Lyons held St. Louis to four hits in the second game of today's double header with St. Louis to give the White Sox a 1 to 0 victory and account for his own 17th triumph of the season.

After the Sox had batted out a 10 to 2 decision in the first game, Lyons and Coffman engaged in a great pitching battle. Each permitted four hits with the Sox taking advantage of two Brownie errows, Watwood's double and a bad throw by Alex Metzler in the third inning to send Lyons over with the winning run.

Smead Jolley got his 15th home run of the season to aid in winning the opener. The victory gave the Sox four out of six in the series.

ELKS RALLY IN FIFTH INNING TO TAKE POLISH BOYS IN JUNIOR LOOP

Staging a strong rally in the fifth inning, which netted five runs, the Elks broke up a close game with the P. N. A. C. finally winning 8 to 1. Previous to their rally in the fifth, the Elks could do little with Watters the Polish club pitcher, and as LaVarge, the Elks twirler was going strong, it began to look as if a close game was in the works. LaVarge was in fine form, limiting his rivals to four hits, while striking out nine. Watters, with the exception of the bad fifth inning, also pitched fine ball. He allowed ten hits in all, five of which came in the fifth. The Polish pitcher also played a fine fielding game, handling eight chances in the box without an error.

The Elks scored two in the first and got off to a slight lead. Singles by Ulewicz, Carter and Bamber accounting for the scoring.

The P. N. A. C. came back with a single counter in the third on singles by Kozlowski and Watters.

From the first to the fifth, the Elks had been unable to do anything at all with Watters, but in this frame, they broke loose and five runs were across the plate when the inning closed. With one out, LaVarge singled to right and stole second. Ulewicz was safe on an error. Hamil singled to center scoring LaVarge and sending Ulewicz to third. Carter kept up the attack with a single to left, scoring both Ulewicz and Hamill. Carter scored when Guillotte hit to deep left for a two-bagger. Bamber grounded out, Guillotte taking third. Dugas beat out a hit to the infield, scoring Guillotte, but Gallivan closed the inning with a pop to the pitcher. The Elks added another in the sixth on a couple of walks and a single by Ulewicz.

FAST DOGS TO RACE HERE ON SATURDAY

When the Fairway Whippet club of Hartford brings 45 dogs here on Saturday to the fairgrounds under the auspices of the Ideal Service Stations, Inc., the public will have the opportunity of seeing one of the fastest whippets in the country. Among the 45 dogs, all of which have been imported from England and France, is a dog by the name of Queenie for which it is claimed holds an unofficial world's record for 5-16 of a mile.

Queenie has covered this distance in a fraction under 32 seconds, the world's mark for this distance held by Casboo, owned by William Houghton of Pole City, Ohio. This record of Queenie's has not been officially recognized for it was not made at any of the meets in the dog-racing centers.

To compete with Queenie comes a dog from Willimantic owned by the proprietor of the Whippet Tea room. It is claimed that this Willimantic dog covered a mile and one-quarter at a speed of 45 miles an hour which would make it the fastest dog in the world. With two such dogs racing at the fairgrounds on Saturday the local people will have an opportunity to see something novel.

Tony Bernard, whose Ideals play at the campus this evening, will distribute complimentary tickets to the dog races to those that desire them.

NATIONAL LEAGUE STATISTICIAN IS VISITING IN NORWICH

Al Munro Elias of New York, the man who figures batting averages, fielding averages and gathers other statistics for the National league is visiting in Norwich with his wife, who was a former Norwich girl. Mr. and Mrs. Elias were called to Norwich by the illness of a member of Mrs. Elias' family.

In speaking of baseball Mr. Elias said that in both leagues the teams were havin mighty hard sledding financially and in some cities the attendance is the smallest on record. He said that many of the minor league teams were resorting to night baseball in an effort to keep a working balance in the treasury. As for night baseball for the big leagues he claimed that he did not believe it would be a success and that many of the teams that have played it are opposed to it.

SMITH WINS LONG ISLAND OPEN WITH SCORE OF 278

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP)—Scoring 68s on his last two rounds, MacDonald Smith, veteran from the Lakeville club, captured the Long Island open golf championship over the Engineer's club course today with a 72-hole total of 278. Smith put together rounds of 73-69-68-68 to distance the field by eight strokes.

Finishing in second place at 286 was Willie Klein, of Wheatley Hills, with Gene Serazen of Fresh Meadow another stroke back.

Uncanny accuracy was the keynote of Smith's play today. In the final 36 holes he had only three fives. His card otherwise, showed nine threes and one deuce, all the others being fours. Par for the course is 70.

BOOK BOOTLEGGING IS PROFITABLE IN TURKEY

ISTANBUL—(AP)—Contraband novels, printed in the old but now forbidden Arabic alphabet, are sold secretly here for $2.50 as compared with the forty cents usually charged for new Turkish books.

The book crisis, due to the change to the Latin alphabet, has become so acute that best-sellers written in the new characters, run up to only 600 copies.

You Tell Him, Shymas

Sports Editor:

Last Tuesday I had a challenge to the Shyma club base ball club for a game and I haven't heard either "yes" or "no" from any one. I want to know what is the trouble. If it is a severe case of cool feet, they better hang up their suits. They haven't played a decent team yet and I have a team that will send the whole outfit back to the club house talking to themselves. What I want to know is if the Sacred Heart boys want to play ball or marbles.

Yours in sport,
TOTO PEPIN.

THE LITTLE RED CENT

Not even the clouds looked as though they would tolerate a gentle pinching of their cheeks to see whether or not they masked silver linings.

At times like these there are always children's laughter, a good joke, a fireplace and a book, or even a carefully served ddinner to pour the cod liver oil into like again—the good old sunshine substitute.

But to Duane there were none of these things. When one has come to the last stretches of hat, shoes and chiffon hose—the three necessary accessories of a girl's continued existence—then indeed the sun goes down.

Gently Duane handled the last pair of hose. Instinct told her sadly that they would have to see the day out and then would probably expire with the patent pumps so bravely trudging the weary road of running down jobs day after day. The patent was cracking. A dab of ink soothed its gaping wound.

A rough chastisement with soap and water relieved the felt hat of some of its sorrow—the city's breath of soot and dust. Then a pair of graham crackers moistened with a glass of water, two glasses of water, as much water as one wanted, to be sure—and Duane was ready to approach the business world with a firm, well-fed smile, just as she had done every day for weeks.

In her purse was a little red cent, curled up fast asleep and happy. For almost a year it had been there, a new penny that had led a sheltered life away from the hot and dirty palms of the world. Once it had had plenty of company.

But now it had only the distinction of being the last cent, the celebrated last cent. It was a roguish little fellow, self-assuring, ruddy.

She approached a fat man in a swivel chair.

"Have you an opening in your stenographic department, sir?"

"Nothing today, miss."

The employment agency ladies were kind or tart, depending upon what sort of way fate had handled them in the interval preceding her entrance.

"Dearie, times are bad just now, but things will begin to open up soon I'll keep you in mind and at the first opportunity I'll give you a ring."

"My good girl, you're wasting time. There's positively nothing open."

Outside people were asking the traffic policeman all sorts of questions and turning away pleased and satisfied. He was tall, commanding, good looking. He helped an old lady to the curb and got her on her right bus. He held impatient autos in abeyance until a mother with seven wriggling youngsters crossed safely and totally. He spoke sharply to an erring driver and smiled his thanks on another who had shown good sense in rounding a corner. Like a magistrate he held his own little court, just, dependable, sure.

Duane liked him. "You do very well." she found herself confiding to him.

"Thanks, I try to."

But she hastened away, ashamed. She leaned against a mailbox, suddenly feeling the futility of a steady diet of graham crackers and plenty of water. She opened her purse. Such ironic joviality to look in on the little red cent as it nestled lonely and ruddily within. It grinned back like a red mood.

A man was selling bags of peanuts. Peanuts were very, very good. Peanuts are well-night delicious when one has been consuming graham crackers for aeons.

"I'll have some."

"Five cents, lady."

"I—c-could you give me a penny's worth?"

"Five cents; don't split bags."

An old man was racing for a street car. He had many burdles. A bunch of carrots waved cheerfully from a bag. He was on board, then groped at the air for something.

"Lemme off, lemme off. I lost a cent, and all I've got is seven."

"Car's started; you've got to ride a block."

Duane was whirling through the crowd. She ran along with the car, reaching in her purse, pushing something into the old man's hand.

"Here," laughing dizzily, "here's a little red cent. I'm so glad to be able to spend it."

There was concern in the good, out-of-door face of the traffic policeman as he bent over her.

"Listen, I'm going to take you to a restaurant. You just sit there and drink soup until I get off duty. You're to have at least four bowls of soup by the time I get back."

There was no resisting. He piloted her to a lunch place as he would have steered a broken-down car to a haven.

She was dazed but obedient! The soup was very, very interesting and heady—but it cleared things. Her backbone, long since apparently reduced to jelly, regained its authority. And her cheeks pinkened.

The young policeman was back. He knew a great many people. Why, this place was even now looking for a cashier and typist.

Suddenly she discovered his kind blue eyes were as interesting as the soup and he learned at the same moment that hers were deep fringed and beautiful.—Exchange.

FARM BOY, PASTOR HEADS NATIONAL EDUCATION GROUP

ATLANTA—(AP)—A plantation product who jumped from school teaching to the ministry and back to the schoolroom is the new president of the National Education association.

He is Dr. Willis A. Sutton, Atlanta's superintendent of schools.

Recognized nationally for promoting health work among school children, Dr. Sutton is a disciple of the philosophy that people are more important than things.

Born in Georgia 51 years ago, Sutton became a teacher while a youth, but quit to serve two years as Methodist pastor at Ashland, Ala. Then he went back to education and a few years later became president of Northwest Alabama Agricultural college.

He helped Bobby Jones through the hazards of Latin grammar, but didn't know that his pupil was a golfing prodigy.

Bobby's father asked that his son be allowed time off to enter a tournament and Sutton exclaimed:

"You don't mean to tell me that I have right here in this school Bobby Jones, the golfing prodigy? Why, he's been here two years and we didn't know a thing about it!"

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

WORK EARNS THE RIGHT TO PLAY

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

"To be or not to be:" that was the question which Hamlet set before himself.

"To work or not to work:" that is the rather more practical question which this age is considering.

"Can any one live without work?" some one asks, perhaps. Well, there are some—quite a good many, in fact, who manage to exist without doing what the majority of us would call work. Some do it on the left-overs from their fathers' or grandmothers' toil; some by the practice of their superior ability in catching suckers; some in one way and some in another.

But the great majority of us common folks have to work before we can eat.

And we don't like it: there's no use attempting to gloss over that fact. We don't like to work; we'd rather play or eat or sleep. Especially we'd much better like to tell others what to do and then find fault with their ways of doing it.

The French philosopher, Rochefoucauld, once declared that the strongest of all human instincts "is the impulse of sitting down." Maybe. We've all known people, even before these latter days of flagpole and tree sitters, who were known widely for their ability to "set and set, and keep on settin'."

One of the oldest rhymes in the English language asks pointedly:

"When Adam delved and Eve span,
Where was then the idle man?"

So long as there were only two people on earth the idler may have been non-existent, but he appeared before the census had risen to half-a-dozen, and he's been with us ever since.

Nor is that by any means all of it. He's not only very much with us, but we who haven't acquired his technique of living without work frankly and almost unanimously envy him and wish we could do the same.

Some of us ancients can remember when we were taught that "A man's work is from sun to sun."

To which our always vocal sisters promptly added the line

"And woman's work is never done."

Then the hours were gradually reduced to ten, then to nine, then to eight. Now I read in the papers that some at least of the so-called "labor" organizations are formulating a demand for a six-hour day and a five-day week.

The present head of the government's department of labor is quoted as looking forward to a possible time "when a day's work can be done with hardly more effort than pulling a lever or pressing a button." Nor does he show any repugnance towards such a time. Indeed, he indicates that he considers it a highly desirable consummation.

There used to be another old rhyme which comes back to me in this connection, and which many of you have heard:

"All work and no play Makes Jack a dull boy."

But

"All play and no work Makes Jack a mere shirk."

We've outgrown that immature state of mind. We're pretty generally agreed, now-a-days, that a life of "all play and no work" is what we want. Even those of us who still insist upon calling our activities work feel really relieved when some Edison or Ford shows us how to "pull a lever or press a button" and turn the jobs over to machines.

Incidentally and merely as a side issue, what is your idea of the difference between work and play? I've never heard a definition which seems to me more expository than that which describes work as something you get paid for doing, and play as something you pay for the privilege of doing.

There are mighty few old farmers who work as hard hoeing corn or potatoes as their boys do "playing" baseball or football. Mighty few railroad track-walkers walk as many miles under such constant strain as Bobby Jones in "playing" a golf match. Mighty few women even in the turmoil of cooking for the harvest hands, work as hard and as exhaustingly as Helen Wills, leaping and swooping and twisting and straining after a tennis ball. Yet they all call the easier occupation "work," and the harder "play."

And on that rather paradoxical basis they plan to lay the foundations of the future.

We are to avoid work as if it were really the primal curse; we are to devote ourselves to play as if it were the be-all and the end-all of existence. Then we'll all live happily ever after.

Q. E. D.—which is the abbreviation for the Latin "Quod erat demonstrandum," which means in English, "it remains to be proved."

You and I, probably, won't live to see the probation, whichever way it turns out. This may not be wholly unfortunate for us.

For,* if there's any such thing as judging the future from the past and the human race as it will be from the human race as it has been and is, the prospect of having to live in a world ignoring work and wholly devoted to amusement is not highly alluring.

Let us admit that there's been a lot of sloppy sentimentality talked about the nobility and sacredness of labor. Let us admit that work is just a means to an end, a means not necessarily desirable in itself, but the only discoverable way to ends which are desirable. Let us admit that we—don't—like—to—work, and be honest about it.

The fact remains that the only way to climb a mountain is go up-hill.

They may yet build a funicular railroad up the Matterhorn and establish a landing field for aviators on the icy peak of Everest. But before they do either one, somebody will have to climb the Alps and some one will have to scale the Himalayas. Both of which operations will involve something so closely approximating work that you and I wouldn't be able to tell the difference. After the railway is built and the airplane route established getting to the top may be easy for the passengers. But the getting ready won't have been play for the pioneers, nor is there any visible method by which it can be made so.

All of which is written solely to suggest the thought that, before anybody can get the right to play, somebody—he or someone else, must have earned it by work. It is simply impossible for one to regard the laying of a cog-wheel track up the Matterhorn or the blasting and levelling of a landing field on the five-miles-high summit of Everest in the light of play. Both involve work, the hardest, riskiest, most straining sort of work. Only after that has been done is play with the resulting devices possible.

Even those who are most eager for play are usually perfectly willing that somebody else should work to provide the wherewithal for their play.

It is, indeed, extremely doubtful if we should be any happier if we had nothing to do but play than we are now when we think life is all work.

After a day of work what is sweeter than the sleep by which tired nature renews itself? But who wants to sleep all day and every day, seven days a week and fifty-two weeks a year?

After a long, hot forenoon in the hay field we welcome the blare of the dinner horn and the simplest fare, savored with the sauce of hunger, becomes a feast fit for the gods. Yet who would want to sit forever at the table and eat, eat, eat, even though it were laden with all the most enticing delicacies of all the continents and all the islands of all the seas?

If one never knew want, how could he appreciate having his want satisfied?

If one never worked, how could be appreciate the change to play?

After all, it is contrast which makes life bearable if not interesting.

If the globe were all valley where could we look for the mountains? If it were all prairie, where would be the sea-shore?

If life were all "beer and skittles," where would roast beef and baked potatoes come from?

If we had nothing to do but play from dewy morn to rosy eve how long before play would itself become a beastly bore? An infliction to avoid, even by a resort to work?

Not long ago an eminent English scientist gravely queried whether he and his fellow searchers might not do well to call a temporary halt in their probings after the secrets of nature. He intimated that more had already been discovered than humanity knew just what to do with. Might it not be wiser, he asked, to let up for a while, at least till the world had found out how to use safely the powers already put at its disposal?

In colloquial if not vulgar phrase, this meant that in his opinion the world had better not bite off more than it could chew.

In a similar spirit, might it not be held wise for the world to go a little slow in its chase after leisure, till it has at least learned how to make worth-while use of the leisure it already has?

We have, I believe, what is known as a "leisure class." Do you, any of you, recall any great benefit to the world at large which has ever sprung from it?

Does it really strike anyone as probable that the world would ever get much higher up if its conduct were committed entirely to this so-called "leisure class?"

It might, indeed, play better golf for a few years. But wouldn't even golf, as an every-day and all-day occupation, eventually pall?

THE FARMER.

UNION

At the last campfire meeting held at C. A. C. Forestry school, Lake Mashapaug, Wednesday evening, July 23, Forester Walter O. Filley of Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station, New Haven, was the speaker. The school broke camp Friday, July 25, after the customary session of six weeks.

Miss Delia M. Heck and Mrs. Holcomb R. Howard attended the Home Economics meeting held for the directors of the towns in Tolland county, Thursday afternoon, July 24. The meeting was at the home of Mrs. Alexander Bunce, at Bolton lake. Miss Edith Mason, State Home Demonstration leader, and Mrs. Sara W. Dimock, Tolland County Home Demonstration agent, had charge of the meeting. It is expected that the Union Home Economics club will hold a meeting at the town hall in September, and it is probable that the demonstration will be on millinery.

Several good showers, recently, have helped vegetation and cooled the air. The thunder showers of Tuesday afternoon brought beautiful, clear, cool weather for Wednesday.

An enjoyable social was held by the L. B. A. at the town hall, Friday evening, July 25. Guests were present from Stafford, Sturbridge, Danielson and South Killingly besides local people. The salad, cold meat supper, with cake, coffee, etc., was followed by an entertainment given by cottagers from Mayland park, Lake Mashapaug. Dr. Samuel McCune Lindsay presided, also took part in the program. The first number was a recitation, "We Are Seven," by Priscilla Magoun. Dr. and Mrs. Lindsay, who landed in New York July 20, and arrived at their Mashapaug cottage, July 23, each gave interesting and delightful sketches of their experiences in the Orient. Mrs. Daniel Lindsay told Kipling's story, "How the Rhinoceros Got His Skin." Prof. F. Alexander Magoun gave two solos, with Mrs. Daniel Lindsay piano accompanist, and Mrs. F. Alexander Magoun led in games, which afforded much amusement. Ice cream was served after the entertainment.

CALIFORNIA TOURISTS HAD STRANGE COMPANION

Sam McDee and his wife were touring from California to Boston recently in their coupe and stopped at West Mystic to see friends for the night. They were telling of their trip to Ted Anderson and it surely was interesting. They came into St. Louis when the hot wave was at its height and saw little children in their shirts taking a ride on the street cars trying to cool off. A total of 52 died in that week, for it was 103 in the shade.

All along the line it was cool, but coming into a city was like walking into an oven, but it sure was a beautiful trip to see the farmers out in the fields and hear the robins singing. "It is our first trip to the east," they said, "And so far we have been eight days on the road not pushing the auto very hard."

"We wanted to see the country that us western people have heard so much about. A funny thing happened to us outside of New York; stopping at a road house, called Birch Tree Inn to have some lunch, for it was a cool place, right under some trees, we left the car under a tree when we went inside for about 40 minutes to have a good rest, before pushing the car for 200 miles, to make New York before the sun went down over the Brooklyn bridge for the night. Coming out of the inn, we saw something in the seat of the auto, right at the wheel. I did not think I had a drink too many of iced tea, the only thing I read on the bill of fare. Reaching the car, I found an owl was the driver. It was not afraid, would not move away from the wheel. We almost read on his lips, "Home, James." How was I going to drive? My wife said in a sweet way, 'Move over and let us in!' So Mr. Owl did, but would not leave the seat. So the unafraid bird sat between us while the auto was on its way to New York and you could pet him, also he would give us his right leg, like shaking hands. The three of us reached the Father Knickerbocker city by daylight. A cop looked at us thinking we had a wild owl as a pet. 'Where did you get him, Daniel Boone?' 'I found him in my auto as we stopped off at a road house; he will not go away!' The cop said he had some children and wanted the owl but the tourists would not part with their pet, so the cop with a smile said 'Good bye and good luck!'

"Not staying in the noisiest city long for it was some act, my life pal, Minnie, wanted to keep coming until we reached a cool place to sleep. The owl was sweating—rolling off him like a dog shaking after a swim. Coming to a small town about 30 miles from New York it was cool as the auto stopped. A newsboy came running up to sell a paper and saw the owl. "Gee, mister, that is a dandy one! Want to sell him?" The newsboy's face was dirty and he was in his barefeet. "I have a crippled sister at home and she would love to have an owl as a pet!' The unafraid bird's ears were up straight, listening to the sad story. It sure touched the western man's heart and his wife said, 'Sam, give it to the newsboy!' Next thing was to get rid of the wild bird of the woods after taking him over 200 miles. So McDee picked up the owl and said, "Here you are boy!" That owl did not move and seemed glad to go with the boy—must like children. The tourist gave the lucky boy a $5 to help buy food for the owl and a pair of shoes for himself.

"The kid thanked me over one hundred times. So we spent the night in that town and made West Mystic for a few hours stop.

Ted Anderson said, "You sure had some trip so far—to pick up an owl and to tame a lost bird is something to do!"

We will go now to Boston and spend several weeks with relatives. If you ever come out to the Golden state, you can look us up. I don't think New England air can be beat, though you travel the world over!"

THIS IS MARY'S SECOND DRESS TODAY...
I DON'T ENVY YOU ON WASHDAY!
OH, I DON'T MIND. I LET RINSO DO ALL THE WORK. IT SOAKS CLOTHES BRIGHTER THAN I CAN SCRUB THEM
I'VE HEARD SO MUCH ABOUT RINSO—I MUST TRY IT

For whiter washes, safely ... try these rich suds

THE SOAP you use makes a big difference on washday. If the suds are flat and lifeless, it means you'll have to scrub, scrub, scrub to get the dirt out. And even then your wash won't look white enough.

But Rinso means a gleaming, snowy wash every time! Its suds are thick, creamy, active.

Rinso soaks clothes clean — no scrubbing or boiling. The clothes last longer!

Cup for cup, Rinso goes twice as far as light-weight, puffed-up soaps. The makers of 38 washers recommend Rinso. Get the BIG package.

WESTERLY

HUNDREDS PAY FINAL TRIBUTE TO CHIEF EGGER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, July 31—"He died doing the work he was called on to do, perhaps not just in the way he would have desired. If you live as you ought to live do that which is helpful to those about. Be ready when the time comes to fulfill the duty which is put in your hand to do and receive your bounty." Thus spoke Rev. Dr. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor emeritus of the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church at the very largely attended funeral services for Westerly Fire Chief George Edward Egger this afternoon when nearly 400 mourning firefighters, fire officials, visiting fire chiefs, delegations and members of fire-fighting organizations and associations from three states gathered with relatives and friends to pay their last respects to one whose heart and soul was wrapped up in fire-fighting.

The death of Chief Egger occurred at the Westerly hosipital early Tuesday morning, six hours after he had sustained a fall in the performance of his duty when he entered the hayloft of the barn of Ernest Thorp at Potter Hill to assure himself that all danger from fire had passed.

The motorized fire equipment was taken from the large apparatus room at an early hour Thursday morning and from 10:00 a. m. to 4:00 p.m. the fire whistle was disconnected from the telegraph alarm system and firemen stationed to watch the ticker tape and to man the equipment should an alarm be rung in. Offices in the Westerly town hall were closed and flags on public buildings and town manufacturing plants were flown throughout the day at half mast. The members of the Westerly town council met and attended the funeral in a body, seats having been reserved for them at the front with the uniformed firefighters who met in their rooms and attended in a body.

From 11:00 a. m. to 1:00 p. m. the body lay in state at the north end of the large apparatus room with a background of nearly a hundred floral tributes, many of them being large pieces, which banked the end of the room. Many hundreds passed the open casket for a last tribute during the early hours and following the funeral services, which were concluded at 3:00 p. m., and line of march formed for the cortege to pass to River Bend cemetery where burial was.

The funeral services, prayers at the home, fire station and at River Bend cemetery, were conducted by Dr. Burdick. "Some Day the Silver Cord Will Break" and "Lead Kindly Light," were solos rendered at the fire station by William H. Browning, with Albert R. Bailey as accompanist at the piano.

With Capt. Shelby C. Nicholas, of the Westerly fire police as marshal and motorcycle police convoy, lines were formed on Union street with nearly 300 uniformed men in line and followed by many autos among which were motor fire chiefs' cars of the Providence, Pawtucket, New London, Norwich, Watertown, Watch Hill, Cranston and many others.

The funeral officials were: Honorary bearers: Chief Frank Charlesworth, Prov.; Chief John W. O'Hearn, Watertown, Mass.; Chief Thos. Shipman, New London; Chief Geo. W. Smith, Wakefield, R. I.; Chief Thomas Almond, Central Falls, R. I.; Chief Jos. Lawton, Newport; Chief Dan. F. Round, Cranston; Chief Lawrence E. Reif, New Haven.

Guard of honor: Capt. Shelby Nicholas and John Reardon, Alexander Gray, Edward C. Brown, Ralph Spargo, William R. Wilcox, Hugh Mulvey, Harry Barber, Henry Sutcliffe, Alexander Passetti and Samuel Patton of Westerly fire police.

Among visiting fire officials were Daniel Matthewson, East Greenwich; Chief Frank Charlesworth, Providence; ex-Chief Charles H. Terick, Greenwood; ex-Chief C. Rounds, Warren, R. I.; ex-Chief George Hunt, Providence; P. A. Bouchard, president of R. I. State League of Firemen; Battalion Chief Charles F. Ayer, Providence; Battalion Chief Louis A. Cole, Providence; Lieut. Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets
Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

Liberal supply continue on the market generally and but few important changes were noted. Trucked shipments of native tomatoes from other sections of the state have considerably increased the supply of that produce and prices were considerably lower. The sweet corn market showed a decided increase in offerings with declining price and demand holding good.

Cucumbers, peppers and shell beans were more plentiful. Green and wax beans were slightly decreased in supply and in a little better demand. Good Kentucky Wonders are now added to the bean offerings and attract the attention of the buyers.

Native apples are liberal and low. Astrachans showing good size and color sold well but ordinary stock was in little demand. Native peaches are beginning to arrive on the market but the quality of the early offerings is not of the best. Shipped in peaches are liberal and moderately priced.

Native eggs continue firm with decreased offerings.

Restless CHILDREN

CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always Castoria! As harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is need. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Miller, tell the class about the Statute of Limitations."

"Eh, you mean the marriage laws, sir?"—Boston Transcript.

Mistress—I can see a spider web in the corner, Ethel! To what do you attribute that?

Maid—To a spider, ma'am.—Travasco.

Postman—You can't imagine how many letters are put in the box without addresses.

Professor—But I never get a letter without an address.—Faun.

"I will dance on your grave when you die!" said the angry wife.

"Splendid!" said her aggravating husband, "I'm going to be buried at sea."—Worcester Times

Brown—Isn't it wonderful that often very clever men appear to be very stupid!

Smith—Are you aiming at me?

Brown—Oh, no, you are what you appear.—Hummel.

Harry—"Shall we walk home, dear? It's not far."

Marjorie—"I have something to confess to you, sweetheart. I learned to dance when I was 6 months old, but I never did learn to walk. You'll just have to call a taxi."—Detroit News.

His wife began to laugh at him.

"You silly," she said; "fancy being superstitious after all these years! Why, do you remember the first time we met? We walked under a ladder, and you said you were sure something horrible would happen to you."

"Well?" said he.—Tit-Bits.

Juryman—I beg to be excused, Your Honor. I owe a man $10 and as he is leaving for a long trip abroad I want to catch him before he gets on the train, and pay him the $10. It may be my last chance.

Judge—You are excused. I don't want anybody on the jury who can lie like that.—The Pathfinder.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Alabama farmers pooled 161,444 bales of cotton with their state cooperative association the last season.

At Belfast, Me., Collins McCarthy, ninety-one, is attending his summer garden and hopes to make another next year.

"A nail has come to meet your tire," is the quaint way a Chinese chauffeur notified his employer by telephone of the cause for an impending delay in bringing the car around.

While Don Budrow, Kalamazoo (Mich.) fireman, was helping to put out a spectacular fire in a paper house, his wife stodd and looked on. After it was out she went home to find their own house in ashes.

May 12. Point Barrow, Alaska, started out on its longest day of the year, a day which lasts approximately three months. On the night of May 12 the sun did not set entirely for the first time this season. Even at midnight its red rim was visible above the horizon.

George Martin, a former merchant at Dodge City, Kas., received a letter and in it was a $10 bill from a woman in Plains, Kas. She said a clerk in Martin's store had made a mistake of $10 in her favor in some purchases made fourteen years ago. She had been unable to make restitution before, but took pleasure in sending the money even at this late day.

A busy man is Homer Sheets, of Coal City, Ill., population 1,700. He is village clerk, chief of the fire department, superintendent of streets, collector of water rent and special assessments, and takes care of heating the city hall and firehouse. In addition he is the father of four children and cultivates a large vegetable garden.

There was a flash and flame from Carey Robertson's vest pocket at Winnipeg. He clapped his hands over the fire and it was extinguished before there was much damage. An automatic cigar lighter in the pocket had apparently been struck the right way to ignite. Robertson swore that was the first time the thing, to his knowledge, has ever functioned promptly.

A swarm of bees swept into the automobile of D. C. Prather, of Woodland, Cal. Up Prather's trouser leg went the queen. The swarm followed, Prather jumped out, tore off his trousers and began to shake them vigorously. Up drove two school teachers. "Can we help you, mister?" they asked. Prather wailed for all kinds of help. The women produced a whiskbroom and flicked the bees from the trousers. Then they drove away.

A farmer near Fredonia, Kas., noticed that his gasoline and oil supplies were being regularly depleted. When his tanks became empty he filled the oil tank with a mixture of water and molasses and just poured a lot of water into the gasoline tank. The next night a motor car of a city man was stalled a short distance from the farmer's home and investigation revealed the gasoline tank was full of water. Two days later a motor car was hauled into a Fredonia garage with the motor bearings burned out and the garage man wondered at the peculiar oil he found in the crank case.

STOCK PRICES CLOSED STRONG AFTER IRREGULAR TRADING IN THE MORNING

NEW YORK, July 31—(AP)—The tone of the financial markets improved today.

Efforts to follow up the Wednesday decline in stocks were discouraged by the resistance to further selling and the list turned upward after the irregular trading of the morning.

Closing prices showed net advances of one to five points. Volume remained small and the total sales of 2,162,000 shares, were about 400,000 below yesterday's.

Speculative commodities also gained. Wheat finished a cent to a cent and a quarter higher and corn rallied one to more than three cents on estimates of lower production. Trade buying and covering helped the local cotton market, after futures had made new lows for the season, and final prices ranged from net losses of 4 points to advances of 3.

The movement of stocks was a pleasant surprise to those who had feared that yesterday's break would bring out public liquidation. Buying orders outweighed selling orders at the opening, which was generally higher. The bear faction, however, disregarded this signal and resumed operations at pivotal points, with indifferent success. A rally late in the forenoon gave way to another selling flurry, but around mid-day the market made marked progress and managed to retain, if not extend, its gains during the late afternoon. Short covering appeared to be an important factor in the rally.

One dividend omission and a few reductions afforded the outstanding unfavorable developments in the news. Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh railway passed its semi-annual payment of $2 on the common. It was the first time since 1901 that the road, now a Baltimore and Ohio subsidiary, had failed to make a disbursement, and the development tended to unsettle some of the rail stocks.

Missouri Pacific dropped 6 points, Louisville and Nashville, 2, and Delaware and Hudson, 3. Baltimore and Ohio sagged 3 points, but recovered all but a fraction of the loss. Shorts in Southern railway, which has been conspicuously weak, covered and the stock closed more than 2 points higher.

Studebaker was one of the companies to reduce the dividend, cutting to a $3 basis from $4 coincident with the announcement that earnings for the six months amounted to $1.03 a share against $5.56 a year ago.

News from the Detroit automotive plants was more reassuring. Dispatches from that city said that the vacation shutdowns would end this week, with few exceptions, and put no credence in the report that Ford might extend its vacation for another week.

Among the standard issues, American Can was a firm spot, rising about 3 points. Such issues as U .S. Steel, General Electric and American Telephone gained about a point. General Motors and Radio, recent pool favorites, closed only fractionally higher. Warner Brothers was under pressure for a time, recording another new low at 36 1-2, but closing at 37 1-8, up a fraction.

Gillette was a firm feature of the specialties, rising five points in active trading. Shorts were evidently anxious to cover to avoid payment of the dividends which comes off the stock tomorrow.

Autostrop rose more than 2 points to another new high, and gossip regarding the possibility of a merger of the two companies, was again circulated in brokerage circles.

Eastman sold up more than six, then lost most of its gain. Westinghouse Electric, American Tobacco B, Lorillard, National Power and Light, Vanadium, Worthington, Safeway and Case were among shares closing about 4 points higher. Youngstown Sheet lost 3 points in a moderate turnover, and Canada Dry lost 2.

Foreign exchanges were firm. Sterling cables turned upward again, ruling at $4.87 1-8, up 3-16. The German mark rose to 23.90 1-2 cents, a new 1930 high.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 31—(AP)—Extraordinary shriveling up of the 1930 corn crop led to fresh soaring of corn prices today, and helped to rally the wheat market as well.

Losses of corn now reach 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 bushels every 24 hours that general drought continues, it was authoritatively estimated here today.

Big export business in wheat from North America, said to total upward of 6,000,000 bushels for the last 48 hours, was another outstanding feature.

Increased profit taking sales brought about late reactions from the day's top figures, with corn and wheat both closing nervous, corn at 3-8a3 1-4c net gain over yesterday's finish. Wheat and oats both closed 1a1 5-8c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 17c.

Notwithstanding declines in hog values, provisions advanced aided by grain price upturns.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, July 31—(AP)—The public utility shares rallied under active bidding in today's curb market, while the industrials and specialties were inclined to sag, and the oils and investment company issues moved narrowly and uncertainly.

The utilities in the aggregate recovered less than half of yesterday's losses, short covering appeared in some volume in a few issues. In general, trading was dull, sales totaling only 444,800 shares.

American Gas was a firm spot, recovering yesterday's 4 point drop, and getting once more around the best levels of the rally. Electric Bond and Share, however, made scant recovery, closing at 82 3-4 up only 3-4. American Sugar Power and United Light A, each advanced more than a point. Middle West and Niagara Hudson, however, failed to rally, and Northern States A, tumbled 8 points.

Two merchandising issues, of companies specializing in women's apparel, were conspicuously weak. Lerner Stores tumbled about 10 points to a new low at 34 1-8, and Russeks A, sank 3 points to 10, the year's low. In the industrials, Deere went under 80 for the first time, recording a record low at 78. Guardian Fire Assurance was a soft spot in the specialties, sagging a point to a new bottom at 28.

In the oils, Cities Service was active and firm, closing at 28 1-2, up 3-8. Vacuum gained a point in quiet trading, and Ohio Oil lost 1. Others moved uncertainly. In the investment company issues, United Founders rose fractionally in fairly active trading, while others were sluggish.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 31—(AP)—The listed bond market gave another ragged performance today. Second grade rails, and some of the utilities suffered in the irregular price movement, together with volatile issues which are easily influenced.

Stock privilege issues fluctuated throughout the day, with alternate declines and rallies, to close higher. High grade rails which have consistently held an upward trend throughout the past few months, and United States governments were the firmest spots in the list. Foreign issues also suffered, although the recessions which occurred in the most popular bonds were confined to small fractions, and a few showed moderate strength.

The railroad list felt the unsettling influence of weakness in railroad stocks which followed the adverse reports of business during the past month. Mortgage bonds of New York Central, Atchison, Nickel Plate, Pennsylvania and Atchison held at their present high levels. Chicago and Alton refunding 3s soared 2 1-2 points. St. Louis 5's of 1975 firmed to gain nearly a point while adjustment 5s, a convertible issue, continued downward.

Strength was shown at the close by such convertible issues as American Telephone 4 1-2's up 1 1-2 on a few sales, American International 5 1-2, American I. G. Chemical 5 1-2, Baltimore and Ohio 4 1-2's, and Rock Island 4 1-2.

Marked strength and weakness were shown by the utility group. Consumers Gas of Chicago 5's reached a new high. Peoples Gas Light and Coke 5's, and New Orleans Public Service 5's rose 1 point each. American Telephone issues held firm, with the collateral 5's at the highest figure of the year. An easy tone was reflected in New York Edison 5's, North American Edison 5's, Utility Power and Light 5's, and Duquesne Light 4 1-2's.

Moving within a narrow range throughout the day on a large turnover, Austrian 7's closed at 1-4 point higher. German 5 1-2s, dropped to a new low, and French 7's, British 5 1-2's eased. British Dominions were a bright spot, Canadian 5's and Australian Bonds rising. Australian 4 1-2's advanced 1 1-2 points. South Americans were dull and slightly irregular. Peruvian issues were weak.

ANNONCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

By this time all Norwich is talking about the powerful love drama at the Palace, which opened yesterday and which will be continued today and tomorrow. On all sides one hears about the deathlike stillness of the court room in which William Powell, cast as the most dangerous criminal lawyer in New York, fights for the life of his client. Not only this incident, but plenty of other episodes in the great film "For the Defense" are on everybody's tongue today.

Powell, playing along with the famous screen vamp, Kay Francis, makes a marvelous hit in this picture. He takes the part of the great lawyer, William Foster, the man who doesn't lose his cases, the man of whom the police ar suspicious, the man who loves an actress but doesn't want to marry her.

There is jealousy, a wild night ride to a roadhouse, a drowsy return, the crash and death, skidding along the pavement, claims another victim. Into the night a woman flees, fleeing for her good name, while a young man, rich, pampered and proud, calmly awaits what fate may bring him. Fate whirls him into the court room and fate brings Foster to defend him. A peculiar signet ring told the whole story. Sick with despair and disappointment, he goes out into a speakeasy. He drinks One drink two, three, a half dozen—far too many, and the first thing he knows he has embarked upon a tracery of evil. It is finish for Foster and he knows it. How he meets his destiny like a thoroughbred, how he faces his own fate as calmly as though he were fighting for the life and freedom of another man make this an absorbing drama which nobody can afford to miss. JEWETT CITY

A RIDE ON HORSEBACK WITH SURPRISING FEATURE

Two young women who are summering in a Massachusetts town, are enjoying horseback riding as a part of their vacation. One of them had a most unexpected experience on her first ride. She mounted very gracefully and according to the approved style, a meek appearing steed, and ambled away for a ride. All of a sudden, the animal's knees seemed to weaken. Like a camel, he slowly sank to the ground, and Miss Lady was prompt to alight without any unnecessary delay, thinking the animal was about to pass out. Very leisurely the horse turned over and proceeded to roll luxuriously in the nice soft sand. When he got ready, he stood up in front, then in the rear, shook himself, and was ready to proceed. When the rider recovered from her astonishment, she once more rather reluctantly mounted, and finished her ride without interruptions or untoward incidents. But, for the rest of the season, she will ride a more stable (?) minded equine specimen.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 1st marks the addition of another store in the GOOD WILL CHAIN. Our success in Norwich which is highly appreciated, encouraged and aided us to decide on Danielson as the next branch store. As is our custom whenever we make it a sale event and drastically reduce the price on all merchandise, therefore we are going to give Norwich the benefit of the same prices as mark our opening event in Danielson, and, by so doing make the celebration a benefit to all. You benefit by the greatly reduced prices and we benefit by new customers and increased sales. Norwich has been good to us—we hope to merit your confidence—success can only be achieved by honest effort and square dealings and as in the past we shall so conduct the Good Will Stores that satisfaction is assured. Ever hoping and striving for new customers to please. Although our prices are always the lowest we guarantee and stand back of every article we sell. Our merchandise, owing to quick turn over is always new, fresh and clean, assuring the purchaser of first quality and long wear. Especially does this apply to tires and tubes. PERMIT FOR COMMUNIST MEETING GRANTED A WOMAN AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 31—Meetings of the communist party will be held in New London tomorrow. It was learned today that a meeting would be held in Carpenters' hall, Bank and Reed streets at 8 o'clock Friday night, which session will be preceded by an open-air meeting at 5 o'clock. Application for the open-air meeting was made at police headquarters by one of the principal movers of the party, Mrs. Anna Loesch, Green street resident, and it was granted. Police, however, will be at the meeting which will be at Tyler square, corner of Bank, Blinman and Reed streets. The communist party is endeavoring to secure membership in this city for the purpose of combatting industrial unions under the leadership of the Trade Union Unity league. The party seeks membership of white and blacks and the unemployed, as well as employed. It is claimed that the party will be represented on the ballots in the election to be held this fall.

Tall Stack Bumps Bridge

Tug 72, stationed at the submarine base, was slightly damaged today when it crashed against the New Haven railroad bridge which spans the Thames river. The tug was proceeding down the river and it is believed the skipper miscalculated the tide, believing that the boat would pass under the structure without the necessity of the span being opened. Instead, the tide was too high and the smokestack and mast crashed against the iron girders. Both were damaged, but repairs were made at the Electric boat company so that the tug was out of commission but about two hours.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the return of the driver's license of John P. Andrews, 51 Pequot avenue. The license was suspended a week ago.

HAD LOADED REVOLVER— PAUL MANZI ARRESTED

Paul Manzi, of this city, who claims to be employed by Sam Santanella, 94 Ocean avenue, is under arrest at Springfield, Mass., charged with carrying a concealed weapon. When taken to police headquarters and searched, a fully loaded revolver was found in Manzi's pocket.

Y.; Mrs. John Shultze, 25 Shaw street; Reuben Lubchansky, 270 Main street; Florida Tackler, 7 Walbach street; Mortimer Jeffers, 53 Belden street, the last named employed as porter by the Connecticut Power company, who sustained a fractured skull several weeks ago when the car driven by Lemuel Payne, collided with a telephone pole on Pequot avenue—were patients discharged today at Lawrence Memorial hospital.

FUNERALS

Oscar W. Glossenger

The funeral of Oscar W. Glossenger, formerly of New London, for many years employed by the New Haven railroad as passenger conductor, who died at Bale, Pa., was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church and officers of Union lodge, F. & A. M. Members of the lodge acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Archibald Douglass

The funeral of Archibald Douglass, former New Haven railroad conductor, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his home, 21 Garfield avenue and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners, many of whom were railroad employes. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romey Damforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Members of the Order of Railroad Conductors and Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, were bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Ensign Palmer Niles, U. S. Coast Guard destroyer Burroughs, sustained a fractured arm and ankle by a fall at the state pier, yesterday evening and he is now receiving treatment at Lawrence Memorial hospital.

Eileen Northrup, about 10, was struck by an automobile driven by William Moorehead, 26 Willetts avenue, when the child, who had been playing in front of her home, darted into the street in front of the car. The child was taken to Lawrence Memorial hospital, where an examination revealed that she had sustained only minor bruises. She was taken to her home by Moorehead without receiving hospital treatment.

Late last night the New London police received a telephone message from a resident of Amagansett, L. I., requesting that Philip Holdman, of the latter town, who was supposed to be visiting in New London, be informed that his daughter had passed away. An effort was made to find Holdman, but without success, for he is not known here.

WOMEN HELD IN BAIL FOR SALES AND POSSESSION

Mrs. Theresa Paoletti, 225 Shaw street and Mrs. Attilio Paolini, Trumbull street, were before U. S. Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran this afternoon charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts, keeping with intent to sell and illegal possession. Probable cause was found and the women were held in bail of $1000 each for trial at the next term of the United States district court in September. Mrs. Paoletti and Mrs. Paolini were arrested two weeks ago by federal and local officers, at which time a large quantity of beer and a small amount of wine and whiskey were found.

SERVIDIO AND SAILORS ARRESTED AFTER BRAWL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 31—It is not often that the conduct of a liquor seller is responsible for his arrest on a charge of violation of the liquor law, but that is what caused the arrest early today, of Albert Servidio, proprietor of a speakeasy at 50 Goshen street. The dispenser of beer and whisky in the famous Fort Neck section has no one to blame but himself that he faced charges on two counts, keeping with intent to sell and illegal possession, besides being charged with breach of the peace. When arrested, Servido furnished a surety on his bond of $200, but today the court exacted a bond of $2000. This Servidio furnished and he will be tried next Saturday.

The police received a telephone message about 12:30 this morning that a fight was in progress at the corner of Goshen and Walbach streets. Automobile Patrol Officers William Corcoran and Patrolmen George Labous and Lawrence Fardy found George Brooker and Charles Oliver, sailors, together with a woman resident of the neighborhood. Brooker was unconscious and was bleeding freely from numerous head and face wounds and Oliver and the woman were attempting to revive him. On Brooker regaining consciousness, he was intoxicated as was Oliver, he told a story of having been in Servidio's resort the greater part of the afternoon and night and had purchased innumerable drinks. About midnight they said that a quarrel between the bluejackets and Servidio developed and it finally became heated, the words used by the three being harsh and venimous. After the verbal combat had been in progress but a brief time a fight was started, other frequenters of the resort as well as Servidio attacking the sailors. When the battle went to the street the other frequenters disappeared, and the combat continued with Brooker and Oliver, the principals, on one side and Servidio on the other. After Brooker had been rendered unconscious, Servidio escaped, but did not go to his place of business, going into hiding in a cluster of bushes nearby and where he witnessed the arrival of the police and their departure with Brooker and Oliver. Before retiring at headquarters the officers went to Servidio's resort and found it illuminated and untenanted, although the entrance was open. The officers also found about 80 cases of beer, several gallons of whiskey and three or four quarts of gin. Officers Corcoran and Fardy went to police headquarters with their prisoners and the sailors were locked up on charges of intoxication and breach of the peace. While the task of transporting the beer and liquor to police headquarters was in progress, a taxicab was observed to stop at a point near the entrance of the United States Coast Guard academy and when no one left or entered it, inquiry was made of the driver as to his mission there. He said that he had received a telephone message to go to the academy gate and there await a passenger. During the conversation one of the officers observed a head appear over the top of a cluster of bushes and investigation revealed Servidio hiding there, for it had been the liquor dispenser or some of his friends who had caused the cab to be summoned. He was arrested and locked up until such time as he was released on bail. The sailors will also be in court Saturday. Servidio was arrested less than a month ago and at that time he was fined $200 and costs on each of two counts.

COAST GUARD ACADEMY SITE DEED HAS BEEN FILED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 31—Attorney General William D. Mitchell today approved the deed conveying land of the city of New London to the government which will be used for the site of the new $2,500,000 United States Coast Guard academy. The deed has been filed for record at the municipal building. One-third of the actual cost for the construction of the buildings, $850,000 is already made available and is expected that work on the erection of the buildings will be started within a short time.

ANOTHER SWITCH ENGINE GETS OFF THE IRON AT STATION

Railroad officials here believe that a jinx is loitering about the vicinity of the union station for following yesterday's derailment of one of the huge switch engines, which was damaged and the road bed and tracks ripped away, to say nothing of the hard work in getting the locomotive back on the iron and the holding up of New London line freight, another engine and of the same type as that which was derailed yesterday, left the tracks north of the union station yard shortly before 6 o'clock this evening. The locomotive was moving slowly and but little damage was done to the road bed, so that the derailment was of short duration. Yard crews, with the assistance of track workers, succeeded in getting the engine back on the tracks without summoning the wrecking crew from Midway.

Today a force of track employes were engaged in completing repairs to the tracks so badly damaged by last night's derailment.

LINA BECKWITH REQUESTS PERMIT TO CARRY REVOLVER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 31—Lina Beckwith, 463 Broad street, who for many years has been in the public eye because of her controversies with the city officials relative to a damage action brought against the city by her, today appeared in a new role. She went to police headquarters and sought permission to carry a revolver. In the absence of Captain Charles A. Pinney, who will not be on duty for two days, the request not granted; whether the woman will repeat her request upon the return of Captain Pinney remains to be seen. The woman made it known that her desire to go about the street armed with a revolver was because she had been "threatened" by one or more of her tenants, although the threat appeared to be absent and from her story it was apparent that her annoyers sought to annoy her more than to do her bodily injury, but Miss Beckwith could not see the matter in that light. Miss Beckwith said that one of her tenants had made statements that she considered threatening, but had not carried out the alleged threat. Although her annoyers are residents of a house owned by Miss Beckwith the latter has not taken steps to cause their ejection, at least as far as she made known at police headquarters.

James E. Finnegan, assistant general yardmaster in the employ of the New Haven railroad, is confined to his home on Willetts avenue, suffering from an illness, which has not been definitely diagnozed and it is probable that within a day or two an X-ray picture will be taken in an endeavor to determine the exact nature of the internal disorder.

JULY IN BALTIMORE WAS DRYEST MONTH ON RECORD

BALTIMORE, July 31—(AP)—The dryest month on record here came to an end today and the forecast was that August would run for two or more days without rain. The health department ascribed 52 deaths in 19 days to the heat.

Discouraged Maryland farmers began to cut their sugar corn and feed it to stock, on a diet restricted because of parched pastures. In many places corn already has been ruined.

Practically the entire early crop of sugar corn in Frederick county has been ruined and unless rain comes soon some of the Frederick county canners, for the first time, will not open their factories this year, it was learned today. The cannery crop was valued at $310,000.

POLITICAL EMBLEM TO BE THE FEATHER DUSTER

NEW ORLEANS, July 31—(AP)—Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, up for reelection, has accepted as his campaign emblem the feather duster which has been used in cartoon and editorial by his chief opponent, Governor Huey P. Long, in poking fun at the senator's whiskers.

When he opened his campaign in his home town today, he was presented with a huge feather duster in the name of housewives with a mandate to clean up Louisiana politics.

INDIAN BOYS TO STAND TRIIBAL TRIAL FOR THEFT

MIAMI, Fla., July 31—(AP)—Two Indian boys were taken to the fastnesses of the Everglades today to stand trial by their elders for theft, with the prospect, if convicted, of having one or both of their ears cut off.

The court was to be held in the Seminole retreat in Big Cypress Swamp, far from the paths of the white man, and the scene of many other trials that have brought swift and at times terrible punishment to offenders.

The two boys were charged by Miami police today with having stolen articles valued at $7 when they broke into a filling station near the Musa Isle Indian village here Monday night. When City Detective R. L. Jester went to the village for the boys he was told by Cory Osceola, chief of the local tribe that the youths would be tried by an Indian court, following the custom of many years.

The police turned the case over to the Seminoles for trial, in accordance with a practice that in the past has included all charges, including murder.

Cory Osceola told police the boys would be tried by a court headed by a medicine man of the tribe, and that they would be punished immediately by being maimed if convicted.

The office of the Dade county sheriff had no report on the case, but veterans of the department recalled several instances of maiming following conviction for theft and other misdemeanors. Willie Willie, one of whose ears was cut off, was mentioned among those who had been tried and convicted by the Indians and punished according to their code.

ACTRESS MARY NOLAN ELUDES LOS ANGELES POLICE

LOS ANGELES, July 31—(AP)—Mary Nolan, film actress formerly known as Imogene Wilson, Follies beauty, was in a hospital today, temporarily safe from police officers who sought her on warrants charging narcotic law violations.

Warrants to search Miss Nolan's hotel and beach club rooms, and her dressing rooms at Universal studio, were given officers after two affidavits had been filed with U. S. Commissioner Davd Head. The document, signed by two nurses who had attended the actress, said they had seen her using narcotics illegally every two or three hours daily since July 12.

At the hospital where Miss Nolan refused to see visitors, it was stated she might undergo an operation. The complaining nurses had told Commissioner Head Miss Nolan suffered an intestinal ailment curable by operation.

Police officers said, due to the actress' absence from the places to be searched, that no effort to serve the warrants would be made until she leaves the hospital.

As Imogene Wilson, the actress figured in an affair with Frank Tinney, comedian, in New York city a few years ago. The incident culminated in her charges that Tinney had beaten her. She came to Hollywood three years ago, resuming her family name of Nolan.

NORWICH TOWN

Juniors Entertain

A pleasing entertainment put on recently at Scotland Road hall by the 4-H club of Franklin, in conjunction with Farview 4-H club of girls and the 4-H club of boys of Scotland road, netted $30. This sum was divided between the clubs. During the entertainment there was a monolog by Ruth Robinson, singing of popular songs and instrumental music. "The Telegram," was the title of the playlet. The Norwich Town 4-H club sold home-made cake and candy, also flowers. Members of the Farview club meet twice each month at the home of Mrs. John Hull, on Scotland road for instructions, etc. Mrs. Hull is assisted by Mrs. Annie Grant. Rachael and Alice Avery and Bertha Jaskot from this club are attending all this week the junior short course at Storrs. The other three girls in this club are to spend five days at the New London County 4-H camp at Avery's Pond, Preston City, during August. The girls are Ruth Avery, Florence Smith and Mary Wildowsky.

The Vacation Bible school under the auspices of Norwich Council of Religious Education, which opened at the First Congregational chapel Monday, July 7th, continuing through the past four weeks, will hold its closing exercises in the chapel this (Friday) afternoon at 3:30.

Norwich Town members of the Veterans' association of I. O. O. F., of Connecticut, are in receipt of notification of the annual outing to be held at Savin Rock, West Haven, Saturday, August 16th, (no postponement on account of weather). The notice mentions that a shore dinner will be served at 12:30 (daylight saving time). Women friends of the members, also Odd Fellows eligible to become Veterans will be welcome. The letters are signed by William S. Hutchison, for many years secretary of the association.

When Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps held its summer outing Tuesday at Atlantic Beach, there were several members from Norwich Town included in the attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Wright of Washington street, have visiting them for a few weeks little Miss Mary Shea, of Waterbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Shea.

Eight from Norwich Town attended the all-day Social Corner picnic Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Campbell (Alfara) Sunshine Farm, North Windham road. Dinner was served on the lawn under a large tent, to about seventy-five. From Norwich Town were Mrs. William H. Whiteman, Mr. and Mrs. George Geer and Mrs. Josephine Parker, Otto Miller and Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb. Mr. and Mrs. Geer had as automobile guests, Mrs. Herman Gager and Mrs. Fred Race. Previous to the dinner, all united in singing the Doxology with Dr. Lamb, leader, who requested those present to pause for a moment of silent prayer in memory of a long-time member of the corner, Mrs. Evelyn Gardner (Joan) of Norwich, who passed away Tuesday. The excellent dinner comprised chicken-pie, salads, baked beans, string beans, summer squash, green corn, mashed potato, sliced cucumbers, olives, sandwiches, pie and cake, coffee, cheese, fruit and root beer. Other towns represented included Southington, Willimantic, North Windham, Franklin, Occum, Brewster's Neck and Norwich.

FIVE PERSONS HURT IN TAFTVILLE ACCIDENT

Five persons were slightly injured about 9 o'clock Thursday evening on Norwich avenue, Taftville, near Tafts station, when two machines crashed. One machine was overturned and totally wrecked. The injured persons are: Carl Rimek and Henry J. Kendall of Lisbon and Misses Lena Rutkowsky, Sophie Boglum and Helen Boglum, addresses not learned.

A Star sedan driven by its owner, Mr. Kendall, came out of Hunters avenue and was struck on its right front side on the east side of the road, it is understood, by a Ford touring car, owned by Joseph Lobe, Sr., of R. D. 4, Norwich, operated by Albert Lobe of R. D. 4, Lisbon, and traveling toward Norwich. After colliding with the Kendall machine the Lobe car overturned in the highway.

A call was sent for the W. W. Backus hospital ambulance but it was not needed as the injured had been taken to a physician's office in a private machine.

The accident was investigated by Constable Louis A. Paquette of Taftville, who arrested Lobe on a charge of reckless driving. He will appear in the city court this (Friday) morning.

The new studios of K. M. B. C., Kansas City, are to be dedicated in a coast to coast broadcast this evening.

W.S. CASE DESCRIBES LOCATION OF FIRST BURYING GROUND

Many inquiries are coming to me relative to the Post-Gager burying ground, said William S. Case of No. 129 West Town street, Thursday. In a communication to The Bulletin, on the subject of the First Burying ground as it is known, Mr. Case writes:

Where are its boundaries? Many inquiries are coming to me, and I am questioned something like this: 'Mr. Case: Do you really know where this old burying ground is?" I reply: "Yes!" "Can you locate it?' My reply is: "That I can certainly give a location which is approximate—near to—(Webster)."

Perhaps that it would be well for one to state at this time that for a number of years past I have frequently made a statement similar to this. The probability is that I am the only person living who can give any description of this old burying ground, and give an approximate location, and until the present time I have never known any one to exhibit more than a passing interest in this subject, and even now, when this question has been agitated for more than a year, it is difficult to induce people to take a decided position relative to this effort of making an attempt to sift this matter thoroughly. The fact that there is a determined opposition to the investigation of this matter should not influence anyone when its object is so apparent, and its strength a rope of sand.

The matter of locating the old burying ground is not so difficult as at first thought it might appear, especially that portion of the Gager burying ground in the Gager Foxborough lot. From this fact—that a few scattered stones marking different graves still remained at the time of its purchase by Samuel Case. Also that its appearance and location has been often referred to in our family for the reason that circumstances have arisen at times that brought it to our attention. Its size has been described to me so clearly as it was in 1844, that I am positive that the location that I can point out with the aid of a surveyor would be very close to a correct one, and with but little expense the absolute and visible proof obtained. I will quote from an article published in The Bulletin, Aug. 17, 1929: "There is one of the original bounds of the burying ground still in existence. It needs only the instrument of the surveyor to determine the exact distance between the monument and the burying ground." The fact is that this Gager burying ground is protected in an unusual manner for the benefit of the legal representatives of Simon Gager forever, which fact makes it less complicated to institute a search.

To these questions that have been asked me, I could have given the same answers at any time subsequent to the years 1868-1869, for this reason: That my father's family were living in the old Case homestead during those years. My grandfather, Samuel Case, and his wife were at that time 77 and 74 years of age respectively. I became familiar with the remembrances of their early life. The Old Town church, the old burying ground, and many stories and traditions connected with the old families of Norwich Town.

The incident related by Miss Caulkins in her history of Norwich, page 328, concerning Mr. Ezkeil Barrett, his difficulty with the church, his arrest at the court house at the close of a town meeting, the fact that it took the constable and six men to convey him to the jail, his injuries received from being dragged over the frozen ground, his imprisonment for one week, his release upon giving his note, his refusal to pay the note, the suit at law brought by the church authorities, his cow taken and sold at the post to pay his church rates, and, is this all? Yes. All that history records, but did anything happen after that time? Yes. Something did happen, and it is this something that has brought about practically all of this difficulty in locating the old burying ground. Joseph Post sold the Post property to Mr. Barrett in 1775. We cannot think that he had ever plowed up, or disturbed in any way the burial place of his ancestors. It would in all probability be in as good a condition as the Gager burying ground over the other side of the fence.

In 1838 Mr. Barrett died, his estate was sold that same year to Daniel L. Huntington. At this time there was not a vestige, or sign, that a burying ground had ever existed there.

The following year, 1839, Samuel Case bought the Gager Foxborough lot containing a portion of the Gager burying ground which, although neglected, still retained evidences of its former use. The gravestone of Samuel Gager was still standing and a few other graves, or groups were marked with good sized stones, or boulders. Do we wonder why there should be this difference in the appearance of these two burying grounds? Well, I have very good reasons for thinking that this was Mr. Barrett's method of squaring the account. The burying ground belonged to the Old Town church. The Gager burying ground as such soon disappeared after the sale to Mr. Huntington in 1844.

Quotations from article published in The Bulletin, June 15, 1929. This article was a paper read by myself at a special meeting of the board of managers of the Society of the Founder of Norwich held on the 23rd of May, 1929, for the purpose of considering what action if any could be taken to ascertain, fix and preserve the location and boundaries of the old cemetery near the John Mason monument off Lee avenue at Norwich Town. Among those who attended this meeting were the full board of selectmen. The mayor arrived later, having been detained because of a city meeting of some kind, but the situation was fully explained to him. Quotations from this paper: "We now come to the location of the Post portion of the burying ground. I can give it only one location and for this reason, that I have always been told that this is its location. We have certain knowledge relative to the location of the Gager addition to the Post burying ground, for it was included in the Foxborough lot, and that these two portions were joined together in one plot. We also know that the Post portion was not in the rear of this lot adjoining the west side of the Gager lot but was towards the rear, and did include the place of interment of Mrs. Post. This locates the burying ground very near its original bounds. This corner of the fence in the boundary line between the Gager burying ground and the Post burying ground is the point by which both portions may be located, having never been materially changed during the long ownership of the Post, Barrett and Lee families, more than 250 years."

I have always known the location of this burying ground, and knew where the boundaries could be found. In Calkins history, page 130, we find that in 1698 the burying ground was recorded. Article published June 15, 1929: "At the present time the town owns the burying ground. It can be located and perhaps its original bounds restored." Article, Sept. 9: "The north and south boundaries of the Post burying ground are easily defined. The boundaries east and west are not so easily determined."

In The Bulletin of Feb. 28, 1930, two reports are published on this subject. One by Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers, giving the survey as recorded in the Book of Grants, entered January, 1698. These measurements are all taken from the original boundary line. This line is a bowing line 6 ft." and is the correct one.

S. B. Palmer also presents a report to B. P. Bishop, president of the Society of the Founders of Norwich. Mr. Palmer in his report says: "From the above description of the original grant of the Post lot, the line between Post and Gager is given as 76 rods in the Post grant, and 77 rods in the Gager grand. Both descriptions says, the line being a bowing line 6 ft. There is nothing in either description to tell which way the line bows, and for this reason it is difficult to exactly reproduce the original line. After about 115 years this line between the Post and Gager lots was given as a straight line from the river to a point 10 rods from the street. The line on the accompanying plan was determined as follows."

Then follows a lengthy description of his labor to recover this straight line. This line recovered it would seem to be a comparatively easy matter to decide on which home lot the bowing line was drawn, particularly when in a few lines farther along he says: "There is a portion of a fence running in a northerly and southerly direction, and southerly on the Don Houghton lot which possibly may have been on the original line between the Post and Gager land. The line which I have shown on the map as being the original line is 7 or 8 ft. westerly from this old fence."

Now, when Mr. Palmer has said in his report "that this old fence may possibly have been on the original line between the Post and Gager land, which he knew was a bowing line, also that it is clearly shown by what does remain of the old fence, that it was on a bowing line and that his blue print clearly shows such to be the fact, why does he prefer to take measurements from a straight line 6 ft to 8 ft in error, making the blue print of no value whatever. This blue print cannot deceive anyone, and no one can make such a claim. For Mr. Palmer very candidly tells you how he has located the burying ground on the blue print, and that he has done this by using this imaginary straight line from which he has taken his measurements, instead of using the correct bowing line. If his straight line was correct, then the bowing line could have been easily determined from it in the same manner as the surveyor obtained it in 1698.

What I have written applies to the blue print from which the map was drawn, that was published in The Bulletin, Feb. 28, 1930. This print shows the old burying ground removed, or 8 ft westerly from its true location. Since Feb. 28 Mr. Palmer has given out a blue print in which he has removed the imaginary straight line an additional number of feet to the west. This change of the line removes the old burying ground just as many feet additional to the west.

I do not know just how many feet of the Gager burying ground Mr. Palmer has succeeded in removing from under the Houghton garage by this method of using the imaginary straight line for the original boundary line, instead of the bowing line. It may be 12 feet more or less, but whatever it may be, 10 ft. or 15 ft. it represents a strip of the Gager burial ground of that width, and about 150 ft. in length with no one knows how many burials in it, abandoned, and the same amount of land to be added to the burying ground that never did contain a body. The situation explains itself.

In The Bulletin of May 31, 1930, is found the following: "The board of selectmen gave a hearing Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the mayor's office to the representatives of the Society of the Founders of Norwich, and Faith Trumbull chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. Among other items were these—that the selectmen are anxious to locate the cemetery. That they have spent over $600 on the survey. They believe that there was a cemetery there. The selectmen made it plain that they were perfectly willing to proceed to claim anything that has ever been town property, but they want to be very sure of their position before they start anything.

Mr. Palmer was asked to explain his blue print which he proceeded to do. In the course of his explanation he declared that one of the big difficulties in determining the precise location of the cemetery was in deciding just where one of the corner points was located."

Of the four corners of the old burying ground, which was practically oriented, three are located in the gravel bank which rises on three sides of the burying ground. Only one corner is located in land of any value. That is the southern corner. The burials in the old burying ground occupied what was the grassy plot under the old oak tree and extended into the Gager Foxborough mowing lot, and it is a fact that this corner has been protected, and this protection is recorded in the records of the town of Norwich.

On March 21st, 1895 Dan Throop and his wife, Mary Throop, of Oxford, Chenango county, New York, for $2,000, sold to Erastus Perkins of Norwich one lot of land abutting on Town street, containing 14 acres more or less, "excepting and reserving to him, the said Throop, and wife, and their heirs forever, one quarter of an acre of the said last described premises covering the burying ground of the Gager family, the ancestors and relatives of said wife.

On May 21st, 1805, Erastus Perkins sold to Thomas L. Thomas, a lot of land abutting on Town street, containing 14 acres and, "excepting, and reserving here out one quarter of an acre of land covering the burying ground of the family of Mr. Simon Gager, late of Bozrah, deceased, to the said Simon Gager's legal representatives forever." It being the same lot of land deeded to me by Mr. Dan Throop and his wife, March 21st, 1805."

Do words mean anything? Do the records of the town of Norwich mean anything? Do the responsibilities of the town authorities mean anything? Does the law amount to anything?

If this effort of Dan Throop, and his wife, Mary, to protect the graves of their ancestors and relatives who were already buried on town property is reduced to a mere gesture, then the town and the city of Norwich will have fallen low, very low, in its sense of duty, honor, and justice.

MOVE TO END BATHING IN McDONALD'S POND

The matter of bathing in McDonald's pond, which is located at the head of Deep River reservoir at Colchester and which is one of the main feeders to the reservoir, has been brought to the attention of the state board of health by President Charles A. Hagberg of the Norwich water board, as a result of a recent visit to the reservoir by President Hagberg and Councilman John H. Sherman, another member of the board. The commissioners found that 24 persons were bathing in the pond, contrary to the state law, which prohibits swimming in reservoirs, used for drinking purposes, or their tributaries.

Through a recent examination of the water from Deep River reservoir, which is being used in certain sections of the city, the state board of health revealed that the water is suitable for drinking purposes. However, there has been criticism of the high color in the water and this is laid to the fact that the city does not control all of the tributaries that flow into the reservoir. At a meeting of the board this (Friday) evening it is expected that there will be a discussion on the colored water and some action taken in regard to having the system at the reservoir purified.

An analysis of several samples of water taken from McDonald's pond, Deep River reservoir and from various points in the pipe line will be made.

A new schedule of water rates, which it is said will affect all users of city water will come up at the meeting of the commissioners this evening for their approval. If the new water rates are approved by the members of the board they will be forwarded to the court of common council for consideration at the August meeting. This action was taken as the result of a suggestion made by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins in regard to conducting the water department on a paying basis.

The bonded indebtedness of the department has been materially increased in recent years, especially since the construction of the Deep River reservoir at a cost of over a million dollars. The department now pays yearly interest charges on this to the amount of about $75,000 and its net income per year has been about $15,000 beneath this figure. By adoption of the new rates it is said, that there will be a net income of approximately $90,000 per year, a surplus of about $15,000 over and above the interest payment yearly.

FERGUSON'S JEWELRY STORE LEASES NEW QUARTERS

Ferguson's Jewelry store and the Radio Salon, now located at No. 239 Main street, Franklin square, will about October 15, occupy a newly leased store in the Shannon building, according to an announcement made Thursday by John A. Ferguson. The new store is on the Main street side of the building, next to Liggett's drug store, and is at present occupied as a butcher store.

The store will be completely redecorated and when finished will be as fine a jewelry store as any in eastern Connecticut.

Mr. Ferguson started in business with Moses Charbonneau, 36 years ago next September in the old Shannon building and two years later the business was moved to its present location on Franklin square. It was then known as Ferguson and Charbonneau. Following Mr. Charbonneau's death in 1915, Mr. Ferguson took over the business under his own name. The Radio Salon, conducted by Herbert J. Ferguson, will occupy quarters in the new store.

R-100 WAS CLOSE TO DISASTER AS IT NEARED DESTINATION

British Dirigible Was Struck By a "Cyclonic Current"—It Was Hurled 2,500 Feet Straight Upwards and a Great Hole Was Torn In Its Envelope—As the Men Were Engaged In Hazardous Work of Closing the Gap the R-100 Dodged About the Sky Between Thunderstorms — It Anchored At Montreal Airport At 4.38 A. M. Yesterday, 78 Hours and 51 Minutes After Taking Off From England.

ST. HUBERT AIRPORT, Montreal, Aug. 1—(AP)—The British dirigible R-100, a sailor home safe from the sea, swung gently at her mooring mast tonight, behind 3,500 miles of epic voyage that almost ended in disaster.

Speeding down the St. Lawrence river valley last night, just 150 miles from St. Hubert's mast and safety, the mighty air voyager was struck by a "cyclonic current" that hurled it 2,500 feet straight upwards and tore a great hole in her fragile envelope.

The damage was repaired and the big ship proceeded slowly into Montreal, anchoring at her mast at 4:38 A. M., 78 hours and 51 minutes after taking off from Cardington, England on her flight to the new world.

Officers, told that they were talking for publication, made light of the danger encountered. The men spoke more freely.

Just the other side of Quebec, they said, a strong up-current of cyclonic force caught the R-100 and hurled it, practically standing on its nose, for almost 2,500 feet, in less than half a minute.

It was during that terrific moment, when all aboard "just crossed their fingers and waited," that a strip of fabric about six by fifteen feet was ripped from the port fin, opening a hole as big as a barn door, into the great envelope, exposing the intricate interior of the largest airship ever built, to the fury of the storm.

In radio reports from the ship itself and in interviews after the dirigible was moored today, officers minimized the dangers that had been encountered. They said the peril had never been critical.

But the men scoffed at the suggestion that there had been no serious danger and pointed for evidence to the rude patch that only partially closed the jagged opening.

They said that from later afternoon until midnight, Assistant Coxwains G. E. Long and L. A. Moncrieff, with a crew of 16 men, including every rigger aboard, worked out on the stripped skeleton of the damaged fin, clinging to the metal frame above the waters of the St. Lawrence, and finally stopped the largest opening with a patch of spare fabric.

Even then not all the holes were covered and today, as the great ship swung easily at the great mooring mast in the soft sunshine, hundreds of visitors stood underneath and gazed upward at a still uncovered opening a few feet distant from the bulging patch over the larger tear.

During the hours that the riggers and other members o fthe crew were bending all their efforts to closing the gap in the side of the R-100, the ship was dodging about the sky between thunderstorms and for a time even drifting backwards as the engines were stopped, either in an effort to make the repair men's task easier, or in fear that further breasting of the wind until repairs were made might increase the damage.

A similar and even more dangerous mishap befell the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin on the first of its numerous flights to America. A storm in mid-Atlantic ripped an even larger hole than the one in the R-100. It was not known until after the ship landed and was seen at close quarters that it had really been in more serious danger than its officers had announced or probably even realized themselves.

The 44 men on the R-100 debarked almost as soon as it was secured to the mooring mast this morning. They were all given a day's liberty and the ship was turned over, during refueling to a detachment of the crew sent over from England several months ago. Next week there begins a two week program of receptions and flights around Canada, and then the great ship, repaired, will take off for the return to England

SEC'Y LOWMAN LIFTS BAN ON RUSSIAN PULP WOOD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1—(AP)—The ban on Russian pulp wood imposed by the treasury a week ago was lifted tonight by Assistant Secretary Lowman, who issued orders to collectors of customs to admit to this country 79 ship loads of the product.

The pulp wood, from Archangel, was barred under a section of the tariff act which prohibits the importation of goods, merchandise or material produced in a foreign country in whole or part by convict labor. The embargo was laid down when the treasury received information that convicts had been used in loading the lumber.

Lowman said in a statement tonight the evidence had not been found sufficient to establish that the pulp wood was produced by convict labor.

The Amtorg Trading corporation, official Russian commercial organization, sold $4,500,000 worth of pulp wood to the International Paper company, the West Virginia Pulp and Paper company and the Racquett River Paper company, all of whom, together with ship owners and charterers, protested against the embargo.

EXPECTATIONS OF NEW PROHIBITION DIRECTOR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1—(AP)—Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock expects the new enforcement policy of concentrating upon the large-scale violators of the dry laws to contribute incidentally to the relief of congestion in the federal courts.

This, he said today, should come about through the elimination of the flood of minor cases that have been clogging the dockets even with an increased staff of agents. He predicted fewer cases would be brought in the courts.

The cases that are prosecuted, however, he pointed out, may be expected to be of importance and a step in the bureau's program of shutting off the supply of illicit liquor at its source.

The line of demarcation between petty and major offenses is to be sharply drawn. Carrying a pint of liquor on the hip and transporting ten gallons in an automobile, Woodcock said, are two altogether different things.

YOUTH SHOT TO DEATH AT LIQUOR DISTILLERY

HATTIESBURG, Miss., Aug. 1—(AP)—Early Gray, 19, was shot to death today by a Covington county officer at a liquor distillery located near his home in the vicinity of Seminary, Miss.

Three deputy sheriffs who had been in hiding since early yesterday, said they surprised Gray when he approached the distillery. When ordered to surrender, he ran toward a thicket and one of the deputies fired. The bullet struck Gray in the back and he died 20 minutes later.

It had not been determined which of the officers fired the shot.

BOY SCOUTS STRICKEN WITH MYSTERIOUS MALADY

DERBY, Aug. 1—(AP) —Boy Scouts from Ansonia, Derby, Shelton and Seymour tonight were virtual prisoners in Camp Irving on the Housatonic, while physicians were attempting to diagnose the mysterious malady with which Harold Nelson, 11, of Derby, was stricken.

A ten-day quarantine has been placed on the camp by health officials on the belief that the Derby youngster is suffering from spinal meningitis. During this time, unless the ban is lifted on a finding that young Nelson's illness is other than spinal meningitis, none of the boys will be allowed to leave the camp nor will visitors be permitted to enter.

WORK OF TWO POSTAL ROBBERS IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Aug. 1—(AP)—Two postal robbers at gun point abducted a post office clerk, stole several money order pads and then toured Greater Boston cashing them today. One was arrested in Brookline later by a traffic policeman who responded to the screams of the handcuffed clerk, Aaron Cohen, of Oak Island, Revere.

The second holdup man escaped in the commotion. In the car still partially covered by the blanket beneath which the robbers had kept him while they visited half a dozen postal stations, police found Cohen, proprietor of the small grocery store and sub-post office where the bandits started their operations earlier in the day.

The man at the wheel of the car, was tentatively identified by an automobile license as Eldor E. Orchard, 23, of Cambridge.

In the seized machine police found additional money order blanks, a can of ether, two fully loaded revolvers together with the necessary rubber stamp for making the money order blanks negotiable.

ACTRESS MARY NOLAN SECLUDED IN HER HOTEL

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1—(AP)—Apparently improved from "severe sunburn" said to have resulted in her going to a hospital yesterday, Mary Nolan, blonde stage and screen star, today was secluded in her hotel as a United States district attorney studied affidavits accusing her of illegal use of narcotics.

Yesterday, after an investigation, Vincent De Spain, chief federal narcotic agent, suggested the case be dropped. He said he doubted affidavits sworn to by two nurses. Today De Spain explained he would hold the warrants a few days, or until Samuel McNabb, United States attorney, finished his study of the case.

Miss Nolan, the former Imogene Wilson of the Follies, vigorously denied the narcotic charges and told De Spain she was the victim of an extortion plot.

"The charge is too ridiculous for words," she said.

NO COMMUNIST DISORDERS IN EUROPE YESTERDAY

PARIS, Aug. 1—(AP)—A widely advertised communist "international antiwar day", commemorating the sixteenth anniversary of mobilization for the World war, today passed off without disorders in Europe. In most countries a general round-up of communist leaders was made in anticipation of trouble.

Only in Moscow and other Russian cities were there important demonstrations. Communist demonstrators paraded the streets there carrying banners with anti-militaristic slogans, and bearing in triumph gas masks and other defensive weapons against warfare.

Over in Moscow a score of airplanes dropped peace pamphlets. The Russian volunteer society for aerial and chemical defense gave the red army 51 modern Russian built military airplanes, for which the funds were contributed by workers throughout the soviet union.

BRITISH PARLIAMENT PROROGUED TILL OCT. 28

LONDON, August 1—(AP)—With a final flash of color and the mellow formality of century-old parliamentary ceremony, the London naval treaty bill today became an official act of parliament and an integral part of the statutes of the British realm.

Late this afternoon before parliament was prorogued until Oct. 28, royal assent to the treaty clothed it with the final touch of authority so far as Great Britain is concerned.

Lee Gehlbach Wins American Air Derby

Averaged 127.1 Miles Over 5,541 Mile Course, Winning $15,000.

DETROIT, Aug. 1—(AP)—A former army flyer, Lee Gehlbach, led ten contestants in the All-American air derby across the finish line at the Detroit City airport today, averaging 127.1 miles an hour over the 5,541 mile course to win an award of $15,000.

Setting out from Detroit July 21, Gehlbach, flying for a group of Little Rock, Ark., business men, led the derby contestants on almost every lap from Detroit to New York, sweeping down to Houston, Texas, across to Los Angeles, and back over the mountains and across the middle west to Detroit again. Flying a special Command airplane, he used an elapsed time of 43 hours, 35 minutes and 30 seconds, four hours less than Lowell Bayles, Springfield, Mass., second place winner. Bayles' time was 47 hours, 36 minutes and 8 seconds, an average of 116.4 miles an hour.

Third place went to Charles Meyers, Cleveland, who finished with an average of 107.3 miles an hour, for a total elapsed time of 51 hours, 34 minutes and 31 seconds. Bayles will receive $7,000 and Meyers $3,000.

Gehlbach led the first arrivals on the final lap from Chicago to Detroit, arriving at 2:44 p. m., making the lap in one hour, 42 minutes and 28 seconds. Bayles, second to arrive, came in at 2:58.

Ten of the 18 contestants who left here 12 days ago completed the race. Those finishing back of third place will split an award of $5,000 offered by the Detroit board of commerce, each drawing $714.29 for remaining in the race until the finish.

Herman Hamer, La Salle, Illinois, led the pack at the start of the race, but fell behind and dropped out when he was forced down near Des Moines, Iowa.

Fourth to finish was Lieut. Henry Ogden, of Inglewood, Calif., whose elapsed time was 53:19:47, averaging 103.9 miles per hour. W. H. Cahill, Cleveland, finished in fifth place with time of 55:57:26, averaging 99 miles per hour.

Other survivors were Cecil Coffrin, Brooklyn, N. Y.; H. W. Holliday Rapidan, Va.; Lawrence Brown, Los Angeles; Stanley Stanton, Blackwell, Okla., and J. R., Wedell, New Orleans.

Gehlbach, formerly a pilot with the Fourth Pursuit group at Selfridge Field, Mt. Clemens Mich, led in the list of winners of lap prizes offered at the various control points of the flight, swelling his total of prize money to more than $20,000.

The cash prizes totaling $25,000 offered by American Cirrus Engines, Inc., will be presented Saturday night at a banquet at the Grosse Pointe Yacht club. This money will go to winners of the first three places in the race.

Rhode Island Boy Wins Edison Scholarship

Arthur O. Williams Outclassed the Other 48 Boys—Hartford Youth Second.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Aug 1—(AP)—Arthur O. Williams, Jr., of East Providence, R. I., a descendant of Rog[illegible] Williams, founder of Rhode Island [illegible] day embarked on a four-year [illegible] as a protege of Thomas A. Edi[illegible]

Young Williams, who was [illegible] from East Providence hig[illegible] a few weeks ago as valedic[illegible] his class, was selected for thi[illegible]r out of 49 boys, representing the [illegible] states and the District of Columbia, because he answered most satisfactorily a list of questions asked by Mr. Edison yesterday.

"Williams was so far ahead of all the rest that there could never be any doubt about it at all," Charles Edison, the inventor's son, said today. "His general information was surprising, and his answers to the technical questions were practically perfect. He is a remarkable boy."

The winner is entitled to a four year course in any college he may wish to enter, with Mr. Edison paying all his expenses. His first impulse, after he learned that he had won, was to plan to enter Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where Wilber Huston of Seattle, last year's winner, is a student. But after thinking it over a little, he wasn't quite so sure.

"I want to study physics," he said "and of course I'll want to go where I can get the very best instruction in that subject. I'll have to talk things over with my folks and with Mr. Edison before I decide.

"I'd planned to go to Brown, because it's in Providence, and I could live at home. But now, of course, I can go anywhere."

On advice of a representative of his benefactor, Arthur decided not to reveal his answers to any of Mr. Edison's questions, although Mr. Edison discussed them freely today and admitted that he himself hadn't thought out the answer to at least one.

Arthur, a goodlooking lad of 17, freckled, with grey eyes and dark hair, was in addition to valedictorian, president of his high school class. His particular hobby, he said today, is physics, but he is also interested in stage lighting with a view to producing the greatest possible emotional reactions in modernistic productions. He hasn't yet decided what particular field 'o physics he will study, but he said he was attracted by the possibilities of "the Einstein repercussion."

"Because I don't know enough about it," was his reply when somebody asked him why. No one asked him what it meant.

Arthur doesn't care much about fiction—he'd rather read technical books, he said—but he has a favorite poet, Robert Browning. He likes to swim, fence, and sail a boat. He is the owner of a 15-foot skiff. He does not dance.

His father, Arthur O. Williams, Sr., if chief clerk of the Providence gas company, and he has one brother, younger than himself, named Van Zandt Williams.

Runners-up in the contest were: Second, G. Dudley Mylchreest, Hartford, Conn.; third, Gordon K. Burns, Maplewood, N. J.; fourth, De Wolf Schnatzel, Findlay, O.; fifth, Frederick C. Roop, Washington, D. C.; and honorable mention, James H. Compton, Jr., Wichita, Kan.; Walter Wrigley, Haverhill, Mass.; Royal E. Peake, Detroit, Mich.; Charles H. Cloukey, Lansdowne, Pa., and Gordon K. Carter, Charlottesville, Va.

TILTONVILLE, O., Aug. 1—(AP)—Explosion of a keg of blasting powder injured 12 miners, one critically, in the Redbird mine of the Warner Colliers company of Cleveland, near here today.

The explosion occurred about a mile from entrance No. 8 of the drift mine at a point where the workmen were starting the removal of debris that fell last Wednesday in a slide of slate and stone.

Seth Williams, pit boss, informed the company that the keg probably was ignited by a broken electrical wire, all the injured were removed within a short time and taken to a Martins Ferry hospital.

Elvin McLaughlin, 35, of Highland City, a suburb, was the most seriously injured. He suffered severe burns about the body and several fractures. Several of the other injured were released from the hospital a short time after entering. Mine officials immediately started an investigation.

HANKOW, CHINA, PREPARING TO COMBAT COMMUNISTS

Troops Are Strengthening and Erecting Defenses Against An Anticipated Communist Attack—Chinese Are Pouring Into the Foreign Concession For Safety—Radicals Have Kidnaped and Are Holding For Ransom 300 of the Wealthiest Residents of Changsha.

HANKOW, Aug. 1—(AP)—Martial law was declared in Hankow today and troops began strengthening and erecting defenses against an anticipated communist attack while Chinese poured into the foreign concession for safety.

Students of the training division were pressed into service. The populace, under a curfew ruling, must be off the streets by midnight.

Hankow, known as "the Chicago of China" because of its size, location and industrial importance, is, with its sister cities of Wuchang and Hanyang, the presumed objective of the communist campaign that has spread over a wide area in the upper Yangtse river region. To the north 35 miles the reds have been blowing up bridges en route here.

Meanwhile, the communists were reported still in control of Changsha, capital of unyan province, where they have looted, burned and despoiled for several days, driving out virtually all foreigners and clashing with the American gunboat Palos. Nationalist reports, unconfirmed from other sources, said a government gunboat shelled Changsha and drove out the invaders.

The radicals were said to have kidnaped and held for ransom 300 of the wealthiest Chinese residents of Changsha and to haved ragged from hiding and executed 60 officers of provincial troops.

In Hankow it was learned the communists had reached Siaokan, 25 miles north, and destroyed seven miles of tracks of the Peiping-Hankow railway. West of Hankow they had captured Yokiakow, 70 miles up the Han river and already reported looting property and executing wealthier residents.

HITCH IN TEST OF SUB "LUNG" AT NEW LONDON

NEW LONDON, Aug. 1—(AP)—The navy's recently perfected artificial "lung" today was credited with having saved the life of its co-inventor, Lieut. Charles B. Monsen, U. S. N., and three motion picture men who were trapped this afternoon in a gas filled compartment of the submerged submarine S-4.

It was the first time the "lung", which has been the subject of numerous tests lately, had been called upon for emergency duty.

The three news reel men, Claude R. Collins, director, John Bockhorst, cameraman, and Arthur Fernandez, in charge of sound apparatus, went out in the S-4 off the submarine base here this morning to take moving pictures of a test escape of ten men through an emergency hatch with the aid of the "lung."

The craft was submerged to a depth of 45 feet in the Thames river harbor. Lieut. Monsen, the three movie men and the ten men who took part in the experiment occupied a small compartment of the submarine. The test escapes were successful but each time a man left the submarine a certain amount of water gushed into the compartment. When all ten had escaped, the water in the compartment had risen to the waist level of the remaining four. Specially designed apparatus to expel the water temporarily failed and a sudden lurch of the S-4 so tilted the craft that the water reached batteries used for the movie sound apparatus. Chlorine gas fumes were released which quickly filled the compartment.

Lieut. Monsen had some extra "lungs" with him. These were quickly donned by the four and through the use of them they were able to remain for 15 minutes in the atmosphere of deadly gas.

By that time, Lieut. Norman F. Ives, in command of the S-4 was able to right the craft and bring it to the surface. Hatches were opened and the four trapped men stepped out. Only Fernandez suffered any ill effects. He had been a little slower than the others in adjusting his "lung." A few moments in the fresh air, however, completely revived him.

AN ESTATE OF UPWARDS $100,000,000 TO GO TO CHARITY

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—(AP)—A fortune in real estate estimated at upwards of $100,000,000 which three generations of Wendels have spent their lives amassing, is to go to charity when a frail little old lady, last of the Wendel line, dies.

The will of Mrs. Rebecca Wendel Swope, who died July 20, was filed today and provides for that disposition of the Wendel holdings after the death of her sister, Miss Ella, now 80.

Mrs. Swope, at the request of her sister, had held all the Wendell properties in her name after the death of their brother, John, 15 years ago. She was the only one that married.

Her personal property, Mrs. Swope left to her nephew by marriage, George Stanley Shirk, of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y. She also made bequests exceeding $90,000 to relatives, servants and charities.

The residue, after the death of Miss Ella, who was left the entire estate, mostly in trust, is to be divided among 14 charities.

WORMS BORING HOLES IN BOTTOMS OF YACHTS

LEONARDTOWN, Md., August 1—(AP)—Yacht owners are being made to suffer by the drought hereabouts because of myriad infinitesimal white worms.

BANK AT OAKLAND, TENN. LOOTED BY ROBBERS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 1—(AP)—Two robbers looted the Oakland Depositors' bank at Oakland, Tenn., near here, of about $2,500, today and escaped in an automobile driven by a companion.

Miss Laura Pierce, assistant cashier, said she was alone in the bank when the men entered. The cashier, P. D. Henry, returned from lunch as they walked out.

"Anything I can do for you?" authorities said he asked.

"No, just get in the bank and stay there," the robbers replied.

They fled as Miss Pierce told him the bank had been robbed.

ANOTHER WITNESS RECANTS BILLINGS-MOONEY TESTIMONY

SAN FRANSCISCO, Aug. 1—(AP)—The California supreme court, considering application of Warren K. Billings, convicted bomber, for a pardon recommendation, today heard another witness at the prisoner's trial repudiate previous assertions made in connection with the case.

Estelle Smith, dental office assistant, whose testimony in the original trial helped convict Billings of bombing the 1916 preparedness parade, completed her direct testimony with more unexpected statements.

The woman already had startled the justices and attorneys by asserting Billings told her after entering her office that he was engaged the day of the explosion in damaging automobiles by squirting acid on them, and had nothing to do with the bomb which killed ten persons and wounded two score. The acid squirting had to do with a mechanics' strike, it was said.

Today she added three more statements which attracted attention:

First she said she was offered $10,000 by Frank Oxman, bomb case witness later tried for perjury, but acquitted, to testify against Thomas J. Mooney, convicted with Billings. She said she refused.

Second, she repudiated in part the affidavit she made in 1929 for Fremont Older, newspaper editor. The affidavit said the men in her office preparedness day might have been Billings' "double." Today she said she was sure it was "Billings."

Third, she denied the implication in the affidavit that morphine made her mentally incompetent during the Billings' trial. She said that during the trial she was taking cough medicine containing morphine, but declared the quantity too small for a nerve sedative.

SURVIVOR TELLS OF THE SINKING OF SCHOONER

BOSTON, Aug. 1.— (AP) —Joseph Sampson, Halifax, N. S., who said he was a member of the British schooner Whiteway, told the British consul here, today, that the vessel sank last Saturday on the western banks, off Nova Scotia, and that he did not know the whereabouts of the captain and crew of ten men.

Sampson said he was picked up Thursday by the fishing schooner Mary Goulart after he had drifted 200 miles in a dory. He said the Goulart took him to Provincetown and that he had hitch hiked from there to Yarmouth, where police furnished him with funds to come here.

The Whiteway, Sampson said, was five days out of Halifax and had taken 20,000 pounds of fish when she opened in the bow and began to leak. While the captain, William McDonald, and the rest of the crew were preparing to abandon the vessel, Sampson said he went to the forecastle to get his belongings. When he returned on deck, he said, the others had left the schooner.

He said he put off alone in the remaining dory and that he saw two members of the crew in another dory during the rest of Saturday. During the night he became separated from them and at dawn, could see no trace of the men or their dory.

He said he subsisted for five days on three sandwiches and a jug of salt water until he was picked up by the Goulart.

THREE INJURED IN COLLISION AT MANSFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, August 1—A collision between a coupe operated by Louis Antos of 94 Burnside avenue, East Hartford and a light delivery truck driven by Herman Davis of North Windham at Mansfield depot about noon today, caused injuries to three people and led to the arrest of Davis for failure to grant the right of way. The truck operated by Davis was the property of Vincenzo Mastrangelo of Storrs.

The injured were Angelo Mastrangelo, who sustained a fracture of the wrist, Anthony Antos, father of the driver of the coupe, who received a wrenched side and Davis who was cut on the forehead. All three were treated by Dr. E. J. Ottenheimer. The cars were damaged to some extent. In his investigation State Policeman Charles F. Hill of the Stafford Springs barracks found that the truck was coming out of a side road on the left of the main highway when it was sideswiped by the coupe. Davis is to appear in the Mansfield town court Monday morning, August 18.

An additional 10 feet is being built onto the brick chimney of the east mill of the Holland Manufacturing company in the course of repairs to the stack. The new height will be 45 feet. Workmen engaged in the task have found their task a precarious one. The stack was badly in need of repair. There are two layers of brick up to a point 18 feet from the top when only one layer was used. This top and the iron cap have been removed and the chimney walls are to be rebuilt for a distance of 28 feet in double thickness. The iron crown is to be replaced by one of cement. The stack was originally erected nearly 60 years ago. Tonight the fires in the plant were let out and work on the chimney will be rushed Saturday and Sunday during which one-half of the work is expected to be completed. A similar plan will be carried out next week.

A tendency toward the early payment of city taxes, which become due Saturday, is manifest at the office of City Clerk Arthur L. Clark, collector of taxes. Substantial payments were made today by mail and personal calls. The collectible amount is $209,129.27, representing a 10-mill levy on the 1929 grand list of $20,919,227. The original budget adopted for the year amounted to $259,659.08 but it has been reduced to meet the income from 10 mills. The first city tax levy this year was for eight mills. DANIELSON

PEOPLE PLEASED WITH TOWN FINANCES FOR PAST YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 1—There appears to be considerable excuse for Killingly's people indulging in a bit of celebration over the manner in which the town's finances have been handled during the fiscal year that closed yesterday and in which period the indebtedness of the town has been reduced by $26,500.

It was said at the office of the selectmen this afternoon that an exact balance of the year's accounts will not be attained for three or four weeks. This is a normal condition, due to the fact that odds and ends of bills will come sifting in for a fortnight hence. Numbers of such minor accounts are received by the town the first of every month. Cash on hand is ample to pay such outstanding minor accounts, and the final tally may show the reduction in indebtedness somewhat more than the $26.500 mentioned. It will not be less.

In the twelve-month period that has just closed $12,000 in town bonds have been retired, and temporary loans, represented by notes of the town, to the amount of $14,500 have been paid. At the present time there are no outstanding notes. And there is still cash in the town treasury to meet such small bills as will come in within the next two or three weeks.

All of this, considered with the fact that this year's reduction in debt, is in addition to another reduction of $26,000 a year ago, heartens Killingly's people. A large debt, but not necessarily an oppressive one, is melting away in surprising manner because of judicious administration of the town's affairs.

It so happens that the board of selectmen is the same in personnel as it was during the fiscal year of 1928-1929. Charles A. Tillinghast, who made an outstanding success in his own business career, heads the board for a yearly salary that he would likely command weekly if he cared to again venture into the business world. His service to Killingly can hardly be overestimated, and it is most certainly highly appreciated by the town's people. Few in this era show such civic pride or make so much of a sacrifice for the public good. With him on the board are Alcott D. Sayles, East Killingly, with a quarter of a century of experience as a selectman as a background, and Napoleon P. Gingras of Dayville, another conservative who has been a selectman years enough to know what it is all about, and does. They make a great trio, the justification for this statement being the record they have made in cutting wide swaths in the town debt.

There should be included in this comment the remark of Arthur A. Dean, clerk of the board of selectmen, and an expert accountant, that the people of Killingly have seen fit to heed the advice of Mr. Tillinghast in town meetings to give the selectmen enough money to work with—enough to pay the bills accruing from appropriations. The people have furnished the money; the selectmen have shown results.

Five more years as carefully and faithfully administered as the past two, and Killingly will be sitting pretty.

There is a fascinating story back of the bare statement of a town debt reduction. It has to do with a daily restraint on expenditures, without being stingy or short-sighted; with a watchdog-like eye on the town treasury with the exercise of excellent judgment, the beating off of wasters and grafters, the checking on this and that, and, in a word, making every dollar do its utmost.

There appears to be a bit of misunderstanding about the possibility of the appearance here in September of Gene Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, at a show to boost the fund for the Day Kimball Hospital Nurses' Home Fund. Today the information was that Mr. Tunney may be a guest of friends in Woodstock in September. If he comes to Woodstock and if the time of his visit there coincides with the date of the boxing show here, and (one more if) should he agree to make an appearance here, patrons of the card of bouts will have a change to view him in all his magnificence. It is stated definitely, however, that the famed Gene has not agreed to do any exhibition boxing here, and that the most that can be hoped for is that he will be in Woodstock at the time the boxing show is to be held here next month, and that he will be gracious enough to lend his presence in adding to the assured success of the affair.

Outside of Putnam, in which town the Day Kimball hospital is located, Killingly had the largest number of free patients in that institution in the twelve months ending June 30. There were 54 free patients from this town, and they received 799 days' care. There is significance, therefore, in the fact that Killingly each year rightfully appropriates several hundred dollars for the use of the institution.

Rev. William Swainson of Dayville will preach at the morning service at the Danielson Methodist Episcopal church Sunday. At the Danielson union service Sunday evening in the Westfield Congregational church Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Baptist church will be the preacher.

It was indicated today that the special train bearing the 102d infantry will make a stop of about 15 minutes here Saturday morning, to pick up local soldiers and a baggage car. The train is scheduled in here at 10:40 and due to leave at 10:56, according to information in local military circles today. Not all of the Headquarters and Medical detachment members will leave on the train. Some of them will make the trip to Camp Devens by automobile Saturday night, and a few will go out Sunday morning.

Today D. Fred Kenworthy, Laura J. Gorman, Frank L. Bennett, Albert J. Cavanaugh, James P. Aldrich and Jonathan H. Smith, registrars of the town of Killingly, held their first sessions, meeting by districts, to make a legal enrollment of the voters of the town of Killingly, in preparation for the caucuses and elections of the coming fall season.

Edgar Mathieu, injured when he fell off an ice truck at Goodyear Wednesday evening, sustaining a fracture at the base of the skull, remained unconscious today at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, but it was regarded as very probable that he eventually will recover.

Stanley Gasiroek of Carter street left this evening for Camp Devens, to remain there with local troops during a two weeks period of encampment.

Several local people who had a ride in that particular "blimp" when it was at Goodyear on a day last October, were especially interested in today's press dispatches telling of the Goodyear Mayflower picking up a passenger from the deck of the S. S. Bremen as it was steaming up the Narrows in New York, and incidentally in the fact that the pilot who so successfully landed the Mayflower on the after deck of the Bremen was Karl Fickes, the same pilot that was handling the airship the day it was here.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Anderson and daughter, Lucile, of Broad street, are to spend the coming week at Pleasure Beach.

Miss Rose LaRoche, night operator at the Danielson central telephone office, is having her annual vacation. Miss Blanche Gauthier meanwhile is substituting for her.

PUTNAM

INCORPORTION PAPERS FILED FOR PUTNAM AIRPORT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 1—Putnam is now assured of its airport as incorporation papers have been filed for the Putnam Airport by Whitman Danielson, S. Nikoloff of Putnam and Mrs. F. W. Goodridge of Pomfret. As Mrs. Goodridge is away at present the first meeting of the incorporators has not yet been held. The new corporation is capitalized at $50,000 of which $5,000 has been paid in. The airport is to be at the former Larned Farm which is just over the Pomfret town line. This is considered the best site for an airport and Charles Cushman of Pomfret and his pilot from New York who used the land as a landing field last week say that the field is excellent for a landing and takeoff and provides facilities second only to the larger airports on Long Island. One of the advantages of the airport is that it is quite high above sea level and is not so apt to be troubled by fog as the airport nearer the level of the sea.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Delia M. Holbrook.

Mrs. Delia M. Holbrook, 87, widow of George F. Holbrook died at her home late yesterday. Mrs. Holbrook was born in Pomfret, September 25, 1842 and has lived in Pomfret and Putnam all her life. Many people remember her husband who was the sheriff of this district and who died about six years ago. Mrs. Holbrook is survived by three children, Mrs. B. K. Smith of South Main street, Putnam, George C. Holbrook of New Haven, and Henry Holbrook of Pomfret.

Yesterday about 5 o'clock the fire department was called out for the first time since June 24 when it was called to extinguish a small blaze in the street which was apparently started by some children. There was no damage done and no danger in the blaze but some one became excited and rang in a general alarm and had all of the equipment of the town there. The last time that the equipment was called out was June 24 when a garage on Walnut street caught fire about one o'clock in the morning and burned to the ground. This, it is believed, is a record as this makes a total of one month and seven days without a fire anywhere in Putnam.

Camp Woodstock on Black Pond, West Woodstock, reopened today for a two weeks camping period for the girls of Windham, New London, Tolland and Middlesex counties. This camp this year will be under the direction of Miss Iris Brown of Carolina, R. I., with Mrs. Lind of Willimantic as camp nurse. The counselors for the period will be Corrine Wilson and Eleanor Young of Putnam, Mary Aaron of Talcottville, Laura Norris of Hazardville, Irene Generous of Plainfield, Gladys Vansant of Ardmore, Pa., Elizabeth Dunbar of Danielson, Catherine Smith of Willimantic and Miss Yu of China. The girls' camp has always been a success and it is hoped that this year will not be an exception to the rule. The girls are given swimming instructions and all of the girls participate in the athletic games. One of the features of the camp which is enjoyed by all of the girls is the all-day hikes that are arranged about once a week during the camping period.

Mrs. Ernestine Wheeler, supervisor of music in the schools of Putnam, for the last two years has presented her resignation to Mrs. W. R. Barber, chairman of the town school committee. Mrs. Wheeler has accepted a position in the Waterford and Montville schools at a salary of $1,500 a year which is quite a large increase over the salary which she was receiving in Putnam.

The Woodstock church vacation school closed tonight at when the pupils gave an exhibition of their work and presented an entertainment which they prepared during the sessions of the school. The program was portrayal of the regular day's work so that the parents who attended the closing exercises were able to see what was done during the day. There has been a regular attendance of 31 pupils and some days the enrollment has been 35. North, South and East Woodstock have been represented at the school as has Woodstock Hill where the school has been held.

The school has been under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chandler, Mrs. Byron Bates, Mrs. William Child, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Linten, Miss Susan Sumner, Miss Mary Bates, Constance Williams, Roxana Child and Jane Lyon. A large number of the parents and friends of the children who attended the school during the summer were present at the closing exercises.

The different dopesters who are figuring the pennant chances of the Putnam Silk Sox in the Southern New England league can now see where the Putnam team came into a tie for first place with the Z. P. R. K. team of Webster. This will be a tough assignment as to do this the Putnam team will have to win all of their remaining four games, and two of these games are against the Z. P. R. K. and the St. Joseph's of Webster and in addition to this the Z. P. R. K. will have to face two games. The Zips have two easy games with the Grosvenordales and the Quinebaug teams and should be able to take one of the games either with Putnam or the Salters of Webster to be sure of the series but there is still a possibility of Putnam tying with them although it is rather slim.

Fruit Thieves in Action.

The problem of harvesting any fruit becomes more serious each year. Thefts of the boldest kind are committed in every section of the borough. Scarcely any fruit is allowed to ripen, for trees, vines and bushes are stripped of the green fruit, unless a shot gun or ugly dog is in evidence.

Citizens' Grievances.

One boat owner reported the lock broken on the chain which fastened the boat, and the boat stolen. Flowers from carefully tended gardens are spoiled by children and wandering dogs. A big police dog which has been a nuisance for some time was finally caught in a barn. He broke the rope which held him, while the dog warden was attempting to fasten a chain and collar on his neck. Now, he is at large with two collars and a rope attached to his anatomy. The dog warden has a permit to shoot the animal, if he is caught wandering around the borough. Another nuisance reported is the dogs which bark most of the night in certain sections of the borough.

STEEL PRODUCED IN U. S. PASSES 1ST BILLION TONS

NEW YORK—(AP)—Steel production in the United States has reached its first billion tons.

Half of this enormous total has come out of the furnaces in the last 12 years, although it took more than a century to produce the entire billion.

Steel was first produced in crude furnaces in this country in 1810, when the age if iron was at its height.

For every man, woman and child living in the United States today there now has been produced approximately 18,816 pounds, or 8.4 gross tons of steel.

Output of steel in the United States in 1929 was equivalent to ten times the weight of every man, woman and child within its borders. This is far above the production of any other country.

MUSCLE SHOALS AGAIN

Like Banquo's ghost Muscle Shoals will not down. For a decade the future of this immense natural resource has been under consideration, in one way or another, and now President Hoover, in a letter to Representative Reece of Tennessee takes a stand against government operation. At the last session of congress, the senate passed a resolution for so conducting this great federal water power development in the south. The house amended the resolution by substituting a wholly different text which called for a private lease. Compromise negotiations failed before a conference committee and the measure was left pending till the December session of congress.

So far the government has put about $150,000,000 into dams and other facilities to make available the stores of energy which lie dormant, but which were to be brought into serviceability there under the urge of wartime necessity for the manufacture of nitrates. But the conflict closed before the work was done. Muscle Shoals was one of the comparatively few war agencies regarded as having a peacetime salvage value equal to its cost by using its powers for the production of electrical energy and the making of ingredients for land fertilizers.

When the attempt was made to get satisfactory bids for a lease to privately-owned utilities, no offer deemed anywhere near satisfactory appeared. It was then that public operation began to get more consideration, and was given approval by house and senate two years ago, but President Coolidge rejected it with a pocket veto in the closing days of the session. President Hoover gives notice that he is equally opposed to the idea, that he has been assured the house will not recede from its present stand and that he has no intention of approving the programme which the senate is supporting.

It is evidently the belief of the president that a suitable contract can be arranged. What new proposals may be forthcoming remain to be seen. Meanwhile the communication from the white house makes the issue specific and sharp.

NATIONAL CHECK-VALVES

The original idea in the setting up of parliaments and congresses was that they should protect the general interests of the people against the tendency of an all-powerful executive to favor his own particular interests and those of his friends and supporters. Much doubt has recently been raised as to whether these bodies still perform this function. Legislatures, particularly in the matter of money spending, seem in all countries to be traveling in the same general direction. In the United States, for instance, it is to the president rather than congress that the people must look for economies in the expenditure of public money.

Premier Tardieu of France is the most recent recruit in this growing army of doubt raisers. In a remarkable speech the other day he pointed out that $160,000,000 was added to the French budget during the last year, in many cases against the direct wishes of the government, by organized groups that supported various schemes for their own interests rather than in the interests of the country. The farm relief act is a striking instance of this sort of thing in the United States, and the tariff law contains many provisions which favor particular interests, sometimes at the expense of the rest of the country. Perhaps the point farthest north was reached in the effort to bring about Philippine independence for the benefit of a few middle western beet-sugar growers and manufacturers.

But while they recognize the situation, neither M. Tardieu nor any of the other critics have any remedy to offer. But it is coming to be more and more obvious that parliaments and congresses in many important respects are no longer exercising the functions for which they were established, but as often as not have to be curbed by the executive in their attempts to take action contrary to the public interest.

STRANDED AMERICANS

The plight of Americans who become stranded in Europe is one of the questions which will be presented before the next congress. According to reports from Paris, it has become such a regular thing for the American colony there to have their stranded countrymen appeal to them for help to get home, that an aid society has been formed which lends the necessary money to the man or woman who has "gone broke" abroad and wants to get back home to the land of the free and the home of the brave. Of course it is expected that the loan will be repaid, but the records show that only about two per cent of the loans are returned.

If this were a private charitable activity it would attract little attention beyond some notice of the way Americans help each other when confronted with adversity when away from home. The aid society in Paris, however, has objected to the use of its funds for paying the transportation of stranded sailors, whose welfare, by treaty agreement, is the business of the American government. It is further pointed out that the United States is the only country in the world that does not have a budget item for the repatriation of nationals stranded abroad.

In 1914 when the world war broke out in Europe, the United States spared no money to see that every American desiring to return was provided with safe passage. This was its policy in an emergency, so it can hardly be accused of complete indifference to the difficulties of stranded citizens. There is, however, considerable difference between a war emergency and the troubles of an American who might journey to Europe without the means to return, relying upon the government money to see him through. And there is a middle ground which might well be considered by congress. The country should have a way to finance the repatriation of honest people marooned abroad through no fault of their own and of such standing at home that there is a reasonable presumption of the return of a loan.

THE REAL ROAD MENACE

Reports on automobile fatalities for the fiscal year just ended have the same dismal story to tell with a constant increase in almost every section of the United States, which brings the nation's total to 26.6 deaths for every 100,000 population, as contrasted with 24 last year. Out of the 78 principal cities from which the department of commerce has collected statistics, 50 show increases over last year, making a total of 8,769 persons killed in traffic accidents in or near those cities. New York increased from 1,131 to 1,341 Philadelphia from 387 to 401, Chicago from 805 to 813. Washington and Baltimore are two bright spots in the dark record, the former having decreased from 122 to 97 and the latter from 191 to 173 in automobile fatalities.

Every week-end adds to the depressing totals. Crowded roads and careless drivers inevitably mean accidents and death. But any extended drive through the country points to one conclusion—it is not the average drivers or the motoring tourists who cause serious accidents. They are, as a whole, a cautious considerate group on the road. The dangerous ones are those out to show off, daring fate with cut-in tactics, speeding with inadequate brakes, racing along roads for the sole reason that their machines will do 60 to 70 miles an hour. Those motoring for thrills are the real menace, not only to themselves but to these unfortunate enough to be in the way when the inevitable crash occurs. Unless the show-off driver is ruled off the road, the traffic toll will continue to rise despite all the traffic lights, speed-laws and common sense that guide sane motorists.

CANADA GOES CONSERVATIVE

Without any very clear cut issue between the two parties, the conservatives have gone into power in Canada as a result of the election this week, ousting the liberals from their long control of government. The topics discussed mainly by the party leaders in the pre-election campaign were trade conditions, tariff duties, imperial preference, the relations between Canada and the United States. On all of these both sides were in practical agreement and the only thing left for the conservatives to claim was a more definite adherence to protection as a dominion policy and a more aggressive stand for policies calculated to promote Canadian well-being. The conservatives were not optimistic of their chances in the election, but the outcome shows that even those supposedly astute in sounding public sentiment had failed to allow sufficiently for unrest, caused primarily by a recession in trade and employment.

Canada first, and the mother country and the empire next, was the conservative motto throughout the campaign. The references to American-Canadian co-operation in waterway development were vague, but the impression which the conservatives undoubtedly sought to produce was that they would deal with Washington at arm's length and would re-examine with suspicion and care the case for joint execution of the St. Lawrence seaway project. Some of them talk of an all-Canadian waterway. The liberals were cautious at first but towards the close of the campaign they promised speedy and constructive action upon the great improvement in conjunction with the United States.

The conservative leader pledged a special legislative session to deal with unemployment. Liberal spokesmen would not go beyond a promise to summon a conference of experts to consider conditions. The tariff, originally prominent in the contest, got less direct notice as the debates proceeded. Mr. Bennett, the conservative leader, has a clear parliamentary majority and apparently is in a position to put through any measures approved by the party leaders.

EDITORIAL NOTES

August continues to be the favorite month, less work being done in it than in any other.

The five-day week has arrived for those who get their Thursday and Saturday afternoons off.

It is to be suspected that some of these birdies on the golf course are mythical, like the roc.

About the only respect in which the tree-sitter resembles the aviator is that both run the risk of a crash.

Which are to be considered the lucky states, those which gain or lose a congressman by the new apportionment?

Some of the men on the R-100 were carrying good luck tokens, but a parachute would be more serviceable than a rabbit's foot.

Some one has applied the hitch-hiker in politics to the man who starts running for something else as soon as he's a month in office.

The man on the corner says: The next step for the naval treaty in England is to have the King give assent, which is pretty much of a rubber stamp process.

If you haven't time to go camping, put up a tent in the back yard, carry your water from the neighbor's, cook on a smoky oil stove and drink warm water. The effect will be the same.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

In view of the tragic fatalities that have transpired at the bathing beaches, both near and far away, and which we fear may be duplicated many times before the summer is over, one is justified in exclaiming: "Boys, know the places you swim in!" The fine young lad who nearly lost his life not far away by diving into water only a few feet deep illustrates the point in question—as salt water usually has a hard, sandy bottom, beware of diving into water less than five or six feet deep, or in fresh water that has a soft, muddy bottom! Never attempt to swim in thick seaweed, because you are likely to get all tangled up! Never attempt a long distance swim alone because you are not immune from cramp. When heated never plunge into cold water, and if you are unable to swim beware of deep holes! You may say that you knew all this before. Now that may be and yet every year shows that such precautions are soley needed.

We are so often regaled in speeches and written articles of the wonderful achievements of modern times—and wonderful they certainly are, and are not to be underrated, including steam as applied to locomotion on land and navigation of the seas, the telegraph, telephone, automobile, wireless, airships and many other things—but yet we have not the sum total of human knowledge and achievement to the extent at least that we are justified in having the swelled head. Revived notice calls our attention to the marvelous attainments of old Friar Bacon, the great Franciscan monk who lived far back in the 13th century. He could converse with ease and elegance in the Latin tongue—who can do it today? He mastered every science then known—astronomy, chemistry, physics, language, mathematics and was proficient in the old Syriac and Hebrew. Where is there a living man who can match that record?

It may be that the versatile brain of old Roger Bacon held the incipient germs of the modern airship that in these days is making such revelation of its power. The damage an airplane did some years ago in putting an old German war craft out of existence by the dropping of high explosives from a great altitude revives the question of its probable place in future battles. The experiment clearly showed that it is not difficult to attack one of these floating fortresses from above, and that a battleship cannot defend itself from a great perpendicular distance. Whether this will have much effect upon the world's naval program remains to be seen. As long as the nations are infatuated with the attempt to outdo one another in the production of big armaments, nothing will smash the obsession but the vision of bankruptcy. Let us hope that the recent work of the naval commission held in London will be effective.

Excavations made some years ago in New Mexico and Peru have opened wide the eyes of scientific scholars to the fact that a wonderful civilization was in existence in what is sometimes called the prehistoric age. The work has revealed one thing very strikingly, and that is that not all of our ancestors in the very long ago were untutored savages, living in mud huts and presumably eating raw flesh. The ruins of the old Aztec civilization completely unearthed in New Mexiso give the strongest evidence of being abandoned at the most conservative calculation at least a thousand years before the Spaniards came to America. The outside dimensions of one of the buildings excavated are 280 by 360 feet. And one portion of this building must have been three stories high. Not alone the size, but the workmanship excites the admiration of the explorer.

According to the calendar we have reached the season that may be properly called the mid-year pause. It is the season of the year when nature speaks more or less loudly to all of us through the channels of depleted energy. Her teaching by interpretation is this: "Let up a bit on the usual activities until I have a chance to repair the fatigued powers." And wise is the man or woman who listens to this voice and in some way gets a release from the ordinary toil somewhere and in some way. Not only man but institutions suffer from wastage in hot weather. It is no sign that a man's business or his church is going to destruction because it shows signs of fatigue in hot weather as well as himself. Some people seem to think that the churches have compromised with the devil unless they run full blast through the summer. Nobody says the same of the public schools that have a longer vacation than any of our churches. They will be here later.

In all great cities and the congested quarters of the smaller ones, we have in evidence today quite a necessary modern institution known as the "traffic cop." Very strict regulations have logically followed the increase of automobiles, and the "traffic cop" is their living expression. But how about those uniformed chaps on motorcycles whose duty it is to see that the speed laws are not exceeded. The need of the officer is seen in the fact that some people are prone to drive recklessly, and reckless driving is responsible for the vast majority of all automobile accidents. But is there not another side to the matter? Are not drivers of these machines at the mercy of the cops? I saw a driver the other day arrested in one of our cities by a young boyish cop apparently without cause, only for a mistake caused by the confusion of signs.

There is no question but that the power of heredity is seen in our lives, but it probably has less influence over our conduct than our present environment. The Apostle Paul gives his opinion on the subject in these words: "We all with open face beholding us in a glass the glory of the Lord are changed into the same image from glory to glory." We grow into the image of what delights us most. If we are gazing at red light our faces will be read. If we live in the brazen red light districts of cities, and come into constant touch of its coarseness, its materialism, its sin and shame, these things will be seen in our faces and stamped on our characters. Can we hide them? Not a bit more in 1930 than the people could 600 years before Christ came when it was written: "Can the leopard change his spots or the Ethiopian his skin?" Most people are what they look to be, and they look just like the things that control their lives.

Every year furnishes along the book line what are called the "best sellers." They are the books that have made the strongest appeal to the general public. They are usually the books that set forth in a clear and convincing manner some of the great fundamental facts of life. A really poor book that is mushy and immoral is never a "best seller." The American public dislikes both poverty and filth. Of course the "best seller" is still our English Bible. In the past it was the Webster's elementary spelling book, which up to 1876 had sold to the number of 70,000,000. I believe that Noah Webster is the least known of the men of first magnitude that this country has produced: lawyer, jurist, politician and educator. He was one of the founders of Amherst college. It was, however, the spelling book and dictionary that has made him immortal.

ABERDEEN CATHEDRAL IS MEMORIAL TO BISHOP SEABURY, NATIVE OF GROTON

A permanent memorial to a native of eastern Connecticut, the Rev. Samuel Seabury, first American bishop in the Protestant Episcopal church, will be dedicated on Aug. 14 when the cornerstone of the new St. Andrew's cathedral of Aberdeen is laid in his honor. The ceremony will be conducted by the Rt. Rev. James DeWolf Perry, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church in America and bishop of Rhode Island. Bishop Perry will be assisted by the Rt. Rev. Edward Campion Acheson, bishop of Connecticut.

"It was at Aberdeen in 1784 that the Rev. Samuel Seabury received his consecration as America's first Episcopal bishop. Up to the time of the American revolution the church throughout the entire continent had been under the jurisdiction of the bishop of London. At the close of the war the church, lacking any head, was disintegrating.

The Connecticut clergy elected the Rev. Dr. Seabury to seek consecration at the hands of the bishops of the church of England, but on arriving for the ceremony he found that the British government would make no one a bishop who did not receive the appointment from the state and swear allegiance to the king. After 16 months of futile effort to overcome this legal obstacle, the Rev. Dr. Seabury went to Aberdeen. At this time the Scottish Episcopal church was the victim of ruthless persecution at the hands of the government.

Consecrated November 14, 1784.

In a bare upper room in the home of Bishop John Skinner on November 14, 1784, Bishops Robert Kilgour, Arthur Petrie and Skinner conferred on Samuel Seabury, a "free, valid and purely ecclesiastical episcopate," untainted by any act of parliament or by the patronage of any king. Thus was born the Protestant Episcopal church of America.

Funds for the rebuilding of St. Andrew's cathedral, which is situated on the site of Bishop Skinner's house, are being gathered in this country by the Seabury Memorial committee. Because of its importance to the Episcopal church in America, because of its memorials and because it will be entirely American, St. Andrew's becomes a shrine of international significance. In the cathedral will be memorials to Abraham Lincoln, Washington and Lee. Above its altar will hang the flag of America side by side with the flag of Great Britain; upon its walls will be emblazoned the arms of the dioceses of the American church, while the flags of all the states of the union will hang from the nave. It will be a visible sign of a spiritual bond which joins two peoples.

The present structure of St. Andrew's, built in 1817 in debased Gothic, is referred to as "perhaps the plainest and ugliest cathedral in the British Isles." The rebuilding will cost approximately $1,250,000.

Cornerstone Connecticut Granite.

The cornerstone will be that of the Children's chapel, and will be a piece of granite from Connecticut, which was the diocese of Bishop Seabury on his return to America in 1784. The stone is the gift of the children of St. John's church, Hartford.

Although there are many cathedrals in the world ranking above St. Andrew's in structural beauty and size, there are few that contain as many significant memorials as will this American-Scottish shrine.

Even though the entire cathedral will serve as a memorial to the first American bishop, the commemoration of his consecration will be expressed in the chapel on the north side of the chancel. It has an interesting design, a double chapel with the altar in the middle, an unusual arrangement taken from the Church of the Jacobins in Toulouse.

Consecration Shown in Relief.

The reredos contains in its upper half a relief of Bishop Seabury's consecration beneath a lunette of the Holy Dove between cherubs. It has shutters with paintings of early bishops or other fitting characters, the whole reredos being surmounted by the American shield supported by angels.

In the east window will be two shields, those of Scotland and America. The Scottish shield will contain also those of the city of Aberdeen, the old town and the university. Behind the shield of America, on the right will be those of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Bishop Seabury.

The shield of Illinois will stand out above the portal and over the central doorway of the north transept. The inscription to be found there will read: "The north transept is dedicated to God in honor of Abraham Lincoln and in memory of Bishop Seabury."

Born in Groton, Died in New London.

Seabury was born in Groton on Nov. 30, 1729. He died in New London on Feb. 25, 1796. Graduated from Yale in 1748, he became a catechist of the Society for Propagating the Gospel and a student of theology under his father until 1752. Then for a year he was a student of medicine at the university of Edinburgh. He was ordained deacon by Dr. John Thomas, bishop of Lincoln, Dec. 21, 1753, and priest by Dr. Richard Osbaldiston, bishop of Carlisle, in London, Dec. 23, 1753.

He served as a missionary at New Brunswick, N. J., from May 25, 1754, became rector of Jamaica, including Flushing and Newtown, L. I., Jan. 12, 1757, and rector of St. Peter's, Westchester, N. Y., March 1, 1767. There he was prevented from the exercise of his ministry by the Whigs, by some of whom he was at one time seized and imprisoned in New Haven for six weeks. He then retired to the city of New York, where he supported himself in part by the practice of medicine, serving also as chaplain of the king's American regiment under commission of Sir Henry Clinton of Feb. 14, 1778.

He was particularly obnoxious to the American party on account of his authorship of the series of pamphlets signed A. W. Farmer, and entitled "Free Thoughts on the Proceeding of the Continental Congress" (Nov. 16, 1774); "The Congress Canvassed" (Nov. 26, 1774); and "A View of the Controversy between Great Britain and Her Colonies" (Dec. 24, 1774).

He received the degree of D.D. from the university of Oxford, Dec. 15, 1777. Dr. Seabury was elected bishop of Connecticut by the church of England clergy at Woodbury, March 25, 1783, and after having finally been consecrated bishop he resided in New London as rector of St. James's church until his death. By invitation he also exercised jurisdiction over the church in Rhode Island. He was the first presiding bishop of the churches in the several states, united under the general convention in 1789, and joined with Bishops Provoost, White and Madison in the consecration of Bishop Claggett, through whom every bishop of the Anglican communion subsequently consecrated in the United States traces his episcopate.

A Leader in Adjustment.

Bishop Seabury's knowledge of and devotion to the church system, applied with remarkable prudence and patience, made him peculiarly valuable to his church in this country in that formative period that succeeded the Revolution. The special benefits for which it is indebted to him, are directly the transfer to this country of a free, valid, and regular episcopacy, and indirectly the clearing of the way for the transmission of the episcopate of the established church of England by demonstrating the possibility of obtaining consecration from another and equally valid source, and the fact that episcopacy could live in this country; the reunion through him, in the consecration of Claggett, of the lines of the Scottish church and of the English non-jurors with the line of the established church of England, represented by White, Provost, and Madison; the securing of the just right of the episcopate in the government of the church, which was attained by the amendment of its constitution changing the house of bishops from a mere house of revision to a co-ordinate branch of the legislature; and, lastly, the restoration of the oblation and invocation to the communion office. Two volumes of his sermons (1791) and many occasional papers were published during his life, and a third volume of discourses after his death (1798).

A county traffic bureau with a fixed schedule of fines to expedite handling of cases of violators has been proposed at Grand Rapids, Mich.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jim Crow's Return

A scapegrace, do whate'er he way,
Will often have a winning way.
—Mother Brown.

For three nights and three days Jim Crow had been a member of the flock over in the Green Forest. For three nights and three days he had tasted the joys of freedom. And now he was ready to confess that this so-called freedom did not taste as sweet as he had expected. It would soon be time for the flock to seek a lonesome part of the Green Forest to go to bed for the night. Jim Crow didn't like to think of it. Never until he had left his home at Farmer Brown's had he known what fear was at night. Now, every night he was afraid. All the other Crows were afraid.

"I'm not going to do it," said Jim Crow, talking aloud, as it drew near to the time to seek their perches for the night.

"What is it you are not going to do?" inquired his father, Blacky.

"I'm not going back to the Green Forest to shiver and shake tonight," declared Jim Crow.

"What are you going to do?" inquired Blacky.

"I'm going back where I was," declared Jim Crow. "I'm going back where I can have plenty to eat without working hard to get it; where I can sleep without worrying, and where I don't have to fly away from every man I see. What is more, I'm going right this minute."

Jim Crow was as good as his word. In spite of the taunts of the other Crows, he headed straight for Farmer Brown's cornfield, where Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy were just making ready to leave for home. "My goodness!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "What are those Crows making such a fuss about?" He stood for a moment looking across the Green Meadows toward the big flock of Crows. They were cawing excitedly. As he looked, one of the flock separated from the others and headed straight toward him. The other Crows started in pursuit, then changed their minds. But the lone Crow came straight on.

"I wonder if that is Jim Crow!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "I believe it is. I believe the rascal is coming home. He gave the call that he used to use when he wanted Jim Crow to come to him. There was an answering "Caw," and it seemed as if the lone Crow flew faster than ever. In a few minutes he was so near that Farmer Brown's Boy recognized him. There was no question but that it was his lost pet Crow. Straight to him flew the black bird and alighted on his right shoulder. Such a jabbering as there was then! Jim Crow, with his bill close to the right ear of Farmer Brown's Boy, jabbered Crow talk as fast as his tongue could go. Yes, sir, he did so. Now and then he would give Farmer Brown's Boy's ear a gentle tweak.

"What are you going to do?" inquired Blacky

"What's the matter with you, you black scamp?" cried Farmer Brown's Boy. "What are you making such a fuss about? One would think you had been rescued from something. You could have come home any time you wanted to. Beside you needn't have gone in the first place."

To all this, Jim Crow replied with Crow talk, not one word of which could Farmer Brown's Boy understand. But then, it wasn't necessary to understand the words. Jim Crow's actions were quite as easily understood as any words and it was very clear, indeed, that Jim Crow was delighted to be at home once more. So up the Long Lane he rode on Farmer Brown's Boy's shoulder, and across the dooryard to the back door. There stood Mother Brown.

"So that nuisance is back, is he?" she exclaimed. "I hoped he had gone for good."

Farmer Brown's Boy grinned. He knew that Mother Brown didn't really mean that. He knew that right down in her heart she was glad to see Jim Crow back again.

YOUR HEALTH

Artificial Respiration May Save Life

By E. B. Marx, Field Leader, Playground Athletic League, Inc., Baltimore, Maryland.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute, Washington, D. C.)

Especially in this season of swimming, every individual should know how to give artificial respiration.

The prone pressure method is the best recognized and most effective imitation of the natural process of breathing. The victim is placed on his stomach with one arm extended above his head, the other arm bent at the elbow and with the face turned outward and resting on the forearm and hand. This keeps the head out of the dirt, the nose and mouth free for breathing, and the tongue forward.

The operator now straddles one thigh of the patient with his knees placing them at such a distance from the hips of the patient as to allow a comfortable position when he places his hands on the small of the back of the patient. The operator's fingers should rest on the victims ribs, his little finger touching the lowest rib.

From this position, keeping the arms straight at all times, the operator swings the weight of his body slowly forward, so that it is brought to bear on the patient. The shoulder should be directly over the heel of the operator's hand at the end of the forward swing. This takes about two seconds and should immediately be followed by the reverse motions to relieve the pressure.

After an interval of two seconds, repeat the procedure. This operation must continue 12 to 15 times a minute, without interruption, until natural breathing is restored, and if necessary, four hours or longer, or until a physician declares the patient is dead.

While the patient is being resuscitated, an assistant can loosen tight clothing, keep him warm and massage the extremeties towards the heart.

When the patient revives, he should be kept quiet and not allowed to stand or stimulant such as hot coffee, tea or aromatic spirits of ammonia. But do not give alcoholic stimulants.

Sometimes the operator may become exhausted and a change of operators becomes necessary. During this change they must be careful to make the change without losing rythm.

A few points to remember in case of water accidents are: Organize the helpers who arrive, send for a doctor, get warm clothes, hot tea or coffee, keep the crowd back, be calm, and do not allow them to interrupt for a second, or to interfere with the process of artificial respiration.

A few don't: Don't go in the water when hot or immediately after eating. Do not swim alone. Do not dive into unfamiliar water, explore it first.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1—Among amusing anecdotes of long-ago political battles, one that Washington press gallery old-timers retell with relish is that of 40 years ago when Charles Herbert Allen of Massachusetts missed out on election to the governorship of his state.

But there is not agreement as to which of two haphazard remarks, one by Allen himself and the other by that veteran politician, the late John D. Long of Massachusetts actually caused Allen's defeat in 1891.

All hands recall and vouch for the tale that Allen was fond of telling, with imitations of a rich Irish brogue, about an interruption to a political parade back in the days when flaming torches were a necessary part of such things.

They were torches that flared grandly with colored bursts as the torch bearers blew into a little pipe that sent inflammable powder up into the yellow flame over their heads.

But something happened to this parade Allen used to tell about. The man in charge rushed back to find one torch bearer moaning on the ground and thought there had been a fight.

"What happened?" he shouted.

"Nothin'," said a voice. "Casey sucked on his tor-r-ch instid av blowin' on it."

And as the story goes that this remark so offended the Irish vote that Allen failed of election.

Charlie Groves, long Washington correspondent of the Boston Globe, does not agree. It was a combination of John Long and a Globe editorial which beat Allen, he insists.

For Long, urgently campaigning in Allen's behalf, but forced to admit that his democratic opponent was a fine man, told an audience that the democrats had selected their very best apple right off the top of the barrel for gubernatorial candidate while the republicans had just reached in their barrel and taken the one most handy.

Next day the Globe had an editorial about "Little Apples Allen," and that beat him, Charlie contends.

"If you doubt that Long thought so," he told the Bystander, "look at what happened to Allen afterward. When Long got to be secretary of the navy in McKinley's time, and after Theodore Roosevelt gave up that job to go a-soldiering in the Spanish war, Allen was the man picked to succeed Teddy in the navy department.

"He was assistant secretary for two years. Then in 1900 by Long's influence, he was made governor of Porto Rico, the job Young Teddy Roosevelt now has.

"And all of that was because Long was trying to make up to him for that campaign speech that brought on the Globe's 'Little Apples Allen' editorial."

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Led By Example

From Japan comes the story of an exposition of Christianity from a man who obtained a Bible which he read with much interest. When he had finished, he said: "This is a fine thing in theory, but I wonder how it would work in practice."

On the train on which he was traveling, he noticed a lady who, he was told, was a Christian. He watched her attentively to see how she would act, and said: "If I can see anything in her conduct like this book I will believe it."

Before the day was over, he had seen so many little acts of unselfishness on her part and so much thoughtfulness and consideration for the comfort of her fellow passengers that he was deeply impressed and the result of that railway ride was that he went to his home determined to make the Bible the guide of his whole life and became a true and consistant Christian.

It may be that we are in the same position that our every word and deed are watched by someone who is leaning toward the Christian life, but who is still in doubt. Is it not a solemn thought that on our conduct may depend the salvation of an immortal soul for all eternity? Surely we should be ever on the watch lest we should prove stumbling blocks in the path of such a one.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Waterbury Battery Co.

The Waterbury Battery company was started by Charles B. Schoenmehl who invented primary batteries while he was employed as a foreman in one of the large brass industries in Waterbury. The company was incorporated in 1898 and the first products were open circuit batteries of the Leclanche type. The first closed circuit product of the company was the Excelsior battery.

In 1904 a new compressed cylinder type of battery for closed circuit work, principally the operation of railway signals, was presented to the trade under the name of Schoenmehl's primary battery. About this time it was necessary to make an addition to the plant due to the favorable reaction of the various railroads. Another addition was made about 1913 which doubled the capacity of the plant.

The products of The Waterbury Battery company are being used from the Arctic to the Antarctic, and from the Occident to the Orient. The latest development in the primary battery field, The Waterbury telecell, which is particularly adapted for telephone, telegraph, and burglar alarm use and which does not have any shelf loss or deterioration in stock, was used by the Byrd expedition in the Antarctic. The company is represented in the following foreign countries: England, Europe, India, South Africa, Australia, and South America.

Waterbury primary batteries protect the traveling public throughout the world in the operation of railway signals signals and railway telephone and telegraph appliances.

The present officers are: Martin L. Martus, president; G. A. Nelson, vice president; Francis T. Reeves, treasurer; H. B. Schoenmehl, secretary.

All But Twelve.

Harry was very ill The doctor who had been called was interested in finding the cause of the illness.

"What have you been eating?" he asked.

"O, a few apples; they don't hurt anybody," said the boy.

"Were they green?" asked the doctor.

"Some of them."

"How many green apples can a boy eight years old eat?"

"They weren't all green—exactly green. Only two of them were green. The other twelve were rather ripe. Two green apples wouldn't hurt anybody," he insisted.

HOME-COMING DAY

It was such a casual, careless question, but so momentous in results. Angeline had merely asked the substitute from room 4 at recess: "Are you going to the teachers' meeting tomorrow?" And she had lightly replied: "No, indeed. I know a better way of having a good time. It's Home-Coming day in my old home town in Indiana. It will be a big day in Plum Hill and I'll be there!"

"Plum Hill!" with a little laugh that was surprisingly natural. "Do you know if—if the the Gwenlocks still live there?"

"Why, yes, they do. They're going to have a family reunion tomorrow, so they'll all be there." The gong sounded and there was just time for her to add hurriedly, "Except Ralph. He's in the east."

Angeline slowly returned to her desk. Plum Hill! It was as if the name changed the very atmosphere of the room—as if some new excitement, something dramatic, were floating above the prosaic school lessons. But when during the history hour she found herself saying, "Who can tell me what great event took place at Plum Hill?" instead of Waterloo, she determined to instantly erase all thoughts and memories of Plum Hill from her mind.

However, sitting alone in her room that evening a queer longing to again visit Plum Hill prodded her to a sudden decision. Tomorrow was Saturday; no school. And being Home-Coming day there would be so many visitors in town nobody would notice her.

It was noon when she arrived in a little town where flapping welcoming signs were strung across the wide main street, where a band in the town square was playing everything from "Auld Lang Syne" to "Am I Blue?" and where everybody seemed to be smiling to everybody else.

Plum Hill looked much the same as it did that summer she was there ten years ago. She had a strange feeling as she neared Ralph's home that she was walking along without volition of her own. The big, old-fashioned house occupied a whole square block and lay far back from the street on slightly rising ground that sloped gently down to the river in the rear.

Carefully, curiously, with quickened breath, she sliped through a side gate that opened onto a little brown winding path leading to the river bank. She found the old rustic bench, so crowded with memories, and sat down, completely screened from view of the house by a clump of cedars.

Far away lay the low hills, blue and smoky, in the distance. The late autumn sun spilled its pale gold through leafless boughs and shimmered on the meandering old river, mingling with the woodsy scene of fallen leaves. All about here were fragrance and sunshine and unbroken peace. She wondered at her heaviness of heart.

Suddenly she was listening. She jumped up, startled at the crunching sound of feet upon dried leaves. There was a moment of dead silence. Then, "Angeline! Or isn't it?" Wonder and joy were equally mixed in his tone.

"Oh, Ralph! I—I thought you were in the east!" was all she could stammer, a patch of crimson waving in each cheek.

"Hm! So that's why you're here?" dark eyes laughing audaciously down at her. "Why, I've never yet missed a home-coming! Got in last night."

Thereupon followed a most satisfying interval of explanations and fervid assurances, after which Ralph brought Angeline, gladly conscious of her ripply new velvet frock, to the house so that she might meet her future relatives.

Standing alone together before the huge brick fireplace Ralph confided: "Isn't it strange, Angeline, that through all these years, when I thought you had married—him, somehow I always had the odd fancy that this old home seems to be yours, too. I could always see you in it, walking through the rooms, out in the garden, down by the river where you were today." He smiled down to her. "Of course, at first we will have to live in the east, but when I am old and gray and rheumatic-jointed here's where I want to settle down. This is home and always will be!"

"I love it," murmured Angeline softly.

Suddenly he turned to her. "Dear how did you happen to come to Plum Hill today, anyway?"

"Why, it was Home Coming day, wasn't it? So I," demurred, "had to—to come home, too!"—Chicago News.

BANKER ALSO CONDUCTOR ON ALASKAN RAILROAD

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Directing the destinies of a bank here is not enough work for Frank L. Knight, so in his spare moments he is a train conductor.

Mr. Knight, while not sitting in his offices at the First National bank, is punching tickets on a passenger train on the Alaska railroad. He is a native of Lafayette, Ind., and on American and Mexican railroads before coming here. He first became a dock foreman, then a railroad brakeman and has been a conductor since 1916. The railway is owned and operated by the United States Government. Anchorage, headquarters of the Alaska railroad, is one of the most modern cities in Alaska. It is situated on a plateau high above the waters of Knik arm of Cook inlet.

A larger number of vacationists is expected to visit Alaska this year than ever before. A party of federal government employees at Washington is now making plans for a trip to the peninsula, and during their visit they will ride on the railroad train that is probably the only one in the world that is being served by a banker-conductor.

WATER BOARD DISCUSSES PROPOSED PURCHASE OF McDONALD'S POND

At a meeting of the board of water commissioners, Friday evening, there was a discussion on the proposed purchase by the city of McDonald's pond, located at the head of the Deep River reservoir. A recommendation to this effect, it is said, will be made to the court of common council.

Mr. McDonald owns about 50 acres of land bordering the reservoir and including the pond where a score or more of bathers were found by President Charles A. Hagberg and Councilman John H. Sherman, member of the board, who recently made a tour of inspection of the reservoir. It is said that it was felt that the solution to the eradication of the high color in the water is for the city to purchase the property. McDonald's pond is one of the main feeders to the reservoir.

The board spent considerable time in a discussion of certain conditions at the reservoirs. Shephard B. Palmer, of Chandler and Palmer, was present.

The city has an abundant supply of water on hand in spite of the severe drought. Fairview reservoir is down less than a foot below full pond; Stony Brook is down a foot below the original spillway and Deep River is down 20 inches below full pond. The city, since the early part of June, has been getting its supply of water entirely from Stony Brook and Fairview, as the Deep River gates at Harland corner were closed at that time on account of the other reservoirs being full. In order to change the water in the Deep River pipe line, the blow off gate at Frink's dairy, which draws 2,300,000 gallons daily from this reservoir is open. The board decided to throttle this gate down so as to draw a little over a million gallons a day, as this is efficient to make the automatic chlorinator work properly.

There has been some complaint about the color of the water along the main pipe line and a change has been made at the gate house which will improve this condition. The water is better this year than last and will continue to improve.

The whole city was using the Deep River water almost entirely during the months of March, April and May.

The board discussed the increased rates which they have been working on and decided to present them to the council at its meeting next Monday night.

TWO PERSONS HURT IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

COLCHESTER, Aug. 1.—A Nash sedan, Conn. reg. L-3664, driven by Sidney Shabecoff, of 28 Pearl street, Norwich, collided with a Willy Knight sedan operated by Frank Durga, of 126 Boswell avenue, Norwich, about a half mile above Fitchville on the Norwich-Colchester road about 11.15 o'clock Friday evening. The accident happened around the curve west of the old Jehiel Johnson house, now the Fishbone residence. The Shabecoff car was headed toward Colchester and in rounding the curve it is understood it crashed into the Durga car which was traveling toward Norwich.

The impact was so great that the Durga car was turned completely around and upset on the right side of the road, while the Shabecoff car came to a halt about 30 feet away up against a bank on the left side of the highway. With Durga were Mrs. Cardella Bonin, who is blind, Mrs. Cardella Durga, both of 126 Boswell avenue, Norwich, and Miss Marjorie Jotray, of Medford, Mass.

Both cars were damaged. Mrs. Durga was treated at the W. W. Backus hospital for a contusion to the shoulder and an injury to the ribs, after which she was discharged. Miss Jotray received abrasions on the arms and shoulder, a contused wound on the back of the head and an injury to the spine. Her injuries are not considered serious.

ECHOS FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

AMERICAN LEGION

"My deepest appreciation and most sincere thanks go out to all department and post officials for the splendid cooperation and loyal hard work which has made this record possible," O. L. Bodenhamer, national commander of The American Legion, said when the records at national headquarters, on July 21, showed the highest membership in the history of the organization.

The record breaking total occurred on Monday morning when the mail over Sunday was opened, and the cards and checks were counted, running the 1930 figures over the 845,186 of 1920, the preceding high mark. A check for $1,114 from the California department was in the mail, but was not counted because the membership cards to go with it had not yet arrived. If this had been counted the total would have been more than 847,-503. It was more than 846,000 when cards and money for 756 from New York, and 535 from Illinois, were recorded.

Frank E. Samuel, assistant national adjutant in charge of membership, said the success in membership this year is primarily due to the policy of the legion last fall in devoting all energy to early membership in order to get that problem out of the way as quickly as possible so that undivided attention could be given to the legion's program of service. The wisdom of this, under the leadership of National Commander Bodenhamer, was shown in the success of the legion's legislative program and in community service achievements. Plans are already under way to continue this fall the enrollment of 1930 members for 1931 activities.

Sixty representatives of the coastwise steamship lines, harbor towboat concerns, shipping board and port authorities were unanimously in favor of increasing the canal's usefulness.

Frank S. Davis, manager of the Maritime association, said the canal was an integral part of the inland waterway chain on the Atlantic seaboard. O'Donnell, president of the Eastern Steamship lines, urged a width of 800 feet.

AMERICAN AIR MAIL TO RIO EQUALS EUROPEAN

RIO JANEIRO—(AP)—American exporters to South America's east coast will be on an equal footing with European rivals in the matter of air-mail service for some time to come, in the opinion of experts here.

This notwithstanding the flight of Jean Mermoz from San Luis, Senegal, to Natal, Brazil, which brought mail to Rio Janeiro in less than three days from Paris.

The time from New York is seven days, but this is sure while the Africa-Brazil hop can be made only under favorable conditions.

This was brought out when Mermoz tried his return from Natal to Dakar the second week in June. For three days he failed to get into the air from the Potengy river at Natal. There was no wind, and the plane could not lift its three occupants, 3,600 liters of gasoline and 600 pounds of mail. Outside in the open sea the water was too rough for a takeoff.

The proposed dirigible line from Seville to Pernambuco, may make faster time than the present air-mail operated by the American NYRBA line along the east coast of South America to New York, but experts here are inclined to doubt it. They point out that the recent Graf Zeppelin flight was under good weather conditions but that a ship of that size could not be used economically as a mail and fast freight carrier.

Furthermore, the Graf came to Brazil while it was winter south of the equator and even then was short of water, so what, they ask, would happen on flights when the sun is south of the line?

IDEALS PLAY RAGGED BALL TO LOSE TO ITALIANS IN CITY LEAGUE GAME

Whether it was because of their legal battle with the Thermos Bottlers and the City league board of arbitrators or because the strain of playing winning ball for two weeks was too much is a question, but, one thing is certain, the Ideals played terrible ball at the campus last night. They booted and bobbled baseballs nearly every time they came in their direction, making 9 glaring errors in the seven innings of play. As a result the Italians won 4 to 2.

The losers outhit the Italians 6 to 4 but Raney's efforts were in vain. The service station pitcher worked a slow ball almost to perfection but the errors, five of which came in succession in the fourth, were too much. In the fourth the Italians scored two runs without a hit and but for the fact that Raney whiffed two men after the spree of slips it might have been worse.

Lefty Lucier returned to duty for the Italians and although he pitched pretty good ball was a bit unsteady at times. He ran up a total of eight strike-outs but walked four and hit one.

The game was dull and slow all the way through, very few thrills, in fact none, being provided during the evening. As a result the crowd lost interest and there was none of the excitement that prevailed the previous night. As predicted the contest drew out a large crowd, although not quite the size of that on hand for the Thermos-Citizen affair.

Goderre, of the Ideals, and Pete Tombari, Italian backstopper, shared the hitting honors, collecting two singles apiece.

The score:

Italians	ab	h	po	a	e	Ideals	ab	h	po	a	e

TAIL-END CLUBS GIVEN PERMISSION TO STRENGTHEN

Notice was served on the managers of the Ideal, Smoke Shop and Italian clubs Friday that if they intend to take on any additional strength they must have the names of the new players into the hands of the City league governors by Monday night. Earle E. Brigham, secretary of the board, paid each of the mentioned managers a personal visit during the game last night and notified them that after Monday there will be no furthering strengthening.

The three tail-end clubs have been granted permission to dig up new talent but after Monday they will be expected to finish out the season with the men that they have on their respective rosters at that time.

TIGERS GATHER 17 HITS FOR EASY VICTORY

DETROIT, Aug. 1—(AP)—A barrage of 17 hits which went for 29 bases gave the Tigers an easy 12 to 4 victory over the Chicago White Sox in the first of a four-game series here today.

While the Tigers were getting to Dutch Henry for six hits in the first and second innings to give him his 15th defeat of the season, and maltreating his successor, Earl Whitehill was holding the Sox to eight hits and accumulating his seventh consecutive victory. Walsh, who relieved Henry in the second, was touched for 11 hits.

Akers hit a home run in the third with two on base.

ROBINS POUND TWO PITCHERS FOR 9 TO 4 WIN

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1—(AP)—The Brooklyn Robins hammered Harry Smythe for five runs in the sixth inning and pounded his successor, Ace Elliott, for three more in the seventh to defeat the Phillies today, 9 to 4. Brooklyn won the series, 3-1.

Babe Herman's home run, his 24th of the season, was the deciding wallop. The blow, made with two on base in the sixth, brought the Robins from behind. Denny Southern hit a homer in the third to start the Phillies off ahead and Chuck Klein, making a single in the second frame, ran his string of hits through its 23rd consecutive game.

Adolfo Luque pitched the full game for Brooklyn to score his eleventh victory of the season against four defeats. Pitching steadily and carefully throughout, he gave nine hits and kept them well scattered.

HALLAHAN HOLDS REDS AS CARDINALS TRIUMPH

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 1—(AP)—The Cardinals, behind the four hit pitching of Wild Bill Hallahan today came out of a three weeks slump during which they lost many games by one run margins and pounded out a 10 to 1 victory over the Reds.

Red Lucas was easy for the St. Louis sluggers who touched him for a run in the first inning and drove him from the mound in the fourth with extra base hits. Meanwhile Hallahan held the Reds to two hits in the first 8 innings.

The Reds, league leaders in fielding averages, put up one of their worst defensive games of the year and made four errors.

RUTH HITS TWO HOMERS AS YANKS DOWN RED SOX

BOSTON, Aug. 1—(AP)—Babe Ruth started the new month with two home runs today and with another big fellow of the New York Yankees, Charley Ruffing, beat the Rex Sox, 4 to 1, to clean up the four game series. The Babe hit his 37th homer of the season off Horace Lisenbee in the first inning with none on base, then clouted No. 38 in the ninth off Milt Gaston, scoring Ruffing ahead of him. He also walked twice and hit a double for a perfect day at bat.

Ruffing did the rest of the starring for the Yankees by holding his former mates to two hits and would have had a shutout except for an error.

Ruth's homers put him eight games ahead of his record pace of 1927, when he hit his 38th on Aug. 17.

H. N. S. Vs. Shyma Club at Jewett City

Real action is slated for Sunday at the Fisk Rubber grounds, Jewett City, when the two rivals of several years past meet, the Shymas of Taftville, and the Holy Name team of Jewett City. For several years these two teams have been the outstanding teams of this section and the rivalry is on a par with the old Jewett City-Taftville teams of 25 years ago.

The Shyma team will present the following lineup: Burelle or Sydlo c, S. Raymond or Dudek p, Wilk 1b, Bunk 2b, N. Lemieux 3b, B. Lemieux lf, J. Raymond cf, Benoit or Borden rf.

The Jewett City team as follows: Willem ss, Slonsky lf, Perry 1b, Pizzo c, Beaulieu rf, Solenski 3b, Kusek 2b, Gaska cf, and Vachon, Bernal or Wolkosky p.

SHYMAS-LEGION SERIES STARTS TODAY

The baseball fans of the village of Taftville are in a high pitch on the eve of the opening game of the series between the Shymas, who are considered on the par with the leading amateur teams in the state, and the American Legion team of 1929 who were the amateur champs of eastern Connecticut last season. The game is to be played at the Providence street ground today, starting at 3:15. Anyone attending this game is sure to witness a good battle, filled with plenty of rivalry between the two teams. The Legion team has just reorganized and feel sure that they can repeat what they accomplished last season, that is, to win this series from the Shyma boys.

The American Legion team last season, besides winning the amateur championship of eastern Connecticut, also went through the Junior league without losing a game. They have banded together seven of last year's players and have added Pizzo, star of the Holy Name team of Jewett City, Boots Greene, N. F. A. star, who is pitching such wonderful ball in the Dusty league, and Pete Raymond, former Shyma star, who is now performing with the Wauregan Grays. They will lineup in the following order: Walt Sydlo, will be on the receiving end, while the pitching will be taken care of by either Rene Paradis, who is to captain Assumption college next season or Boots Greene, N. F. A. star; first base will be taken care of by Pizzo; Peter Raymond, former Shyma star, at second; Mickey Breen, one of the leading hitters on the N. F. A. team last season, at third; Peppin, at short; Wolkowski, left field; Liberty, center field, and Slonski, in right. Both these boys hail from Jewett City. Speed Gaudette and Corcoran, substitute.

The Shymas, who boast of one of the best records of any team in the state, have been practicing hard for this game for they are out for revenge after losing last season in one of the closest series ever held in the village. The manager of the Shymas will depend on its regular line-up in order to defeat the Legion team in the first game of the series. They will take the field in the following order: Ulewicz, 3b; Bunk, 2b; Wilke, 1b; N. Lemieux, ss; Babe Lemieux, lf; J. Raymond, cf; Benoit, rf; Borden, rf. Bureile will do the work behind the bat while the pitching will be taken care by either Faucher or Dudeck.

The ridiculousness of having a governing board make impromptu rulings regarding baseball was demonstrated last night at the game between the Ideals and the Italian club.

This burlesque of baseball occurred in the fourth inning when the Italians were at bat. With the bases full a ball was hit to Liberty at third base. Liberty made the play at home but his throw was to the left of the plate and it slipped through Murphy's hands. The runner on third had scored and when Murphy mussed up the throw the man who had been on second scored. Then Murphy recovered the ball and threw to second to catch the batter who had gone to first and started for second. The second baseman mussed up the throw and a third run scored.

Then came the ridiculous part of the whole thing. Umpire Morin going according to the novel rules of the governing board ruled that only one run could score as he thought the throw that Murphy mussed up would be called an overthrow by the board.

The Italians protested, which they should have. The outcome was that Hank referred the matter to the governing board, three of whom were discussing matters, sundry or otherwise, in right field. The game was halted while Captain Tombari appealed to the board for a ruling.

A meeting was called then and there and the solons of local baseball went into conference. Finally it was decided that two runs should be allowed to score and Captain Tombari trotted back and informed Umpire Morin of the committee's verdict.

And as might be expected the decision was wrong. Three runs should have been allowed to score. The throw from Liberty which Murphy knocked down did not roll into the crowd and under no consideration could it be called an overthrow or passed ball. The ball was still in play and when Murphy threw to second and the third run scored the ball continued to be in play.

If the local city league games were conducted under regulation baseball rules it would be unnecessary to halt games and ask for rulings from a governing board. Morin knows the regulation game but he is having a mighty hard time keeping up with the local rules which change as often as the tide.

As a suggestion, might it not be possible to have these apparently complicated plays settled in the following manner: Have a thousand or two slips of paper handy and when there is a questionable play have the game halted and the ballots passed through the bleachers. Appoint a number of tellers and ask that the spectators vote on the matter. Then count the ballots and announce the verdict and let the game proceed.

And again it might save a little time to take a yea and nea vote but this might not be practical as there are some mighty powerful voices in that third base bleacher gang.

Well, no matter which way the decisions go everybody seems to be getting a great kick out of the games for there is many a good hearty laugh to be had up there.

HARTNETT'S HITTING HELPS CUBS TURN BACK PIRATES

CHICAGO, Aug. 1—(AP)—Gabby Hartnett's big bat, and some opportune hitting by the rest of the Cubs boosted the National league champions to a 10 to 7 victory over Pittsburgh in the opening game of the series.

Hartnett accounted for a home run and a pair of doubles to lead the assault which started on Heinie Meine and finished on Spencer. Meine was rapped for four runs in the first inning and retired in favor of Spencer with one out. Spencer troubled the Cubs until the sixth but was hit hard from then until the finish.

Bud Teachout started for the Cubs but failed to last three innings and was replaced by Osborn who got credit for the victory. Al Bool, Pirate catcher, got two homers.

LINDSTROM STARS AS GIANTS TROUNCE BRAVES

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—(AP)—Freddy Lindstrom supplied the big share of the Giants' batting strength today and sent the Boston Braves down to their third straight defeat, 10 to 4. Linstrom hit two home runs, a double and a single, driving in six runs.

The Braves batted Pete Donohue hard in the first three innings but he tightened up and allowed only three hits from the fourth to the eighth. They scored again in the ninth after the Giants had a safe lead.

Rabbit Maranville was missing from his shortstop post for Boston due to the death of his father.

PIQUETTE FAVORED TO WIN FROM BEAUREGARD ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT

When Al Beauregard of Taftville, New England bantamweight champion, swaps punches with Lou Piquette of Bridgeport, in one of the three star bouts on the Shyma club boxing show at Martin field, next Wednesday night he will be meeting one of the real fast boys of the state. Beauregard is taking Piquette very seriously and is working hard to be in the best of shape.

Piquette is the ruling favorite by virtue of a former win over Beauregard and also a decision over Johnny Pena of New York, Piquette being the only New England boy to get a win over Pena. It will be remembered that Pena gave Beauregard a nice shellacking when they fought at the first open air show. Pena of course is a sharpshooter rather than a slugger and all through his bout with Beauregard he refrained from mixing it with the local youngster and was content to jab Beauregard dizzy.

However, Piquette is more aggressive and more on the type of the local boy which means that if they mix it up the bout will be a slugging match well worth seeing. Piquette lost a questionable decision the other night in a bout where the opinion was wholly in favor of Piquette.

Perhaps the bout that will attract the most attention is the eight round star bout between Rene Peloquin of Danielson and Young Lavigne of New London. Here will be two of the gamest and scrappiest little boys in the state battling and there will be plenty of excitement during this bout for even the most unemotional fan.

There is keen rivalry between Peloquin and Lavigne the feud dating back to last winter when both were boxing for the Shyma club. Peloquin claims Lavigne is not so hot while Lavigne is of the opinion that he could take the Danielson Frenchman with one hand tied. But the fans know different and know that neither boy is going to have a picnic on Wednesday night for they can fight and fight well.

The other star bout brings together Joe Russo of Westerly and Eddie Moore of Bridgeport. These are boys of the heavier class and each packs plenty of steam in their gloves. Moore is one of the few to hold a decision over Lucien Brouillard of Danielson. If Moore shows well against Russo it is possible that he will be matched with the Danielson Dynamiter at a future show and on the other hand, Russo, should he win, will be the logical man to meet Brouillard.

There is a six round preliminary between Vic Darr of Norwich and Julio Rossi of Westerly and a four round opener between Al Rodman of Goodyear and Young Rochette of Westerly, two youngsters who have won all their bouts since entering the professional ranks.

LAMPHERE FANS 12 AND ALLOWS ONE SCRATCH HIT

The Montville Independents easily blanked the Fitchville A. C. Friday evening in a twilight game at the Gair diamond, at Uncasville, by a score of 4 to 0. Both pitchers were in top form. Gribbons, for Fitchville, struck out nine men and allowed five hits and "Cop" Lamphere, for the Independents, fanned twelve men in the seven innings and allowed but one hit, and that of the scratchy variety.

This is the fourth straight win for Lamphere as a member of the Indies and he has yet to suffer a defeat. Welchell led the Independents with three out of three, and Jab Burns turned in the only hit for Fitchville, robbing Lamphere of a niche in the hall of fame.

CARNERA APPEARS BEFORE U. S. IMMIGRATION OFFICIALS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1—(AP)—The human alp from Italy, Primo Carnera, showed a group of feminine fight fans and a labor department board of review today why his manager thought he should have more time in the United States.

He displayed his towering physique, the immense feet and the huge hands that have combined to make him an uncomfortable ring antagonist—but, aside from this, he confined his own arguments to a broad smile.

"He is the man who fights; I say hit and he hits," explained Leon See, his manager.

See volubly joined in the contention of Representative Hartley of New Jersey that the sporting interests of the United States required that Carnera be granted a time extension of three or four more months to complete his campaign for a title bout.

A vigorous denial of any unethical conduct in the ring was entered for him and for his manager: It was pleaded that his earnings were helpful to charity and his exhibitions educational. Advance dates made for his fistic appearances in Atlantic City and Detroit during coming weeks were cited.

No hostile questions were put to the Carnera group by board members, nor was any testimony introduced attacking his right to an extension of stay.

The decision was taken under advisement by labor department officials but the belief prevailed that Carnera would be given a six months' extension of his time for leaving the country.

INDIANS GET EARLY LEAD TO BEAT THE BROWNS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 1—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians, scoring two runs in the first inning, maintained an advantage throughout and defeated the St. Louis Browns in the first game of their series here today, 6 to 3.

Holland Stiles of the Browns, who appeared only in the first third of the initial frame, was the victim. The Indians converted a pair of hits off his delivery into as many runs. Collins and Kimsey followed him on the mound.

A home run by Kress with one on was the only big hit off Brown, who pitched effectively for Cleveland.

ROTARY BEATS ELKS TO TAKE FIRST PLACE

The Rotary club kept their slate clean in the Junior league, Friday evening, when they disposed of the Elks 9 to 5. The victory gives the Rotary undisputed possession of first place with four victories and no defeats. The Duwells are in second place and the Elks in third.

One bad inning, the third, spelled disaster for the Elks, when with two out, a little pop fly that Gallivan missed started all the trouble. In this frame with Alex on third and Veronick on second, and two away. O'Neil lifted a high pop fly to the infield. Gallivan got under the ball but just as he was about to catch it, Carter came up, interfering with the catch, and the ball fell safe. Alex and Veronick both scored on the play, and O'Neil took second. Dickenman hit to Ulewicz and when Houghton, now playing first, dropped the third baseman's throw, O'Neil scored and the batter was safe. Sabroski walked. Charron hit to center and when Bamber dropped the ball, both Dickenman and Sabroski tallied. Charron took second on the error, stole third and crossed the plate on Austin's single to left. Nylen ended the inning with a grounder to Carter.

In the first, the Elks had scored a run on a single by Hamill and an error by Veronick and were in possession of a slight one-run lead until the break came in the third. The Rotary added another run in the fourth and two in the fifth, bringing their total to nine. The Elks scored once in the fourth and in the following frame made their big bid for the game, but fell several runs shy of tying the score. With one away, Hamill walked and stole second. Carter flied out. Guillotte walked and when Bamber singled to center, Hamill scored and Guillotte took third. Dugas shot a double to left, scoring Guillotte and Bamber. Houghton walked, but LaVarge, pinch-hitting for Fritz fanned for the third out.

Fuller was in the box for the Elks and was not quite up to his usual form, although without a break in the third inning, he might have gone along without any trouble. Previous to this time, he had allowed but one hit and although the Rotarians were hitting the ball, they had not been hitting safely and it was nothing but a harmless pop-fly that led the way to all the scoring. But it is just such things that make baseball so interesting. They are part of the game and what would have happened had the play not occured is of no consequence. Contrary to expectations, Caron did not pitch for the Rotary, Alex being given the assignment. The latter proved himself a worthy choice. He allowed the hard hitting Elks but six hits, most of which came after he was given a commanding lead.

Game called at 3:15 p. m.

A real baseball treat is in store for the followers of the national pastime, next Sunday when the Hartford Twilight league stars invade Martin Field to endeavor to take a fall out of the J. B. Martin nine.

The aggregation from the Capitol City is under the leadership of "Mickey" McKernan, popular and well known outfielder who has performed on local diamonds several times in the past 5 years. A mere glance at the line up of the Twi-light leaguers is sufficient to convince the average red blood fan that the visitors to a man are the same hustling type of ball player that their leader is and from every indication should give the Velvetmakers plenty to ponder about.

"Art" Boisseau, former Dartmouth college ace, and at present a stellar performer in the Twi-light loop, which by the way is the fastest loop in history of the Capitol City, is slated to do the mound duty for the visitors. Waddie Wallett of Manchester, will do the catching. The remainder of the line-up as previously metnioned is made up of top notch ball players and need but little introduction to the fans, their past performances on diamonds in this vicinity speak for themselves.

The Velvetmakers, fresh from their recent victory over the Army and Navy team feel mighty confident that they can tuck another scalp in their belt at the expense of the Hartford lads and will send their mound ace, Walt Lindner, to the hill to make doubly sure to turn the trick. Jimmy Murphy will be at the receiving end. The rest of the line-up is the same as in previous games and remains unchanged.

WIFE OF WALTER JOHNSON DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1—(AP)—Mrs. Walter Johnson died today after a brief illness.

Weakened by a long vigil at the bedside of a son, the wife of the veteran Washington baseball player fell ill two days ago after a heat-ridden motor trip from her husband's former home at Coffeyville, Kansas.

At first it was thought that a long rest would enable her to recover, but her condition became serious yesterday while her husband was at the baseball park preparing to lead his second place Senators against the league-leading Philadelphia Athletics. He was called by physicians and remained at the hospital until the end early today.

A growing mass of flowers at the Johnson home gave evidence tonight of the wide sympathy with the man who as "The Big Train" became known from one end of the country to the other. Among them was a wreath from President and Mrs. Hoover. The game of the Washington team with the New York Yankees on Monday has been postponed to permit his teammates to attend the funeral.

The two were married when he was at the pinnacle of his fame, 16 years ago. Mrs. Johnson was 36 years old and a daughter of former Representative E. E. Roberts of Nevada. She became acquainted with Walter Johnson while living at the same hotel at which the Washington baseball team stayed, and, being an athlete herself, they soon became fast friends. In her high school days she was captain of the basketball team which held the Nevada championship two years.

Surviving are her husband and five children. Only the eldest child, Walter, Jr., who is 14, was told of her death which occurred in the same hospital in which he was confined with both legs broken recently.

DUGAS HOLDS TOP PLACE IN WESTERN LOOP

Eastern Connecticut's most powerful representative in organized baseball— Lefty Dugas, Taftville boy, playing right field for Wichita in the Class A Western league—went to the top of the batters the middle of last week and when the official averages were released for the week last Friday he was holding a three-point advantage over Keyes of Des Moines, .357 to .354.

Lefty, it seemed, was not content with this for the following day, which was Saturday, a week from today, he went out and collected four safeties in five trips to the plate while Keyes was getting two in five with the result that Dugas climbed to .363 and gained about three more points on Keyes.

Lefty has played 97 games up to last Saturday night and had made 148 hits in 407 times at bat for his fine average. This is his first year in organized ball and he has set the league afire out there. Lefty is the property of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

WORLD CHAMPION DOGS RACE HERE TODAY

Fourteen events are on the card of dog racing at the fairgrounds this afternoon under the auspices of the Ideal Service Stations, Inc., in conjunction with the Fairway Whippet club of Hartford, owners of the world's fastest dogs. To those who have never seen whippet racing the event should prove a very interesting novelty as well as an entertaining sport. This sport which originally came from Australia was taken up by England and France and then spread to America where it is becoming more and more popular.

In today's events there are 40 dogs entered, four in each of ten events. Each event is really a heat. Then the winners in the first five races race again in the semi-final. The winners of the other five events also run a semi-final race. The first and second dogs in each of the two semi-finals race in a final which decides the winner of the afternoon. There is also a novelty hurdle race for a number of the dogs.

Among the dogs entered today are Queenie, claimant of the world's record for 5-16ths of a mile, Blue Bonnet another fast dog, Beauty, Checkers Don and several other dogs of equal renown.

There will be a band concert by Swahn's band during the races. It is expected that there will be an exceptionally large crowd and if the races prove successful it is planned to run night races here in the near future.

NORWICH MAN CONDUCTS OWN COURT CASE BUT LOSES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Aug. 1.—Judge Oliver H. Williams on Friday held another lengthy session of regular third district court meeting when a number of violators of traffic laws at Misquamicut were found guilty and fined.

Albert Leffingwell, 22, of Norwich, was before the court, charged with driving a Chevrolet car on Atlantic avenue, Misquamicut, on Saturday evening, July 26th, at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper. The defendant was arrested by Motorcycle Police Officer George L. Madison, when in company with a companion he was proceeding towards the Atlantic Beach casino at a clocked speed testified to being at the rate of 40 miles per hour on a quarter mile stretch between the center of the beach and casino.

Leffingwell, who conducted his own case in court, stated that "he pleaded guilty to doing more than 20 miles per hour but not guilty to a charge of driving at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper." Judge Williams directed his attention that the first part of his plea was not in the complaint, and the accused, persisting in his plea of not guilty, stated that he was ready for immediate trial.

For the state, Prosecutor John Ferguson called Officer Madison as the first witness, who testified to speed of 40 miles being clocked in the quarter mile distance when one car was passed in the same direction and two in the opposite, there being much traffic at the 11:40 p. m. hour.

Taking the stand as a witness in his own defense, Leffingwell told the court that he was on his way to the casino soon after 11 p. m. and that there was no rain and cars were parked by the roadside and he was proceeding at between 25 and 30 miles which he did not consider reckless and in the 7 or 8 years he had been driving had gone 150,000 miles without being stopped before. "Was real surprised when the cop asked me to stop." Cross-examined by Prosecutor Ferguson, the witness said he had visited Misquamicut several times during the season and that he had a witness who was with him on the front seat who had watched his speedometer and which had been done as "they had been told speed was being checked and to watch out if you go down to Atlantic beach." Pressed by the prosecutor for the source of information, witness replied: "Different fellows around Norwich," with the rejoiner by the prosecutor: "Didn't you know this was the first time a check-up had been made?" Having started from Norwich for the beach the witness said he did not think he was going fast and saw no reason for being given a ticket and did not see warning signs that speed was not to be over twenty miles.

William Higgins, who had joined the accused at the beach, was put on the stand by Leffingwell as his witness and testified that the car was being operated about 20 or 25 miles per hour and having noted the speedometer several times said they were not going over 25 miles. On cross-examination witness said that near the Westerly road they had stopped to see a friend and knew the car was "being driven twice as fast as the average runner could go."

Leffingwell stated that he also could produce a character witness and Judge Williams inquired: "As a driver or for truth and veracity?" and added: "Court will not decide case on character but on evidence and that it had every reliance upon the word of the officer." "You have not introduced a word of absolute evidence and it was not necessary to add that attention to speedometer did not appeal to court. You are found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs."

Samuel Castilina, 22, of Westerly, pleaded guilty to operating an automobile on Atlantic avenue on July 26th at 11:15 p. m., when followed by Officer Madison he was found to have gone a quarter of a mile at 48 miles per hour and had been apparently racing with another car and at a time were side by side and another time there were three cars abreast. He was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs.

Everett Lloyd Howard, 22, of Westerly, pleaded guilty to fast driving when Prosecutor Ferguson told the court that this was the driver who was apparently racing with the other. He was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs.

Following defendants, summoned to court by State Police Officer Corp. Albert L. Taylor, did not make a court appearance when names were first called for motor traffic violations on Noosenck Hill road: Walter Foster, Arthur Richard Misch, David Sunderland, Mario Forline and Louis E. Jellnek. Later the latter, residing at Main avenue, Greenwood, R. I., made appearance and was given a fine of $50 and costs by Judge Oliver H. Williams in the third district court, when he pleaded guilty to operating an automobile so as to endanger property and life and limb of persons on the highway.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appear the following transfers:

July 30. Alexander C. Thompson to Alexander McCall and wife, Elizabeth S. McCall, a certain lot or parcel of land centered between East avenue and Beach street, with building known as Juniper Heights house.

July 31. Bessie M. Fancher of New London to Nicholas Verzillo and wife, Ann, land with buildings on the east side of Franklin street, bounded southerly by other lands of grantor, easterly by land of Angelo Panciera and northerly partly by lands of Angelo Panciera and John R. Healey.

The 35-foot fishing smack, Wood and Mack, Capt. John Kent, of Newport and Stonington, which drove on Catumb reef off Watch Hill in the early hours of Monday morning last and which floated at high tide on Wednesday afternoon, lies a hopeless wreck on the beach at Misquamicut about half way between the Andrea and Wigwam hotels. With the clearing of the reef by the stripped fishing boat and floating in deep water it was feared that it might become a menace to sound steamers and to Long Island sound shipping if allowed to drift and two destroyers of the New London Coast Guard base towed it into shoal water off Misquamicut on Wednesday night.

Macaroon and Peach

IF THERE'S A QUEEN AMONG FRUITS, it's the peach! That's not hard to believe. Don't we express ourselves that way? It's the compliment we pay to our choice of cars, to graceful ships, to a lovely young girl—she's a peach! A subtle flavor. You can't compare it because there's nothing like it. A good bite of sun-ripened peach fills your mouth with a taste-sensation that brings smiles—and another peach!

That's enough, but there's more—the chef is trying to outdo himself. He includes macaroon in the combination. So this special is really ice cream and cake in the same dish!

Love's Gethsemane

By JACK WOODFORD

WHEN JULIE FELL IN LOVE WITH HER BEST FRIEND'S FIANCE, A CROSSROAD WAS REACHED FROM WHICH THE PATHS OF LOVE AND DUTY SEEMED WIDELY DIVERGENT, WITH NO HIGH ROAD TO HAPPINESS IN SIGHT

THE very first day after Cynthia had gone, Rodney called at the shop at closing time. Julie found him waiting downstairs when she had finished her work and put on her hat to go home.

"Don't tell me you won't have supper with me,' Rodney smiled; "I got permission to take you about all I like while Cynthia's gone. And I'm going to rush you to death, if you can stand it."

Julie smiled embarrassedly. She liked Rodney a lot, but she felt that he was just doing it to please Cynthia. That young lady was very exacting. It was, in fact, an expressed creed of hers, as touched upon men, "Order 'em around," she had often told Julie; "tell 'em what to do and when to do it—make 'em do it—they'll like you all the more for it."

"I'd love to go, but really * * *" she began timidly.

"Let's drop the 'but' habit, right at the start," he suggested, his merry brown eyes upon her.

Over supper in one of the better hotel dining rooms, he confided, with all the enthusiasm of the enraptured young lover:

Cynthia seems to have left a big gap! No doubt you miss her as much as I do."

"Well * * * not as much, perhaps," Julie temporized, "but I do miss her terirbly. Nobody has ever been as kind to me as she has. Since you love her, I don't see why I shouldn't tell you that she has done ever so much for me. Helped me to get a few decent things to wear. Taken me to places I could never have afforded to go, ordinarily. I'm indebted to her more than I can repay."

"She is a very remarkable girl," Rodney said. A shade of regret touched him. Cynthia had already bragged to him about how she had befriended Julie. In fact, she had claimed to have done considerably more than apparently she had done, according to Julie's frank statement, which was certainly truthful.

For just a fleeting second he reflected. Now that Cynthia's bewitching beauty was not there to blind him, he wondered if it could be possible that her beauty had not made him more blind to her personality than a man ought to be with the girl he is going to marry. How much sweeter it would have been, he decided, if Cynthia had told him nothing of her kindnesses to this lonely girl and he had learned of them first from Julie's lips. But he put these disloyal thoughts from him and concentrated upon the flame of Cynthia's beauty, which even in her absence could not be forgotten.

When Julie got home that night and reached the lonely little room her small salary could afford, she sat by the single window in the dark and tried to see the stars by looking up the court between two buildings upon which her window opened.

Oh, she sighed, would there ever be a wonderful person like Rodney for her! So clean and likeable he was. Would it always be her lot to work and wish; to admire others, envy them even, for their good times? She even regretted that Cynthia had taken her up. Now that she knew the beauty of a full life, such as other more fortunate girls lived, it made her own life almost unlivable. But there was mother to live for. One must be courageous.

IT WAS Julie's habit to report for work earlier than the others. She had a key to the shop and arrived at 8 o'clock. The others came in about 9, and Mrs. Coxwell about 10.

But this morning Mrs. Coxwell was there when Julie came down. Apparently she had ben waiting for Julie, for, when Julie nodded a good morning to her and would have passed up to her desk on the mezzanine, Mrs. Coxwell said:

"Come here, dear. I want to talk to you." Julie accompanied Mrs. Coxwell to her private office at the rear of the shop.

The proprietor of the beauty shop was a woman of about 60. She was a living testimonial to her own arts. A trifle stout of figure, perhaps, but otherwise well proportioned and pretty. When they were seated in her private office, Mrs. Coxwell took her desk light and tipped it backward, throwing the full force of its glare directly upon Julie. For some time she regarded her in silence. Now and then she gave a crisp direction: "Turn your head a little to the right. Lift your chin. Let's see your hands." At last she put down the light and leaned back in her office chair.

"Julie," she said, "your work as a bookkeeper has been eminently satisfactory; but, I'm going to be quite frank, your appearance * * *"

"I'm sorry," Julie hastily put in. "I'll try to——" but Mrs. Coxwell interrupted with an upraised hand.

"I'm getting to that. I realize you can't look your best on the salary I pay you. I'm increasing your salary $5 per week. Even on $30, of course, you can't hope to look as well as my other girls, who make much more than that. But it is necessary you look well. You are seen about the shop by the customers."

"I'll do everything I can," Julie began, but again Mrs. Coxwell interrupted her.

"You must put yourself in my hands, dear. I shall have the girls take care of you, free, as an employe of the shop. They are never busy between 9 and 10 o'clock in the morning. Can't you catch up on your work later if you devote an hour each morning for a while to putting yourself in their hands?"

"Of course I can," Julie assured her. "The work has never been heavy."

"And there's another thing," Mrs. Coxwell went on, pursing her lips. "Your clothes. I'm going to get you some things. Simple, inexpensive little frocks that will be right for you. The expense of these things will be charged to the general office overhead I presume you have no objections."

"It's wonderful of you," Julie said gratefully, "and I want to thank you for the increase. I'll work harder to deserve it. But I'm afraid—you see, I'm not really pretty, and I'm afraid you'll just be wasting your time and money."

Mrs. Coxwell smiled cryptically.

"What makes you think you're not really pretty?" she asked.

"Well," Julie hedged, "nobody ever seemed to notice that——"

"Have you ever given them a chance?"

"Well * * * I've had a rather hard time, in some ways; father's death, and——"

"Exactly," Mrs. Coxwell interrupted. "Remember that you are to report on the floor at 9 sharp each morning for a while."

When Julie went up to her desk, her heart beat wildly. Had Mrs. Coxwell been teasing her, she wondered? Was it at all posible for her to become pretty? It seemed incredible. She had never been pretty, she was sure.

There were those who said that Cynthia Bernard went around so much with Julie Reynolds because she cleverly understood that Julie's plainness was a perfect foil for her own beauty.

JULIE had heard these rumors. She wondered if they were true, and if that was the reason why Cynthia had asked her to see a lot of Rodney Chase.

To Julie, Rodney seemed nothing short of a walking miracle. He fairly took her breath away. She was even a little frightened of him. A young man so good-looking that it seemed he must have stepped out of a motion picture, so nice that one would think he was neither good-looking nor well off, and was at all times humbly courting indulgence from every one with whom he came into contact.

It never occurred to Julie to question whether Cynthia was deserving of the love of such a man. The girls at the shop had first seen Rodney when he called one day to accompany his mother home from the beauty shop. Mrs. Coxwell had once been well off and in society herself. After the death of her husband, following financial reverses, she had undertaken the shop as a means of livelihood. Many of her old friends remained not only good friends, despite her misfortunes, but also became profitable customers. Rodney's mother was among these.

Cynthia was one of the most accomplished workers in the shop. Julie was just the bookkeeper. The customers seldom saw her at all. But she could see them from her little retreat up on the mezzanine floor. Cynthia made $50 a week salary and another $25 or so in tips. Julie had made $25 a week and no tips. Cynthia's whole life was a round of good times, good clothes and ease. Even in the shop she was not very much censured for being late or for spending too much time in the girls' lounging room, off the shop proper. Julie's whole existence was surrounded by drabness, monotony, hard work, scrimping. She sent her mother a little out of her microscopic salary each.

Cynthia's father and mother were alive but separated. Cynthia lived with her mother, in what she called a "doggy" apartment. Julie lived in a cheap furnished room over on Ontario street. An occasional movie was an extravagant gesture for her. When, shortly after Cynthia came to the shop to work, she invited her to luncheon one day, Julie was amazed.

When Cynthia followed this invitation with one to the theatre, paying for both tickets, and later invited Julie to her apartment, Julie was utterly astounded and too grateful to wonder at motives.

Afterward, as they went about together more and more, little questioning thoughts came to Julie's mind. It seemed to her that Cynthia got some sort of queer "kick" out of exhibiting to her how much more fortunately she was situated. But she put these thoughts out of her mind because of her gratitude. Once Cynthia said to her that it "looked bad" for a single girl to go around alone. This, Julie supposed, was her real reason for wanting companionship, though she couldn't help but notice that everybody looked at Cynthia, ignoring her as completely as though she did not exist.

Not that Julie minded. She was accustomed to being ignored. But she wondered what return she could ever possibly make for Cynthia's friendship and interest. They had, literally, nothing in common. Julie's only interest previously had been in books, which she got free from the library and read alone in her room at night. Cynthia had, apparently, never read a book in her life. When Julie tried to discuss them with her, she looked surprised, even hurt, as though Julie were being presumptuous somehow.

Then Rodney Chase had come. To Julie's astonishment, Cynthia even invited her to go out with them very often. Julie thought she must be a terrible nuisance, even though Rodney was most polite about it. Cynthia again explained:

"It's better with you along. Chaperon, sort of. If I ran around with him anywhere and everywhere alone, he might think * * *"

"Oh! But he wouldn't" Julie insisted. "He's not that kind.' Often Julie found him looking at her queerly when she was off guard. Probably, she thought, he was thinking how plain she looked in comparison with the resplendent Cynthia.

She had heard the other girls at the shop say:

"Cynthia's clever. Alongside of poor Julie she looks twice as pretty as she really is."

Then the day came that it was imperative, Cynthia said, for her to accompany her mother to New York, where that always ailing lady must have some special sort of operation. They were to be gone several weeks.

"I told Rodney he was to keep you from being bored while I'm gone." Cynthia explained. There had been, Julie knew, some discussion about an engagement between Cynthia and Rodney. Apparently, however, everything was all right. Mrs. Chase had entertained both Cynthia, Julie and occasionally Mrs. Coxwell several times. Rodney's mother seemed to like both Cynthia and Julie.

At 9 o'clock Julie reported to Mrs. Coxwell on the main floor of the shop. She was assigned, somewhat to her surprise, to the highest-paid girl in the shop, an expert worker who had had considerable experience in a famous New York beauty shop. The girl smiled at Julie encouragingly.

"Take off your waist,' she directed. "I want to get at your shoulders and arms, too."

As Julie took off her waist the girl remarked:

"Goodness! Why do you wear that lumpy underwear? You're naturally slim and have an excellent figure, but that underclothing——!"

Julie smiled apologetically. The girl meant to be helpful, she knew.

"It's cheap," she told her. "I don't make a fortune, naturally, keeping books. And it's the only cheap underwear I could ever find that will hang together and last."

At the end of the hour Julie could see no very great change in herself, except that her skin was much fairer and softer. Marion Trent, noticing her look in the glass, said:

"Just you wait, Julie. It's all to come yet. Have to go at you easily at first. You're a hard case, you've neglected yourself so long. Got to have that hair taken care of yet, eyebrows plucked. Not going to put anything on your face this morning at all. Want to do some more work on that skin first. Nobody'll recognize you at the end of a week."

To Rodney Chase it seemed that he must be under a strange spell of bewitchment. Although Cynthia had been gone only a week, he was forgetting how she looked. It didn't seem possible, after the way he had been dazzled by her beauty. And, what was still more mystifying, as he saw Julie, every day or so, he thought that she grew, under his very eyes, to be another girl entirely.

Her winsomeness and retiring bashfulness; her modesty and self-effacing manner, after the forward, self-confident ways of Cynthia, was like calm after a storm. Cynthia had set Rodney's pulses to hammering. She had stormed his emotional ramparts and taken him without a struggle, but the more uncertain he became as to whether or not he was really, deeply in love with an actual flesh-and-blood girl named Cynthia. He began to fear that he was engaged to marry a beautiful mirage.

He hated himself for such feelings. Told himself that whatever he felt he would act the gentleman, go through with the marriage. When Cynthia came back he would be doubly devoted.

For several days he did not see Julie. Then a longing to see her again, because, he thought, she would be the nearest thing to seeing Cynthia, took hold of him. He phoned for an appointment that evening.

At first, when the slim young girl came down the steps of the dingy rooming house, Rodney paid no attention other than to reflect to himself that she was a mighty pretty girl.

When she advanced to the car, Rodney was puzzled. He looked at her closely and a startled exclamation escaped him.

"Julie!" he cried. "Julie!" What on earth——!"

"Like me?" she asked merrily, with a new confidence that had come to her—the confidence that comes to one who knows that she is looking at her best. Rodney studied her in silence as she turned about on the walk for him to survey.

No two women could ever have been more different than Julie and Cynthia. Just a little winsome slip of a girl was Julie now. Clad in the simplest and most unpretentious of gowns. No jewelry. A tiny hat pulled over her well-shaped head. Skin as clear and smooth as a lily petal. Lips formed to a perfect cupid's bow. Dark eyes bright and intense with happiness because she was looking so well. Lovely dark hair, not frizzed or fluffed, where it showed beneath her hat, but straight, smooth and shiny.

Back of Julie were centuries of good American stock, pioneer stock. The formation of her features showed this ancestry. She was almost Patrician, the pure English-American type at its best.

"Tell me," he demanded, "what's come over you?"

"Mrs. Coxwell has,' Julie admitted gayly. "She claimed I'd given the place a black eye looking so unutterably plain. She fixed me up. Bought me these things."

"But you don't look as though you had been 'dolled up' by any beauty doctor. You look perfectly natural."

"Oh, Mrs. Coxwell isn't that kind of a beautician. She doesn't pile on a lot of stuff * * * all that sort of thing. * * * She'd be so pleased if she knew how you appreciated her work."

"Appreciate it! I'm thunderstruck! Julie, you're * * * you're * * *" He suddenly broke off and they started driving again.

BUT Julie's evening was ruined. A terrible thought had occurred to her. What had she done? Cynthia! Who had trusted her! Why! Rodney had just looked as though he, as though he * * * That Rodney might learn to care for her, she had never until this moment even dreamed. It was too sweet! It must never be. Cynthia * * *!

She watched him as he drove silently along the avenue. So handsome. So altogether nice. Perfectly democratic. He had turned his back on the snobbishness of a society that depended upon money to seek out real people wherever he found them. The papers had often noted his difference from the average run of rich young men.

Rodney! Cynthia! Mrs. Coxwell! All trying to be kind to her. And only succeeding in hurting her. What a strange, twisted world! Why hadn't they let her alone? Left her to her drab existence?

It was altogether a rather painful drive. Neither said much. They stopped for luncheon in Lake Forest and drove back to the city later. It was dusk as they again reached the park.

She would never see him again, she thought. Never see him again—it seemed impossible that life would go on if she never saw him again.

Near the Lincoln Monument he stopped the car, as though he had come to some decision after long thought.

"Julie," he said, his voice trembling. "I've known it all along, I see now. It was you all the time. Your sweet ways, your refinement, your utter lovableness. The subconscious mind plays strange tricks. Psychology is a devious thing we never quite understand. The stupid, surface me supposed it was the startling beauty of Cynthia, but the inner me knew all along. I see it now, too late. You were so shy and retiring. One could not have reached to you, but Cynthia was easy of access and she brought you with her. Oh, Julie! What can I do now!"

JULIE knew a moment of terror. Terror at the wild exultation that shot through her. A fierce elemental joy. A pagan delight. She would take Cynthia's man. Yes, she would! She loved him. What else mattered? Let Cynthia fend for herself. What truce could there be in love? Love was too vital an emotion to be thwarted by petty technical considerations of honor.

But only for a moment did this side of Julie hold sway. Almost at once she was her old self. Her heart seemed to burst. Rodney was not for her. Rodney, whom she loved with a fervor that was near to madness. Even if it killed her, she must be fair with Cynthia. It would be like turning off the sun, like committing suicide, to do it, but she must disgust Rodney with her and send him back to Cynthia. Steeling herself, though her heart was near to breaking, she laughed.

"You're old-fashioned, I guess," she said, mockingly.

"Why! What do you mean?" He had captured one of her hands. It was no masquerade on her part when she leaned a little toward him. She wanted to feel his kiss, if only once. In that breathless moment she was instinctive woman, not disciplined lady.

He took her into his arms. Pressed her so closely against him that she could feel the rapid beating of his heart. His lips were upon hers. Clinging. It seemed to her that they fused in that moment. Fused so that nothing on earth could ever separate them again without destroying both. But the moment of madness was over.

"What a cad I am!" he said bitterly. "And Cynthia trusted us implicitly." Julie thought again of the part she must play in loyalty to Cynthia. Lightly she said:

"All is fair in love and war, you know * * *" He looked up at her in astonishment, as though loath to believe the evidence of his eyes and ears.

"Surely you don't believe in any such tricky epigram as that, Julie," he said, almost beseechingly.

"Of course I mean it," she declared.

"Do you," he went on incredulously, "mean to say that you do not bear the slightest anger toward me for having kissed you?"

"Why, no! Of course not! Why should I? I wanted you to kiss me." He stared at her dumbly.

"Julie!" he finally got out. "Surely I haven't misjudged you, too!"

"You're awfully innocent," she said, "and far from modern * * *"

"I suppose you are making some queer sort of ghastly joke," he returned, still watching her in amazement, "but, as a matter of fact, honor isn't a matter of modernity."

"Do you mean to say," Julie asked, pretending to be angry, "that even though you love me and don't love Cynthia you are going to marry her just the same?"

"Of course. What other honorable course is there to pursue?"

"If that's the kind of nut you are, I wouldn't have you anyway. Go ahead and take Cynthia."

"Just what do you mean?" Rodney's voice was icy calm.

"Why! You poor boob," Julie said, in a scornful tone which she achieved by dint of using tremendous will power, "don't you see yet?"

"See what?"

"All these glad rags. All the fixing up. It was for your benefit. I thought you were an ordinary, reasonable individual. If I'd known what a nut you are, I could have saved my time. That was all bunk about Mrs. Coxwell fixing me up."

"You mean * * *" Rodney began, as a man stricken, "that you deliberately set out from the first to intrigue me? That this change in your appearance is due to your desire to take advantage of the girl who was kind to you while she is away?"

"You talk like a character out of a Sunday-school story," Julie declared. "When has there ever been such a thing as fair play among women where men are concerned? It's every woman for herself."

"You don't mean Cynthia, too, is like that * * *?"

"No, not Cynthia. She's like you. Believes in being on the level, even in love. She's old-fashioned, I guess. She must be slightly batty or she wouldn't have trusted any girl while she was away."

"What a fool I have been!" Rodney said softly. "I thought that I loved you. Loved you in a way I supposed it would never be possible for me to love any one. I thought that you had come to care for me."

"Who wouldn't come to care for you," Julie said, "with all your money?"

WITH that he silently started the car. They drove the rest of the way home in silence. Julie averted her face from him and when the car arrived before her door climbed out without a backward glance. He called after her, his voice so uneven that she thought he, too, must have been crying.

"I'm sorry to have forced my attentions on you. I apologize most humbly."

"Oh, that's all right," she managed' with a harsh laugh. "If Cynthia don't treat you right, come around again."

Somehow, though blinded with tears, Julie managed to get up the stairs. She turned on the light and paced the floor. Never had the little room seemed meaner. Never had her heart ached so. Rodney! The most lovable man in all the world. To have done that to his faith in women * * *! But what else was there to do? Cynthia had trusted her unreservedly. Cynthia had befriended her. Cynthia had introduced her to Rodney. He belonged to Cynthia. Oh, the cruelty of it! Rodney belonged to Cynthia!

It would be impossible now to go on at the shop with Cynthia back. She'd have to leave the shop on short notice. Not that Mrs. Coxwell would have any difficulty in replacing her.

Cynthia's kindnesses had enabled her to save a little money during the last few weeks. She had a small store, about one week's wages, put away in a drawer. She'd have to start all over again. Send the pretty things back to Mrs. Coxwell. Resume her old, ugly clothing.

It would be hard, dreadfully hard, to find a new job without references. She'd have to start at a smaller wage once more.

TO HER astonishment, Mrs. Coxwell walked into the room and came at once to the side of the bed. She sat down and placed her arm about Julie.

"What," Mrs. Coxwell said sternly, "is this nonsense you have been telling Rodney Chase? He routed me out, broken-hearted, to tell me about it. I am an old friend of his mother's and his."

"Don't ever tell him I lied," Julie begged.

"I certainly did tell him you lied. I've known from the first that Cynthia didn't go to New York because of her mother. The little addle-pate fell in love with another man and quietly eloped with him. She didn't have the nerve to break it to Rodney. That's the sort of girl she was. Knowing all about it, Rodney's mother and I arranged things. Rodney's mother felt that since obviously Rodney would never marry in what she erroneously calls 'his class' the next best thing would be to see that he got a real girl like you. She likes you tremendously. You see, I thought that if I fixed you up prettily * * * even Cynthia was in on it. That's why she ordered Rodney to see a good deal of you."

"Where is Rodney now!" Julie asked breathlessly.

"Here," sounded a voice from just outside the door. Mrs. Coxwell rose and went to the door. Rodney entered as she went out into the hall.

"The world's loveliest liar!" he said softly as he kissed Julie.

SHOULD NOT FEAR THE EUROPEAN CORN BORER

Housewives purchasing sweet corn should have no fear of the European corn borer affecting the edibility of the ear, according to Dr. W. E. Britton, state entomologist. The insect bores through the center of the cob and in no way can cause ill effects.

According to Dr. Britton, the pest cannot poison the food and as yet the borer has not become sufficiently abundant in Connecticut to infest the ears of corn severely. Housewives refusing to purchase sweet corn because of fear of the borer do so unwarrantedly.

POETRY

The French Clock

Time is a heavy legend to be told
By this slight clock, shapely and full of guile,
With brilliants at its throat, the sun in gold,
Some clocks have souls; they grow into a wall,
Become a part of lives they tick away.
This is a toy, perfect, sufficient all
Unto itself—a butterfly at bay!
Hours and years? They change but do not pass
In this light world of gold and ormolu.
Time is one splendid moment under glass!
Mad little clock! So gay it never knew
Blood on the hours—a lifted pike—a head—
And hot throats roaring that the king is dead!

—Hortense Flexner.

When An Old Latch Clicks.

When an old latch clicks, the hollyrocks and roses
See ladies dressed in crinolines who stroll beneath the sun.
The years roll back, for where the gate reposes
A century ago two lovers walked when day was done.

When an old latch clicks, the memory of fingers
That opened it so joyously in days that are no more
Comes back to one who in the garden lingers
To dream of faded flowers of old that grew by childhood's door.

When an old latch clicks, in an old-fashioned garden,
We smile to welcome love inside its green and golden bowers,
And sigh for lilies from a vanished Arden!
Alas that an old lock should have a longer life than ours!

"Step on it, kid."—Catholic Opinion.

"Say, did the English shoot Joan of Arc?"

"Naw! Burned her at stake."

"Well, I thought so, too, but it says here she was canonized."—Georgia Cracker.

"Well, Tommy, I see your brother has a bandaged hand. Has he had an accident?"

"Yes, sir. Reckless driving."

"Ah, a motor car, I presume?"

"Oh, no, sir—a nail."—Leeds Mercury.

New Yorker (incredulously)—And you mean to say that in California you have 365 days of sunshine a year?

The Man from Los Angeles—Exactly so, sir, and that's a mighty conservative estimate.—Exchange.

Heavy Stranger (returning to theater between the acts)—Did I tread on your toes as we went out?

Seated Man (grimly)—You did, sir.

Heavy Stranger (to wife)—That's right, Matilda, this is our place.—N. Y. C. Magazine.

They were riding along a beautiful stretch of country highway. She was driving, and suddenly espied repair men climbing the telegraph poles.

"Why, Harry, just look at those men," she exclaimed. "Do they think I never drove a car before?"—Exchange.

"A flirt, am I?" exclaimed the maid, under notice to go. "Well, I knows them as flirt more than I do, and with less excuse." She shot a spiteful look at her mistress, and added, "I'm better looking than you. More handsome. How do I know? Your husband told me so."

"That will do," said her mistress frigidly.

"But I ain't finished yet," retorted the maid. "I can give a better kiss than you. Want to know who told me that, ma'am?"

"If you mean to suggest my husband—"

"No, it wasn't your husband this time. It was your chauffeur."—The Pathfinder.

The store has stood at the same corner for 102 years, and is distinguished by the fact that it has neither lunch counter nor soda fountain. Old gas fixtures were reinstalled, cone-shaped percolators were brought from the attic, five-gallon demijohns were placed on the counters, and a window display of ancient and honorable herbs of the profession was prepared. Photographs of the place in this antique setting then were sent to Ford.

A constant stream of thousands of automobile tourists is expected to visit Washington, D. C., in 1932 under plans being developed by the George Washington bicentennial commission. Most of them are expected also to visit Washington's tomb at Mt. Vernon. Footsteps Of Angels

When the hours of day are numbered,
And the voices of the night
Wake the better soul that slumbered,
To a holy, calm delight;

Ere the evening lamps are lighted,
And, like phantoms grim and tall,
Shadows from the fitful fire-light
Dance upon the parlor wall;

Then the forms of the departed
Enter at the open door;
The beloved, the true-hearted,
Come to visit me once more;

He, the young and strong, who cherished
Noble longings for the strife,
By the road-side fell and perished,
Weary with the march of life!

They, the holy ones and weakly,
Who the cross of suffering bore,
Folded their pale hands so meekly,
Spake with us on earth no more!

And with them the Being Beauteous,
Who unto my youth was given,
More than all things else to love me,
And is now a saint in heaven.

With a slow and noiseless footstep
Comes that messenger divine,
Takes the vacant chair beside me,
Lays her gentle hand at mine.

And she sits and gazes at me
With those deep and tender eyes,
Like the stars, so still and saint-like,
Looking downward from the skies.

Uttered not, yet comprehended,
Is the spirit's voiceless prayer,
Soft rebukes, in blessings ended,
Breathing from her lips of air.

O, though oft depressed and lonely,
All my fears are laid aside,
If I but remember, only,
Such as these have lived and died!
—Longfellow.

IN CAMP IN MAINE.

Dear Sisters: This time as I write I am sitting "on top of the world," instead of on a rock by the side of the road as in a former letter.

I am in a log cabin high up on a hill in Maine with a wonderful panorama before me. Near at hand are meadows and pastures with cattle and sheep peacefully grazing.

It is truly the "country of the pointed firs," and they dot the pastures all around. Behind the individual specimens that stand out like Christmas trees are dense woods, white birches, aspens, maple and other hard woods mingle with balsam, spruce, pine and various other evergreens.

At the foot of the hill is Lake Umbagog, the most southerly of the Rangely group of lakes, with its wooded islands and beaver dams running out into the water. A small hotel is located on the shore about a mile from us, and a number of cottages and camps are visible along its border.

Across the lake is New Hampshire, and 35 miles to the southwest Mt. Washington can be seen. Seven heavily wooded lines of foothills and mountains rise between it and us, the nearest ones in varying shades of green while those more distant show blue, lavender or purple. Yesterday was hazy and the far away peaks were like dim shadows, but today one can see a long distance for last night's thunderstorm cleared the air.

My friend with whom I am staying had boasted that severe storms never came on this side of the lake. This morning she admitted that there were exceptions to all rules. One occurred last night. Before we could hear the thunder we could see far in the southwest a black cloud, like a great blot of ink, slowly spreading over the sky. From it came blazing flashes that illuminated all the heavens and zig-zag thrusts of fire that split the blackness of the night. It seemed as though some huge serpent bared his fangs and struck furious, snakelike blows at the earth.

At first I stood at the window and watched it. But presently the winds blew, the rain descended and the floods came and beat upon the house, and I was glad to move away into the friendly glow of the lamp. Four of us sat around the table pretending to read but really listening to the crash of the thunder, the roar of the wind and the sharp slap of the rain as it came in torrents against the house.

Then an ominous sound came to our ears, a steady drip-drip-drip. Somewhere water had found a place to enter the cabin. We discovered it running along a beam over a window and splashing merrily to the floor. Up came a rug and a mop was brought into service. Shades and draperies were streaked with tiny rivulets which luckily dried without leaving a mark.

Just as the storm broke the meat-market man drove into the yard. He came in, his rain-coat shedding more water on the floor. He was late, it being 10 o'clock and Saturday night, and we had almost given up hopes of having meat for Sunday dinner as we welcomed him joyfully—all but Pat, the watch dog, who bristled up, growled and barked furiously until forcibly restrained. (Some of you may remember my experiences with Pat, the "Irish terror" I entertained when a puppy at the farm.)

Being last on his route there was small choice of meat. To my hostess' question "What kinds have you?" the man replied, "All I've left is pork chops an' ham."

As my hostess had purchased pork chops the last time he came and we had had them breaded, made into sausage and cooked in various ways, she bought a thick slice of ham. I anticipate "ham an'" for awhile.

There are salmon, pickerel and horned pout in the lake and trout in the streams and six game wardens waiting to fine one for fishing without a license, so as yet we have had no fish.

Have seen deer, woodchucks and a hedgehog. Would like to get a glimpse of beavers which are said to be numerous. Bears are occasionally reported.

Several out-board motor boats — "kickers"—are on the lake. We hear the put-put of their engines all day, but they are too far away to disturb us. I have a standing invitation to go out in one but am not "crazy" about it.

This is a wild country. The national highway near us goes over into New Hampshire and straight up to Canada about 35 miles away, through Dixville Notch. Aside from its short branch road there are no other roads north of us. Only miles of unbroken wilderness to the Canadian line.

The almost virgin soil has not been impoverished. Everything, flowers, garden truck and grass grow luxuriantly without fertilizers. Grass is so heavy farmers complain they cannot spread it out sufficiently to cure it properly. Much of it stands uncut as there are few cattle hereabouts. One of the neighbors is pasturing six wide-horned Herefords, which my friend's small daughter insists are "heifer-steers."

Many of the farm women go to the big cities to work during the winter. Their men folks act as guides during the hunting season and as lumbermen in the winter. Most of the woodland for miles around is owned by one large company. They buy whole townships and compel the inhabitants to vacate the premises. House after house along the road has either been burned or stares with vacant eyes at the passerby.

Wood cut by the lumbermen is hauled down to the streams, and in May, when the water is highest the logs are floated down to the lake. A "boom" made of logs chained together catches them and holds them as in a pocket. When it is filled a tug draws them down the lake to the Androscoggin river and thence to their destination.

I crossed this river last week on an old time ferry guided by pulley wires. Years ago I used to cross the Connecticut river above Holyoke on such a ferry. They are relics of earlier days as are the covered wooden bridges still to be seen in this vicinity.

We had a near tragedy this morning. During breakfast Pat, who had been tied on the porch pricked up his ears and whined. "He's watching that sparrow in the grass near him," said my friend's small daughter who could see him. After the table was cleared my hostess took the garbage out to the hole in the ground where it is emptied. Hastily raising the square of tin that covered it, she dumped in the garbage. Something in the hole moved. It was a cat like animal that has been described as having "a black and white tail, rampant." With a shriek my friend dropped the tin and fled. After ten minutes of watchful waiting his majesty climbed out of the hole and walked away with great dignity. He was a beauty and as he crossed the yard he waved his splendid bush of a tail as daintily back and forth as a lady would an ostrich feather fan.

There are many things I'd like to write about—the log cabin and how it is made; a nest of eave swallows that puzzled us; a paper wasp's nest I have been watching, and got stung ter is already too long. Besides I am going to an all day's farm bureau meeting, which will, I expect, be interesting. My friend and her next door neighbor, both summer residents, are to serve the dinner. The meat, which is on cooking, smells good and the salad looks delicious. Don't you wish you were going?

Sorry to have missed the picnics, but I have either been out of town for my inquisitiveness. But my letter getting ready to go so could not attend. THE FRIENDLY VOICE.

P. S.—Mine host has just come up from Boston for the week-end, and what do you think he brought? Some more pork chops.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

L. T. H.: Many thanks. Never saw any before.

PERNICKETY: Letter sent as requested.

THIS AND THAT

To Members of Social Corner and Readers: I am writing this time to thank Twice Twenty, especially, and all others who so willingly helped, either with the dinner or the program at Club No. 4's picnic, July 24. All assistance given to make the day pass so pleasantly was surely appreciated by the hostess, I assure you. Sorry that illness prevented some from being with us and trust all are fully recovered by the time this letter is being read. I know my neighbor across the lot, Turquoise, is feeling quite in her usual health again, for which I am truly glad.

Daisy Dean: You say truly when you told me I liked to read; as that is one of the things I do thoroughly enjoy doing. Even in the warm weather I manage and intend reading one solid book and so have already begun "The Life of Benjamin Franklin," a book of over 500 pages written by Bernard Faÿ, a French writer, who must have read and consulted many sources of information to write such a lengthy and lucid biography of an American.

Through July and August, when my two daughters are with me, we read aloud and thus far have read: "The Challenge to Sirius," by Sheila Kaye-Smith, whose novels are always interesting; "The Picture of Dorian Gray," by Oscar Wilde, a story quite out of the ordinary line of novels to my way of thinking; and "Precious Bane," by Mary Webb, one of the recent English writers, whose works are receiving much acclaim from the literary world. Although it is a tale of simple country life at the beginning of the nineteenth century, it holds one's interest from beginning to end. I shall want you to tell me of another of my characteristics when next we meet.

Aries: I must say you didn't let the grass grow under your feet or car either in getting your letter to the publishers in time to be printed Saturday, July 26. Glad you mentioned having a good time July 24. Think I will call my small flower garden, Hotch Potch, a distant relative to your garden, if I may; as I have tomato and pepper plants, also beans and one potato plant, that came up of its own volition, growing here and there among flowering plants. The tall showy blossoms, delphiniums, poppies, coreopsis and hollyhocks have gone by; but cosmos, nasturtiums, zinnias, calendulas, sweet peas and house plants are still in bloom, although affected by the hot, dry spell. The rain of early Sunday morning was very welcome and reviving.

Wonder if any one can tell the name of a plant that grows from two to four feet tall, has dark red sprangly, feathery, chenille locking blossoms, those on the tip a foot long and branches along stalk with blossoms on the ends. That was about all that came up from a package of seeds, called a surprise package and am sure we won't ever try such again. It is different from any coxcomb or ragged sailor I ever saw; but have had friends tell me it is coxcomb. Please name it who can for me from my description, as am unable to find such in botany or plant catalogs.

Now, peaches are in market, I will send two recipes that are very good.

Peach pudding: Half fill a baking dish with ripe, finely cut and sweetened peaches. Take one-half cup of butter, one egg, one cup sweet milk, a pinch of salt, one teaspoonful of baking powder and flower to make a thick batter. Smooth it well over the peaches and bake in a moderate oven one hour. This may be steamed, but baking is preferable.

Peach cake: One cup sugar, one cup flour, two eggs, one teaspoonful baking powder, one third cup boiling water. Bake in two layers. Spread peaches between, whip cream very stiff and put on top. To be eaten shortly after made.

Enough for this time, so will halt.
AMERICAN LOYALTY.

OBEDIENCE TO LAW.

Social Corner Editor and Sisters: As the men folks are mostly through the haying season I thought a few lines to the Corner would be a pleasant way to spend a few idle moments. Some of the flower lovers may be interested to know that after 15 years of patient care, I have succeeded in transplanting a rare and wild flower with a history as old as that of the colonists, and am very proud to be the owner of five plants. Every fall I would move a root from the field where I found it and plant it in the garden, only to have it die in the spring, but the past two years I have been well rewarded in seeing them grow and blossom into brilliant flowers. My friend, Sis Hopkins does not need to apologize, if, in that writer's conscience, a full measure of duty has been done, I fail to see where the letter written by Sis, is any answer to Cassagnac's letter. Not a part of that letter was criticized and no plan was given by Sis for the enlightenment of the Corner readers, but rather, a jumble of propaganda with a decidely wet appearance. We have been told many times that the eighteenth amendment was put over the people without their consent or wishes. The eighteenth amendment was discussed by wets and drys, and was given a full discussion before being made a part of the constitution of the United States. And a large majority of states ratified the amendment after due consideration. And the members of those state legislatures which ratified the amendment were the chosen and lawfully elected representatives of the people. "Whatever is necessary to put into effect the expressed will of the people as written in the eighteenth amendment of the constitution of the United States as expressed in the Volstead act, will be done," ex-President Coolidge. That there are bootleggers selling poison liquor is admitted, but no man is compelled to buy it or drink it, and, further, in the days when the saloon was legalized, there were sellers of cheap intoxicating liquor, who plied their business with persistence on the streets and the alleys of the cities. There was Sunday selling, and selling after prescribed hours, some of the bars being found busy selling on Sunday and the saloon keepers had their spies at advantageous points to warn them of the approach of the police or any raiding party. In voting to uphold the eighteenth amendment, the voter does not help the bootlegger one whit, but adds to his worries as he endeavors to violate the law. "With the ousting of the American saloon nine-tenths of the drunkenness has disappeared." Evangeline Booth, commander, Salvation Army. "The liquor laws certainly can be enforced. We have no more trouble in enforcing them than with the enforcement of any other law." Edwin A. Olson, U. S. attorney, Chicago. "Crime is in fact decreasing. We find that general criminality serious enough to be punished by imprisonment has fallen off by 37 per cent," George Kirchinvay, head of department of social criminology of New York, former warden Sing Sing prison, former dean Columbia University Law school.

Almost all the efforts that are being made about prohibition enforcement are being made to find a way to more strictly enforce the law and not to repeal or modify the eighteenth amendment, as a great many are inclined to believe. The most eminent jurists and lawyers say that the eighteenth amendment, being a part of the constitution, cannot be repealed.

Best wishes to all the Corner members. CASSAGNAC.

FOXGLOVE INVITES TO PICNIC.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Hope you won't faint when you read a letter from "Foxglove" once more. Have wanted to attend some of the picnics, but my boarder left the water in the bathroom running all night while I was away and flooded the kitchen, so have had a lot of painting and papering to do. As I do it myself, it all takes time.

Now Whirlwind, Jennie, Blue Aster and our friend Mrs. Leach would like very much to have a S. C. picnic here at my house at Southington, Aug. 13 (Wednesday). We have been to so many of yours we would like in a small way to return some of your hospitality.

You come through Colchester, up the Military highway to Marlboro, to Middletown, Meriden and Southington and anyone can tell you where West Center street is and where I live. You find West Center street and come up the hill till you see the yellow bow on the corner. Bring dishes and food and we will see that you have coffee, etc.

Please Olga, Chofour, Bay State and any other sister that has a car fill it up and come and see us. It is no farther for you to come here than for us to come down there. It will make a nice trip and give you a pleasant day's outing.

If possible I would like to have those that can come notify me so we can be ready for you. The more the merrier. If I have not enough room inside I have outside.

We will try to give you a good enough time to pay you for coming.

Bay State: I did so want to come to your picnic, but have been so busy trying to get my house cleaning done. You know I can't do that until I am out of school. Can I come down for the day even if it is not S. C. picnic day?

Hope to see a good crowd. If it should storm Wednesday, come Thursday, but come. Bring something for a little entertainment, too, please.

My love and sympathy to all the shut-ins, bereaved and sick.

Sis Hopkins: Can't you get out here that day—you are in Hartford I hear. Do try. FOXGLOVE.

P. S. Those that come from Willimantic and vicinity to Foxglove's Wednesday, August 13, come to Hartford, Farmington, Plainville, Southington. Ask at any store for West Center street, Mrs. Williams (or Florence) Francis and they will tell you. Should you come by bus from Hartford, take bus to Waterbury from Hartford depot, get off at center of Southington and go to Oxley's drug store on corner of Main and Center street and call Tel. 433, and I will send a car for you. Come rain or shine.

MAKES CORRECTION

Social Cornerites: In my letter last week I should have said to wet your broom in gasoline and wash rug. Am sorry that the mistake was made, but my brain must be sleeping.

Won't someone that went on the kitchen tour, July 9, write in and tell us all about it. I know they visited Soma, and I rather think she was surprised to see so many.
MILKY WAY.

TOURING THOUGH NORWAY

Dear Social Corner: We are on the steamer "Meteor," S. G., in the Norwegian fjords. We sail the North sea and go into Norway up the fjords, stopping every day to make trips ashore. We go from steamer in motor boats to shore. There are mountains on both sides of us and looking ahead sometimes. You cannot see how we can go on. The people are very cordial and wave to us when we go by. The children with their yellow hair and round faces are so pretty. Our trips on land include luncheon and a chance to see the wall hangings, rugs, lace and embroidering, all done by hand. In Romsdall valley the hostess was lovely, a stone fireplace, a few sticks burning and your cold feet set on the wide stone next to the fire. Brass, copper and pewter dishes shone in the firelight and wall hangings were like a beautiful picture. The house roofs are made of sods with flowers blooming on them and green grass and flowers, with snow almost in reach of your hands. All along the way there were waterfalls rushing down the mountain side, something like our beloved "Hop Yard" but much higher and at the foot the water is a foaming torrent. We had six long trips. At Inolde we saw a very old church and a picture above the altar by Axel Ender, "The Ressurrection." An open air museum of old Norwegian houses and antiques with folk dances by the children.

The colors are so lovely at sunset and sunrise. The mountains and water are every shade and color. At the Romsdall valley there was a perfect rainbow in the water that was a white foam as it ran under a bridge below the falls.

We go back from inland trips to the sea and on until we reach another fjord. The sea is rather rough and one day rocked us about until people began to look white and sick. When we turn inland we go smoothly again. Today we visit the Rjendal glacier, went ashore in motor boats, took two-wheel harts where the driver sat on the back seat and drives a little yellow horse that has a short body and broad back. The driver has an arm rest and rope reins and when we come to a hill he walks. We rode to the famous Lake Leon and took lake steamer across. This is the place where there was a landslide in 1908. Many people, their homes and farmers were carried into the lake. They are rebuilding the village as the land is very fertile. I've seen cranes on the shore. We again took a ride in two-wheeled carts on to the glacier. That was very lovely. We were at Snow mountain, where we saw "Laps" in their huts, with their reindeer. They were selling furs and ivory. We are on a small steamer, all first class, 200 of us to gather in the dining room. The captain talks to us all. You would think we were old friends instead of strangers a few days ago.

We have music at every meal and on deck, games, dancing, masque ball, movies, also books. Most of our trips have been in automobiles. The roads are smooth and hard. Large rocks about two foot apart are the fences, and we go winding about. Some places we could look back on to four roads we had come over. Waterfalls, snow, flowers and houses, everything seems so clean cut against the mountains. It has been a grand trip. We go to Berlin the 16th and on to Oslo by train, after that to Sweden.

I hope the Corner is full of letters. Anyway, I am going to write again and again. SUSANNA.

Norway, July 14.

FOR OUTDOOR PICNIC

Dear Social Corner Members: As you all know Club No. 6 did not have their outdoor picnic during July. To some it was quite a disappointment while others were unconcerned. I do not know the reason why some one of our members did not volunteer as Ravena asked, but it might have been the weeks slipped by so quickly that before any one realized, the month was gone; or maybe some one was waiting for somebody else. But anyway there is to be an out-door picnic August 19th on the beautiful and spacious lawn of our sisters "Wheeler," "We Us" and "Yellow Jacket." These sisters of our club have generously given us the privilege of that lovely spot for us to gather for our last picnic of the summer and have asked me to invite all the members of our club and the Clubs 1-2-3-4 and 5. Not only are the members invited but non-members as well. Will each member bring a friend or more? Remember this is our last out-door picnic, not a basket picnic" as some one suggested; but one of our regular picnics. No programme in the afternoon but a good old-fashioned social gathering. There is plenty of room for the youngsters to play. Parents will have no cause to worry about drowning as we do sometimes when we go to the beach. As you all know our custom is to bring our plate, cup, knife, fork and spoon, so please do not forget this time, as we do not wish to make our kind sisters unnecessary work, and will each member bring something good to eat? Something you like to make best. I have been reading various salad recipes of late.

Do not forget, the third Tuesday in August, the 19th. Follow the yellow ribbons, leaving the National Economy store at North Stonington, go past the Grange hall and folow the oiled dirt road. A large yellow bow will designate the location. Let us hope for a fine day and a large crowd.
PRAIRIE CHICKEN.

ENJOYED THE PICNIC

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Friends: Will do my best to help keep the Corner page full during these extremely hot summer days. I will tell you all what a fine time I had at Canterbury Bell's picnic. I met many of my old acquaintances, and many new members from other clubs, had a fine dinner and programme as many responded by singing and speech making which made the day very enjoyable and one long to be remembered by all. Glad to see Aunty No. 1 able to sit out by her own door and hope ere long she will be with us again. Glad to meet Walter, and Wild Flower, once more Queen Elisabeth: Your visit was short and sweet.

Country Sister: Hope you arrived home safe. I enjoyed my ride home and thank the Lebanon sister, hope we meet again. Hope we meet at more of the picnics. Success to the Corner. U. C. E.

ENJOYS THE LETTERS

Dear Editor, Social Corner Sisters: I would like to add my bit to the Social Corner letters. I was so pleased to see the nice letters of the sister, "members gardens," they were very interesting. One spoke of the meeting to be in the future at Dayville. It was a nice meeting and all enjoyed themselves. One sister was ill and taken home by friends. I have inquired since and find she is much improved from her illness.

Aries' letter was nice. She spoke of so many members whom she knew, and was friends with. I must close with greeting of happiness and good health.

My sympathy to all sick and to those shut-in. MARY LOUISE.

JET WRITES TO CORNER.

Editor and Corner Writers: Don't let that man come near my home. Ella Joy—I am a lover of the dandelion. Have any of you divided Amiable's pen name into syllables? It will be Am I Able. Well yes I think you must be. Milky Way—What is the odor you sprinkled on your hook rugs? O. I. C. This improved Chester—tried your bran muffins, nice, I use fresh peaches. Do any of you remember the song or play Oh Dear Mother What a Rose I Am? My poor mother had eleven of us, that was her flower garden. I guess there were some weeds. Every thing was laid to me. I won't confess. What a place Lothropes Meadow would be for a S. C. meeting for all clubs, plenty of room. I have water, fire and a front door. Latch string out for S. C. No musketeers. JET.

A PLEASANT MEMORY

Dear Editor and Sisters; Dear Meekshaw—I think you must be a new member for I do not recall your name at this time, but I want to tell you that your "Trip to McWachusett" stirred up pleasant memories for I was born in sight of the mountain. Some one asked me if I had ever been to the summit. Well, I certainly have six or eight times. The first time when I was fifteen, before there was a road built, I went with a party up the Indian trail on the Westmunsten side where there were stone steps to the summit. I think there was a small building there at that time, but after the road was built there was a big hotel built and summer business was started. I was there once to dinner and again to supper and this time there was a shower below us. It rained hard below the summit, but not any at the top. Half of the mountain was in Westmunsten and half in Princeton till the state bought it for a reservation. When the dirt road was first built, I was teaching school on the Westmunsten side where I could see the teams going to the summit and now it is macadam, two roads, one up and one down. This Redemption Rock is where Mrs. Rowlandson was redeemed. She was the minister's wife of Lancaster and when the Indians burned the town they took her and her two children captive and made them march to Canada. The first night they camped on Rollstone hill in Fitchburg. She had one child in her arms, which soon died from exposure. The poor woman suffered many trials and privations till her husband and friends raised the money for her redemption and near that rock is another on land formerly of one Everett. A double boulder, one rock on top of another placed there I suppose by some upheaval of nature and looks as if it might be tilted, as the top one is the largest. I think this victory Highway you speak of is a new road. It is quite a while since I came to Connecticut and have not been to the mountain since my great grandmother's father was the third settler in Princeton. Robert Keyes, and they had a cute child murdered by a neighbor out of revenge on account of a dispute on their boundary lines.

Quid Nunc: I do enjoy your letters so much, but what a trip that must have been for a boy of 14, but that helped to develop you and if boys today were brought up to be useful they would make better citizens when grown.

Since the picnic at Dayville, I met Be True on the street. She was glad to hear about it, but is kept at home by the blindness of her husband. She was looking well. Those that are well have much to be thankful for. CAPRICORN, CLUB 4.

DRY WEATHER HITS GARDEN

Dear Social Corner Friends: I was very sorry to read in the paper today of the death of "Joan," one of our oldest and most faithful Social Corner sisters. They will surely miss her at the meetings for she was always ready when asked to play the piano. Our sympathy goes out to her son who has lost a good faithful mother.

Quid Nunc: I was pleased to hear that you had celebrated the Fourth in a safe and sane way. Wish all young fellows were as wise as you. Fine, I am sure to know that the little lady in pink has not forgotten me. Regards to A. and give the little lady in pink a good hug for me, for she is certainly adorable.

E. L. M.: You wanted to know if anyone else's mums were dry and brown on the lower leaves. Well, I have only a few and they are the same way and Annette's are too. Oh, if the good Lord would only send us a nice soft rain how thankful we would be. I have worked early and late in my garden but the results or "fruits of my labor" are few and far between. I was told the other day that I disturb them too early, for I have been out there many mornings as early as 5.15. When I see other people's gardens it makes me sick.

My, but I have had the pleasure of seeing some wonderful gardens and some gorgeous blooms. Annette has a wealth of flowers. It seems that she can make anything grow. Today I was sitting in the machine waiting for hubby and wondering which house Jack lived in when I happened to see her trimming her hedge. Now you can bet I was out of that machine in double quick time and she took me over and we looked at her flowers. I couldn't look half enough for I had to keep one eye on hubby as he is always in a hurry.

Aunty No. 1: Glad to see you out on the lawn one day as I passed on the lower street. I waved my hand to you but I'm sure you did not see me. I always look for you. Tell uncle my garden isn't worth shucks this year. One after the other my plants are going. Now the asters have aster wilt.

Aunt Jo: Do you wonder who the lady is that waves her hand to you as she goes flying by? Well, I am the guilty party. I always look for you since you told me where you live.

Prudence: Hubby did not know you and the Mr. the other evening. I was with him and asked if he noticed that machine, he said "Yes." so I said, "Didn't you recognize the lady?" He did not and was quite surprised when I told him. Were you out getting an appetite for supper?

Back to gardens again. I do wish I could see some of the Social Corner sisters' gardens that they write about. I have been very fortunate in some ways. I have had beautiful bouquets given me and seeds, too, by different ladies. It pleases me for I am passionately fond of flowers. If any of you sisters see any woman looking at your garden you can say I'll bet that is BLACK EYED SUSIE.

PICKLE RECIPES

Social Corner Friends: I appreciate my request for dill pickles, Betsy Bobbie, and will tell what success I had some future time. As no one has answered Camp Lafayette's query about pickles, will send the benefit of my own experience. You can use the barrel that had cider in it. To four quarts of vinegar, add one cup sugar and one cup of salt and half a cup of dry mustard. Mix thoroughly. You can add cucumbers to this as you pick them from time to time. Wipe them clean and dry. They will be nice and crisp with a delicious flavor. Whatever pickle you put in the barrel, be sure and cover the barrel closely to keep the small flies out or you will have trouble. Another method is to let the cucumbers stand in strong brine a few days, drain, and pack in your barrel and cover with cold vinegar, adding horseradish root or pickling spices to help keep and cover with grape leaves. You can add to this from time to time after soaking the cucumbers in the brine. All pickles need a weight to keep them under the vinegar. A round wooden cover will be necessary for the barrel, held down by a stone. I always seal my chopped pickles as it is too much work to save them spoil.

Sweet chow-chow pickle: One peck green tomatoes, one quart of onions, four green and four red peppers, half cup salt. Put through the chopper, boil till tender. Drain off juice and add one quart of vinegar, one pound sugar, two teaspoons cinnamon, two of cloves. Put spices in a bag. Boil 45 minutes.

Piccalilli: One peck green tomatoes, one head cabbage, three peppers, red or green, ten onions, one cup salt. Chop and mix and add salt and let stand over night. Drain and add two quarts vinegar, two cups brown sugar, two tablespoons of mustard seed, cinnamon and one of cloves and ginger. Put spices in a bag. Boil the mixture half an hour. Will send some other recipes later on. Sometimes I have made as many as ten different kinds of pickles. THEODA.

SUMMER DELIGHTS

Dear Sisters: What lovely beach and haying weather we are having. At the same time we need rain. Well, we can't have everything at once. We go swimming three or four times a week and on Sunday we take our dinner and supper and stay 'til nearly dark. Really the best time is from four to eight when it is a very hot day. The half tide is really the best for the kiddies as they get so tired when the water is high. They don't like to get their feet off bottom very well yet. Kitty Lou is bravest of all and she can float by herself and will paddle herself beyond her depth with the floats on. She doesn't get excited when her feet don't touch either. Of course someone is always near her so she won't get a scare. It doesn't do any good to make the children go in and do things when they don't want to. They often get a scare that it takes years to get over. If they watch others and you help a little when they try it is much better. It seems too bad that some people have so little respect for other people's property that they won't clean up their papers and waste when through eating at a picnic. Two beaches have been closed this last week because of people being a nuisance. No one likes to eat where someone has left all their rubbish, so why not pack it all into an empty box or bag and take it back home if there is no rubbish can handy. And please don't throw it out beside the road because it seems to be in the country and no one is looking. That can be as bad as leaving it on the beach for those owning the property.

Beyond our house there is a short stretch of road between two hills where there are no houses. There are two ponds there, but only one belongs on our place. People throw everything in it, old oil stoves, tin cans, mattresses, and even a crate of turkeys. The cows used to go there to drink, but it had to be fenced off so they couldn't get to it, it became so bad. A culvert goes under the road at this point and it is clogged most of the time. Once there was a mattress in there, again a couple of lard tubs. One time on smelling a not particularly nice odor, on investigating we found a bushel basket full of crab shells had been thrown in and were partly spilled over. A sign has been put up but doesn't seem to do much good. And as it is out of sight, no one is ever caught.

Now, I must tell about some visitors I had last night. I put out a pan of food for the kittens after dark as the chickens drove them away and eat it up if it is still daylight. I heard a noise and I thought a stray dog had come and I hurried out to the door. (the screen door was hooked), put on the outside light and lo and behold there was a skunk eating. I guess it was a good thing the door was hooked or perhaps I wouldn't be telling this story. I looked down and there was another on the doorstep. I immediately closed the inside door, and finished the observation through the window. There were three in all, one big one and two small ones. One was nearly all white, just a black stripe down his back. The cats were out there but neither bothered the other. They must have stayed nearly two hours. Mr. S. was out, so I put on both outside lights and he came in the front door and was safe. As soon as we started talking, they left, but I'm wondering if they will be back tomorrow night. There are some in the potato patch and are digging out the potatoes looking for grubs. They are altogether too tame for me, now. I can tell you. They may have been coming right along and I didn't know it as I put a pan of food out every night.

Irva Lynn: Will you tell us how the barrel of potatoes are coming?

Prairie Chicken: I received your nice card. Will try to come. Was glad to hear about Mr. E. He was always very good to me when I was a child. SUMAC.

HER PRESSURE COOKER

Dear Social Corner: Shall I buy a pressure cooker? This was the question that I brought home with me after my visit to Storrs during homemakers' week six years ago. How well I remember that day. Four of us had gone to the college to look around and to listen to some of the lectures. After wandering about the place most of the forenoon, Sister and I were glad to sit in the cool lecture room for awhile. A demonstrator was exhibiting different makes of pressure cookers and explaining how they were used. This started me to wondering whether I wanted a cooker or not. I did not care to invest in one if it were something that I should use only occasionally.

After I got home I looked in magazines and answered one of them. This happened to be a company that had just started in business. They offered me a reduced price if I would take the agency for selling cookers in my vicinity. After thinking it over, I accepted their offer and sent for a 12 quart cooker. This cost me less than $12. The morning that the cooker came I was fixing string beans for dinner and that was the first thing I cooked in it. During the days that followed I had great fun experimenting with my new plaything. There were no regrets about its purchase for it soon became an indespensable part of my cooking equipment.

In reading over the company's description of its cookers, I realize that their claims are not exaggerated. For I have used mine in canning and cooking and find that it does save time and fuel. Foods taste better, too, for they are cooked quickly and without loss of food value. There is no bother about testing foods to see if they are tender, for by following directions, you always have them just right. Let us suppose that you are having an old fowl for dinner. Instead of putting it on to cook right after breakfast and boiling it all the forenoon, you put it in the pressure cooker at eleven o'clock and after getting the pressure up to 15 pounds, cook from 40 to 50 minutes. By the way, do you know that the addition of a little vinegar will help to make a tough fowl cook tender?

When my children were small I cooked their cream of wheat for 20 minutes under pressure instead of using a double boiler and cooking it for three hours. Brown bread or suet pudding may be cooked in 40 minutes. Vegetables like peas and string beans may be canned at 10 pounds pressure for 40 minutes. Isn't this better than keeping a hot fire to boil them for three hours.

And so I could go on singing the praises of my pressure cooker. But this is too nice a morning to spend in the house, so I am going to meet the mail carrier now. Bye. SISTER RHODY

WOES OF GARDENING.

Dear Social Corner: There are times when gardening loses all its pleasure and this is one of those times. The sky is heavy with dark gray clouds but there is no real promise of rain which the flowers need so badly.

I took my hoe and started digging a trench around my gladioli beds so that they would be ready for the dose of liquid from the cow barn cellar which I am going to give them. They are set too closely which may account in part for the fact that they haven't grown well this year, and this morning I found several diseased stalks.

The asters are dying with their same old malady of yellows and there seemed to be nothing to do but pull them up and put them on the heap to be burned as soon as possible.

The young delphiniums which have grown so nicely this summer are withering under the attack of maggots at the stem base. And the butterfly delphiniums which have seemed so sturdy are in hopelessly broken confusion.

That fence which was supposed to have kept out the calves and chickens is still non-existent unless a roll of wire on the ground at the side of the garden and posts still growing in the woods can be called a fence.

Prudy and Jenny and Emmy have all been loose at various times and have wandered up and down the garden paths and frolicking in the beds. And lately the chickens have discovered that the tall boltonias furnish plenty of shade and that there are admirable places for dust baths at their feet.

The new hollyhocks which should have been so pretty just now went and had to get sick with rust and there is but one tall stalk—about nine feet high—with huge ruffled pink blooms to show the others might have been like.

The peony bed has needed weeding for a long time and while I grappled with the plantain and corn grass I tried to think of a suitable place to set the sidaleca and oriental poppies which must be moved at once, which didn't add to my peace of mind in the least.

So I gave up and dashed into the house to write down all my woes. Maybe I'll feel more cheerful now I've told you all about my troubles. Hope so!

HOW TO SHOW SYMPATHY

Dear Corner Folks: I want to tell you that I enjoy the different letters in the Corner. I do hope the work isn't so heavy with canning and visitors that our page will be neglected.

I think Deanes letter was to the point. When trouble of any kind comes to those we know, it is only right to call, write, or phone them, not once, but keep in touch with them; let them know we will try and lighten his or her troubles and let them feel that we are still the same friends they thought we were.

Marigold: Saw hubby fixing his new shoe lace last week just as you told in today's letter. I said dip end in your varnish, but why bother. I had just bought a new supply of laces to have on hand.

Golden Glow: Tell us where, now, are you located. Heard Mr. G. G. wanted to dispose of his place. We will all miss Maw B., now she has moved out of the state. She was a great help to Club No. 3 in several ways. Hope she finds time to write the Corner.

Lily: How is your mother? I think of her often and hope she is out of the sick bed. I enjoyed my visit among your flower gardens.

Quid Nunc: Your letter was very interesting to me. Just had a nice phone talk with your nieces, the twins, old friends of my family before I came into the world. You no doubt know my daddy well, he will be 88, Sept. 21, lives with me. Ask Black Eye Susie who he is at some visit to you? She knows.

Aunty No. 1: Was glad you are improving.

Wetonia: Hope you are improving and return from your vacation with a well arm. News over the phone just came that our Faithful Joan passed away at Backus hospital, Tuesday, July 29, Mrs. Evelyn Gardner. To me its a loss of a very dear friend as she was my mother's school girl friend. The sympathy of the Corner goes to her only son who has been a faithful and dutiful son since the death of his father. She will be missed by many Corner writers as she was well known through the Corner clubs and writers. It can well be said "She was faithful to the end and earned her reward above."
CALLY LILY.

EAGLEVILLE

The community was saddened by the death of Mrs. Lillian A. Bentley, wife of Herbert G. Bentley last week Friday morning at 3.50. While Mrs. Bentley had been in ill health for some time her death was unexpected. Besides her husband she leaves four daughters, two brothers, two sisters and three grandchildren. The funeral was held from the home, Sunday afternoon, at two o'clock, and was largely attended. Burial was at Willington Hill cemetery. Rev. C. G. Johnson of South Coventry conducted the services.

Mr. and Mrs. George Adams spent Sunday with Mrs. Jessie Marsh in North Woodstock. Mrs. Sarah Marsh, who accompanied them, remained for a visit.

Howard Reynolds of Providence, is spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Reynolds.

The thunder showers this year are very hard. Telephones and electric lights are greatly affected. Tuesday evening lightning followed the electric light wires and ripped two clapboards off on the outside and tore the plastering off on the inside of the house occupied by Mrs. Lilian Bradley and leveled the chimney to the second floor of the house occupied by Joseph Rada, besides doing other damage.

Rev. C. G. Johnson was accompanied by a member of the Salvation Army who gave the address at the services Sunday morning. There will not be any services during the month of August.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Warren and son, of Hartford, and Charles Sweet, of Manchester were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Warren.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Green motored to Storrs, Wednesday. Lawrence Green, who has been visiting relatives there, returned home with them.

Mrs. Edward Warren accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Warren, Mrs. Dora Warren, Miss E. Tarbox and Mrs. Robert Loomis of Storrs to Barre, Mass., last week Friday, where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Peck.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Thompson returned home Monday from a camping trip in Maine.

STOCKS AVERAGED 1 TO 5 POINTS LOWER IN THE DULLEST TRADING OF 31-2 YEARS

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—(AP)—Stocks drifted downward today in the dullest trading in more than three and a half years. A bear attack on the utilities, which averaged 1 to 5 points lower, and on a few miscellaneous issues, constituted the highlights of the price movement.

Sales totaled only 1,090,210 shares, and followers of the market statistics had to go back to November 3, 126, to find a smaller turnover. On that day the volume was 1,025,100 shares.

Much of the activity was in the stocks of power and light companies, sold on prospective rate reductions, some of which have already been ordered. The heaviness of this group inspired short selling in some of the industrials, but the resistance of the latter proved stronger and the bears thereupon redoubled their efforts against the utilities.

Events in the business world contributed little toward shaping sentiment. The National City Bank's monthly business review reported there was reason to believe that production had fallen well below consumption.

Dun's review said that much of the further recession in business was traceable to normal mid-summer curtailment. Bradstreet's said the feature of the week had been the weather damage to crops.

Early weakness of Consolidated Gas of New York and Brooklyn Union Gas, based on moves for lower rates in the metropolitan district, sounded the keynote for the day's move in the utilities. Selling soon extended to a wide assortment of these shares which closed virtually at the bottom. Brooklyn Union lost six points, recovering more than a point. Consolidated Gas, American Water Works, Electric Power and Light, Public Service of New Jersey, North American and Standard Gas and Electric lost 2 to 3, while American Power and Light was off nearly 5. American Telephone closed 2 5-8 lower as the rights to new stock at par expired. United Corporation, an important holder of utility stocks, yielded a point. Peoples Gas was an exception, closing 9 points higher.

U. S. Steel, after dropping 2 points, closed unchanged. General Motors moved narrowly, while Radio recovered a one point decline. The American Tobacco stocks were strong, the "B" making a maximum advance of 10 points and holding 8 of the gain. J. I. Case and Diamond Match showed individual strength.

Weak spots included both Autostrop Safety Razor and Gillette, which lost more than 3 and 4 points, respectively, on profit taking. Officials of both companies declined to comment on persistent reports of merger negotiations.

Auburn Auto lost 4 points on small offerings. Celotex preferred, an inactive, broke 26 points to a new low and the common sagged about 3. There were moderate declines in Westinghouse Electric, United Carbon, Union Carbide, General Electric and United Aircraft. The financial statement of the last named showed a 50 per cent reduction in net for the first six months compared with the 1929 half.

Wheat closed easy at declines of one cent a bushel, while corn advanced more than a cent a bushel. Shorts covered in cotton on news of lighter rains than had been expected and futures here were up from $1 to nearly $1.50 a bale net.

The month end passed with no disturbance in the money markets. There was a shading of rates on the long maturity time accommodations.

Thirteen millions in gold were withdrawn for shipment to France tonight on a fast liner, bringing the total of recent exports to about $43,000,000. There was further firmness in sterling exchange to the highest quotations since eraly in the year. The Spanish peseta was soft.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—(AP) — In a small turnover characteristic of summer activity, the price movement of bonds was sluggish today and changes were largely of small consequence. Supported by a nominal demand legal railroad issues rested on their recently acquired laurels, and some of the telephone and electric light company issues advanced to the best figures of the year in contrast to the movement of the stocks.

Other domestic corporation bonds were dull and showed no change of trend from the somewhat narrow but irregular movement apparent throughout the week. With activity in the share market at the lowest point since November, 1926, stock privilege issues received little attention and drifted aimlessly to an irregular close.

The narrow range in which railroads traveled was mirrored in St. Louis-San Francisco 4 1-2s, Southern Pacific 4 1-2s (Oregon division), St. Paul 5s of 1975, Delaware and Hudson Ref. 4s, Nickel Plate 4 1-2s, New Haven 4 1-2s, and Pennsylvania 4 1-2s, for which the best demand developed. For the most part fluctuations were confined to 1-4 of a point, and all held firm. Despite the small changes, Pennsylvania 4 1-2s, Chesapeake and Ohio 4 1-2s, Chicago Union Station 4 1-2s, Canadian National 4 1-2s, Canadian National 4 1-2 and Colorado and Southern 4 1-2s reached their best prices of the year. New York Central 3 1-2s, and Union Pacific 1st 4s were easier.

In the utility group, Detroit Edison 6s, Consolidated Gas 5 1-2s, New York Telephone 6s, and Pacific Gas and Electric 5s, were very firm. Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light 5s reached a new high.

Government bonds, principally those of European countries, were the most active in the list of foreign obligations. French issues held firm under moderate accumulation. British, Belgian, Italian and Japanese governments were steady. Further declines occurred in the new Austrian 7s while the more seasoned loan was firm. Belgian 8s, Chile Mortgage Bank 6 1-2s, Denmark 4 1-2s and Swiss 5s made the most marked advances among active bonds.

Liberty issues were unchanged, while short term issues yielded small fractions.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—(AP)—Commercial failures for the week totaled 468, or 42 below the total for last week and compared with 409 for the corresponding week last year, R. G. Dun and company reports. Compared with last week's returns a reduction appeared in all sections except on the Pacific coast, where there was an increase of 11 defaults.

Under a plan devised to alleviate unemployment, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company is giving employment seven weeks out of eight to all employes on its payroll six months prior to June 1, last. Officials estimate that the arrangement has eliminated the necessity of removing 2,000 workers.

COTTON MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—(AP)—Futures closed very steady, 21 to 29 points higher: October 12.85; December 13.03-06; January 13, 13.14. New contracts—October 12.60; December 12.76-78; January 12.86-87; March 13.05; May 13.20-21; Spot Steady; Middling 12.80.

U. S. Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1—(AP)—Treasury receipts for July 30 were $3,986,532.23; expenditures $6,739,557.04; balance $190,326,937.59.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—(AP)—Curb stocks sagged in the dullest session in more than two years today. Total sales were only 31,600 shares, compared to the year's previous record for rullness made with a turnover of 359,600 a week ago.

The thinness of the market resulted in several dips into new low ground by comparatively inactive shares for which bids were not readily forthcoming. The utilities comprised the only group to show any activity. There seemed to be some professional selling of these issues along with the pressure against utilities on the big board.

The curb, utilities, however, stood up relatively better than the similar issues on the bigger board. American Gas and Electric, which has risen some 29 points recently, closed off only one at 139, close to its high for the movement. Electric Bond and Share and United Light A, lost little more than a point, and American Super Power, 3-4. Commonwealth Edison dropped 7 in a few odd lot transactions.

Among the industrials and specialties, American Cigar dropped 8, Mock Judson, 4 3-4, and American Salamdra, A. C. Gilbert and Knott corporation, 2 to 3, all to new lows. Driver Harris tumblied 7. Deere declined 3 points to a new low at 75, but rallied to close at 77 1-2. MackMarr Stores rallied about a point on a reassuring statement from the management as to the dividend.

In the investment company group, Goldman Sachs sagged a point to 17 1-4, a new minimum, evidently reflecting selling in disappointment over its lack of response to the semi-annual statement placing breakup value above 20.

Oils were largely neglected. Cities Service closed unchanged at 28 1-2. Cosden, in which a poll has been active, was well supported, closing up a fraction, Vacuum lost a point.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Aug. 1—(AP)—Prospects of the scantiest corn crop since 1868, with only two exceptions lifted corn today to a new top price record for the season. Monthly unofficial crop estimates showed a sensational drop of 405,000,000 bushels in the forecasts of 1930 corn production as compared with similar private estimates a month ago. Today's indications were for continuance of the drought that has been ravaging fields throughout the corn belt, and that in Illinois was officially reported today as being for the last five months the severest in 53 years.

Closing quotations on corn were unsettled, 3-8a r 5-c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Wheat closed 7-8a 3-8c off, oats 1 1-8a1 3-8c up, and provisions at 5ca 35c advance.

Provisions were responsive to the action both of corn and of hog values as well.

Broadway Theater

Although their nearest neighbors were more than 2,300 miles away, the forty-two members of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's South Polar expedition were in constant communication with the outside world by radio. Now each of the members can relive his adventure, called "one of the most stupendous and daring feats of modern times," all over again in the thrilling film-record of the expedition, "With Byrd at the South Pole," the picture booked for showing at the Warner Broadway, 4 days starting today.

The film not only shows the living conditions of the men, the great scenic wonders of the Antarctic, but it is a continuous feature drama with suspense, adventure, danger, daring, romance and thrills. The humorous, human-interest incidents of the daring exploit are recorded in full detail. The breath-taking plane flight over the Pole, made by Admiral Byrd and three companions, is a living experience in pictures. During this flight, the plane, heavily laden, found difficulty in scaling the 10,000-foot polar plateau, and the admiral and his men had to work to lighten the plane to avoid crashing into the mountains.

Palace Theater

Clara Bow, who has never before appeared in a talking picture at the Palace theater, comes here tomorrow in the latest and most sensational of her screen triumphs, "Love Among the Millionaires." And if Clara is as happy to have this picture here as Norwich is to have her, it's going to be a grand party.

Clara opens as a waitress in a railroad cafe owned by her father. A railroad detective and a telegraph operator are bitter rivals for her love, but she doesn't give either of them a thing, and her heart is absolutely her own when young Stanley Smith, cast as Jerry Hamilton, the son of the railroad president, comes along. Stanley is disguised as a brakeman, but he can't fool Clara. She knows a man when she sees one, and she knows what she wants.

Come and see how this startling romance turns out. How jealousy, love, humor and pathos are grandly tangled around the trim person of the famous "It" girl. Clara makes love, she sings—a great collection of song hits. She is supported by Skeets Gallagher, the good-looking blond-haired boy and a host of other notables. Altogether Clara's coming to the Palace is going to be an extraordinary event which nobody will want to miss.

Today for the last times the Palace presents the powerful love drama, "For the Defense," starring William Powell and the vamp, Kay Francis. Don't miss this either.

MICHAEL LONGO, NORWICH, SUMMONED TO TESTIFY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 1.— Samuel Payne, colored, employed at the Connecticut College for Women, who has been a prisoner at the county jail for several weeks because of inability to procure bail on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, is scheduled for a hearing in the police court tomorrow. Witnesses, including Mortimer Jeffers, colored, of 53 Belden street, a passenger in Payne's auto and Michael Longo, 78 Washington street, Norwich and his sister, have been summoned. Whether the case will be concluded tomorrow is not known, for although Jeffers has been summoned to court, he has expressed himself as unwilling to testify against Payne and today his physician stated that Jeffers who sustained a fractured skull, could not leave his home for three weeks. Payne was driving his roadster in which Jeffers was riding, on Ocean avenue, five weeks ago and when opposite Lawrence Memorial hospital, the car side-swiped a parked car and careening off the machine collided with Longo's auto, then plunging across the highway and against a telephone pole. Jeffers was thrown out and landed upon his head and for several days it was not believed that he would recover.

THREE FORT NECK RAIDS— SHED CONCEALS BOOZE

NEW LONDON, Aug. 1—The police last night continued their drive to endeavor to put an end to the sale of liquor and home-brew beer in the Fort Neck section, the section of the city where many beer resorts have existed ever since prohibition. Three raids were conducted against Smith street rendezvous of the thirsty but in only one instance were the raiding forces successful in finding liquor. Raids were staged simultaneously at the residence of Nazzarino Pongetti, 96; Antonio Menghi, No. 87 and Fortunato Renzoni, No. 90, but at the two last named resorts no liquor of any description was found, Renzoni, however, informed the raiding force that but for the fact that the man he employs to perform his transporting had been arrested in Boston earlier in the week, a large supply of booze would have been found.

The officers conducting the search at the Pongetti house were more successful for when a search of the building failed to reveal booze or beer, the raiders went to a shed in the rear. There was a great pile of kindlings in the building, but two barrels that indicated that they were used to hold lime, attracted the attention of the officers. Changing the location of the barrels revealed a small quantity of lathes and with these brushed aside it was noted that the flooring was loose. A further inspection of the shed resulted in several sections being removed and the hiding place of the booze was found, for a huge box had been built beneath the flooring and in it was found about 30 quarts of rye and Scotch whiskey. These were seized. When Pongetti was in court today he pleaded not guilty, declaring that the liquor had been in the shed a long time, in fact, ever since the police searched the building for liquor several weeks ago and further said that the liquor, which at that time, was overlooked by the police had not been disturbed. The court however, had a stool pigeon in attendance, Alfred Ghent and he testified to having purchased liquor of Renzoni recently. The result of the testimony and the finding of the liquor caused Judge Daniel M. Cronin to impose a fine of $200 and costs on each of two counts, keeping with intent to sell and illegal possession. Renzoni paid.

NEGRO MOTOR BURGLARS ENTER TWO RESIDENCES

NEW LONDON, Aug. 1—Last night two residences in the Pequot section were entered, but the only loot obtained was a diamond ring. The burglaries were perpetrated during the absence of one family and when the occupants of the other residence were supposed to be out of the house. The residences entered were those of Dr. Alfred B. Purinton, 286 Lower Boulevard and Frederick R. Swanson, No. 266. It was from the latter residence that the diamond ring was stolen.

Entrance to the Purinton home was gained while the physician and his wife were absent, but the latter's mother was there, though asleep. She was aroused by the crooks in the house and when she arose the thieves escaped. The thieves entered the Swanson house while Mr. and Mrs. Swanson were away and having free access to the two floors easily found the ring, but this was the only loot they did discover.

Entrance to both houses was obtained by jimming a rear window. When the police were informed by Mrs. Purinton of entrance having been made to her home officers who investigated were informed that a sedan, apparently a Ford had been observed to depart from in front of the house when the crooks were scared away. Further investigation resulted in it being learned that a Studebaker sedan, carrying New York markers and in which were two Negroes had been noticed near the Purinton home for a long time, but had disappeared before the police arrived.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Flying at Browning Field

The Lenox Brothers, Chappy and Jack, perhaps, have done more than any other aviators in educating the people of New Haven and surrounding towns to the value and safety of flying.

Jack Lenox taught Chappy to fly back in 1922 in western Kansas, and soon afterward they both flew with "Garver's Flying Circus," doing barnstorming and stunt flying at various cities.

After flying with the "Circus" for two years they located in Vermont where they trained over twenty students. The students made out well and have since taken over the organization started by the Lenox Bros., there.

When Hart & Hart of New Britain were about ready to operate their new field at West Haven, last year, they arranged with the Lenox Bros. to take charge of it. The West Haven Airport was about the busiest port last summer. In addition to a great many students taking time, they had special "Air Shows" during the summer and simply made the "flying fever" spread.

Last January, Chappy and Jack took over the H. & H. interests, and although they still operate out of the H. & H. airport, the business is known as the Lenox Bros. Flying Service. Of interest to local people the Lenox Bros. are flying from the Browning farm on the Norwich-Colchester road. Se adv.

RUSSIAN SOTS, CURED, ARE ENROLLED AS DRYS

MOSCOW—(AP)—An anti-alcoholic hospital, the first of its kind in the soviet union, with a capacity for one hundred patients, has opened here.

After six weeks of cold baths, vaccine injections, physical exercise and manual labor, chronic drunkards leave the hospital enrolled as members of the Anti-Alcoholic society.

Only working people are taken in for treatment, degenerates and gutter-birds being barred.

Mrs. Epherine Garrish, sixty-five, of Ocracoke, N. C., made her first trip to the mainland recently and then told friends here she is still satisfied with Ocracoke. Trains, traffic, paved roads and streets, electric lights, running water and the tall buildings of eastern Carolina cities were all new to Mrs. Garrish. She was born on Ocracoke island, and like many natives, lived many years before she visited the mainland, almost within sight of the island on clear days.

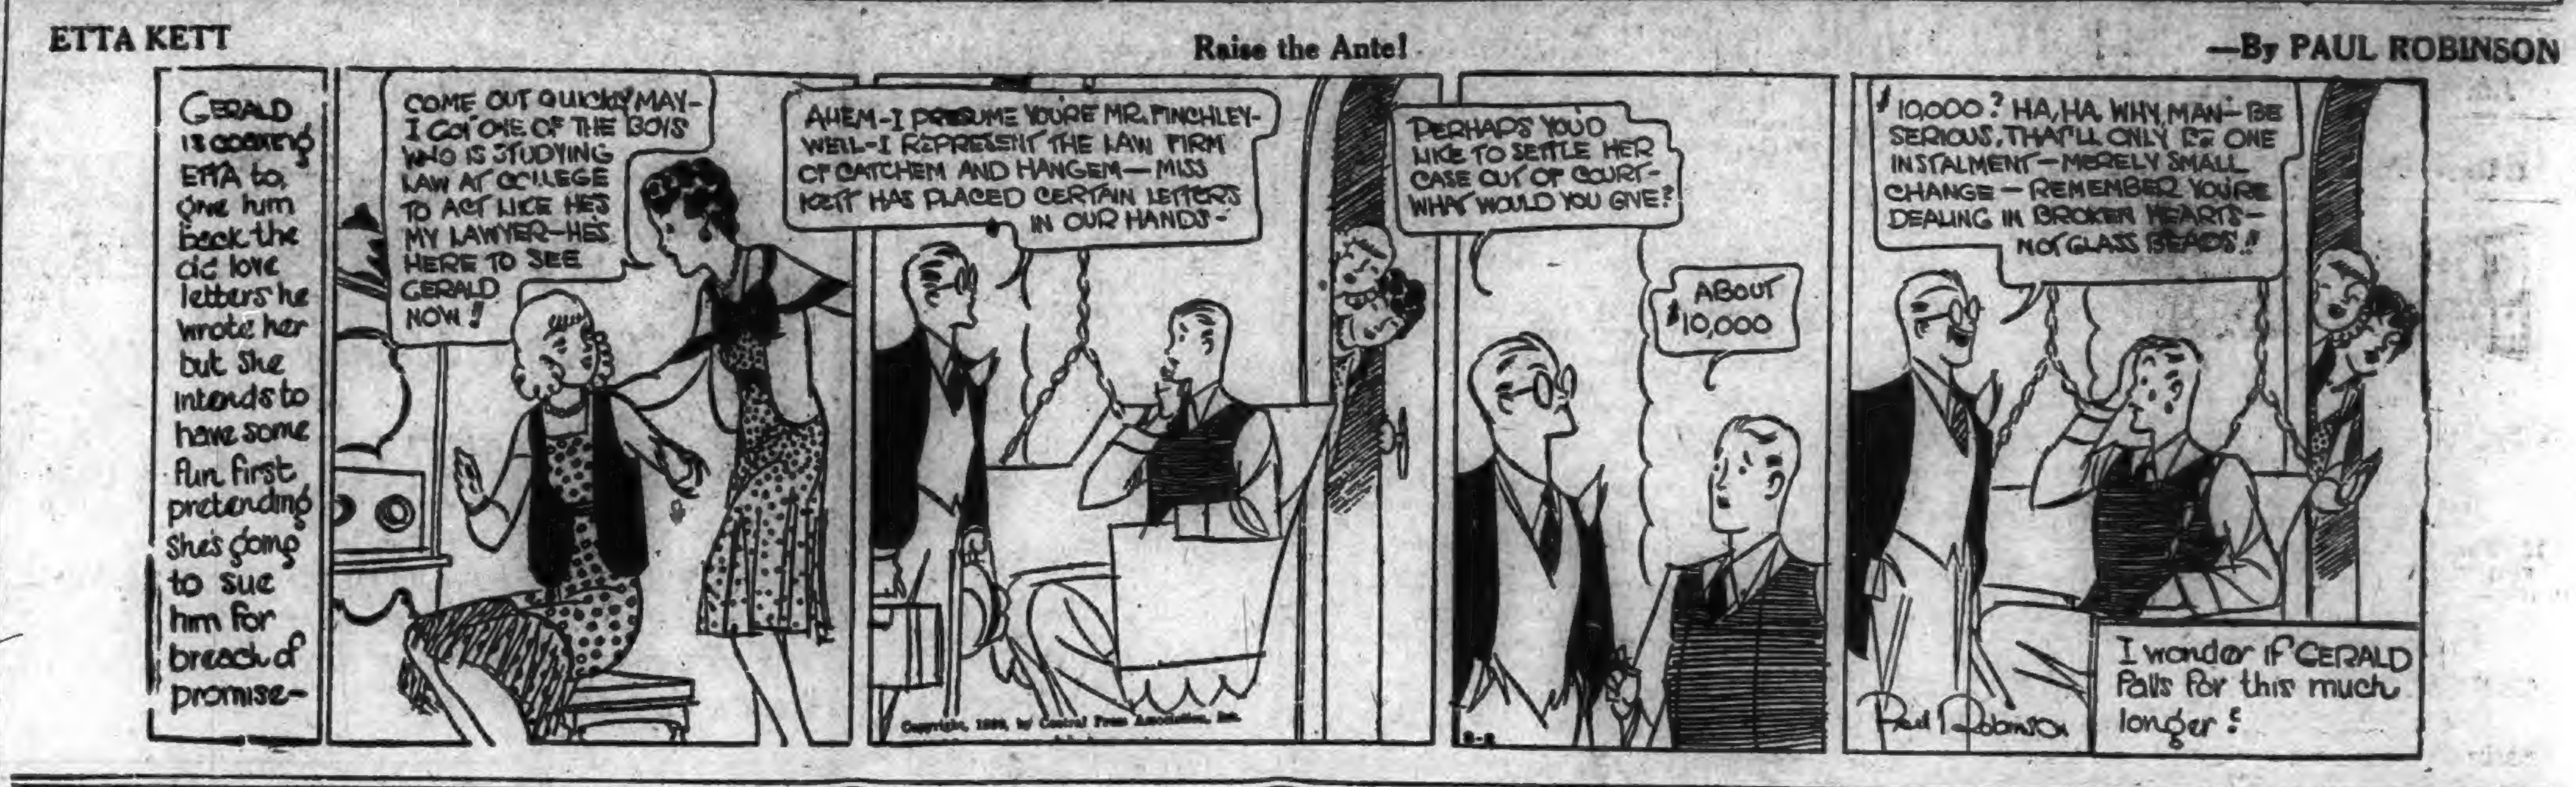
ETTA KETT Raise the Ante! —By PAUL ROBINSON



GERALD IS COAXING ETTA to give him back the old love letters he wrote her but she intends to have some fun first pretending she's going to sue him for breach of promise—
COME OUT QUICK, MAY—I GOT ONE OF THE BOYS WHO IS STUDYING LAW AT COLLEGE TO ACT LIKE HE'S MY LAWYER—HE'S HERE TO SEE GERALD NOW!
AHEM—I PRESUME YOU'RE MR. FINCHLEY—WELL—I REPRESENT THE LAW FIRM OF CATCH'EM AND HANGEM—MISS KETT HAS PLACED CERTAIN LETTERS IN OUR HANDS—PERHAPS YOU'D LIKE TO SETTLE HER CASE OUT OF COURT—WHAT WOULD YOU GIVE?
ABOUT $10,000
10,000? HA, HA, WHY MAN—BE SERIOUS. THAT'LL ONLY BE ONE INSTALMENT—MERELY SMALL CHANGE—REMEMBER YOU'RE DEALING IN BROKEN HEARTS—NOT GLASS BEADS!
I wonder if GERALD falls for this much longer?

NEW LONDON SQUELCHES COMMUNISM—HALL PADLOCKED, SPEAKER STOPPED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 1.— The effort of the communist propaganists who have been in New London several days and who had proposed to hold meetings indoors and in the open air today, were unsuccessful in their intention and desire to spread their propaganda through a female speaker, the communists observing anti-war day throughout the country. The police first refused to allow the open air meeting, for which a permit had been granted and then Nathan Harris, owner of the Dart building, corner of Bank and Howard streets, refused to allow the hall to be used for the purpose desired for he caused the entrance to be padlocked.

Yesterday, Mrs. Anna Loesch, wife of Otto Loesch, Green street resident, went to police headquarters and obtained a permit to enable the party to hold an open air meeting, after Nathan Harris had given his consent to the use of the hall for the communist cause. When announcement was made yesterday of the party's intention to hold the two meetings, the police officials were showered with remonstrances against the propagandists against industrial unions and the government being permitted to hold meetings. The pleadings of the societies principally the American Legion, to cause the meetings to be held up, did not meet with action until this afternoon, when, after circulars had been distributed at the submarine base urging the abolition of the army and the navy, the permit was rescinded, the sailors at the base planned to attend the open air meeting and trouble appeared imminent. At 5:30, there were many blue-jackets at Tyler square, Bank street, the scheduled place for the meeting. When the meeting was not held the sailors and several hundred citizens congregated outside the Dart building, corner of Bank and Reed streets, where the indoor meeting was slated to take place, but with Harris taking action and padlocking the door, no meeting was held. However, an attempt was made to hold the open air meeting shortly after 8 o'clock, for Ruth Fisher, about 22, of 36 Howe street, New Haven, with her followers, went to the square. She started to utter the propaganda, but no sooner had she started to make her address than the police interrupted her and in order to bring the efforts of the party to an abrupt end, the officers escorted Miss Fisher to police headquarters where she was informed, by Acting Lieutenant James Gaffney, that she could not address the throng without a permit and as she did not possess the necessary authority to take in the open, she must stop her endeavors or suffer arrest. This ended any attempt to hold the meetings. Long after Miss Fisher was led from the scheduled meeting place many sailors loitered about and anticipating trouble a detail of police was maintained there until after the assemblage had dispersed.

INTERESTED IN FLIGHT OF THE DIRIGIBLE R-100

Several acquaintances in the Hotel Mohican were especially interested today in the triumphal flight of the British dirigible R-100, since the designer, Sir Charles Dennistoun Burney, who was aboard, married Miss Gladys High, of Chicago, a grandniece of Mrs. Mary T. Johnson. Mrs. Johnson was for four years a guest at the hotel, before returning to her native city, Chicago.

HARBOR BRILLIANT WITH LIGHTS OF CLUB YACHTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 1—New London harbor presented a sight of utmost brilliancy and beauty tonight with the combined fleets of the New York Yacht club and Indian Harbor Yacht club here for the annual rendez-vous and races from this port to Newport tomorrow. Close to 100 palatial craft were anchored between Fort Trumbull and the mouth of the harbor. Included among the fleet were four of the competitors to represent America in the cup races with the British challenger Shamrock V, now en route to this country, for the Whirlwind, the largest of the prospective defenders; the Weetamoe, Enterprise and Yankee were here. The yachts began arriving early this afternoon, for before 2 o'clock some of the steam yachts and all of the cup defenders, excepting the Yankee, were at anchor off the Pequot. The Yankee came here from Newport and arrived shortly before 6 o'clock. The fleet will get under way tomorrow morning shortly after 9, on their run to Newport.

New York Boat Crowded

The New London line steamer New Hampshire, arriving in port at 7 o'clock this evening from New York, brought her largest complement of passengers of the season, several hundred men, women and children disembarking. Many of the arrivals are to remain here, while others are destined for places in the country.

Small mackerel, which were being caught by the hundreds off the various piers in June and which disappeared the latter part of that month, are returning [illegible] fishermen at the municipal pier started seeking the tasty fish and in a small way were successful. The fish are not so plentiful as five weeks ago, but are sure to be more numerous within a day or two.

Ignored Signal

Walter Lucy, U. S. Coast Guard, was arrested this evening, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in passing an automatic danger signal, corner of Bank and Howard streets. He was held in bail of $15 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow.

J. Augustus Barnard, of New York, sailed for Europe yesterday to visit Charles W. Ogden at his home in Scotland. Mr. Ogden leased the Guthrie place in Pequot avenue for seven years before it became Lighthouse inn. Before that, Mr. Ogden lived for several years at 581 Pequot avenue, the house now owned by the Misses Palmer. Mr. Barnard spent Tuesday here with his mother, Mrs. Horace Barnard and his sister, Miss Louisa Barnard, guests at Lighthouse inn.

Mrs. Thomas E. Troland was hostess yesterday at a garden party at her home, 16 Niles Hill road. Her honor guests were Mrs. G. Kenneth Morgan and Mrs. Girard B. Troland. Mrs. James P. Sullivan poured tea and was assisted in the dining room by Mrs. Richard Warren, Mrs. J. James Floyd, Mrs. Graham Chapin and Mrs. Creighton Tevlin. Mrs. Harold W. Wellington and Mrs. Henry Bill Selden served ices in the garden, in which the guests assembled after having tea. About 40 called during the afternoon.

Mrs. Edward F. Hutton of New York and Long Island is here on her three-masted schooner yacht Hussar and spent Friday visiting her cousin, Mrs. Horace C. Learned of 597 Pequot avenue. Mrs. John Winthrop DeWolf of Bristol, R. I., is also visiting Mrs. Learned.

Miss Mary Sheffield has left for Upper St. Regis lake in the Adirondacks to spend two weeks as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Russell D'Oench at their camp.

Body Sent To Flushing.

The body of Frank G. Burnat, 13, of Flushing, L. I., drowned Wednesday evening at Camp Mohegan, Gardner Lake, where he was one of a group of youthful campers, was forwarded today to the boy's home, by orders of his father, who is a resident of Canada.

Funeral of Myron G. Pattee.

The funeral of Myron G. Pattee, for many years chief train dispatcher in the employ of the Central Vermont railroad, was held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at his home, 74 Williams street. The services were attended by a large assemblage of mourners, including many railroad employes, some of whom had been associated with Mr. Pattee nearly a score of years. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. The body was forwarded to Mr. Pattee's former residence, Milton, Vt., where the burial will take place tomorrow.

Mrs. John Kelly, 36 Walden avenue; Mrs. Clarence Edwards and infant son, Fishers Island; Mrs. Walter Peters and infant son, 153 Bayonett street; Frank May, 146 Ashcraft road; Mrs. Daniel McIntosh and infant daughter, Stonington; Joseph Small, 119 Bentley avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stockel today ordered the return of the driver's license of George A. Bruso, U. S. Coast Guard.

July Arrests Total 332.

The police during July made 332 arrests, of which number 119 were for violation of the traffic laws, 43 for violation of the automobile law and 76 for intoxication. Shelter was provided 77 men in the tramp room and $135 was received for licenses. The offenses and the number of arrests are as follows, Violation of the traffic law, 119; intoxication, 76; violation of the automobile law, 43; violation of the liquor law, 16; breach of the peace, 15; vagrancy, 10; arrested or held for other departments, 10; keeping house of ill fame, 3; frequenting house of ill fame, 5; keeping a gambling place, 2; frequenting a gambling place 3; theft, 8; violation city demeanor ordinance, 5; evading fare, 5; driving while under the influence of liquor, 4; non-support, 2; forgery, 2; lascivious carriage, 2; breaking and entering, 1; runaway, 1.

The police received a report today of a disturbance in progress in a Garfield avenue house and Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey was assigned to make an investigation. The officer ascertained that the tenant of the house was in the act of moving to another home and that when the owner, a woman, suddenly appeared and placed a "to rent" sign in a window and before the occupants had started to depart, a quarrel resulted. With the officer giving both owner and occupants advice, the quarrel was ended and no arrest was made.

Patrolman James McKenna was unable to perform duty last night, being ill at his residence on Riverview avenue.

Trolleyman Brutal to Wife.

Raymond McCullough, 32, of Douglass street, and employed as conductor by the Connecticut company, was in the police court today in the role of a wife-beater, for he was charged with breach of the peace in striking and abusing his wife. McCullough had little, if any excuse, for his conduct and Judge Daniel M. Cronin imposed a fine of $50, but suspended execution of the sentence and placed the accused in the custody of Probation Officer George MacDougal and with the understanding that in the event that McCullough again attack and beat his wife that the trolleyman would go to jail, provided he could not pay his fine.

McCullough and his wife have been estranged for several days and, Mrs. McCullough said, the estrangement resulted in her husband ordering her from the house. She went to live with her mother for three days but late yesterday went to the Douglass street house to procure her clothing. Her husband was there and while the woman was collecting her effects, her husband attacked and beat her. Mrs. McCullough sought redress by making complaint to Patrolman Dennis Murphy, who arrested the wife-beater.

In court Mrs. McCullough when asked as to what punishment she desired given her husband, was lenient for she said that so long as he did not molest her she was satisfied that McCullough go free. McCullough in making a statement told a weak tale to the effect that Mrs. McCullough had accused him of intimacy with women, who rode on the trolley car on which he was employed. The woman's arms were badly bruised, as was her back, from the brutish treatment she received from her husband.

REMARKABLE PAINTINGS AT ART EXHIBITION

The twenty-ninth annual exhibition of the Lyme Art association opened with one of the remarkable groups of paintings which have attracted visitors from all over the country for many years. this year there are, as always, landscapes, portraits, still life, miniatures—all those phases of life that may attract the artist who works with palette and brush. One sees, on the walls of the delightful little gallery where the exhibit is held, the colors of spring and autumn, the rugged coast of Maine, the peaceful beauty of the Connecticut countryside, the quaint charm of the fishing village, character-revealing portraits, studies in the human figure, dogs and oxen, the open sea—all those subjects that have caught and held the attention of the scores of painters who make up the art colony at Old Lyme.

Among the important canvases are: "Spring Night" and "Iron Bridge," by Gregory Smith; "A Vista," by William S. Robinson; "Natures Garden," by William Chadwick; "The River Bank, October," by Frank A. Bicknell, and autumn scene by Paul Saling; "Village Life," "Hill Town Jamaica," by Will Howe Foote; "Gloria Maris," by Clark Vorhees.

The rugged beauties of the coast are there in "Coast of Maine," by Henry Bill Selden; autumn is here again in Percival Rosseau's "Autumn Days," and in Bruce Crane's "Autumn Fields," "Golden Weather" and "Morning with Frost."

Before the opening of the exhibit, the Mr. and Mrs. William Owen Goodman annual prize was awarded to Ivan G. Olinsky, for his "Young Woman."

"Silver Night," by Thomas Watson Ball, has attracted much attention, as have "The Drag Contest," of Edward Volkert, "Sky-line and "Sunrise" of Charles Vezin, "Early Summer" of George M. Bruestle, 'White Mountain, February," of Harry L. Hoffman, "Winter Moonlight" of Winfield Scott Clime, and "The Viaduct," of Everett Warner.

Visitors pause long before such canvases as Louis Paul Dessar's "Connecticut Pastures," Eugene Higgins' "Shades of the Circus," Carleton Wiggins' "Autumn at Lyme" and Guy Wiggins' "Clock Tower, Harkness Memorial, Yale," and Spring, New Haven Green."

Several women have found recognition as always; Margaret Cooper, with her Connecticut scenes; Lydia Longacre, with her miniatures; Gertrude Mason, Elinor Lothrop Sears. Bessie Potter Vonnon expresses youthful beauty in her bronze statuette, "Wake Robin."

Among other admirable pictures that are being shown are: Charles Ebert's "Off the Maine Coast," Charles Goodwin McManus' "Rock-Ribbed New England," to which was awarded the Gedney Bunce prize at the Connecticut academy, "A Silver Day," by Robert Vonnon, "Grassy Hill" by Frank V. Dumond, "Full Cry" by Henry Poore, "The Mill in Autumn," by Lucine Abrams.

"The Red Kimono" by Wilson Irvine has been lent by Mr. and Mrs. Goodman, and another picture of Mr. Irvine's, "The South Window," is exhibited.

More than 100 sketches hang also in the gallery, each representing an idea which may later be developed farther, for a later exhibit. Other artists exhibiting are: Will S. Taylor, Marion Hungerford and Oscar Ferrer.

The exhibit will be open until September 7.

GAVE RADIO TALK ON ENTERING SCHOOL HEALTHY

Entering School Healthy was the subject of a radio talk broadcast over WTIC the Hartford station, by A. Elizabeth Ingraham, M. D., director of the bureau of child hygiene of the Connecticut state department of health. In her talk she said:

Summer round-ups have been carried on in Connecticut for the last five years that our children may not be at a disadvantage when they enter school for the first time. By a summer round-up is meant getting together the children of a given community, who will go to school for the first time in the coming fall, or during the current school year. Each child is given a thorough physical and dental examination.

The object of the physical examinations given to the 4 to 6 year group of children, is to find any wrong tendencies or defects which, if overlooked, will become crippling handicaps later in life; to get these children to their family doctors, under whose care they will remain until the discovered defects are corrected; to have the follow-up work done during the spring and summer months, that the children may begin school in the fall as nearly physically fit as possible.

It has been found in the later years of life that many a child had been allowed to grow up with a defect which could have been corrected had it been discovered during childhood but which was not detected because its presence could have been visible only to the trained eye of the physician and nurse. It is through the discovery of these things that every child is given a chance to enjoy the health and strength of body and mind to which he is entitled; and above all that he may be in good physical condition to meet the new surroundings and demands made upon him by school life. If Johnny's tonsils are enlarged and diseased he will not be able to learn his lessons easily. If there is anything wrong with Susie's vision she cannot, without eye-strain, see the lessons which teacher puts on the board. These are only two of the many defects that are found in children by which their school work is made more difficult.

ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR SAVE-A-LIFE CAMPAIGN

Robbins B. Stoeckel, state commissioner of motor vehicles, announced Friday the arrangements for the conduct of the Save-A-Life campaign in Connecticut, which is to run concurrently with similar programs in the other New England states during August. The plan for this state is inclusive, embracing all highway traffic participants and activities, and bringing the importance of efforts for safety to the attention of everybody.

Commissioner Stoeckel says that while the general aim of the campaign, safety, will be kept in view throughout, particular efforts along separate lines will be made during the various weeks under the general plan. The first days of the campaign will be devoted to preparations by state and local authorities and many private organizations which intend to participate as units.

August 11 to August 16 will be given over to inspection and repair of mechanical equipment of motor vehicles. Strict adherence to safety laws and rules by everyone, including motor vehicle operators, pedestrians, motormen, railroad engineers, bicyclists and teamsters, will be the particular aim of the campaign during its final two weeks. Exact co-operation between enforcement agencies and the public will be sought to make highway traffic performance as nearly perfect as possible during these two weeks.

Automobile clubs, chambers of commerce and civic clubs and associations have reported intention of conducting campaigns for better driving, safe equipment, and observance of regulations, among the members. Testing and inspection equipment has been installed by at least one automobile club and several organizations plan special display and poster exhibits to secure the attention of the public to the campaign in their communities.

In nearly all towns police departments are to co-operate in equipment tests, enforcement and general aid to secure universally good highway performance. The particular plans of the various municipalties will be arranged and carried out by the local authorities, only general supervision and aid being given by the state.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR DISTRIBUTION STATION

Sweeney of Norwich on his bid of $13,885 by the board of gas and electric commissioners at a meeting of the board this week. Four other contractors bid as follows: Connecticut Engineering and Construction Co., $16.263; George E. Boucher, $17,900; Peck-McWilliams Co., $17,479; Joseph J. Chinigo, $24,652.50.

It is Spanish Gold the first crossed sweet corn bred in a scientific process of years that Dr. Dorald F. Jones has made ready for the market gardeners. His first crossed corn, Burr-Leaming, and Canada-Leaming, the prolific, frost-escaping corn announced last spring, were both field grain.

Years ago this house was occupied by the family of the late General Edward Harland, but since changing ownership several times the original mansion has been used as a three apartment house. It was reported that some one in the lower apartment had filled the heater with papers, which being lighted smouldered and sent out clouds of smoke. The Yantic boys erected a ladder and made a thorough investigation of the chimney remaining on the scene about twenty minutes. Upon finding all danger was over, the Yantic chemical returned and the crowd scattered.

AROUND THE WORLD PLANE WRECKED AT HARBOR GRACE

Monoplane City of New York Crashed When It Jumped the Runway as the Fliers Tried to Take Off Across the Atlantic—Both Aviators, Mears and Brown, Escaped Injury—The Plane Bumped Over Hummocks and Tore Through the Brush for 60 Feet Before It Stopped.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., Aug. 3—(AP)—The attempt of John Henry Mears and Henry J. Brown to break the Graf Zeppelin's round-the-world record ended in a crack-up here today when their airplane jumped the runway, ran into the brush, and was wrecked as they tried to take off across the Atlantic.

Both Mears and Brwn escaped injury, and even their small dog mascot, "Tailwind II" was believed unscathed. Searchers believed the mascot, frightened, had taken to the woods.

Members of the Harbor Grace flight mittee blamed the accident on the fliers' decision to take off before daylight, using flares to light the runway. They taxied across the field diagonally to take advantage of the wind, and the plane went off the southern edge of the runway.

The machine bumped over hummocks and tore through brush for 60 feet before it stopped. The landing gear was torn off, the engine house was crumpled up the tail and wings broken, and mechanics believed the engine probably was damaged.

Members o fthe Harbor Grace flight committee said Mears decided on the pre-daylight take-off against their advice. His decision was made in answer to Brown's request. Flares were lighted along the runway, and automobiles were lined up to flood it with the brilliant streamers from their headlights.

Mears and Brown extricated themselves from the wreckage before help arrived. The plane did not catch fire.

Observers believed that if the flight had been delayed until daylight, a matter of half an hour, the take-off would have had a good chance for success, since the weather was good.

PARIS STYLE-MAKERS TO HAVE DISPLAYS THIS WEEK

PARIS, Aug. 3—(AP)—The week began today that tells what winter clothes a la mode de Paris are really going to be like.

The six biggest style-makers will give up their secrets in quick succession from now until Thursday. One already has exhibited privately, with damaging consequences to evening silhouettes.

Every one thought they were going to be long and "bouffant." The man who put long skirts back on the map says, however, that evening skirts will be long and slinky with a twelve-inch lift in front, so that frail femininity may walk without tripping, even though it has to drag half a foot of velvet and fur.

Fabric trends, as quite definitely established at a score of other houses, also were affected by the preliminary private showing. Where others say "dull," this particular dressmaker says "shiny," and says it with soft broadcloth, lustrous velvet and a wealth of rich brocade, all resplendently trimmed with sable, mink and ermine.

Black and white dominated, with yellow, greens and blue-greens featured colors for daytime and evening. Beige, the American woman's old favorite, is snubbed everywhere by Paris. It is supplanted by dove grays and a new shade which one style-maker calls astrakhan.

There is no change in skirt lengths at the house generally regarded as dictator of hemlines. Except for lifted fronts on formal afternoon and evening dresses and coats, hems are where they were, medium for streets, eight to twelve inches from the ground for afternoon, and ankle length or ground length for formal wear.

FALLING AIRPLANE CRASHED INTO AN AUTO

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3—(AP)—The airplane in which he hoped to fly to Paris wrecked late yesterday in a crash which also injured a woman and demolished an automobile, George R. Hutchinson, Richmond, (Va.) aviator, late today expected to begin a return air trip east, either to Richmond or New York.

Hutchinson's ship, a Lockheed monoplane, crashed into a fence during the take-off of a test flight. Hutchinson said damage to the plane will amout to about $2,000 and will require two weeks to repair.

The injured woman Mrs. George W. Johnson, wife of the vice president of the Federal Oil company of California, is in a hospital with a fractured vertebra and a lacerated scalp. Hutchinson was unhurt.

Mrs. Johnson had parked her automobile and stepped to the enclosure to watch the plane leave. When she saw it careen, she ran but fell in its path. One of the landing wheels struck her head.

When the landing gear struck the fence, the plane crashed into Mrs. Johnson's automobile

The flier said today his unfamiliarity with the Lockheed caused the crash.

AVIATOR AND PASSENGER KILLED NEAR NORWICH, N. Y.

NOWICH, N. Y., Aug. 3—(AP)—An aviator and his passenger were killed today in a crash near the Norwich airport. The flier was Albert D. Lewis, 32, of Norwich, who recently participated in the state air tour. Merton Foster, 35, of Binghamton, was the passenger.

Observers said Lewis had some trouble starting the motor. The crashe occurred a few minutes after the take off, while the plane was still climbing, they said.

It appeared to those on the field that the ship went into a nose dive, from an unestimated height.

It burst into flames just before landing in a field near the Chenango river, opposite the airport. The bodies were horribly burned.

TWO MEN AND A BOY HURT IN PLANE CRASH

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 3—Two men and a 17-year-old high school boy were injured tonight in the crash of an airplane on the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railroad tracks near the municipal airport.

Leslie Morrison, 30, of Boston, a stunt flier, suffered a fracture of the hip, severe bruises and lacerations. Harold Jackson, of Rochester, pilot of the ship, and Ray Welch, 17, a passenger, also of Rochester, escaped with slight cuts and bruises.

Morrison was riding the right wing of the plane, preparing to transfer to another ship as part of the Sunday aviation program at the airport. Witnesses said his weight apparently tipped the wing and the plane, unable to gain altitude, banked to land and brushed against a clump of trees.

CONFIDENCE MEN GOT $15,000 FROM MANUFACTURER

CHICAGO, Aug. 3—(AP)—They're after the "Yellow Kid" again.

Authorities, informed of his latest alleged confidence game coup, pressed a hunt today for the Chesterfieldian figure whose intriguing biography is written on the police records of the land.

Joseph Kindelberger, president of the Kalamazoo (Mich.) Vegetable Parchment company, went to the Chicago detective bureau last night to report he had been badgered for $15,000. Given a file of bertillon pictures, he selected one—that of a courtly gentleman wearing a Van Dyke beard, silk hat, spats and a calacca stickus the likeness of one of the alleged swindlers. Police told him he had identified Joseph P. Weil, the "Yellow Kid," who five months ago left Leavenworth Penitentiary with the announcement he would henceforth devote his talents to a legitimate business.

Kindelberger told Detective Chief John Norton he came to Chicago to complete the sale of his factory to Weil and two associates, identified from photos as Fred Buckminster and George Lutz, after the trio had approached him six weeks ago.

In the ante-room of the "Yellow Kid's chambers, he said, he encountered two taciturn Chinamen whom Weil pointed out as homesick orientals endeavoring to sacrifice their rich Montana copper mine for just enough money to carry them back across the Pacific. Kindelberger said his interest led him to purchase $15,000 worth of stock in the project. The factory sale was forgotten.

And so the search is on for the "Yellow Kid"—the handsome man with the London clothes, glib tongue and ever available fountain pen.

INVESTIGATING SLAYING OF JACK ZUTA IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 3—(AP)—Officials investigating the assassination of Jack Zuta, who trafficked in women, today were agreed the wily head of the Moran-Aiello vice syndicate had come to his death through the same medium.

With revenge for the slaying of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, generally accepted as the motive, authorities have uncovered evidence indicating that it was a woman who put Zuta "on the spot."

Zuta telephoned an unnamed woman in Chicago frequently, they have established, and made the last call shortly before his scheduled departure from a summer hotel near Delafield, Wis., was blocked by the bullets of an execution squad.

Two groups of gangsters were in the general vicinity of Zuta's hideout, detectives ascertained, and presumably they moved in to slay Zuta when the mystery woman informed them of the vice chief's intended retreat.

One of Zuta's calls to Chicago was traced to a Mrs. Laura Nelson at a North Side address. She was questioned yesterday and released. When police sought to take her into custody again on later information she had fled.

HEAT PROVING DESTRUCTIVE TO FRESH WATER FISH

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—(AP)—Record heat this summer over the continent has caused the most distress ever experienced by the fish population of the United States and its adjacent waters, the U. S. bureau of fisheries said today in describing complaints it has received.

Streams low or entirely dried up, lakes the same, cold spring-fed brooks heating up as their sources fail and their contents shrink, and sea-water encroaching up the tidal estuaries at the river mouths are all points told in the tidings of disaster that have crowded in for weeks to the bureau.

The finny tribes already have been decimated and destroyed to a degree that is incalculable, the announcement said, and the seekers of fish for sport and food will be ruefully aware of the losses for many seasons to come.

Breaks From Dungeon Of Litchfield Co. Jail

New Haven Man Made Second Break From the Jail Within a Week.

LITCHFIELD, Conn., Aug. 3—(AP)—Dungeon walls between which he was placed after a break from the Litchfield county jail here Monday failed to keep Anthony Carello, 21, of New Haven imprisoned for more than three days.

Rearrested in Northville Thursday morning after a hundred civilians and police officers had scoured the countryside for him and Milford E. Mashie, 31, of Manchester, Carello was locked in the dungeon "cooler" of the jail for safe keeping. He was secure when Jailer Henry Bull offered him his meal at 5.30 o'clock last night but this morning at 6 a. m. his cell was empty. He had climbed through the ventilator, made his way through a narrow airshaft to the outer walls and pounding out enough bricks to let his body through become a hunted man again.

His companion on the first flight is still at large though police throughout the state have been on a close vigil. The search was renewed tonight, spurred on by the offer of rewards by the Litchfield county commissioners of $250 for the two fugitives.

Constables and police of Connecticut cities and towns were immediately notified by Sheriff Frank Turkington this morning and posses organized to comb the surrounding territory. Reports of stolen cars were awaited as clues to his whereabouts but this time Carello is depending upon other means to run through the tightly closed police cordons to liberty.

On the previous escape, Carello and Mashie pilfered at least two automobiles in an attempt to run out of the state. The first was abandoned after it had overturned near Litchfield and the second after police lines had closed in on the pair at New Preston station. Constable Wallace S. Ferrish of New Milford was the officer who arrested Carello.

SMITH MURDER SUSPECT HAS ELUDED OFFICERS

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Aug. 3—(AP)—R. L. Benton, held for investigation in connection with the mystery hotel slaying in Muskogee last April of George and David Smith, Connecticut capitalists, today apparently had eluded groups of officers who sought him after he broke jail late last night.

With Benton, who dropped through a window of his prison, was Oscar Hamilton, a convicted forger. Search for the escaped prisoners began shortly after their departure from the jail. Today three groups of deputies still vainly combed the countryside.

Benton recently was identified by John Wike, traveling companion of the Smith brothers, as one of two men alleged to have shot the brothers during a fight when they resisted robbery. Benton had been arrested on a charge of larceny. After this charge was dropped he was held for investigation in connection with the double slaying.

In belief the two fugitives had headed for Tulsa or another point in Oklahoma, authorities notified officers throughout the state to watch for the pair.

CHICAGO CHILDREN FIGHT AND RESORT TO FIREARMS

CHICAGO, Aug. 3—(AP)—Three child bystanders were shot and wounded today when a juvenile "gang war" broke out in the heart of Chicago's West Side melting pot.

The story, as witnesses related it to police, was that Louis Hoda, 11, and Albert Biachi, 7—small but mighty—used their fists on the Obazza brothers—John and Teddy, 12 and 14—with results very distressing to the Obazzas, who finally took to flight.

Louis and Albert were gloating pridefully for the benefit of Sam Sharisena, 6; Billy Korkoras, 8; and Florence Moliere, 15, when John, carrying a handful of bullets, and Teddy, bearing a rifle, returned to erase the stain from the Obazza escutcheon.

When the smoke had cleared, Sam was lying on the sidewalk with a bullet in the right leg; Billie with one in the right thigh; and Florence with a wound in the right foot. Albert and Louis were unscathed, and the Obazzar had fled, failing to carry out gangland practice in one respect; they had no "high powered car."

HISTORY OF BELGIUM DEPICTED IN PAGEANT

Brussels, Aug. 3—(AP)—Princes, dukes, counts, princesses, duchesses and countesses, comprising 53 members of the highest Belgian nobility, all wearing priceless family jewels, today took part in a pageant representing Belgium's history since the stone age.

The colorful procession, despite rain, paraded the streets of Brussels. More than 3,000 persons took part, and three were 30 floats drawn by horses and oxen, and even by camels.

The nine Belgian provinces contributed individual displays. The most magnificent, perhaps, was that of West Flanders, illustrating the period of the Dukes of Burgundy, in which participated the "knights of the golden fleece," each represented by a living descendant.

King Albert, Queen Elizabeth, and the rest of the royal family watched the procession from the Palace. It will be repeated tomorrow.

Changsha In Hands Of Red Soldiers

Herds of Fettered Chinese Peasants Were Driven Before Advancing Reds.

HANKOW, Aug. 3—(AP)—A wounded colonel of Hunan provincial troops, who arrived here today for hospitalization, said hordes of red soldiers advanced into battle at Changsha, driving herds of fettered peasants before them. The officer said the farmers' arms were bound behind their backs.

'The troops ceased their fire when they realized they were slaughtering helpless farmers in large numbers, the colonel added, and were dispersed by the communists, who advanced into Changsha, inflicting heavy losses on the provincial soldiers.

The situation at Changsha was obscure tonight. Indications were that the communists having looted and burned the silk manufacturing city, were beginning to withdraw to a point ten miles northeast, where the major body of reds was entrenching and mounting machine guns, apparently anticipating a government attack.

CROPS WITHERING IN THE CENTRAL WESTERN STATES

Arid Pastures, Due to Drought, Have Resulted in a Marked Decrease in Butter, Cream and Other Dairy Commodities—Local Thunder Showers Were Predicted in Six or Seven States—Slightly Cooler Weather Was Forecast For Today.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(AP)— Anxiety for drought-stricken crops of the middle west was partially relieved today by a promise of scattered rains that will be measured in dollars more than inches.

The weather bureau predicted local thunderstorms tonight or Monday in six or seven of the 11 states in the north central area.

Prairie farmers were joined by market traders in eyeing the heavens for signs of long overdue precipitation. Grain dealers watched the price of corn mount with each day of additional aridity and indicated curtailment of the crop has led provision trade authorities to warn of a threatened nation-wide scarcity of lard and other by-products. Withering pastures have resulted in a marked decrease in butter, cream and other dairy commodities.

The official forecaster somewhat alleviated their fears by scheduling local thunder storms tonight or tomorrow for Michigan, Wisconsin, the eastern portions of Iowa and Minnesota, the northern halves of Illinois and Indiana and, possibly, northern Missouri. No rain was promised the Dakotas, Kansas and Nebraska.

A high presure area moving eastward from the Rocky mountains, will bring slightly coller weather to the western plains, upper Mississippi valley and Great Lake states tomorrow, the meteorologist pointed out. A patchwork of low flying clouds kept thermometers in the lower nineties throughout the central states today.

INTENSE EXCITEMENT AND DISORDERS IN BOMBAY

Plans for the dual government, as tentatively outlined, provide for taking over the courts, the police, the collection of taxes, and operation of the Postal service throughout the district. Gujarat is one of the principal cotton areas of India.

All income from taxes and Postal receipts, etc., would be turned over to congress, which would have its headquarters at Ahmedabad, the site of the All-India congress' main office.

THIRD SUCCESSIVE HOT SUNDAY IN MARYLAND

BALTIMORE, Aug. 3—(AP)—Maryland for the third successive Sunday today watched its thermometers pass the century mark. Its crops wither and its already slender water supply sink lower in its reservoirs.

It was 105 at 4 o'clock at the official weather station at Keedysville and 102 at Frederick, where the draught has prevailed for 34 days and conditions are becoming acute. In Baltimore it was 96 at 1:30 o'clock, the day's average was 86, eight degrees above normal and the weather bureau promised no immediate relief.

The pilots, Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine, communicated with the field by radio today, a transmitter having been installed this morning. A receiving set is to be installed later. Both had been shot through the head. Police believe Martels killed his wife and then turned the gun upon himself.

ENDURANCE PILOT DOWN AFTER 311 HOURS IN AIR

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 3—(AP)—John S. Donaldson, promoter of the "Red" endurance plane which was forced down last night after 311 hours in the air, today blamed failure of the flight on faulty operation of an altitude adjustment on the motor.

The pilots flew too low, he said, for the adjuster to function properly, and they did not realize their mistake in time to regain altitude before being forced down. The motor stopped when the adjuster cut off its proper fuel mixture.

Bob Black and Lou Reichers, the pilots, plan to start another endurance flight this week in a different plane.

39 HOPEFUL OF WINNING TITLE AT BEAUTY SHOW

GALVESTON, Texas, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Most of the world admires a slim, trim blond, if entries in the current international pageant of pulchritude at Galveston may be taken as a criterion.

Thirty-nine young women, hopeful of winning the title, "Beauty Queen of the Universe,' today posed from decorated floats while crowds looked on. About 60 per cent. of the beauties, representing widely separated parts of the United States and seven foreign nations, were pronounced blonds.

The same percentage were slim and of medium height.

The brunettes who bowed their way along the line of parade were more inclined to a boyish figure, and slightly more height.

Plump girls were counted out in virtually all of the regional elimination contests. Not more than three of today's contestants could answer that description.

The stately beauty also found competition keen. Four of the 39 young women might be so classified.

THERMOMETERS AT NEW HIGHS AT SEVERAL POINTS

By The Associated Press.

Unsatisfied with the temperature records it established in the previous heat wave, the sun shoved thermometers to new highs at several points again yesterday. Some of the readings were:

Sac City, Ia., 113; Freemont, Nebr., 112; Omaha, Nebr., 111; Beatrice, Nebr., 111; Algona, Ia., 110; Knoxville, Ia., 106; Lincoln, Nebr., 108; Concordia, Kan., 108; Des Moines, Ia., 106; Keokuk, Ia., 106; Oklahoma City, Okla., 106; Emporia, Kan., 113; Topeka, Kan., 110; Wichita, Kan. 110.

Eastern states kept largely under the 100-mark, with Washington, D. C. reporting the highest, 100. Abilene, Texas, with 102, was the hottest in the Gulf states, and Phoenix, Ariz., with the same temperature, was the warmest in the Rocky Mountain states. Pacific coast states suffered less, 93 at Walla Walla, Wash., being the highest reading in that territory.

MAN'S BODY FOUND IN BURNED FARMHOUSE

LOGANSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 3.—(AP)—The charred, battered body of an unidentified man was found in a burned farmhouse near here early today.

Evidence uncovered by Walton county authorities indicated the man had been slain after a fierce struggle in a swamp and carried into the house to be burned. Two theories were being investigated, that the man had been "taken for a ride," robbed and killed, or that the slaying was the outcome of a gambling game.

The body was discovered by T. T. Brooks, a farmer living several miles from the destroyed house. He went to investigate the fire, he said.

FIGHTING FOREST FIRES IN MONTANA AND IDAHO

MISSOULA, Mont., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Nearly a thousand fire fighters today extended their lines around forest fires in Montana and Idaho which were fanned into fury yesterday by high winds.

Three hundred men were stubbornly holding their trenches against the march of the cool water creek fire east of Kooskia, Idaho.

CAPTURED ATTEMPTING TO HOLD UP LUNCH CART

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A daring robber who held up a Times Square cigar store the other evening at the peak of the rush hour, when 10 policemen were directing traffic on the corner outside, is in the toils of the law.

Floyd Wynne, 23, captured tonight when he attempted to hold up a Brooklyn lunch wagon, is the bold one.

Wynne confessed that he held up the cigar store, police said, using a cigarette case "pistol" to cover the clerk and escape with $600 in loot. He used the same "weapon" in the unsuccessful venture tonight.

SO. MANCHESTER CHILD KILLED IN COLUMBIA ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, August 3.—Instant death brought a tragic ending to a ride which Adelia, seven-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mary Miller of Lilac street, South Manchester, was enjoying with neighbors at Columbia Green Saturday afternoon about 2 o'clock. The child was killed when the car in which she was riding and which was operated by John W. Manyak of 60 Bodwell street, Hartford, figured in a crash with a roadster driven by Dona Thibeault of 16 Lee street, Putnam. Mrs. John Manyak and her mother, Mrs. Anna Klecha, of 9 Lilac street, South Manchester, sustained cuts and bruises and were overnight patients at St. Joseph's hospital. Thibeault suffered a bruised leg and C. W. Frink of 30 Oak street, this city, riding with Thibeault, sustained a cut on the nose.

Manyak was proceeding easterly toward Norwich on the Jonathan Trumbull highway and Thibeault was driving northerly from Durham to this city on the Hebron-Willimantic road. The machines collided practically at the center of the intersection at Columbia Green and were badly damaged. The little girl was riding in the rear seat of the Manyak car with Mrs. Klecha. The top of her head was partially severed by broken glass. Dr. G. Percial Bard of Stafford Springs, medical examiner, viewed the body and gave permission for its removal to South Manchester.

Manyak is held under bonds of $1,000 on a technical charge pending the outcome of an inquest which Coroner John H. Yeomans of Andover will conduct into the fatality Monday. Deputy Sheriff Harvey S. Collins of Columbia conducted a preliminary investigation in conjunction with State Policeman Charles Hill of the Stafford Springs barracks who was sent to take charge of the case.

The Miller child leaves her mother, who is a sister of Mrs. Manyak; a brother, Walter, and a sister, Felicia, all of Manchester.

Columbia Selectmen Act

The fatal accident at Columbia was one of three to occur on Connecticut highways Saturday, the second day of New England's "Save-a-Life" campaign, which this state has endorsed. Impelled to action by the fatality, which came as a sequel to a series of minor and serious accidents at Columbia Green since the completion of the Jonathan Trumbull highway, the selectmen of the town today secured the services of Raymond Clark to direct traffic at the intersection. It is planned to maintain an officer there until a suitable traffic signal has been installed.

TWO HURT IN ACCIDENT ON MAIN STREET

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 3.—Mrs. Bertha B. Thompson of 123 Pleasant street, and her brother-in-law, John P. Thompson of 20 Crosby street, East Hartford, were injured in an accident on Main street, opposite No. 1225, at 5:50 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when the sedan in which they were riding and which was driven by Mr. Thompson, was sideswiped by a machine driven by William H. Nichols, 59, of South Willington, an alleged drunken driver. Thompson was proceeding toward this city when he noted the Nichols' car approaching in a dangerous manner from the opposite direction. Thompson pulled his car to the curb but was followed there by Nichols who swung sharply over and drove into the left side of the Thompson car, badly damaging the fenders and body. The left front wheel on the Nichols car collapsed. Mrs. Thompson was treated at St. Joseph's hospital for a fracture of the right wrist and bruises on the left arm. Mr. Thompson suffered a deep laceration on the left arm. He was discharged later in the evening but his sister-in-law remained at the hospital until today.

Nichols was placed under arrest by Officers Roderick Lariviere and Arthur Hurley on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor. He was released today under bonds of $200 for his appearance in police court Monday.

Scenes of the days when the "boys in khaki" boarded trains for the Mexican border and again for the World war in 1917-'18 were recalled at the railroad station here Saturday forenoon. Beginning at 9 o'clock four troop trains containing national guard regiments of the state passed through the city en route to the two weeks' encampment at Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass. With nothing but enjoyable camp life ahead there were no parting tears in a crowd of over 300 people which gathered at the station to watch the troopers go through and to bid "happy days" to Campany C, 169th Infantry, of this city, which boarded the third section. Over 2,000 enlisted men and officers were aboard the trains.

Company C, 62 enlisted men and three officers strong, marched from the armory over the footbridge to the station, under command of Captain Ellison S. Smith and Lieutenants Edward A. Morrison and Arthur J. Caisse. Company C occupied one of the head coaches in the third section which was composed of 9 passenger coaches and four baggage cars. Charles Gates, son of Sheriff and Mrs. Charles A. Gates, arrived here from a four weeks' military course at Fort Adams, R. I., a citizens' military training camp, in time to join his fellow members of Company C for the trip to Camp Devens. Private Gates received permission to leave the training camp to join the local unit.

The handling of the four trains and the shunting of baggage cars in the local yard was done in good time. The train movements were in charge of Agent Harry A. Blanchette and some of the officials of the Hartford division of the New Haven railroad.

JEWETT CITY MAN BREAKS LEFT LEG IN ACCIDENT

DANIELSON, Aug. 3.—Roy H. Ford, of Jewett City, was the victim of one of the few major motor vehicle accidents that have happened in eastern Windham county on Sundays during the present summer season. Ford had his left leg broken in two places this morning while riding on a motorcycle operated by Ernest L. Loranger, also of Jewett City.

The motorcycle with the Jewett City men on it was running between Moosup and Sterling when a Peerless roadster operated by John D. Dorsey, of Lynn, came shooting around one of the sharp corners on this snake-like road and crashed with it. Loranger escaped without injury, and the ocupants of the roadster also were uninjured.

State Officer James Carmody of the Danielson barracks, after checking up the accident, ordered Dorsey to make a court appearance. The big roadster was practically without brakes, it is said, and the driver was unable to stop it or avoid a collision when he saw the motorcycle coming sweeping around the curve. Dorsey is at liberty under bonds.

Earl Bassett, Ira A. Warren and Charles Hale returned this afternoon from a motor trip through the White Mountain region.

A matter of regret to his number of friends here is the death of John William Whittaker, 29, of Nasonville, R. I., where he was the owner of the Western hotel, an estate succeeded to after the death of his father, a little less than two years ago. Mr. Whittaker was buried following funeral services held Saturday afternoon, at Nasonville. He died at a Providence hospital after a serious illness of more than a year. He leaves a wife and child. Mr. Whittaker was in the country's naval service during the World war.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. W. J. Davis.

Mrs. Emma L. Davis, 58, widow of William J. Davis, died this morning at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. She had been in failing health for a long time. Mrs. Davis was born in Killingly, August 12, 1872, a daughter of William A. and Maria Hubbard Hiscox. She lived all of her life in this town, having been a resident of South Killingly. She leaves two sons, Edwin C. and Frank W., and a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy L. Cross. The body was brought to the A. F. Wood funeral home here.

Irving W. Davis of Broad street probably enjoys the distinction of being the first Danielson motorist to have his car checked up in the Save-a-life campaign that is spreading through the New England states. This whole proposition is predicated on the need of keeping a car in high class operating order. Mr. Davis voluntarily submitted his car for a checkup in Providence. The brakes were checked, the steering gear and tires inspected, lights looked over, registration scanned and the car given a test at 40 miles an hour to measure the efficiency of the brakes. The car having met all tests, Mr. Davis now possesses a windshield sticker setting forth the efficient manner in which his car is maintained.

Some of the old-timers who were in the Yankee division during the World war decided very promptly Saturday morning upon looking over the special train carrying the 102d infantry to Camp Devens that mighty small minority of the present personnel of the great regiment was anywhere around when it was chopping its way through France, and, incidentally, being near to anihilation itself back in the World war days. The veterans who watched the youthful faces in the car windows here Saturday morning looked at them adrimingly, and then casually gave them a rating as "kids." So, too, someone reminded a veteran or two, were the boys who went over in 1917 "kids"—kids that went across an ocean to write a glorious page of history for the United States. Many of the old 102d never saw their native land again, but sleep beneath the poppy fields of France.

The present "kid" regiment has a glorious tradition back of it, and probably would add to that glry if such an unfortunate thing as another war should start.

Chief John McFarland was interested today in establishing the identity of the owner of the car, New York registration, that dashed off from near where it had been parked at the Longo building early last evening, after a police dog with the car had rushed and bitten Vernon Beube, a little resident in the Quebec section of the West Side.

A man, a woman and a dog were near the car when the incident happened. The boy, bitten in the side, immediately started to cry. Chief McFarland says that his information is to the effect that neither the man nor the woman showed much interest in anything other than getting away from there. They bundled the dog into the car and rushed off. A bystander took the number of the car, and Chief McFarland will use it to fix responsibility for the affair.

Last call! Deposit in our savings department today and tomorrow, and receive interest from August first. The Windham County National Bank.—adv.

Edgar Mathieu, Dayville, was reported today as having regained consciousness at the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam, and realizing for the first time his surroundings since being badly injured when he fell off the rear end of an ice truck on which he was riding, and working at Goodyear, several days ago. Mr. Mathieu has no recollection whatsoever as to how he came to be injured.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward expects to leave this week for Boston, to enter a hospital for treatment. Judge Woodward has been in poor health since early spring.

Mrs. Mary Griffiths, mother of F. E. Bitgood of Broad street, and resident at his home, will observe the 100th anniversary of her birth on August 31. She rates among the meagre number in eastern Connecticut approaching that great age, or ever having any hope to do so.

"Hello, Jack Dowe," barked an officer standing on the steps of one of the coaches of the special train bearing the 102d infantry to Camp Devens as it slowly pulled into the railroad station here Saturday morning. "Jack" Dowe, an overseas veteran of the World war, in the 103d field artillery of the famed Yankee division was being greeted by Capt. Wallace Moyle of New Haven, a buddy at Brown university when they both stepped out and enlisted, back in 1917. In all the years since they had not seen each other until John M. Dowe, the "Jack" of the incident, stood on the platform of the railroad station Saturday morning watching with considerable fascination a troop train moving along.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Montie and their daughter, Faith, have returned from Lynn, Mass., after a visit with their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harry MacQuarrie. Mr. and Mrs. MacQuarrie and their son, Norman, returned with Mr. and Mrs. Montie to spend several weeks.

All savings deposits made on or before the 5th will draw interest from August 1st, at 5 per cent. Deposit regularly, and you'll be surprised to see how quickly your account will grow. The Danielson Trust Company.—adv.

Mrs. William Herrington of North Main street has gone to Chelsea, where her husband is a patient at the Naval hospital, and recovering from an emergency operation for appendicitis performed the past week. Other relatives were in Chelsea today to visit with Mr. Harrington.

Concrete work will be in full swing this week, it is promised, on the Wauregan-Danielson highway. The end of August will see this work far advanced, provided no unexpected difficulties are encountered.

First Selectman Charles A. Tillinghast was with his family at Misquamicut over the week end. The family is remaining there during August.

The last of the members of the Medical detachment, special troops of the 43rd division, left here today to motor to Camp Devens, where the boys will remain for two weeks, getting annual field training.

Major General M. B. Payne, ranking officer of the 43d division, was in Danielson for a short stay Saturday morning while motoring to Camp Devens to take command.

Some sort of a nut was reported from several quarters over the week end as found loitering on verandas of homes in the Broad street section and other adjacent streets. He's a good runner, too, and does run when people with nerve enough give chase. He may be harmless, but rates just another summer nuisance.

Rating a hazard to traffic, it has been suggested that the old trolley station at Elmville be removed, as it no longer serves its original purpose. It is set just right to block the view of motorists coming out of the East Killingly route into the burdened trunk line between Danielson and Putnam.

There will be business for the town court Monday morning as the result of arrests for fighting, breach of the peace and such offences over the week end.

The Putnam police have as yet received no orders to stop the Massachusetts and New York cars which go through here equipped with the new 32 candlepower head lamps which are now being used in those states. The maximum allowed in Connecticut is 21 candlepower and the head lamps from Massachusetts and New York are not legal.

The new baseball field in Pomfret is being dedicated Monday by a baseball game between the Putnam Independents and the Pomfret town team. This should be a good game as they have already played two games and each have won one. The St. Mary's Boy Scouts band will be there to give a concert before the game and to play between the innings. The field was donated to the ball team by Charles Swain who also went to quite a bit of expense to have the field improved and install bleachers and a backstop. The first ball of the game will be thrown out by Mr. Swain and a large crowd is expected to see the dedication.

JEWETT CITY

ROUTE IN RHODE ISLAND NOT SO EASY TO FIND

Four local men were in Newport, R. I. Friday, desirous of making the trip to this corner of Griswold, by way of the new Mt. Hope bridge. Included in the party, were two retired men, a man who is temporarily unoccupied and the chauffeur. The combined knowledge of the quartette, as regarding the twists and turns of the desired trip, was decidedly nil. A wayfaring man, who claimed complete knowledge of the lay-out, offered his aid. And he drew a map of the route, right into Providence. One of the four, a pathfinder of parts, took possession of the chart, climbed into the front seat with the driver and proceeded to take charge of the advance.

The map appeared to be O. K. and looked good, but imagine the consternation of the navigators when it was straightaway discovered that some heartless wretch had evidently moved the street signs all around. As was a mean thing to do, and, moreover, the same person had transferred Bristol and Warren and changed the big bridge end for end. The speedometer showed that the machine had covered 30 miles or so in going from Newport to Providence, with many authorities declaring that it is some miles less than that.

Leaving Providence, one of the posted ones of the party, proposed to guide the ship to safe port in the borough by way of Apponaug, R. I. Let no man vaunt himself that he knows a strange highway, because he has been over it once. There are seven keys to Apponaug, the guide had the entire bunch, and he pointed to this road and then to that, each of which he declared to be right. After finally gaining entrance they circled around the streets of that town, like lost travelers in a swamp, trying to get out of it. Finally, when hope of escape was ebbing past, the driver, who didn't profess knowledge of the locality, saw a sign which read "Moosup". Then to add horror to the situation, there stood a big board sign beside the road that read "East Greenwich, one mile." Finally passing scenes began to look familiar, with home in sight. All the maps and charts, with expert information thrown in, didn't amount to Hannah Cook, alongside of the directions that were given the four mariners, by a little snip of a red-headed chap, about three feet high who rode on the running board of the big Packard.

T. Thurber, vocal solos, "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen" and "Springtime in the Rockies", by Carl Anderson, with Mrs. Anderson accompanist.

Worcester Car Abandoned

An automobile, stolen from a Worcester, Mass gasolene plant, the property of John Campbell, was abandoned on North Main street during the week-end. Two men, somewhat the worse for liquor, were seen to leave it by a passer by. Later when reported to officer Henry Vegiarde, the pair could not be located. From the information gained by the numbers, the owner was found, coming here and driving his car away. Automobile thieves in Worcester seem to meet their undoing here. This is the third car stolen in that city that has been returned by the local police. One other, also taken from the same town, went through the "S" curve bridge at Tadpole, when the driver failed to make the turn. They left the car hanging over the railroad tracks and escaped.

The sixth full-sized heat wave of the summer struck this town Sunday and ran the mercury up to 97 at 1 p. m. for the record. While humanity sizzled, there was some relief in the fact that the humidity held to normal. This area is badly in need of rain. While a bumper crop of hay is in the barns as a result of wet weather in May and June, farmers are confronted with short potato crops, that are maturing actually in the dust. One farmer said Sunday that his corn was "rolling" badly during the scorching heat of the day, but that so far it was smoothing out during the cool nights. When these lower temperatures fail to unroll the sheaves, then, he said, corn is going backward.

The petitions were circulated by Samuel M. Prentis and Robert L. Tate, president and secretary, respectively, of the league. The league has endorsed each candidate and will use its influence in attempting to obtain the election of each, and as the organization has over 2,000 members it would not be surprising if the league emerged victorious when the elections are held next month.

BAD ACTOR CHAS. KRIESWKI ESCAPES FROM CHESHIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 3—Charles Krieswki of New London, whose parents reside at 11 Congdon street, escaped from the reformatory at Cheshire this afternoon and a request of the police throughout the state and the state police has been made to keep a lookout for the youth. Kriswki, who is about 1, five feet two inches in height, brown hair and sallow complexion, was sentenced from the superior court in May 129 for highway robbery. Kriswki was arrested in April 19, 1929, but only after he had been brought down by a bullet from the revolver of Patrolman Dennis Murphy. Kriswki and a companion the same afternoon went to the grain stre, corner of Mill and Winthrop streets at the point of revolver, attempted to hold up the proprietor, Fred Simpson. The latter made his escape through a side door and running to a house communicated with the police, for a holdup had been perpetrated the night before. Every available officer and a dozen state police officers were rushed to the East New London section and it was learned that the two holdup youths had fled to the Central Vermont railroad yard. The officers finally detected Krieswki and his companion lurking among strings of freight cars and when they realized that the officers were hot on their trail, they started to run. One of the crooks was captured beneath the network of girders of the Thames river highway bridge and Krieswki was captured only when he was fleeing through the yard and getting away from his pursuers, for Patrolman Murphy opened fire and the bullet lodged in Krieswkis leg.

SERVIDIO'S HEAVY PENALTY TEACHES RESPECT FOR LAW

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 3—Albert Servidio, proprietor of a drinking resort at 50 Goshen street, until last Wednesday, when he was arrested on a charge of violation of the liquor law, keeping with intent to sell, illegal possession and reputation, also on a charge of breach of the peace, was in the police court Saturday. Servidio was represented by counsel, but that could not save the speakeasy proprietor from severe penalty for it was only a month prior to his arrest the past week that Servidio was in court on a charge of violation of the liquor law. He was fined $400 and costs and ordered to discontinue business. Because of Servidio failing to do as he was instructed, also because of his having attacked and beaten two of his customers, Servidio was meted out the most severe penalty imposed by the court in years. Judge Daniel M. Cronin fined him $200 and costs on each of two charges and on the third charge a fine of $100 and costs was imposed. On the breach of the peace charge a fine of $100 and costs was given and Servidio was sentenced to 20 days in jail. Servidio's arrest was the direct result of a fight in his speakeasy between the proprietor and Charles Cliver and George D. Booker, sailors. Cliver and Booker, arrested on charges of breach of the peace and intoxication, were not penalized for their cases were nolled.

Tried to Steal Car

Willis E. Clark, U. S. Coast Guard, was charged with tampering with an automobile. The police are of the opinion that the sailor is one of many bluejackets who engage in stealing cars or taking cars without the permission of the owner. He was fined $10 and costs. Clark was at Ocean Beach at 2 o'clock Saturday morning and he went to the parked automobile of H. Beck, of Hartford. Clark was endeavoring to start the engine when detected by the owner, who notified Sergeant John Courtrey and Patrolman John Sullivan, who arrested the sailor.

Stanley Sylvia, charged with parking an automobile in restricted area on Bank street, did not appear himself in court and his bond of $2 was forfeited. Walter B. Lucy, U. S. Coast Guard, also charged with an automobile law violation, had the charge nolled, Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer ordering the discharge of the driver. Lucy was arrested by Patrolman George Laboue for passing an automatic danger signal at Bank and Howard streets. In two other cases, for intoxication, both men were given suspension of judgment.

LASHINGS OF HOOCH GATHERED IN BY RAIDERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 3—Another drive was conducted by the police Saturday for the purpose of penalizing the proprietors of booze resorts and as a result four arrests were made. Motorcycle Officer Thomas Cavanaugh and Patrolmen Joseph Sullivan and Frank Linehan raided the residence at 106 Golden street, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Juliana and a search of the building revealed a quantity of whiskey and alcohol beneath a flight of stairs. Mrs. Juliana was arrested on two counts of violation of the liquor law, keeping with intent to sell and illegal possession.

At the home of George Montrelli, 57 Warren street, Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey and Patrolmen Dennis Murphy and Louis Wheeler seized the largest supply found at any of the resorts raided, for much whiskey and alcohol were seized. Montrelli has been in the liquor business several years, but he had never before been arrested for the offense.

Timothy Dyer, 25 Moore avenue, long the proprietor of a drinking resort was arrested by Sergeant John Courtney, Automobile Patrol Officers Clarence Martin and George Cockell and Patrolmen George Bruhns, Henry Sylvia and Frank Philopena. A large quantity of liquor and alcohol was also found in the place. Dyer, like Montrelli, had never been arrested. The raid upon the Dyer residence was the result of numerous complaints made to the police because of liquor being sold there and owing to the large number of men and women and automobiles going to the resort at all hours of the night and early morning. The three men and woman furnished a surety on their respective bonds of $1,000 for their appearance in court Monday. DENIES INTOXICATION— PAYNE APPEALS FROM FINE

Lemuel Payne, colored, employed at the Connecticut College for Women, was presented in the police court Saturday charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. He pleaded not guilty, but the testimony introduced was of such a convincing nature that Judge Daniel M. Cronin fined the Negro $100 and costs. Payne gave notice of appeal and provided a bond to assure his appearance at the next term of the court of common pleas.

Payne denied the charge and claimed to have been absolutely sober. He was arrested several weeks ago when the roadster he was driving and in which was Mortimer Jeffers, also colored, of 52 Belden street, ran wild on Ocean avenue. When between Faire Harbour place and Lawrence Memorial hospital, the automobile side-swiped a car that was motionless on the side of the highway. The roadster then crashed against a Cadillac auto, driven by Michael Longo, of 76 Washington street, Norwich, which was preceding the Payne auto, both being headed for Ocean Beach. After the crash with the second machine, the roadster continued across the avenue and hit a telephone pole on the hospital grounds. Jeffers was hurled to the ground and sustained a fractured skull. Jeffers was discharged at Lawrence Memorial hospital Saturday.

Norwich Man Careless

Sigfried Polkowski, R. F. D. No. 3, Norwich, was arrested by Motorcycle Officer Carlos Stone Saturday night, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in passing an automatic danger signal. He will explain in the police court Monday.

The police rounder up a bunch of vagrants on Water street Saturday, six in all, but two of the gang were ordered discharged by Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer. The others, John Cavanaugh, Arthur Mahon, John Dillon and Joseph Kelly, will be in court Monday. The gang were arrested by Motorcycle Officer Carlos Stone and Patrolmen Cornelius Moriarty and George Laboue, and was the result of the police to rid the city of its coterie of unemployed and of the character of men, who obtain liquor although they will not seek work.

Earl Fain, United States Coast Guard, a member of the crew of the destroyer Wilkes, and Alvin Smith, a member of the crew of the destroyer Downes, were arrested in Groton Friday night by State Police Officer John Smith, charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. Smith started from the barracks to go to his home about 11 o'clock and when nearing Broad street, on Thames, the officer observed the sailors annoying a young woman resident of Thames street. When the girl quickened her steps the sailors did likewise and attempted to engage her in conversation. Becoming frightened, the young woman ran to her home. Then Fain and Smith were arrested. They were locked up at the Groton police station for the night and Saturday procured a surety on their respective bonds of $50.

OBITUARY

George Vergason

George Vergason, 74, died Saturday at Spicer home, Groton, where he had been an inmate for eight years. He had been ill about a year and had been confined to his room continuously during his long illness. Mr. Vergason, who leaves no near relations, formerly resided in Groton borough and for many years, lived alone on a house boat, north of the old ferry slip.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel Saturday ordered the reinstatement of the driver's license of Volney Johnson, submarine base.

A regiment of Rhode Island National Guard, that had been encamped at Fort Wright, Fishers Island for two weeks, returned to Providence Saturday, coming to New London by transport and then boarding a special train of 11 cars. A half hour after departure of the soldiers a Massachusetts regiment arrived by special train and went to the island fort for a stay of a fortnight.

A motor vehicle trailer, in passing through Main street, Saturday morning, collided with a traffic beacon at the corner of Church street. Although the beacon was moved several inches, it was not damaged.

THE GREAT DROUGHT

The great drought of 1930, described by the department of agriculture as the worst the country has experienced since the compilation of state-wide weather records began, forty or fifty years ago, is entering upon its ninth month. Back in December some sections were beginning to bewail the lack of moisture. In March the dry weather was taking in more territory. It was an unusually dry spring with forest fires and grass fires throughout the country, while many farmers were forced to plant their seed in dust, if they planted it at all. In the growing months of June and July the drought was made more extensive and serious by blistering heat that extended across the country, scorching the cities, withering crops, drying up the streams. If August lives up to its traditional dryness, many of the country's crops will fall short of their average yield.

Already corn has been seriously damaged, with estimates of the reductions ranging from 50 to 200 million bushels. The cotton situation is becoming critical in a few states, although the drought, by helping check the boll weevil, has offset part of its own damage. Winter wheat was hardly affected by the dry spell, but spring wheat is beginning to show serious deterioration. Connecticut and other eastern states escaped the early effects, but now crops in this section are beginning to show damage, and forest fires are again becoming a menace. With little relief in sight except for scattered and occasional showers and with the dryest month in the year just beginning, the worst drought in fifty years may set a record that will stand for fifty or one hundred years.

BANKRUPTCY PRACTICE

President Hoover has requested the department of justice to make a nation-wide investigation of the operation of the federal bankruptcy law, which is a move that has been under way for some time. Interest in it has been increased by disclosures that a bankruptcy ring operating in the New York district had reaped an enormous harvest by means, which, while nearly always within the letter of the law, involved in some cases the operation of an alleged conspiracy to seize and loot businesses that by prudent management might have been saved. The New York disclosure resulted in the disbarment of several lawyers and in providing federal authorities with information about schemes to use the law to perpetrate frauds.

In his letter of instruction to the depatrment of justice, President Hoover estimates that "losses through bankruptcy in the last five years exceed $3,000,000,000 and are now averaging $750,000,000 a year. The department of justice has estimated that in 75 per cent of bankruptcy cases there is a loss so heavy that creditors get less than ten per cent of the liability." This has resulted in a refusal by creditors to exercise their privilege to take over the business, and brought into the process lawyers and others whose principal asset is political influence or personal relationship. Neither factor would, of course, influence courts actuated by a desire to make the most of the law, and equipped to make thorough investigations.

Involved in many bankruptcy cases is the question of whether the bankrupt is an honest man who gave his best efforts to paying his debts, but failed for any one of a number of lawful reasons. It is the policy of all countries to relieve such men of their obligations and leave them free to rebuild if they can find the way. Frequently, however, the privileges extended to the honest but unfortunate business man are utilized by other to defraud creditors. It has been shown that some men make a business of bankruptcy. The president's object is the collection of data for guidance in recommending to congress that the whole bankruptcy practice of the country be changed to protect creditors. All established business organizations will applaud the move as a plan to eliminate losses that now must be added to the cost of all commodities which are, of course, borne by the customer.

SUPPRESSED TRUTH

It is no very enviable light that the management of Camp Zakelo stands as it becomes known to what extent they suppressed the truth of the tragic death of Al Lassman. Under a mistaken sense of protecting its own interests, the camp management permitted and even encouraged, or did nothing to correct, an impression to go abroad that was a rank injustice, and makes the effort at secrecy seem especially reprehensible in this case. By failing to tell the whole story the camp permitted the spread of the belief that the young man who lost his life not only had no official connection with the camp, but that he even might have taken his own life. On the other hand he died in an heroic attempt to save three of the boys for whom he was camp counselor.

It is now too late for the camp to make amends for the damage it has done, but it remains for the management, with what grace it may, to make such a full and complete statement of facts that belated justice may be done to the memory of a man, whose life won the respect of those who knew him and whose manner of death enshrines him in a high place of courage and devotion. This unfortunate affair should serve to give notice to all institutions which have large groups of children in their care that it is not the decent or sportsmanlike thing to do to attempt to conceal from parents the facts which they have a right to know. Camps, colleges and schools should understand that suppression of vital facts cannot be justified on any grounds of public or self interest. Suppressed truth makes mighty uncomfortable ammunition against those to blame for concealing the facts.

NOT WITH PUBLIC MONEY

The novel proposition arose in Nebraska that the state should make reimbursement to depositors in state banks that have failed, but the supreme court of that state has made the ruling that this cannot be done, holding that the law passed by the legislature is invalid as it is unconstitutional to take money belonging to one class of citizens to pay the claims of those of another class. "Clearly it has not yet come to pass," remarks the court, "that the state, in its supervision of the banking business, has become an eleemosynary institution."

Yet there are many persons who seem to look upon both the federal and state government in this light. The export debenture was planned to be a gigantic donation party for the benefit of the farmer. Government production of power and fertilizer at the expense of the public funds, and to be sold at cut rates, would be another. The demand for universal old-age persions involves the same conception of the government as a charitable institution with unlimited resources, ignoring the fact that the money it has comes from the pockets of the people. The amount which the Nebraska legislature had appropriated for reimbursement of bank depositors was not large, only $260,000, which would not have been a serious drain upon the state treasury. But the public money may legally be expended only for public uses of general benefit. The Nebraska supreme court declares that recompensing bank depositors is not one of them.

UPSWING IN SAVINGS

The beat of the savings bank pulse shows that the expected upturn in savings has definitely arrived, on the basis of the deposits for the first six months of this year in mutual savings banks which hold more than 30 per cent of all savings in the banks of the United States. According to figures submitted by the individual banks to the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, there was a gain in the period named of $273,766,807, which was a larger gain than in some of the six-month periods before deflation began, and is especially significant because there was a decrease of over $82,000,000 in the last six months of 1929.

Leading the nation in the gain in savings bank deposits between Jan. 1, and June 30 was New York with $172,553,191 and Massachusetts was in second place with $49,239,371 increase, which made a pleasing contrast with the loss of $6,896,728 in the final six months of 1929. Connecticut stood well up in the list with gains of $24,110,969 and other key industrial states had the following gains: Pennsylvania, $10,465,155; New Jersey, $10,142,752; Maryland, $6,515,018; Delaware, $1,349,161, and Rhode Island, $1,338,756. In only five states were there recessions and the amounts were unimportant. The mutual savings banks act as the great depositories of the peoples savings and these had at the end of the half year total deposits of $9,145,891,859, which is the largest accumulation of small capital ever brought together by one class of banks anywhere in the world.

So much for what the people have done in showing their ability to lay aside money beyond their living needs. Now for what the savings bank officials have done towards safeguarding the money put in their care. It is a matter of special interest that the ratio of surplus to deposits increased in many states and for the country as a whole, despite the depressed security markets. This was made possible only by the exceptional class of investments that savings banks are permitted to make. Such an increase is looked upon as proof positive of the sound position of the savings banks. That deposits and surplus ratio should increase at such a time can be regarded as a somewhat remarkable achievement in the field of banking, for the savings institutions were the first source of funds for hundreds of thousands of depositors after the market went down, and have also helped the public materially during the period of unemployment. Under the new census about one person in ten is a savings bank depositor, an indication of thrift that is highly gratifying.

THE TURKEY PICKER

Tom deposited a huge brown paper parcel on the kitchen table and turned to embrace his wife.

"That," he announced, with a pleased grin, "is a turkey. Selected it myself, and didn't pay any of your ridiculous suburban prices for it, either. That bird was a real bargain. And furthermore, Mrs. Thomas Mason, I have asked Mr. Grant, the purchasing agent from the New York office, to come out tomorrow and help us eat it. I was telling him about getting the turk, and thought it wouldn't be a bad idea to let him see what a good buyer I am."

Leslie forced back a gulp. She was proud of the fact that Tom knew he need never hesitate to invite anybody to the house on short notice, or none at all, but really there were limits. Mr. Grant of the New York office, and a turkey—when she had never cooked anything larger than a chicken, cut into pieces at that! Well, a good word from Mr. Grant might do a lot for Tom, and turkeys were but chickens of a larger growth, she reflected gamely.

"That's fine, Tommy," she managed to say cheerily.

"Well, I'll just park all this plunder out on the back porch, where it's good and cold. Got five quarts of cranberries too, for about 3 cents a quart less than Johnson soaks you for 'em," he added with the experienced air of the efficient 'provider."

"Well, honey," said Tom the next morning after breakfast, "guess I'll take a run over to the clubhouse and then go to the train to meet old Grant. Can't you come along?"

"No, thank you. It's going to take most of the morning to fill up your turkey with stuffing. You run along and leave us alone together."

"I'll carry him in for you before I go,' volunteered Tom. "Gee, I'll say he's a whale. Want me to unwrap him for you? Seems to have a couple of reams of paper around him."

"Just cut the string and leave him as is," directed Leslie.

Left to herself, she proceeded to denude the turkey of his wrappings. As she laid the paper back, her nostrils began to work slightly. She leaned closer and took a deep sniff.

"Well, well, this is fine, Mrs. Mason," glowed the guest, seating himself at the prettily-laid table and fixing his eyes on the finely browned turkey which Tom was preparing to carve. "I've heard a lot about this bird. I'd say by looking at it that Tom knows a good thing when he sees it."

Leslie smiled her best hostess smile and Tom swelled with gratification.

"And I'd say by tasting it that he's and A-1 turkey picker," Mr. Grant continued genially after the first mouthful.

"Oh, yes. Tow knows his turkeys." There was that in Leslie's tone which made the two men look at her amusedly.

"The wife's a little jealous because I beat her at her own game," Tom explained behind a facetious hand.

Replete with self-satisfaction and turkey, Tom drove his guest to catch the 5.15 train. He was whistling jovially when he came into the kitchen on his return, to find Leslie finishing the washing of the dinner dishes.

"That turkey deal certainly made a hit with the old man," he chuckled. "He believes in young men knowing where their money goes and all that. Guess I'll have another nibble at the bird." He strolled toward the ice box on the back porch. "Hey, what the devil's this?" His foot striking a large brown paper parcel thrust into a corner of the tiny porch.

"That, Mr. Mason," said Leslie brightly, "is a turkey—the one you went and selected yourself and invited Mr. Grant to eat. Take a sniff at him," she invited cordially.

Tom sniffed. "Whew-w-w. No wonder the fellow put all the paper in the shop around him. But say, Les, what—?"

Leslie looked up into his lengthening face and put her finger under his chin in a way she had.

"Poor old Tommy," she said. "Poor old turkey expert. After I got one whiff of your wonderful bargain I wrapped him up again and threw him out there on the porch. Then I called up Johnson and told him I simply must have a turkey within half an hour, Sunday or not. He rushed over and opened his shop and had a turkey here in twenty minutes, and everything was, as one might say, jake. But if you think your dutiful wife didn't put some pressure on herself when you were swelling up over being the champion turkey picker—"

"Mrs. T. Mason," interrupted Tom, abjectly. "I take off my hat to you. But"—his crest began to rise again—"I'll say this for myself. I may not know much about picking out turkeys, but I'll tell the world I know how to pick out a wife."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—Senate veterans concede that David Reed of Pennsylvania is able to state a case in debate about as well as any member of that body.

His is a natural gift for logical and orderly arrangement of argument. But they also have observed that in the give-and-take of debate on the floor, Reed often makes some sharp tongued retort that usually serves to give his sanatorial opponents a new loophole of attack.

"I have labored with him often over that," one republican leader said to the Bystander, "but it did no good. Reed just can't help it."

The Pennsylvanian's crack months ago about the "so-called ethics of a so-called profession" in reference to senate press gallery activities toward reporting closed executive sessions, proved to be loaded with unintentional dynamite.

It probably had more to do with abolishment of closed executive sessions than any other thing. Maybe that was a good result, maybe bad, but it certainly was not what Reed was trying to accomplish.

Coming down to the naval treaty row in the senate, Reed was the main reliance of the administration in the drive for ratification. As a member of the delegation to London, he was expected to render a good account of himself and he did.

But as usual, his tongue broke discipline. It snapped waspishly at the navy admirals who opposed the treaty as "those admirals who see so much of Washington and so little of the sea."

Thus he gave Oddie of Nevada, naval committee opponent of the treaty, a great opportunity. And the Nevadan seized it avidly.

It was "most unfortunate, to put it mildly," Oddie said, that either Senator Reed or Secretary Stimson talk in "a light and disrespectful vein" of the senior officers of the navy.

And by way of meeting Reed's remark head-on, Oddie called the roll of admirals and other naval officers who had opposed the treaty before the senate committees and also gave their years of total naval service and the number of those years spent at sea.

It is an imposing record, shaping up like this:

Admiral Hughes, 45 years in the navy, 26 at sea; Admiral Bristol, 46 in navy, 31 at sea; Admiral Chase, 43 with 23 at sea; Admiral Hough, 42 with 21 at sea.

Admiral Day, 41 with 25 at sea; Admiral Pringle, 41 with 21 at sea; Admiral Reeves, 39 with 21 at sea; Captain Johnson, 34 with 17 at sea; Commander Train, 24 with 12 at sea.

YOUR HEALTH

Periodic Health Examination Of Women

By Frederick S. Wetherell, Syracuse, N. Y.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute, Washington, D. C.)

The writer was struck, recently, by a statement made by a physician regarding a woman patient of his, who had come to him for a health examination. He stated, when asked as to the condition of his patient's organs of reproductions, that he had not made such an examination because, if he had, he would likely not have seen her again. This state of affairs is undoubtedly, existent in many instances, and is merely a remnant of those days of false modesty, which many think are gone forever. Surely, organs which are so susceptible to malignant disease as are the organs peculiar to women alone, should have as careful an examination as is given to the heart and lungs.

This sort of examination will be made, when the women of this country insist on it. Only in this way will early diagnosis be possible in cancerous conditions, and early diagnosis and treatment give the greatest hope of cure.

Men, more than women, it seems, falling in line for periodic health examinations, and yet, women are much more susceptible to certain malignant conditions than men.

Fear of being told that a cancer has begun, keeps many women from seeing a physician until the disease has advanced to a stage where treatment can be only palliative. As soon as it is generally known that "Early" and "Cure" are synonymous in cancer, women will overcome that fear and many cures and happy lives will be the result. Most women know that irregular bleeding is not a natural thing, but few insist on a definite diagnosis being made by their doctor as to the cause of this bleeding. To arrive at a diagnosis often means taking a small amount of tissue away for microscopic examination, which can be done in the large majority of cases without anesthesia, and without disabling the patient.

When women realize the value of a yearly examination and insist on a complete examination, many extremely early diagnoses of cancer in its curable state will be made. It is encumbent on women and organizations of women to spread this idea to all corners of our country. There should be no fear of early diagnosis.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jim Crow Redeems Himself

No one is all black, you know;
This is true of man and crow.
—Old Mother Nature.

Mother Brown pretended to be disappointed that Jim Crow had returned. She pretended that she wished that, having gone away with the other Crows, he had stayed away. But if the truth were known, right down inside she was glad to see him back. She had missed him. He was a mischievous scamp; nevertheless, he was an interesting one.

"There's one thing about it," said she to Farmer Brown's Boy, "and that is that on washday he must be shut up. If you want to keep that Crow, you've got to promise to see that he is shut up early Monday morning and isn't allowed out again until the washing has been taken in. I certainly will not stand for having the clothespins pulled and the washing dropped on the ground again."

For several days after his return Jim Crow was on his very best behavior. Yes, sir, he was so. He didn't get in any mischief at all. He followed Farmer Brown's Boy everywhere. He was so glad to be back that he had to talk about it all the time. As he rode around on the shoulder of Farmer Brown's Boy, he talked Crow-talk continually and Farmer Brown's Boy was certain that it was all about how glad he was to be home again.

"White grubs are pretty bad this year," said Farmer Brown, "and the worst of it is, there isn't much we can do about it. There is the fourth one I have hoed out in the last ten minutes."

He was just about to crush it with his hoe when Jim Crow hopped down from the shoulder of Farmer Brown's Boy and snatched up that white grub. In a jiffy it had disappeared. Then what do you think Jim Crow did? He began to walk sedately at Farmer Brown's heels. His sharp eyes snapped. And every time that Farmer Brown dug out a white grub, Jim Crow was right on had to snap it up. Then he followed Farmer Brown's Boy for a while. The surprising thing was that he discovered many white grubs that neither Farmer Brown, nor Farmer Brown's Boy, saw until he pulled them out.

All this Farmer Brown watched with considerable interest. Finally he spoke. "That Crow may be a nuisance at times," said he, "but he certainly has redeemed himself this morning. I've been watching him. Not only has he been eating those white grubs, but he has been pulling out cutworms. Any bird that will hunt white grubs and cutworms deserves respect. I knew there was some good in Crows, but just what that good was I didn't know. That is, I didn't know to what extent they were good. I suspect that those Crows that live in the Green Forest do a lot more good than we have any idea of."

"Of course they do," replied Farmer Brown's Boy. "They have a lot of bad habits, but they have a lot of good ones too. I guess that, all in all, they do about as much good as they do harm. If only they didn't destroy the babies of other birds, they would be all right."

"Caw, Caw!" said Jim Crow, as if he understood.

"There's one thing about it, and that is that it is only in the nesting season that they do this harm," continued Farmer Brown's Boy. "The rest of the year they do no serious mischief that I know of and they probably do a lot of good."

"Caw, Caw!" said Jim Crow, and with a quick side motion he snapped up a cutworm.

"I wish Mother Brown could see what Jim Crow is doing," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "Perhaps she will feel better about him then. Perhaps she would feel more kindly."

Farmer Brown chuckled. "Don't you worry about her," said he. "She may pretend that she dislikes Jim Crow, but it is all pretense. However, we'll tell her how Jim Crow has been helping us this morning."

Stories That Recall Others

Dry.

Ed has some farm interests in the southern part of the state. The other night he was routed out of bed by a long distance call from his tenant.

"Ed," he said, "I thought I'd better call you up and tell you that the well's gone dry."

"Well, what do you want me to do—send you down a bucket of water?" retorted Ed, and he slammed up the receiver.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut.

Waterbury Button Company

The Waterbury Button company was formally incorporated in 1849 and was a combination of the button making activities of Aaron Benedict and Gordon W. Burnham, of which concern Aaron Benedict in 1812 started the manufacture of buttons and later to rolling brass. The button end of the Benedict & Burnham Co. combined with Festus Hayden & Sons in 1847 and was incorporated under special charter as to what is known today as the Waterbury Button Co.

This was practically the first plant recorded in the United States then devoted exclusively to button manufacture. During the war of 1812 pewter buttons were made for the U. S. army & navy, the buttons first being cast and later being finished on a lathe. In fact the Waterbury Button Co. had the distinction of first making use of an iron lathe brought into the Naugatuck valley. This interesting piece of equipment is at present on exhibition at the Mattatuck Historical society and furnishes a most interesting bit of antiquity for comparison with the present day wonders of the modern machine room.

Throughout the subsequent years from the date of its inception, the Waterbury Button Co. has manufactured buttons for use by the army & navy in every war that the United States engaged in. The pewter buttons were rapidly superceded by brass buttons as Waterbury became more and more engaged in brass manufacturing. In fact, it was to demand for brass buttons that Waterbury owes its present industry today. Brass casters were imported from England under extremely difficult conditions for such brass manufacturing.

Gold was plated on such buttons as required the precious metal for insuring wearing quality and gold is still the most important ingredient in the manufacture of buttons. In fact the phrase "Blue coat and brass buttons," is really misleading as practically every blue coat has a button with some sort of gold plating on it. The plate being heavy or light as determined by the price obtained for the button itself.

During the 1849 incorporation the first officers were John S. Mitchell, president and treasurer, Benjamin F. DeForest, Jr., secretary Henry H. Hayden as agent for the company and the directors were Gordon W. Burnham, Henry H. Hayden, J. S. Mitchell, B. DeForest, Jr., and J. C. Booth. Other names well known to the brass industry and at one time connected with the company as directors were A. E. Chase, Bennett Bronson and J. Richard Smith.

While the company was engaged primarily in button manufacture up to the beginning of the 20th century it has since that time added numerous other lines and today button making constitutes really the minority of its manufacturing. In keeping with the trend of the times it has branched out into the making of moulded electrical goods, pocketbook hardware, street car tokens, toys, mirror fittings, etc. It has sales offices in all of the larger cities of the country and also has an office in Toronto, Canada, as well as foreign representation through sales agents in this country.

The present officers are: Ralph H. Smith, president and treasurer; Herman W. Baer, assistant treasurer; W. F. Kaynor, secretary and general manager; W. P. Bryan, vice president.

A PICTURE NO ROBOT CAN PAINT!

ONE cannot produce art without feeling. Hence the inadequacy of mechanical rendition of music as a substitute for Living Music.

Life—glamour—excitement are fundamental requirements of the theatre. There is drama in the artist's struggle to please and in the emotional response of the audience.

Music supplied this life, this human contact for the motion picture theatre, until the coming of Canned Music.

The purely mechanical theatre represents the climax of a new spirit in the theatrical business, one that takes the docility of the patron too much for granted.

Millions of theatre patrons object to this and are voicing a demand for Living Music in the theatre by joining the Music Defense League. It is your right, also, to vote on this cultural issue. Sign and mail coupon.

POETRY

Fields at Evening

They wear their evening light as women wear
Their pale, proud beauty for a lover's sake,
Too quiet-hearted evermore to care
For moving worlds and music that they make.
And they are hushed as lonely women are,
So lost in dreams they have no thought to mark
How the wide heavens blossom, star by star,
And the slow dusk is deepening to the dark.
The moon comes like a lover from the hill,
Leaning across the twilight and the trees,
And finds them grave and beautiful and still,
And wearing always on such nights as these,
A glimmer less than any ghostly light,
As women wear their beauty in the night.

If you have a task
That ought to be done
But don't see the way,
Get on with the work,
Don't grumble nor shirk
Do it today.

The bill that you owe
And daily forego,
But know you should pay,
Promptly clear off the debt
Before you forget,
Do it today.

The kindness you'd do
If you only had time,
But simply delay,
Resolve not to wait
Until it's too late,
Do it today.

The word of good cheer,
Optimistic and clear,
You think you would say,
Give a greeting worth while,
A hand-shake and smile,
DO IT TODAY!
—Grenville Kleiser, in Detroit Free Press.

AIRMAN IS AWARDED $1,500 IN COMPENSATION

According to an award filed by Compensation Commissioner Albert J. Bailey in superior court here, S. Chase Coale, Jr., of Berlin, Conn., an employe of the Red Wing Flying service of Ware, Mass., is given compensation in the lump sum of $1,500 in full and final settlement for injuries received on May 2, 1929. He sustained an injury to his leg while in the employ of the Red Wing Flying service and sought compensation, but the flying service contended that Commissioner Bailey had no jurisdiction in regard to this matter, as the flying service did not come within the provisions of the compensation act because they did not employ five or more employes. If your boy or girl cries out in the night, tosses about constantly or has frightened dreams—beware of worms. They are much more common than most mothers think.

TEAMS IN CITY LEAGUE FACE SEVERE TESTS DURING COMING WEEK

The second round of play in the City league slipped by last week and with it the most hectic five days of baseball the local loop or any other circuit in the vicinity has ever witnessed. During the past week the fans were thrown into a turmoil with the variety of incidents that cropped up, and as a result attendance figures went high above any previous week in the history of the circuit. Good, bad and indifferent baseball, legal technicalities, protests, counter-protests, arguments, so-called demonstrations and, last, but not least, a shakeup of the league standing all were jammed into the week.

What the next week has to offer remaining to be seen, but one thing is certain, interest in the league will remain at a high pitch now that the fever heat stage has been reached.

As the pack goes into the third and last lap the Thermos Bottlers lead the field by a slim margin of one game, being dogged by the Royals and Polish Citizens. Had the league arbitrators allowed the Ideal-Thermos game to stand, as it was finished, instead of calling it a 4 all tie, the three leaders would have entered the final lap in a dead heat. However, the affair is still on the fire and who knows but that the governors may recognize Tony Bernard's counter protest and allow the original score to stand.

The official standing, with the game in question a tie, is as follows:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Thermos	7	2	.778
Royals	6	3	.667
Citizens	6	3	.667
Italians	4	5	.444
Ideals	3	6	.333
Smoke Shop	1	8	.111

The coming week is another busy one for the leaders, the Royals, Citizens and Thermos being billed for two games apiece. The schedule, which follows, reveals that one of the contending clubs will be in action every night of the week. The schedule for the week and the remainder of the season follows:

Monday—Italians vs. Polish Citizens.
Tuesday—Thermos vs. Smoke Shop.
Wednesday—Royals vs. Ideals.
Thursday—Thermos vs. Italians.
Friday—Royals vs. Polish Citizens.
Aug. 11—Smoke Shop vs. Polish Citizens
Aug. 12—Italians vs. Ideals.
Aug. 13—Royals vs. Thermos.
Aug. 14—Italians vs. Smoke Shop.
Aug. 15—Polish Citizens vs. Ideals.
Aug. 18—Royals vs. Smoke Shop. (playoff.)
Aug. 19—Thermos vs. Ideals.
Aug. 20—Royals vs. Italians.
Aug. 21—Smoke Shop vs. Ideals.

PIRATES GIVE CUBS SETBACK IN PENNANT CHASE

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Pittsburgh took another reef in the Cubs' hopes of overhauling the Brooklyn Robins, slugging out a 12 to 8 victory in the final game of the series today.

The Cubs got away to a big start and led by 7 to 4 when the Pirates went to bat in the eighth. Charlie Root blew up in that session and his successors, Fred Blake and Bud Teachout, were unable to halt the rally until eight runs had been scored. Erv Brame was hit hard by the Cubs but stuck it out.

Al Bool, Pirate catcher, kept up his home run streak, getting one to make it four in the three-game series. Hack Wilson also got his thirty-fifth circuit drive of the season.

PUBLIC LINKS BOYS TAKE LICKING FROM OLD MAN PAR

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 3—(AP)—Old Man Par had the best of the golfers' shooting practice rounds today for the national public links tournament, opening here Tuesday.

The best 18 hole score of the day was turned in by a local entry, Curtis Bryan, who went one over regulation figures with a 3.

Carl Kauffman of Pittsburgh, champion for three years, found the going hard on the greens today, and his best 18-hole score was a 79.

There will be 114 golfers on hand for the team matches Tuesday.

The first two days' play will be by the various teams represented for the Warren G. Harding cup, won last year by the New York City team. The next three days will be match play for the James D. Standish, Jr., cup.

CHOCOLATE-BERG BOUT TOPS WEEK'S BOXING CARD

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The ebony kid from Havana, Eligio Sardinias, otherwise known as Kid Chocolate, faces the hardest test of his career at the Polo Grounds Thursday night when he tackles the Whitechapel Whirlwind, Jack (Kid) Berg.

Unbeaten as an amateur or professional and held to a draw only by Joe Scalfaro in his first big-time bout, the 23-year-old Havana Negro will be conceding something approaching ten pounds to one of the toughest of present-day battlers. The match was made at 133 pounds but Berg, by the time he enters the ring, probably will scale close to 137 pounds. Chocolate is not expected to make more than 127 pounds and perhaps even less.

A master boxer and a hard hitter to boot, Chocolate rates as one of the ring's outstanding attractions, but he will need all his cleverness and punching power to halt Berg, a whirlwind dervish on the attack. Most of the betting to date has been at 6 to 5 with Berg on the long end.

Supporting the ten round feature bout will be two other ten rounders, one bringing together Babe Joe Gans, Los Angeles, Negro welterweight, and Eddie Murdock, Tulsa, Okla., and the other putting Eddie Mack, sensational Denver lightweight, against Sammy Dorfman of the East Sde.

The only other outstanding bout on the metropolitan district card is a ten rounder, already twice postponed because of rain, between Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y., Negro, and Tommy Grogan, Omaha, lightweight, at the Queensboro Stadium Tuesday night.

Fidel Labarba, of Los Angeles, former flyweight champion encounters Earl Mastro, Chicago featherweight, in the feature ten rounder at the Chicago Stadium Thursday night.

Maxie Rosenbloom, of New York, light heavyweight champion in the eyes of the New York State Athletic commission, takes on Willard Dix, of Bellingham, Wash., in a ten round nontitle affray at Oakland, Calif., tomorrow night.

Other bouts on the national schedule include:

Monday—At New York, Dexter park, Harry Ebbets, Freeport, N. Y., vs. Nick Palmer, New York middleweights, 10; at Boston, Braves field, Dave Shade, New York, vs. Joe Anderson, Covington, Ky., middleweights, 10; at Portland, Ore., Herman Ratzloff, Minot, N. D., vs. Sam McVey, New York, middleweights, 10; at Louisville, Babe Ruth, Louisville, vs. Cecil Payne, Louisville, featherweights, 10; at Toledo, Louis Carpentero, Toledo, vs. Ollie Bartlett, Detroit, bantamweights, 10, and Richey Mack, California, vs. Johnny Conley, Toledo, lightweights, 8; at Dayton, Ky., Joe Lynn, Terre Haute, Ind., vs. Jimmy Neal, Cincinnati, lightweights, 10.

YANKS RALLY IN EIGHTH TO WIN FROM ATHLETICS

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A six run rally after two were out in the eighth settled the issue in favor of the Yankees over the A's by a score of 9 to 3.

Rube Walberg kept the Yankees well in hand in the early innings, but blew up in the eighth when Lazzeri's triple with the bases full started a six run rally that clinched the game.

The A's hit Pipgras hard in the early rounds, taking a two run lead, but he tightened up in the late innings and with good support kept them from scoring.

Babe Ruth hit his 40th homer in the fourth, putting him 10 games and 19 days ahead of his record. Pinch Hitter Summa hit the only other homer. The score:

DETROIT, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The Tigers made it three in a row over the Chicago White Sox by taking a 4 to 3 decision today.

Waite Hoyt went the route for Detroit. All of Chicago's runs were scored on home runs by Reynolds. His first came with none on base in the sixth, and his second after Watwood doubled in the eighth.

In the sixth he doubled, went to third on another sacrifice by Stone and scored the winning run on Funk's single. ROTARY TEAM PLAYS I. Y. M. C. JUNIORS TONIGHT

The Rotary club will endeavor to keep its slate clean in the Junior league tonight, when it meets the Italian Young Men's club. The Italians have been going strong of late, tying the Elks last week in a close 2 to 2 game and should give the Rotary a good rub. Caron will no doubt pitch tonight for the Rotary club, while the Italian club will probably rely on Wilk, their star southpaw, to hold down the Rotary. The game is scheduled for 6:30 p. m. sharp.

All is quiet along the baseball front tonight.

The heat has been the topic of discussion for the past 24 hours as much as we'd like to forget it.

Some of the most inane questions asked yesterday were: "It's a hot day, isn't it?" or "Is it warm enough for you today?"

It's bad enough to be slowly frying to a crisp without having some friend asking you how you like the weather and if you can keep warm.

There ought to be a law against these people who ask these fool questions when there's only one answer.

But what's the use of talking about it, they'll ask these questions and all we can do is answer: "Yes, ain't it."

The best answer to one of these questions regarding the heat was given by one of the boys in the office. A man from up in the country calls up and asks the boy who answers the phone: "How's the weather down your way?"

The boy snorts with disgust and yells into the phone: "Hot as Hell?" and he hangs up.

PHILLIES TAKE TWO GAMES FROM BRAVES

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The low standing Phillies turned around and took a double-header from the Braves here today, 11 to 5, and 4 to 1, after having dropped two games to the Tribesmen on Saturday.

The cellar occupants took a liking to the southpaw slants of Tom Zachary in the opener and bunched their hits in the second game against Bob Smith, although they were outhit 10 to 7.

Davis nicked Frankhouse for a home run into the left field bleachers in the ninth inning of the nightcap and Sherlock's general play in the initial contest was sensational. The score:

NEW LONDON ELKS TAGE GAME FROM THREAD CITY TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 3—The New London Elks boys team defeated the local juvenile outfit by a score of 5 to 4 in a game played in a broiling sun at Recreation park this afternoon. Each team scored three runs in the first inning, New London scoring again in the third and the local boys in the fifth. The game went nine innings when the Whale City lads brought in the winning run. After the first inning the game developed into a pitchers' battle with Gonzales, New London, and Monreau, of this city, in the boxes.

The feature of the game was a high-line one-handed catch by Petchark, visiting shortstop. Silvia, of New London, was leading hitter with a triple and a single and Fatkowski of Willimantic, was next with a double and a single.

New London made seven hits and five errors and Willimantic five hits and three errors.

PELOQUIN-LAVIGNE BOUT ON WEDNESDAY ATTRACTING CONSIDERABLE ATTENTION

With only two days remaining before their bout at Martin Field on Wednesday evening Rene Peloquin of Danielson and Young Lavigne of New London are reported in the best of condition. Peloquin has been training hard for this bout and reports that he will come in at 122 pounds to give Lavigne one of the best goes of the young sailor's career. Peloquin is completely recovered from the injury which has kept him out of the ring for a month or two.

Lavigne is in the best of shape and has been boxing regularly with great success which makes him a slight favorite over the Danielson boy in Wednesday night's engagement. Lavigne will scale slightly over the 120 pound mark, his best fighting weight.

Fans are looking to this bout as the best bout on a card of all stars bouts. Not that the other bouts will not be good but due to the fact that there is more local interest in these than the others as both boys are well liked in Norwich. The kids are scrappers and there will not be a dull moment while they are in the ring. They both have a tendency to stand toe to toe and swap punches with their opponents which should provide plenty of action for the local fight faithful.

Al Beauregard, New England bantamweight titleholder, faces a tough boy in the final bout of the evening when he stacks up against Lou Piquette of Bridgeport. This bout can be depended upon to be a mauling, slugging and battering fight as both boys know how to hit and are not afraid to take a few to get in one good blow. Beauregard's title is not at stake as neither boy will come in at the bantamweight limit. Piquette is the favorite by his verdict over Johnny Pena of New York who in turn gave Beauregard a painful boxing lesson, Piquette already has a decision over the local youngster who is out for revenge which means that Beauregard will fight to win.

For those who get a thrill out of hearing leather smack against flesh the Moore-Russo bout should be their dish. Moore, who holds a decision over the invincible Brouillard, is a boy who hits hard and when he hits they stay hit. Russo can punch in his own right as has been demonstrated by him during his bouts in this section.

Vic Darr, local favorite, returns to the ring in a six round preliminary against Julio Rossi of Westerly.

A four rounder opens the show.

TERRY GOES INTO SECOND ON BIG SIX HONOR ROLL

(By the Associated Press)

Except for Bill Terry and Babe Ruth, the Big Six had another bad day at bat yesterday. Terry found no trouble in Dazzy Vance's delivery and made three of the few Giant hits against Brooklyn as he made four trips to the plate. The blows moved him up three points in the average and put him into second place in the Big Six ahead of Frank O'Doul, who did not appear in the Phillies lineup. Ruth made only one hit, his fortieth homer of the year but he had only two official trips to the plate and lifted his average a point to .364. The leader, Chuck Klein, hit only twice in eight times up and dropped three points to .406. Lou Gehrig lost two points as he failed to hit in three times at bat while Al Simmons lost one by getting one hit in three tries.

VANCE BEATS HUBBELL IN YEAR'S GREATEST MOUND DUEL

BROOKLYN, Aug. 3—(AP)—The Robins won one of the greatest pitchers' duels of the year here today when Carl Hubbell walked Flowers with the bases filled in the ninth to give the league leaders a 1 to 0 decision over the Giants.

Previous to that, Hubbell had outpitched Dazzy Vance, who was in frequent trouble. Vance allowed eight hits, but pitched carefully in the pinches to shut out the New York team.

The Giant left hander allowed only three hits until the ninth, when Herman led off with a handle hit to left for two bases. Moore batted for Bissonette and sacrificed successfully. After Wright and Bressler were purposely passed, Hubbell got only one pitch in five over the plate to Flowers and Herman walked over with the winning run.

VELVETMEN TAKE LOOSE GAME FROM HARTFORD

In an uninteresting and loosely played contest, the J. B. Martin easily defeated the Hartford Twilight league stars, at Martin Field by the score of 10 to 4, Sunday afternoon.

Russ Fisher, J. B. Martin castoff, on the mound for the visitors, attempted for the 5th time this season to hold his former teammates in check, but he was met with the same fate that greeted him on previous occasions, the Velvetmakers found his offerings to their liking and pounded out 17 solid hits, six of which went for extra bases. The locals started the scoring in the first stanza, with one away Jarvis doubled, Liberty grounded out, Murphy got a hard smash over the left field fence for a home run, scoring Jarvis ahead of him, they scored one more in the second, three in the sixth and brought their total to ten by tallying four times in the eighth.

The Capitol City lads played loose baseball and were guilty of several costly misplays that figured greatly in the scoring. Corrall in left field for Hartford turned in a terrible exhibition of fielding, making three costly errors, being responsible for four of the Martin's runs.

Lloyd Jarvis contributed the fielding feature by snaring McKernan's bid for the circuit into deep center, after a hard run.

Krauss, Jarvis and Lemerix divided the hitting honors for J. B. Martin while McKernan carried off the laurels for Hartford. The score:

SHYMA CLUB WINS TWO GAMES OVER THE WEEK-END

The Shyma club continued its winning streak by taking both the games over the week-end, the American Legion team of Taftville and the Holy Name team of Jewett City being the victims. On Saturday the Shymas turned back the American Legion club, 2 to 1, in a close game featured by sterling pitching by Faucher and Paradis.

On Sunday Sammy Raymond pitched brilliant ball against the Holy Namers, winning 8 to 2 and allowing the Jewett City club but two hits. This is the first time that Raymond has been able to win against the Jewett City club in four years, having pitched against them in sixteen games. The scores:

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

"Notice how slim Clara Bow is getting?" "Yes, and did you see the new Clara Bow bob?" These are but a few of the many questions that excited move-goers are asking one another after having been to the Palace to see "Love Among the Millionaires," the picture in which the famous "It" girl stars and stars and loves and sings.

Clara does her stuff in this picture so realistically that many are wondering if maybe she hasn't stolen Nancy Carroll's handsome leading man, Stanley Smith, away from her.

In this snappy, breezy picture Clara is a perfect female ball of fire. We see her first as a waitress in a railroad restaurant, with a couple of the switchmen or telegraph operators or something wild about her. She gives them very little encouragement however, saving her heart until the right man comes along, and when he does—well, she had a lot saved up for him, and he certainly gets it.

She loved her new brakeman Romeo; she loved him and all the time he was no brakeman at all. He was the son of the railroad's president. Naturally when the big news broke around there was plenty of trouble. First of all the president wasn't going to have any son of his running around with a restaurant waitress if he could help it. Secondly the girl's father wasn't going to have any daughter of his running around with these rich muck-a-mucks if he could help it.

Clara goes into society; the parents get together, and presently everything is fixed. That is, it's almost fixed. The young couple themselves then decide to do a little heavy quarreling, and for a time it looks as if all of the loving and sighing is done for. But come and see. It's hard on certain types of eyes but nobody seems to mind the strain very much.

Broadway Theatre.

A world of men, with no woman within 2,300 miles. That's what Little America, the Antarctic city, built by the Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd South pole expedition, was during the 20-month adventure. Forty-two men cooked their own meals, mended their own clothes, built their own houses, and did everything for themselves necessary to carry on life.

This world, in which daring achievement and adventurous courage were the necessary requirements for existence, is one of the most romantic ever seen. The film-record of the expedition, "With Byrd at the South Pole," which is the current attraction at Warner's Broadway, is a true-life picture of what took place. It is probably one of the most thrilling entertainments ever screened.

EXPANSION OF BUSINESS PREDICTED DURING THE REMAINDER OF THE YEAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—(AP)—The wheels of industry were being oiled and tested last week for August is the month of normal seasonal quickening. It has marked the turning point in several depressions of the past and business is preparing for the best, in the hope that it has seen the worst.

With the quarterly reports of the two leading steel producers were issued statements last week expressing the opinion that production would expand during the remainder of the year. The statement of the finance committee of U. S. Steel gave no indication as to the scope of the expected expansion, and President Grace of Bethlehem, explaining that things "look a little better," added, "very little."

Analysis appearing from important banking sources at the turn of the month were non-committal but mildly optimistic. The National City bank found reason to believe that production had been consumption in many lines during recent months, and that increased production would be necessary to take care of consumer demand in the near future. The Guaranty Trust company survey pointed out that "business in the future will not be stimulated by the urgent need for post-war rehabilitation that has been such a powerful influence in the past decade, and indicated that this significant factor must be considered in any appraisal of future prospects.

Commodity prices were still under pressure in spots, but on the whole, continued to display more steadiness than during June.

The weekly reports as to retail trade during the week varied. Bradstreet's concluded that both retail and wholesale trade were quieter, but Dun's decided that retail trade was somewhat better. Freight car loadings as reported for the week ended July 19, showed some gain over the previous week, but were lowest for the like period in any year since 1922. The weekly failures reports were a little more pleasing and the petroleum statistics were again more favorable.

TWO MEN WERE KILLED IN DERAILMENT OF TRAIN

VERNON, Texas, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Two men were killed and 11 persons injured today in the derailment of a Fort Worth and Denver passenger train at an under-pass at Oklaunion, eight miles east of here.

Direct cause of the wreck was attributed by officials to a truck driven by Arthur Cummings, said to have dislocated the track in passing through the under-pass. When the truck's load failed to clear the structure, Cummings ran up the embankment and vainly attempted to halt the train.

Leaves Golf Game to Bobby; Home and Children Her Career

Mrs. Bobby Jones leaves golf to her husband — home and their two children are her career.

ATLANTA, Aug. 3—(AP)—The wife of the world's greatest golfer doesn't play the links game and doesn't have any desire to play.

For Mrs. Robert T. Jones, Jr.,—Mrs. Bobby to Atlanta—home, Bobby and the two little Jones are her career.

The children are Clara Malone, 3, and Robert Tyre III, who has just learned to whistle.

Slim and dark, with the beauty and wit of the Irish—she was Mary Malone—she knows more about the game in which her husband excels than many so-called experts. But she admits her playing experience has been confined to "three or four lessons."

As for Bobby's triumphs, tumultuous welcomes and the world's most highly prized trophies, the best part of them is coming home, she says.

"Where did I first meet Bobby?" She pauses a moment and muses:

"Someone in New York asked me that—and it is funny, but I really do not know. It was about the time we were both in high school though. We celebrated our sixth anniversary in Liverpool."

She, like Bobby, is a native Atlantan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Malone. In school and college, then into society, she was one of Atlanta's most popular girls—and still is.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Unchildlike

Julie is only six but she regards the world with a suspicious and resentful stare. She expects the worst of everyone. Other children are her natural enemies.

Grownups are an alien race to be thwarted, outwitted or brazenly defied if necessary. Julie, in short, hates everybody and as far as she can see practically everybody returns the compliment.

Julie has had a bad break. Since the advent of her younger sister she has been pushed aside. There was in her home apparently not enough love to go round — and Helen got it all.

Unintelligent management has made the worst of these faults born of jealousy. Julie's is the unfortunate temperament whose unhappiness expresses itself in the sullen resentfulness that alienates sympathy because it is so "unchildlike."

There are two things necessary for such a child as Julie. The first is to give her some evidence of the love and tenderness she craves. She needs to know that someone genuinely cares for her, and expects of her the friendly and cooperative response that one always expects of a proper child.

She needs to be set up in her own mind as a dear, good child who always wishes to do what is right.

She needs too, of course, the firm handling that admits no conflict of wills, that commands obedience by its quiet assurance.

Unfortunately the Julies of this world are misunderstood, and mishandled because they are unattractive and superficially, at least, unlovable. Their resentfulness arouses antagonism. Met by harshness, they respond with defiance.

They are almost certain to go from bad to worse unless some interested person,—some sympathetic influence calls out the happier elements of their natures.

FLAT FUR NECKPIECES TAKE CRAVAT FORM

PARIS, Aug. 3— (AP) —Flat scarves of fur are an important phase of between-season chic as visualized by Paris.

White ermine with insets of black flat fur make interesting cravats for wear with the semi-tailored black suits which are a definite early autumn style.

Many of the ermine scarves have loops of actual bowknots at the center back. They are the dressier type, meant to accompany afternoon dresses.

EDGE'S SUMMER HOME ONCE KING'S LODGE

VILLE D'AVRAY, France, Aug. 3—(AP)—The Chateau de la Ronce here, former hunting lodge of kings of France, is the unofficial American embassy in France this summer.

Ambassador Edge, Mrs. Edge and their children are making the most of its beautiful gardens, outdoor swimming pool and tennis courts.

The chateau is a quarter of an hour from the embassy in Paris, by fast automobile. The ambassador makes the drive morning and evening and likes to refer to himself as a regular "commuter."

Under New Education Theory.

FOREST PARK, Ill., Aug. 3—(AP)—June Helleman, of this place, will be the first American girl to enter the school which Baroness Monica von Miltitz will open this fall in her German castle.

June is 17 now, and was just graduated from high school. At 14 she was contributing to newspaper columnists' "columns" under the pen-name "Versatile Virgin."

At the baroness school traditional educational methods will be discarded and intensive courses given in social sciences, literature, history, art and music, with winters in Dresden and excursions in the summers.

College Teaches Child Care

STILLWATER, Okla., Aug. 3—(AP)—Oklahoma mothers are going to school to learn how to care for children. A course for mothers at Oklahoma A. and M. here has 28 students.

DIPLOMAT'S WIFE TAKES U. S. QUARTETTE ABROAD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—(AP)—Premier Mussolini is to hear a quartet of American musicians, taken to Italy especially for privae concerts by Mrs. John W. Garrett, wife of the American ambassador to Italy.

The musicales will be given in the romantic setting of Villa San Michele on the Mediterranean which the Garretts have taken for the remainder of the summer.

The premier will be invited to the villa, which has been loaned the American ambassador by Dr. Axel Munthe, the author.

The members of the Musical Arts quartet, who have been house guests of the Garretts in Baltimore for several weeks past are: Mrs. Marie Rosannos, Sascha Jacobsen, Paul Bernard and Louis Kauffman. All their expenses on the trip abroad will be paid by the American ambassador.

Washington and Baltimore society has enthused over their concerts given in the little theater at Evergreen House since the Garretts arrived in Baltimore for a brief stay about six weeks ago.

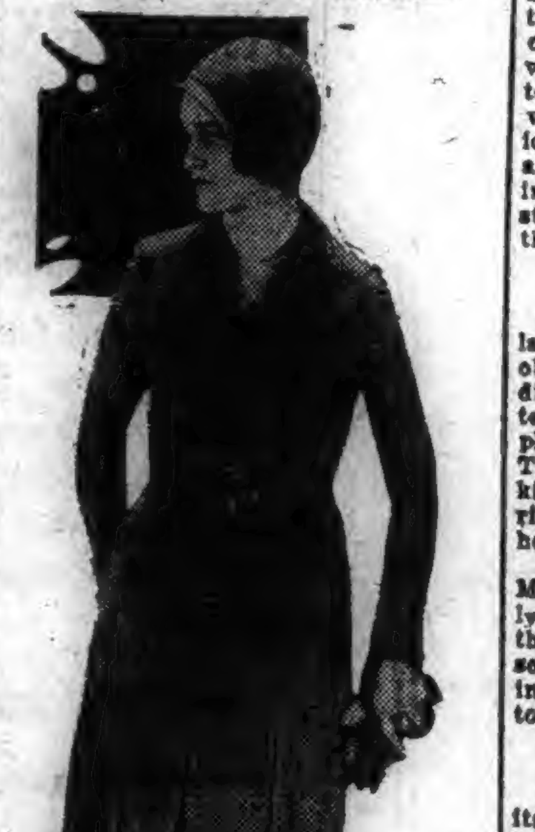
Probably the greatest mutual interest of the Garretts is music. It marked their first meeting. Mrs. Garrett went to Berlin to study music when a young girl and met her husband, then secretary at the American legation.

WINTER VELVET HATS COPY SUMMER BRIMS

PARIS, Aug. 3—(AP)—Winter hats which duplicate the lines of summer shade hats in velvet are conspicuous among advance models here.

Shallow crowns and wide brims characterize much of the velvet millinery.

Early Fall Fashion



By MME. LISBETH

ONE OF THE smartest of early fall modes now showing is the strictly tailored dress with straight lines belted at the normal.

The one pictured is fashioned of a soft woolen fabric with buttons for trimming. The skirt is given fullness by inverted pleats.

Colors for fall frocks are stated as, black for the most prominent, with browns, black-red, black-purple, etc., next in line.

Prizes totalling $200,000 are to be awarded at a world grain exhibition in Regina, Canada, in 1932.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

An excellent baiting for the rat trap is bread soaked in linseed oil.

To make fruit jars air-tight, dip the tops in melted paraffin after sealing in the usual way.

Wash oil paintings with warm milk and water. Rub very gently. Then dry them without rinsing.

If a drop of vanilla is added to each cup of cocoa after pouring it will greatly improve the flavor.

A drop of shellac applied to each hole and left to dry will mend agate and tinware.

When the door sticks at the top, rub over the swollen portion with a little yellow soap and the annoyance will stop.

Save bacon rinds and use them for flavoring various dishes such as lima beans and dried peas, or for flavoring soups.

Paint the kitchen drawers with a hard white enamel and they can be cleaned very readily. Or, cut a piece of oilcloth to fit the bottom of every drawer.

Plain omelets may be baked on waffle irons. Put two tablespoons of omelet mixture into a heated iron and cook about two minutes.

Berries can be kept fresh by pouring them out of the basket into some receptacle where the air can circulate freely through them. They will keep twice as long.

If too much salt has been added to cooking food, stretch a clean cloth tightly over the vessel and sprinkle one tablespoonful of flour over the cloth. The flour will absorb the salt if allowed to steam for a few minutes.

If decalcomanias do not stick readily to painted furniture, first go over the parts to which they are to be applied with white shellac. Let the shellac dry before applying the designs.

Use eggshells to wash bottles or vinegar cruets. Crush them fine, put them into the cruets with warm, soapy water and shake well. This will clean the finest glass without scratching it.

COAT ECONOMIES

The separate jacket for wear with several frocks is a more economical choice than the dress with its own coat. Now you may see jackets in the shops developed in velveteen, shantung, jersey, flannel, chamoisette and a variety of other materials. And did you know that the little gray wrap of velveteen may be worn with the sports frock as well as with the evening gown?

DANCE FROCKS

Whether you're tall and slender, petite and pleasingly plump, or happily medium, you may find a silhouette that suits you among the many that are good for evening wear. Long slender lines that depend principally on cut for interest, demure puff sleeved, ruffled frocks that break the line of the figure, or bouffant frocks that billow gracefully away from the ankles are equally important and are seen in equal numbers on the dance floor.

LAUNDRY HINTS

When ironing braid use several thicknesses of Turkish towels. Place the braid face down on this and iron the back of the braid.

When through using the wringer, take a piece of cloth and wet it with kerosene. Rub the rollers well and they will be as clean and white as when new. Repeat every week after washing.

To remove tar stains from wash fabrics, scrape off all that is loose, then rub over with salad oil or melted lard and let stand for 24 hours. Wash in warm soap suds.

New silk stockings will last longer if they are washed before using them. Be sure that no soap is left in the silk. They will wear longer if washed immediately when removed from the feet as perspiration rots the silk. Dry white silk stockings in the dark to prevent turning yellow.

LAUNDRY CUTS

During hot summer months you will find your laundry pile cut perceptibly if you get one of the new waterproof table cloths or luncheon sets. They look like dull, heavy linen, come in attractive colors and patterns and do not look in the least like oilcloth though they wipe off quite easily.

TO CLEAN PAINTED WALLS

After trying many methods and materials for cleaning painted walls I found the simplest and most effective solution on my kitchen shelves. In an ordinary bowl moisten one heaping tablespoonful of baking soda with enough household ammonia to dissolve and add one cup of water to mixture. Dip cloth in the solution and rub over wall space within easy reach, wash off cloth wrung from clear water. Go over entire wall space in this way. The dirt disappears as if by magic. Do not try to wash too much space at a time, using plenty of clean water in rinsing, and your walls will not be streaked but will look almost as though they had been freshly painted.

WHY HOT WATER HELPS

Why is hot water more desirable for laundering than cold? As you may have observed when you cook solid matter dissolves much more easily as the water grows warmer. This principle applies not only to foods, but to dirt. That is one reason why soil and most kinds of stains are washed from fabrics more readily in warm water or hot water than in cold.

The same principle applies to soap. Most soap forms a lather more quickly in hot water than in cold, and it's the suds that do the work. Save on soap and hot water and you are taking much of the burden of washing on to your own shoulders.

BRASS BED

If the brass bed is beginning to show its age and is dull and tarnished, polish it with a reliable brass polish. Then go over it with brass lacquer, using a fine camel's hair brush. Let dry thoroughly before using the bed.

SWEET-GRASS BASKET

If the sweet-grass basket loses its fragrance and seems just like any ordinary basket, dip it in boiling water. It will bring back the delicate odor.

GUEST ROOMS

Whether you have one guest or many this summer, little things make all the difference in their attitude. Remember bedside lamps for those who can't sleep without reading, a box of note paper and pen, a few good books and magazines, a little fresh fruit in a pretty bowl. None of these cost much.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Many women are employed by the republic of Turkey in its secret service.

Club women and girls in Louisiana preserved food products valued at $369,108 in 1929.

A feminine "Robin Hood," known as "Marshal Chang," is a leader of a bandit gang in China which robs the rich to help the poor and needy.

Mrs. Victor Bruce, of England, assists her husband in motor speed races. They alternated at the wheel in a recent 12-hour event at a track in Brooklands.

Serving as postmistress under six presidents, or for a total of 32 years, is a record held by Mrs. Jennie Madden, of Tuckahoe, N. J.

A group of business women, clerks and stenographers, in London, England, recently threatened to wear trousers rather than submit to the dictates of fashion and don long dresses.

WHITEWASH

A small handful of alum and a pint of skim milk added to every bucket of whitewash will prevent it rubbing off on hands or clothes. Indeed, it makes it as permanent as distemper, and a wash over with clean water at the end of the year will leave it like new again.

CEILINGS

If ceilings have become black over gas brackets, dry, clean whitening rubbed on with a soft brush will generally remove the mark.

CHIPPED BEEF

Lowly chipped beef becomes a princely dish when creamed with pimento and chopped green peppers. Serve on triangles of toast.

HOW TO FILL A CAKE PAN

Cake mixture should come well up to the corners and sides of pans leaving a slight depression in the center. Cake will then be perfectly flat on top when baked.

PASTRY

Rapid cooling in a draft or in a cold pantry makes pastry heavy. If pastry is to be eaten cold, let it cool slowly in a warm kitchen.

OLIVE OIL

Olive oil should be poured from the tin can as soon as opened and placed in a glass container and then kept in the refrigerator. It will keep sweet indefinitely if this is done. But kept in the tin in a warm place it will soon become rancid.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Equal parts of rose water and lemon juice will help whiten the skin.

One of the best cosmetics known is buttermilk. Apply to the face and hands. The milk may be warmed but should not be boiled.

Stockings which are too short in the foot are very often the cause of ingrowing toe nails. See that both the stockings and the shoes are not too short.

To cure a headache soak a cloth in cider vinegar and apply to the head; keep it saturated, and rest in a quiet, dark room.

BEFORE GOING AWAY

When closing the piano preparatory to going away, place a piece of gum camphor inside. It will keep moths from getting into the felt.

IDENTIFICATION

Write your name in new gloves and rubbers to prevent them from being lost when left with others in a public place.

SCISSORS AND CORD

Think of the time saved if instead of having to hunt up cord and scissors separately one owned a small blue leather case containing a ball of cord with a pocket on the side for the scissors!

SLIPPING HEELS

If your floors are so slippery that you tend to skid while doing the housework, stick a strip of adhesive tape on the heels of your shoes.

PAINTED RADIATORS

When you are doing your rooms over in delicate, lovely colors, why not try painting the radiators to match? The government pamphlets state that paint does not lessen radiation. And colored radiators do fade into the general scheme of the room most beautifully.

Before applying your color, put on a good light priming coat. Then any inside paint will do the trick.

BLUE FOR BEACHES

And the blue is either a pale baby blue or a more brilliant turquoise. These two shades in shantung or jersey are the smartest colors for beach things this summer.

RIBBON BANDS

Various devices are followed to make the ribbon band on the summer hat interesting. Sometimes two bands of ribbons of two colors are looped together at the front side of the hat and the double strand of each color drawn firmly and smoothly to the back where the four ends are caught together in a tiny tight bow.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Blue shoes with a blue costume is the rule these days of sympathetic footwear.

Smart looking traveling coats are at their best when developed in a soft tone of green.

Tailored suits in dark washable fabrics are smart for town and travel. The edges of several of these are scalloped.

Raincoats are colorful, have zipper fastenings and collapsible hats to match—coming in either plain colors or patterns.

Opera pumps are the accepted thing for evening; these may have either a self bow, an ornamental buckle or be quite plain.

SPORT HANDKERCHIEFS

Sport handkerchiefs that are in very good taste for the masculine member of the family are of white linen with ships, golf, bags, etc., appliqued to the corners. The appliques are also of white.

TURQUOISE VOGUE

Turquoise jewelry is having its color rage, with black and with white or pastel costumes. The beads are set with rondels and silver clasps and strung into necklaces of two and three strands, chokers, triple strand bracelets and drop earrings.

BLOUSE IMPORTANCE

New blouses stress the changed mode more than any other single article of clothing. They are soft, very feminine, have waistlines and boleros, jabots, vestees and are trimmed with lace, buttons, ribbons, embroidery and hand tucks.

CHIFFON STARS

Tiny stars of gleaming white printed in a deep blue chiffon enliven a big handkerchief that tucks into the red, white and blue gros-grain belt of a white organdie frock striped with drawn-work.

TEA FOR TWO

A most delightfully intimate tea basket, just for two, is of wicker with oilcloth lining. It contains two cups and saucers, an alcohol kettle, two metal boxes for sandwiches, etc., knives, forks and spoons.

WHITE CLOTHES

To obtain very white clothes, put some liquid blueing in the soapy water in which the clothes are to be boiled. A little more may be used than in ordinary blueing water. Put in the clothes and proceed to boil them as usual, boiling for about 20 minutes or until most of the blueing is taken up, and the clothes will come out beautifully white. After this do not use any blueing in the rinse water. If it is necessary to dry the clothes where they will not get the sun this method is still more valuable.

TO PACK FLOWERS

When packing flowers for travel, lay them in a box one at a time and make several layers, the head of each lying just below that of the preceding one. Keep moisture in the box by having a layer of wet absorbent paper wrapped about the stems and a little sprinkle of water in the inside of the box. First of all line the box with wax paper.

UTMOST IN COMFORT

What appears at first glance to be a rather high square stool covered with green and yellow striped awning canvas resolves itself, upon further inspection into a comfortable mattress that unfolds to perform this trick. A strap of the canvas holds it together for carrying from spot to spot.

COLOR-FAST LINENS

Color-fast suits of linen are shown in the pastels and in black as well as white, and are guaranteed to be washable despite their very moderate prices. These are worn with blouses of sheer linen or dotted swiss.

RECIPES

Green Snow: Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-fourth cup of cold water for 5 minutes, then dissolve in one and one-half cups of boiling water. Add one and one-fourth cups of sugar, one-third cup of lemon juice and one-third cup of sirup from green cherries, then add a few drops of green mixture a shade darker than it will be when served. Cool until the mixture is of the consistency of thick cream, then add two stiffly beaten egg whites folded into the mixture with a wire egg beater. Pile into individual sherbet glasses and garnish with whipped cream and green cherries.

Prize Lemon Pie: Put through a flour sifter into the top of a double boiler one cup of sugar, two-thirds of a cup of flour, and a pinch of salt. Add gradually, stirring all the time, two cups of boiling water, and cook it over hot water until the mixture is thick and smooth and the flour tastes cooked, or for about 10 minutes. Pour it over the well beaten yolks of two eggs, return to the boiler to cook for a minute longer, then stir in one tablespoon of butter and half a cup of lemon juice. Pour it into a baked pie shell, add the meringue, and bake until the egg is cooked and delicately browned.

PARIS QUITS "FAKE" GEMS; REAL JEWELS OR NONE

PARIS, Aug. 3—(AP)—Style establishments continue to show jewelry of less than semi-precious order, but well-dressed women here are wearing it less and less.

Real jewels, nearly eclipsed a while ago by competitors which were frankly fakes, are again the apple of the well-dressed women's eye.

The genuine article in diamonds, rubies and pearls plays an important part in elaborate and formal toilettes.

Evening ensembles frequently combine real jewels in their scheme as, for instance, the brown georgette dress and wrap which a society leader wore at the first night of a new dance restaurant, as a sober background for a magnificent collar and bracelet of emeralds.

Paris prefers to leave its jewelry at home in the afternoon. The select few go in for almost jewelless afternoons, indulging at the most in a pearl necklace, diamond brooch or pair of diamond clips.

Jewelry is taboo, too, with the sportswomen. A simple bracelet worn above the elbow is the sportswoman's only ornament, according to ideas of the moment.

Ruffled Necklines Paris Favorites

PARIS, Aug 3—(AP)—Ruffled necklines remain favorites with Parisian women.

Smart necklines are frequently outlined with softly gathered or finely tucked width of the dress material.

Even black dresses are treated in this fashion. When a touch of white is desired the white ruffle is newest when placed beneath the black.

Labor Secretary's Wife Proud of Her Family of Five Little J's

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—If you met Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of Secretary of Labor Davis, on the street, you would, likely as not, whisper to your companion "Did you see what a pretty girl that was?" For Mrs. Davis, in spite of the fact that she is the proud mother of James, Jr.; Jane, Joan, Jean and Jewel, as the five little Davises are named, looks like a girl scarcely out of her teens, though James is now 14 years old, and is just at the stage where he plasters his curly hair, to make it look mannish and straight. James doesn't want even a kink left in it.

If all goes well at the November election, Mrs. Davis will exchange her title of "Wife of the Secretary of Labor, to that of "Wife of the Junior Senator from Pennsylvania," for Mr. Davis is a candidate and it looks as if he might be the winning candidate from reports reaching the Davis' here.

Mrs. Davis is one of the best dressed women in Washington. In the day time she is noted for her trig "tailor-mades," but for full dress she wears very beautiful evening clothes of the latest cut. She likes to entertain, and moreover she likes to have "the five little J's" in the drawing room throughout day time receptions, all sitting in a row on a big couch in the corner, though James, as befits a boy, sometimes leaves the social duties "to the girls," and sneaks off to play ball. The children all have lovely curly light hair, almost the same shade as that of Mrs. Davis.

Mrs. Davis is domestic, but also fond of political life and takes an active part in the campaigns of her distinguished husband. During the campaign he has just made for nomination for the senate, Mrs. Davis spent much time at the headquarters, and they do say her smile and her tact, and devotion to her husband won a lot of votes for him. The night of the primary Mrs. Davis was content to merely take forty winks, now and then, and kept her ear to the radio almost all the night through, getting returns as they came through on a special wire. The secretary is also devoted to his children and insists they be brought up unspoiled.

Women throughout the country, through organizations, are calling on the post office department to restore Martha Washington to her old place of honor, and put her back on the 4 cent stamp, a prestige which has twice been snatched from her.

At present former President Taft is the figure head of the 4 cent stamp, and as the women do not want to depose him, if it can be avoided they are also asking that Martha Washington be placed in the proposed bicentennial stamp for the anniversary of Washington's birth, to be nationally celebrated in 1932. That would make fitting recognition. No other woman has ever had the honor of representing the United States postage although Spain gave such honor to Queen Isabella. The women believe that with George Washington on the two cent stamp and Martha on the commemorative bicentennial stamp a tribute to women, and the progress they have made, and the big part they have played in the history of the nation would be only proper deference to the women citizens of the United States. The portrait of Martha Washington, in fichue and cap, first appeared in 1901, on 8 cent stamps; then she was dethroned, only to again appear in 1923. Now she appears only on reply postcards. And the women are not satisfied. The matter is now before the postmaster general, but no decision has been announced.

Of the eight women members of the house, three are grandmothers, but of that modern type which "knows no age." They are Mrs. Ruth Pratt of New York, Mrs. Katharine Langley of Kentucky and Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owens of Florida. Mrs. Pratt is a politician trained in the New York school of politics; Mrs. Owens is daughter of the late Col. William J. Bryan, and a chip of the old block, and Mrs. Langley is the wife of a well known Kentucky politician, and sister to the son-in-law of Senator Walsh of Montana. They may be grandmothers, but they don't look the part.

Mrs. Owens and Mrs. Pratt have bobbed hair, their clothes are always of the most up-to-date modern style, their manner conforms to the modern demands, and they play the political game man-fashion, with a give and take comradeship that has made them very popular with their colleagues. Mrs. Langley is quite a different type, but she, too, plays the game of being a member of congress, pretty much as she found her husband did. Mrs. Owens and Mrs. Pratt are above middle height, while Mrs. Langley is rather a diminutive lady, with very heavy black hair, which she wears in a big, becoming coil low down on the back of her neck. While Mrs. Owens and Mrs. Pratt favor black and white, Mrs. Langley admires dark reds, deep orange and other colors very becoming to her dark, but clear complexion. They all take great pride in being "grandmothers" and when daughters come to Washington to visit them, they swell with pride as they show off the young grandchildren to members of the house and senate.

NO TROUBLE TO OBTAIN DIVORCES IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Aug. 3—(AP)—There's no divorce problem in Russia.

Marriage consists of signing a registry book.

To obtain a divorce, one signs another book.

And it costs nothing, if one happens to be unemployed or a low-paid worker.

Only the well-to-do class, whose income exceeds 350 roubles a month and the so-called non-toilers, clergymen, traders, bulaks and craftsmen, must pay ten roubles, which is the highest fee.

The party obtaining the divorce is under no compulsion to notify the other person concerned. It is sufficient for a husband or a wife to send a written notice to the "Zags" or soviet registration bureau.

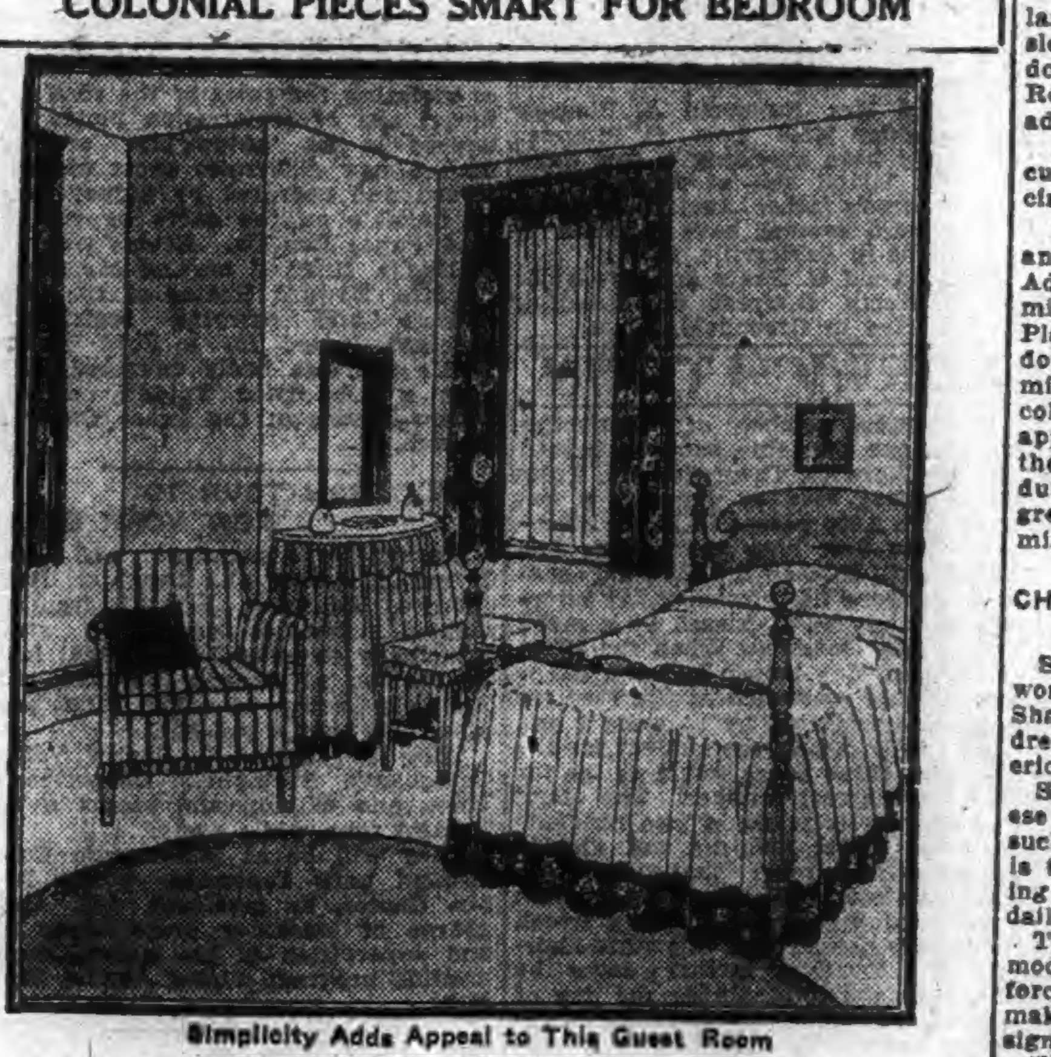
No questions are asked. The bureau sends a notification of divorce to the person affected. If the divorced couple is unable to come to terms regarding support of the children, if any, the case is decided by the courts.

Any property which belonged to the husband or wife before marriage remains his or hers after separation. Property acquired during years of married life is equally divided.

Where children are involved property is divided proportionally between children and parents.

The wife may retain her maiden name or adopt the name of her husband. The husband may adopt the name of his wife, or both may change their names and take a new one.

COLONIAL PIECES SMART FOR BEDROOM



Simplicity Adds Appeal to This Guest Room

By Elsie Drew Kennedy

To many people early American furniture represents the acme of their desire for smart pieces for the home.

One of the chief charms of colonial pieces, in addition to simplicity and beauty of design, is their complete harmony with modern decorative ideas. And many have a compact construction that is perfect even in the present-day small apartment.

Often a single rare piece or even a clever reproduction of a lovely old design is enough to suggest the scheme of decoration for an entire room.

In the appealing guest room illustrated here an early four-poster bed is the center of attraction. Its beautifully turned posts and its graceful headboard are of maple that has mellowed to the shade of clear amber.

It is covered, appropriately enough, with a homespun spread in very pale chartreuse, bordered with dark brown chintz with flowers in chartreuse and rose design.

This attractive combination of chartreuse and brown in soft woodsy shades is carried throughout the room with touches of rose here and there. The walls are tinted a light, neutral tan and the large oval rag rug is woven in two shades of brown with the darker shade predominating in its narrow border.

The windows are hung with simple cream colored scrim curtains and with draperies and a ruffly valance of dark brown chintz, printed in chartreuse and rose to match that used on the bedspread.

Even the indispensable little dressing table has a frivolous skirt in two shades of brown glazed chintz. Its semi-circular top is painted pale chartreuse and supports two extremely decorative and practical bottles and a tray of alabaster, monogrammed in rose.

Its matching bench has chartreuse legs and a brown chintz cover, finished with an amusing frill. The oblong mirror with its narrow maple frame is in harmony with the simplicity of the furnishings.

The comfortable, inviting boudoir chair is upholstered in tan taffeta with a self-stripe of satin and with a brief satin frill at the bottom, and a rose-colored pillow tossed casually in its corner.

The quaint silhouette over the bed provides the finishing touch to this group which as a whole is a paradox in simple, almost quaint lines combined with sophisticated, modern color contrasts.

CHINESE WOMEN TURNING TO AMERICAN FASHIONS

SHANGHAI, Aug. 3—(AP)—Chinese women of the rising generation in Shanghai are discarding the Chinese dress in favor of the attire of American women.

Shanghai is no longer a pure Chinese city, western civilization has made such headway in the Asia metropolis that the number of persons adopting the foreign style of clothing is daily increasing.

To satisfy the demand of these moderns Chinese tailors are being forced, much against their will, to make a special study of the art of designing and making western clothes.

The old fashioned tailors who still cling to the old ideas on women's dress are very much upset over the situation.

MADE-TO-ORDER WEATHER PREDICTED FOR HOMES

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 3— (AP) — Weather indoors will be literally made-to-order in houses of the future, predicts Miss Margaret Ingels, one of the few women mechanical engineers of the country.

"The air in the average American home in winter is actually dryer than the Sahara desert or a kiln used for drying lumber," she says.

"The effects of this moistureless heat are far reaching. Vitality is lowered and resistance to disease decreased. The heat has a harmful drying effect on furniture and to some extent on the interior construction of the house itself."

Too Much Study, French Find

NORWICH TOWN

The largest number of automobiles for any one day this summer passed through Norwich Town Sunday. From actual count between 4 and 7 p. m., more than 2,000 passed in either direction. The first hour there were 500, from 5 until 7, when the counting ceased there were 1,500 or more. At intervals as many as 35 passed by a given point in one moment. When the effort of counting any longer had stopped it was roughly estimated at the rate the cars were whizzing by between 7 and 8, that fully double the amount for the preceding three hours would not be far from the correct number. The count was alternately taken by two residents of Town street and did not include the many in number that passed by Harland's corner on upper Washington street, which runs into Town street, that really passed over this state highway at a location farther down the line, thus the total during the day of several thousand. Registrations included mostly New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut, a few from Vermont and New Hampshire.

On Town street Sunday the mercury registered 96 at noon and during the early afternoon. At one location on upper Washington street the mercury was reported 98 at noon.

NEW YORK DRIVER FINED IN MONTVILLE

Arthur Heinzemberg of Queens, York, was arrested by Officer Howard Lamphere after an accident, Thursday afternoon when a sport coupe owned and operated by him, with four passengers, speeded and failed to make the turn at Lake Oxoboxo road, near the Uncas lodge, at Oakdale.

The crash resulted in Harry Protass, of 1738 Myrtle avenue, Queens, N. Y., being taken to the Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London, suffering from lacerations about the right leg and slight bruises about the body. WHEN ROCKVILLE WELCOMED NEW RECTOR, REV. M. H. MAY

The Rockville, Conn. Journal carries a column headed "Twenty Years Ago in Dear Old Rockville." It chances that the current issue has the following reference to the present rector of St. Patrick's church, Norwich, now a Monsignor of the church:

The new rector of St. Bernard's church, succeeding Rev. Luke Fitzsimmons, transferred to the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Waterbury, is Rev. Michael H. May of Colchester, where he has done splendid work, carrying on, in addition to the Colchester parish, the work of missions in Lebanon, Fitchville and Moodus. He took up his residence here yesterday, receiving a cordial welcome.

Rev. Michael H. May was born in New London and received his common and high school education in his native city. In 1878, he entered Boston college, and having completed his classical course there, he went to Niagara university to study philosophy. He prepared for the priesthood in the Grand seminary, Montreal, where Dec. 20, 1884, he was ordained. He served as assistant in Derby and Hartford and later was appointed to St. John's church, Middletown, as assistant pastor. He remained in Middletown for six years and during his stay was principal of the parochial school.

From Middletown he was transferred to the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Baltic, and afterward assigned to St. Mary's church, New Britain, where he served as assistant under the late Bishop Tierney and Father William Harty.

Two years later he was appointed pastor of St. Mary's church, South Coventry, and from there was transferred to Colchester, at which place he has labored for nearly fourteen years. During this time his pastorate also included churches in Fitchville, Lebanon and Moodus.

For more than twelve years Father May has been an influential member of Colchester board of education and was last year made president of the Village club, an organization devoted to the study of art, science, literature and travel.

Father May has taken an active interest in all that pertains to the religious, intellectual and civic life of the communities in which he has labored and he leaves Colchester with the best wishes of all, Hebrews, Protestants and Catholics.

Children Respond Quickly To New Treatment

Modern Laxative Safe, Dependable—Children Like Taste

Now-a-days mothers know the importance of keeping children regular and cleaned out inside. They know how often cross, irritable children regain happy dispositions, healthy appetites when constipation is corrected. And mothers everywhere are delighted with the way their children respond to Feen-a-mint, the modern chewing gum laxative.

Children love the fresh mint flavor of Feen-a-mint which never has to be forced down unwilling throats as do old-fashioned cathartics. Doctors recommend it for its mild, yet thorough action for Feen-a-mint works on the important principle of uniform internal distribution.

Because children chew Feen-a-mint, it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much depended upon the quantity swallowed as upon the thoroughness of its distribution throughout the ailmentary tract.

While children chew Feen-amint the laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, even, without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage it is not necessary to increase the amount one time or decrease it the next. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the ideal health laxative to keep children regular and free from constipation. Get a package at any drug store.—Adv.

MAN KILLED, TWO GIRLS BADLY HURT WHEN MACHINE LEFT ROAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 3—Operation at high speed of a 1929 Ford roadster was a contributory cause to the fatal injury of Charles Astroski, about 20 years of age, of Webster, Mass., and the possible fatal injury of Mary Mrazik, and Anna Spitz, two Webster girls, who are apparently in their late teens or early twenties.

Astroski lived about 20 minutes after the car he owned and was operating did a somersault on the state highway close by the Plainfield high school in Central Village. No other car figured in the accident. The state highway at that point has a badly curved crown and it is believed that when Astroski's car passed over this particular place it threw him off to one side and the car hit a rock just off the traveled right of way.

The two young women were taken in an ambulance to the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam and at 8:30 tonight both were reported as unconscious and so seriously injured that their recovery remains a matter of doubt. The fourth passenger in the car was Warren Duclos, also of Webster and also in his early twenties. He also is a patient at the hospital in Putnam tonight and badly injured.

Dr. A. A. Chase of Plainfield, medical examiner for that town, viewed the body of Astroski, which afterwards was turned over to Tillinghast and Sons, undertakers.

The accident was checked up by State Officer Royal Scranton of the Danielson barracks. The car that figured in the accident was badly wrecked and later was towed into Danielson.

To top Trespassing On Railroad.

All trespassing on the Central Vermont railroad property is to be stopped at once, it was learned Sunday. Special Agent Brown of the railroad stated that hereafter all trespassers will be prosecuted. There has been considerable trouble lately from children and older persons who have frequented the railroad property along the river banks where they have indulged in swimming, a dangerous practice because of the frequent trains up and down the line daily.

116,500 EMPLOYES RETURN TO WORK IN DETROIT SHOPS

Five Automotive Concerns Have Resumed Production—All the Employes Are On Part Time Basis—The Ford Motor Company Announced That 100,000 Employes Had Returned to Work On a Four Day a Week Basis—Plant Officials Said They Expected That Production Would Gradually Climb.

DETROIT, Aug. 4—(AP)—The wheels of factories in the Detroit area turned again today as 116,500 employes returned to work after mid-summer vacations.

Reports of the ending of the vacation-inventory period and the resumption of operations came from five concerns in the automotive field. The Ford Motor company announced that 100,000 employes were returned to work in the Rouge and allied plants on a four-day-a-week basis. The Oakland Motor Car company called back 5,300 workers; Timken-Detroit Axle company resumed operations with a payroll of 2,000. The Graham-Paige Motor corporation called back 1,150 and the Packard Motor Car company 8,500.

Most of the employes returned at lighter schedules than they were working before the lay-off, but plant officials said they expected that production schedules range from 20 per cent to 50 per cent as compared with a year ago.

The General Motors Truck company reported that it had had no lay-off and was employing 3,796 men as compared with 3,164 last year. Their working schedule is six days a week. Timken-Detroit has a working schedule of four to five and a half days a week. Packard's schedule is five days a week as is also that of Graham-Paige. Oakland will have a schedule of two to five days a week.

All the reporting factories except the Ford Motor company had laid off their employes for two weeks. The latter had a three weeks' vacation.

Only the Ford Motor company gave out definite figures regarding production schedules. Officials said today that the Rouge plant started production of 8,000 cars and trucks a day.

KEARNEY, N. J., Aug. 4—(AP)—Ford Motor company assembly plant will resume normal output tomorrow, when 3,500 men will return to work after a concentrated vacation period which started July 25.

HOT BI-ENNIAL PRIMARY ELECTION IN KAN. TODAY

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 4—(AP)—A tumultuous campaign into which personalities and farm relief have been projected was brought to a close tonight on the eve of the bi-ennial Kansas primary.

Holding principal interest has been the contest, punctuated by heated exchanges of personalities, in which Gov. Clyde M. Reed, outspoken opponent of the federal farm board's proposal for wheat acreage reduction so far as it concerns Kansas, seeks the republican nomination for a second term.

He is opposed by Frank ("Chief") Haucke, 34-year-old member of the legislature and former state commander of the American Legion, who has the support of David W. Mulvane, republican national committeeman from Kansas, and other party leaders unfriendly to the governor who have joined with a so-called younger element to defeat the chief executive.

Without taking issue with Governor Reed on the acreage reduction proposal, Haucke has criticised the chief executive for "undertaking to administer the affairs of the national government."

$150,000 FIRE DAMAGE TO VELODROME NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(AP)—The five acre three-story wooden Velodrome in the Bronx was destroyed by fire today, fire which providentially did not break out until several hours after 15,000 persons had filed out after a program of bicycle and motorcycle races.

The fire was discovered by three Velodrome employes in dry grass outside the big bowl. They had only a garden hose to fight the flames and before five alarms brought all available apparatus to the scene the fire had spread to the oil-soaked track and was beyond control.

Red rain fell for blocks around as the fire consumed the dry wood, and much of the efforts of the firemen had to be turned to preventing spread of the flames to nearby buildings and freight cars full of cotton standing on a railroad siding close at hand.

The loss was estimated at about $150,000. There was no insurance. Bicycles of 100 professional and 75 amateur riders were destroyed.

CHINESE NATIONALISTS ACCEPT RESPONSIBILITY

NEW YORK, August 4—(AP)—The Kuo Min News agency, press agency of the Chinese nationalists, reported from Shanghai today that the ministry of foreign affairs had reiterated its intention of accepting full responsibility for losses suffered by foreigners in the capture of Changsha by the Chinese communist armies.

The ministry announced that it had ordered Li Fong, special deputy for Hunan and Hupeh provinces, to proceed immediately to Changsha to conduct a detailed investigation and determine the extent of the losses in foreign property.

A squadron of nationalist gunboats has reached Changsha and the city is now reported to be quiet, with the work of reconstruction and rehabilitation already in progress.

A SHARP ADVANCE IN WHEAT PRICES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 4—(AP)—Grain prices, affected largely by the prolonged hot and dry spell over the middle western farm regions, advanced sharply on the Chicago board of trade today. Wheat rose approximately 4 cents a bushel and corn went up 3 5- to 3 5-8 cents.

The rise in wheat, September futures contracts closing at about 89 cents a bushel, was the most unusual since the long decline in wheat values. The advance took place despite an increase of 15,500,000 bushels in the visible wheat supply. Wheat values, however, apparently were drawn upward by the rise in corn prices and also because of indications that much wheat this year would be used for stock feeding purposes. This would remove much of the surplus from the market.

MEXICAN ACTRESS WAS GORED BY BULL

MONTEREY, Mexico, Aug. 4—(AP)—Celia Montalvan, a pretty Mexican actress, was gored by a bull in the local ring today, but was not seriously injured.

She had volunteered to fight the animal to please the thousands who thronged the ring. When she went in to the arena the enraged bull hurled her nine feet against the fence but she arose gamely and dashed at the beast in an attempt to kill it.

The bull was getting the better of the one-sided struggle when several of the actress' friends jumped into the ring and forcibly carried her to safety.

A pianist of her company turned matador then and killed the bull.

CITES WIFE'S CONVICTION AS GROUNDS FOR DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4—(AP)—Natalie Colby, who, under the name of Natalie Chadwick is serving a prison term in Auburn prison, New York, for burglary, today was sued for divorce by Charles Colby, Los Angeles merchant. Colby cited his wife's felony conviction as the grounds.

Miss Chadwick, a former show girl, sued Colby for separate maintenance some time ago, but a financial settlement was made out of court and the suit was dropped. The couple was married in June, 1928, and separated a year later.

Miss Chadwick was found guilty on March 10 of selling $10,000 worth of furniture she had taken from the home of Polly Lux, former actress, at Atlantic Beach, Long Island.

REPAIRING FIN OF BRITISH DIRIGIBLE R-100

ST. HUBERT, Que., Aug. 4—(AP)—Two hundred feet above the turf of St. Hubert airport three airship riggers raced against time today to complete repairs to the stabilizing fin of the British dirigible R-100.

While a stiff wind polled and tore at the linen they held, and a large crowd watched below, the three men laced a large patch over the hole left when the fabric of the fin tore over Father Point, Que., while the ship was flying from Cardington, England, last Thursday.

The fin, which prevents the ship from rolling, is about ten feet thick where it joins the envelope. The tear, however, reached from the envelope to the very edge of the fin, where there is a thickness of only four inches.

10 FIREMEN OVERCOME AT $1,000,000 FIRE IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4—(AP)—Ten firemen were overcome by smoke, and damage estimated by officials at more than $1,000,000 was caused by a fire which destroyed the two upper floors of the Los Angeles Warehouse company's building in the industrial section today. The building, housing sugar, olive oil and fire works, was one of the largest warehouses in the city.

Several tons of fireworks on the top floor added to the danger and forced firemen to don gas masks and heat resisting garments. The exploding of giant "crackers" sounded like machine gun fire. Skyrockets and roman candles flared and spread the blaze to other parts of the building.

SIEGFRIED WAGNER DIES OF HEART ATTACK

BAYREUTH, Germany, August 4—(AP)—Siegfried Wagner, son of the famous composer Richard Wagner, died here today from a heart attack at the age of 61.

His death deeply shocked the large international audiences attending the annual festival of Wagner music and plunged the city into mourning.

At his deathbed were only his wife and the chief physician of the local hospital.

Within a few hours after the news became known, most of the buildings in the city were draped with black, and most of the populace had assembled in the streets to discuss the passing away of the last male descendant of the illustrious family.

BLACK GLOVE NEW LINK IN THE LINGLE MURDER

CHICAGO, Aug. 4—(AP)—A black glove for the left hand, symbol of the killer of Jake Lingle, furnished a new link today between the murder of the Tribune reporter and the killing of where the authorities believe Zuta's Jack Zuta.

In the little Wisconsin cottage foes hid while waiting the chance to kill him, they found another black glove today.

Zuta was reputed to be the plotter of Lingle's death and the officers saw in the glove a reminder that the killers were avenging Lingle, beside whose body a similar left-handed glove was found after his assassination June 9.

SERIOUSLY INJURED BY POLITICAL OPPONENT

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Aug. 4—(AP)—Ezequiel Martinez was in a serious condition today from injuries received at the hands of a mounted political opponent in yesterday's state congressional elections. The other man lassoed him and dragged him through the streets.

The injured man's brother, Rafael, was seriously wounded by a knife thrust in the stomach.

A mob fired on the home of a labor candidate Rafael Garcia, but troops intervened. There were no casualties.

Dry Leader Calls For Sympathy And Help

Amos W. W. Woodcock Appeals to Great Mass of American Men and Women.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—(AP)—An appeal for sympathy and support in his new prohibition enforcement program was directed to the people of America tonight by Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock.

Speaking over a National Broadcasting company network, he reviewed the policies of the reorganized enforcement bureau as outlined last week and asked the citizens throughout the country to assist by declining to patronize the illicit traffic in liquor.

"To those who have been making the unlawful traffic possible by affording a market for the contraband," he said, "may I suggest, simply and in no sense officiously—for the decision is yours—is the opportunity to obtain a drink of liquor in an unlawful way comparable in importance to you to the opportunity to contribute to the ideal of a law abiding nation?

"To the great mass of American men and women, I say, give us your sympathy and help. After all, who can object to a fair, honest, earnest and lawful enforcement of a law of the land?"

REP. STATE CONVENTION IN HARTFORD SEPT. 15-16

HARTFORD, Aug. 4—(AP)—The republican state convention to nominate candidates for state offices will be held at Foot Guard armory, Hartford, Monday and Tuesday, September 15 and 16, it was decided at a meeting of the republican state central committee at the Farmington Country club tonight.

Caucuses to name delegates to the state and the various district conventions will be held at Thursday, September 4, the committee decided, and the senatorial district conventions, at which candidates will be nominated for state senators and members for the new state central committee named will be held Monday, September 8.

Selection of the temporary chairman of the state convention, as is customary, was left to the chairman of the committee, J. Henry Roraback, and vice chairman, Miss Katherine Byrne. Usually one of the United States senators is named temporary chairman and as such delivers the "keynote" address, becoming permanent chairman of the convention with the permanent organization of that body.

The republican convention this year will be about a week later than usual, but the dates have the advantages of removing the causes and conventions more than usual from the customary vacation seasons. Committee members see in the late dates an indication that the shorter campaign will mean a greater concentration of effort.

NAVY DEPT. MAY CANCEL CONTRACT FOR DIRIGIBLE

WASHINGTON, August 4—(AP)—A possibility that the navy, for reasons of economy, may cancel the contract for the second of two huge dirigibles from the Goodyear company, became known today at the navy department.

The two lighter than air ships were contracted for at a cost of approximately $8,000,000 as part of the navy's five year aviation program, and completion of the first craft, the ZRS-4, is expected by next May. Actual construction of the second ship, the ZRS-5, has not been started.

Naval officials recalled today an amendment had been added by congress to the bill authorizing construction, under which the navy secretary could cancel the order for the second ship at any time before the first took the air.

Secretary Adams was not in Washington today, and officials said they ddi not know whether he had reached a decision in the matter.

RULING CONCERNING OPERATOR'S LICENSE

HARTFORD, Aug. 4—(AP)—The operator's license of a debtor who has obtained a discharge in bankruptcy covering a judgment based on injury to person or property in an automobile accident, should not be suspended for non-payment of such judgment, according to an opinion written by Assistant Attorney General John Hamilton King, in response to a request by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel.

Section 25 of chapter 27, public of 1929, provides that the commissioner shall suspend such a license and may also suspend the registration of the car involved, if a judgment for a sum other than the costs of nominal damages has remained unpaid for 60 days or more after date of judgment without filing notice of an appeal.

MAN DIED IN MIDDLETOWN HOSPITAL LEAVING $5000 ESTATE

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 4—(AP)—During the more than 25 years that Frederick Dallery, Civil war veteran and recluse farmer, spent in the Middletown hospital for the insane he had no visitors although hospital authorities believed the man had relatives.

Dallery died recently and now relatives will profit to the extent of more than $5,000 by acknowledging the relationship. That was the amount of Dallery's estate after bills for maintenance and funeral expenses had been paid, it was announced today by Judge Gilson of probate court.

Dallery was born in New York city, a son of George and Alice Dallery. He enlisted in the United States navy at the outbreak of the Civil war.

MRS. EVELYN M. FIELD GRANTED SECRET DIVORCE

RENO, Nev., Aug. 4—(AP)—Mrs. Evelyn Marshall Field, daughter of the late Charles H. Marshall of New York, was granted secret divorce from Marshall Field III this afternoon.

All papers in the case have been sealed, but it is generally understood that she charged her millionaire husband with desertion. While attorneys refused to discuss the nature of the property settlement and agreement, it is reliably reported that she will receive in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 per year.

It cost Joseph Trudeau, 37, Ashland, Mass., $1200 to ascertain if the back wheel of his automobile was falling off. Two hold-up men, who shouted from their car that the wheel was loose, stepped behind Trudeau and took the money, all currency, from an envelope in his pocket.

To Resign As Com'er Of [illegible]rnal Revenue

[illegible] M. Lucas to Devote [illegible]hole Time to National Rep. Committee Work.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—(AP)—Robert H. Lucas plans to resign his post as commissioner of internal revenue to devote his time wholly to the duties of chairman of the executive committee of the republican national committee.

His resignation will be submitted shortly after the executive committee meets on Thursday and chooses him as its head. The action of the committee in his case will be final, the group having complete authority to select its own officers.

Mr. Lucas will have active charge of the forthcoming republican campaigns, insofar as the national committee enters into them. His office will be located in the national committee headquarters.

Whatever action the executive committee may take regarding the resignation of Claudius H. Huston as chairman of the national committee and the selection of Senator Fess of Ohio as his successor will be tentative and subject to later consideration by the national committee itself.

This fact within itself will tend to increase the responsibilities that will fall upon the new executive committee head. While Senator Fess will be the nominal leader of the national group, the duties largely will devolve upon Lucas.

This will bring a native of a so-called border stated into the active direction of the affairs of both major political parties. Lucas is a native of Kentucky, as is Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the democratic national committee.

Lucas was appointed commissioner of internal revenue a little more than a year ago, succeeding David H. Blair of North Carolina. Prevously for eight years he had been collector of internal revenue for western Kentucky and earlier had served in Louiseville as police court prosecutor.

MOSLEM HEADS ALL-INDIA NATIONAL CONGRESS

BOMBAY, India, Aug. 4—(AP)—A Moslem has been chosen acting president of the All-India national congress, and thus will be commander-in-chief of the national civil disobedience campaign, but communal strife between Moslems and Hindus continued in India today.

At Ballia, in the united provinces, five persons were killed and 15 wounded today when 15,000 parading Hindus were attacked by a crowd of Moslems armed with sticks. The fight became so angry that police fired into the crowd to break up the trouble.

The Hindu procession, formed in defiance of a magistrate's order, started past a Moslem mosque and several Mohammedans gathered around their sacred edifice to stop the parade. Heavy forces of police were required to break up the ensuing trouble.

With the national congress in charge of the Mohammedan Abdul Kalam Asad, the trial of his predecessor, Vallabhai Patel, was put over until August 11.

Patel is charged with six others, including his daughter, Miss Maiben Patel, in connection with a Bombay demonstration last week. All of them refused bail when their trial was set forward today.

MRS. MOONEY APPEARS IN BEHALF OF HUSBAND

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4—(AP)—Mrs. Rena Mooney, wife of Thomas J. Mooney, who with Warren K. Billings is serving a life sentence for the San Francisco Preparedness day parade bombing in 1916, appeared today at the supreme court hearing on Billings' application for a pardon with visible evidence designed to show her husband was guiltless.

Estelle Smith, former nurse, who testified last week Billings told her he was an acid thrower guilty of sabotage during an automobile mechanics strike, but was not a bomber, was recalled and stuck to her story under cross examination. She said Billings, carrying a satchel which he said contained the acid, was in the office where she was employed at 721 Market street until 15 minutes before the explosion.

In a telegram from Duluth, Minn., Duncan Matheson, former San Francisco police captain advised the justices Miss Smith had never told him of Billings' reported acid throwing, contradicting the nurse's testimony.

STARTFORD HIGH SCHOOL BOY COMMITTED SUICIDE

STRATFORD, Aug. 4—(AP)—Charles Hullett, 15 year-old Stratford high school student, took his life today by hanging himself from a rafter in the attic of his home. The youth used an electric light extension cord to suspend his body from the rafter.

Hullet's body was found at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon by his mother, Mrs. Peter Hullett, who investigated when Charles failed to respond to her call for the nonday meal. She screamed and a neighbor, Harry Smith, came to her aid and cut down the body.

According to Medical Examiner L. C. Heidger, Hullet had been dead for an hour before the discovery was made. He gave the cause of death as strangulation. The parents of the youth are at a loss to determine the reason for their son's action.

COMPLAINT SERVED BY HURLING OVER FENCE

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(AP)—The supreme court today issued a back door membership in the exclusive Lido club on Long Island to Joseph Scully, booking agent, to enable him to serve a complaint in an $8,500 suit brought against the management.

Scully received an order allowing him to deliver his document by hurling it over the high iron fence surrounding the club if the doorman refused to accept it. He complained that previously the guards had refused him admission because he did not have a membership card.

DEATHS AND DAMAGE FROM HEAT WAVES AND DROUGHT

Numerous Deaths in the Central States Were Attributed to Heat—Drought in Clinton County, Ohio, Has Driven Farmers to Appeal to the County Commissioner For Work to Enable Them to Buy Bread For Their Families—Louis J. Taber, Master of the National Grange, Describes the Situation as More Serious Than the Nation Understands.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4—(AP)—One hundred degree weather remained an unwelcome visitor over most of the midwest today. From Nebraska to Ohio the temperatures ranged in the 100's except in the Great Lakes region, where a cooling breeze kept the mercury down in the 80's.

The highest reported today was at Hutchinson, Kans., where the mercury reached 111 at 2 p. m. Salina, Kans., had 110 and so did Coffeyville, Kans.

It was 101 in Lincoln, Neb., and 100 in Omaha. The temperature reached 102 in Youngstown, Ohio, and 101 at Cincinnati. Chicago, Cleveland, Toledo, Duluth and other lake shore cities were fairly comfortable in the 80's. The temperature reached 91 in Chicago at 1 p. m., but the wind swerved around to the lake and the mercury dropped to 81 by 3 p. m.

No general relief was forecast, although showers were predicted in various sections to afford temporary solace. Numerous deaths throughout the central states were attributed to the heat, and damage to crops mounted each day.

In Texas, C. V. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture, said the cotton crop likely would be a million bushels below normal, largely due to the extended drought. Corn fields throughout Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma are baking for want of rain.

WILMINGTON, O., FARMERS SOLICIT EMPLOYMENT

WILMINGTON, O., Aug. 4—(AP)—Driven to desperation by failure of their crops because of the drought, more than 200 Clinton county farmers appealed to the county commissioners for work today to enable them to buy food for their families.

After listening to their pleas, the commissioners ordered that $100,000 worth of road work contemplated for later in the season, be started immediately and the men put to work.

For the last ten days the farmers had been appealing to the commissioners individually for work and received promise of employment when road improvements were started later. Today, they came en masse, in rattletrap automobiles and on foot. They chose Erskin R. Hayes, secretary of the Wilmington Automobile club, as their spokesman. He led them to the court house.

Most of the delegation were tenant farmers and farm laborers, and under the most favorable conditions crops in that section are barely sufficient to maintain the families. They depend to great extent on truck gardens which have been completely burned up by the drought.

SERIOUS FOR LIVESTOCK GROWERS AND DAIRYMEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(AP)—A new heat wave seared the drought-stricken regions east of the Mississippi today as dire predictions arose regarding the results expected if the rainless season continued.

Louis J. Taber, master of the National grange, returning to Washington after a ten-day visit to the affected areas in the middle west, told President Hoover that if rain does not fall within 30 days the drought will become a major catastrophe. He described the situation as "more serious than the nation understands."

The farm leader suggested special freight rates to facilitate the transportation of hay and feed to livestock in the areas hardest hit and that credit facilities be extended to the utmost.

Chairman Legge of the federal farm board said in a radio address from Chicago that the drought threatened livestock growers and dairymen with serious losses. He estimated the corn crop would be reduced in some sections as much as 40 or 50 per cent and termed the hay crop "the smallest we have had in years."

He said bankers and business men are warranted "in extending every assistance possible to help cattle growers and dairymen to purchase the feed necessary to maintain their herds."

William F. Schilling, a member of the farm board, said the rainfall in 14 important dairy states had been only 36 per cent of normal through the growing months. He named Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, North Dakota and Minnesota.

Forage crops, meadows and corn have been badly damaged, he said, and the drought in reducing feed stuffs, has decreased milk production.

23 CHILDREN BURNED AT MOTION PICTURE SHOW

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Aug. 4—(AP)—Twenty-three children were burned, ten of them probably fatally, after their clothing had caught fire from a motion picture film at a child's show this afternoon.

The children had paid 2 cents each to attend the show, given in the home of Carlos and Armando Selinachi, who used a small projector.

One child struck a match and ignited a pile of films in a corner. The inflammatory material blazed up and their clothing caught fire. Both the Selinachi brothers were burned in trying to beat out the flames.

AIRPLANE GIFT OF COL. LINDBERGH TO HIS WIFE

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today announced that he has purchased an airplane as a gift for his wife, the former Anne Morrow.

The ship, a 110-horsepower biplane, was put through tests last week by Colonel Lindbergh and he expressed particular satisfaction at the ability of the ship to land on a small field.

Mrs. Lindbergh received flying lessons from her husband last year at Hickville, Long Island, when she learned to fly "solo". Extended flights throughout the country with Colonel Lindbergh, however, interfered with her obtaining a pilot's license.

She won a glider's license while the Lindberghs were in California early this year.

YACHT YANKEE WON RACE OFF NEWPORT, R. I.

MATTAPOISETT, Mass., Aug. 4—(AP)—There was a spanking breeze today and an unruly sea and Yankee, Boston's candidate for the defense of the America's cup, showed the other three aspirants for that honor the way all the 30 miles from Newport to this little hamlet.

The Boston boat, sailed by John S. Lawrence and Chandler Hovey, let Enterprise, skippered by Harold S. Vanderbilt, by 20 seconds at the finish line. Whirlwind, the Thorne-Hammond boat which had been regarded as the heavy weather boat of the fleet, did not seem to like the bad sea and finished in third place.

Weetamoe, the Morgan-Nichols boat, was the victim of one of the several sensational mishaps suffered by the boats, competing in the second run of the New York Yacht club annual cruise, and she, for the first time since competition between the cup candidates opened, followed her sisters home today. Shortly after rounding Hen and Chickens light ship she lost Al Folstrom, a paid hand, overboard. The time lost in picking Folstrom out of the sea virtually eliminated Weetamoe. She did not again set light sails, baloon or Spinnaker and followed the other three in to Mattapoisett by about half an hour.

116,500 EMPLOYES RETURN TO WORK IN DETROIT SHOPS

Five Automotive Concerns Have Resumed Production—All the Employes Are On Part Time Basis—The Ford Motor Company Announced That 100,000 Employes Had Returned to Work On a Four Day a Week Basis—Plant Officials Said They Expected That Production Would Gradually Climb.

DETROIT, Aug. 4—(AP)—The wheels of factories in the Detroit area turned again today as 116,500 employes returned to work after mid-summer vacations.

Reports of the ending of the vacation-inventory period and the resumption of operations came from five concerns in the automotive field. The Ford Motor company announced that 100,000 employes were returned to work in the Rouge and allied plants on a four-day-a-week basis. The Oakland Motor Car company called back 5,300 workers; Timken-Detroit Axle company resumed operations with a payroll of 2,000. The Graham-Paige Motor corporation called back 1,150 and the Packard Motor Car company 3,500.

Most of the employes returned at lighter schedules than they were working before the lay-off, but plant officials said they expected that production schedules range from 20 per cent to 50 per cent as compared with a year ago.

The General Motors Truck company reported that it had had no lay-off and was employing 3,796 men as compared with 3,154 last year. Their working schedule is six days a week. Timken-Detroit has a working schedule of four to five and a half days a week. Packard's schedule is five days a week as is also that of Graham-Paige. Oakland will have a schedule of two to five days a week.

All the reporting factories except the Ford Motor company had laid off their employes for two weeks. The latter had a three weeks' vacation.

Only the Ford Motor company gave out definite figures regarding production schedules. Officials said today that the Rouge plant started production of 8,000 cars and trucks a day.

KEARNEY, N. J., Aug. 4—(AP)—Ford Motor company assembly plant will resume normal output tomorrow, when 3,500 men will return to work after a concentrated vacation period which started July 25.

HOT BI-ENNIAL PRIMARY ELECTION IN KAN. TODAY

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 4—(AP)—A tumultuous campaign into which personalities and farm relief have been projected was brought to a close tonight on the eve of the bi-ennial Kansas primary.

Holding principal interest has been the contest, punctuated by heated exchanges of personalities, in which Gov. Clyde M. Reed, outspoken opponent of the federal farm board's proposal for wheat acreage reduction so far as it concerns Kansas, seeks the republican nomination for a second term.

He is opposed by Frank ("Chief") Haucke, 36-year-old member of the legislature and former state commander of the American Legion, who has the support of David W. Mulvane, republican national committeeman from Kansas, and other party leaders unfriendly to the governor, who have joined with a so-called younger element to defeat the chief executive.

Without taking issue with Governor Reed on the acreage reduction proposal, Haucke has criticised the chief executive for "undertaking to administer the affairs of the national government."

$150,000 FIRE DAMAGE TO VELODROME NEW YORK

NEW YORK Aug. 4—(AP)—The five acre three-story wooden Velodrome in the Bronx was destroyed by fire today, fire which providentially did not break out until several hours after 15,000 persons had filed out after a program of bicycle and motorcycle races.

The fire was discovered by three Velodrome employes in dry grass outside the big bowl. They had only a garden hose to fight the flames and before five alarms brought all available apparatus to the scene the fire had spread to the oil-soaked track and was beyond control.

Red rain fell for blocks around as the fire consumed the dry wood, and much of the efforts of the firemen had to be turned to preventing spread of the flames to nearby buildings and freight cars full of cotton standing on a railroad siding close at hand.

The loss was estimated at about $150,000. There was no insurance. Bicycles of 100 professional and 75 amateur riders were destroyed.

CHINESE NATIONALISTS ACCEPT RESPONSIBILITY

NEW YORK, August 4—(AP)—The Kuo Min News agency, press agency of the Chinese nationalists, reported from Shanghai today that the ministry of foreign affairs had reiterated its intention of accepting full responsibility for losses suffered by foreigners in the capture of Changsha by the Chinese communist armies.

The ministry announced that it had ordered Li Fong, special deputy for Hunan and Hupeh provinces, to proceed immediately to Changsha to conduct a detailed investigation and determine the extent of the losses in foreign property.

A squadron of nationalist gunboats has reached Changsha and the city is now reported to be quiet, with the work of reconstruction and rehabilitation already in progress.

A SHARP ADVANCE IN WHEAT PRICES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 4—(AP)—Grain prices, affected largely by the prolonged hot and dry spell over the middle western farm regions, advanced sharply on the Chicago board of trade today. Wheat rose approximately 4 cents a bushel and corn went up 2 5- to 3 5-8 cents.

The rise in wheat, September futures contracts closing at about 89 cents a bushel, was the most unusual since the long decline in wheat values. The advance took place despite an increase of 15,500,000 bushels in the visible wheat supply. Wheat values, however, apparently were drawn upward by the rise in corn prices and also because of indications that much wheat this year would be used for stock feeding purposes. This would remove much of the surplus from the market.

MEXICAN ACTRESS WAS GORED BY BULL

MONTEREY, Mexico, Aug. 4—(AP)—Celia Montalvan, a pretty Mexican actress, was gored by a bull in the local ring today, but was not seriously injured.

She had volunteered to fight the animal to please the thousands who thronged the ring. When she went in to the arena the enraged bull hurled her nine feet against the fence but she arose gamely and dashed at the beast in an attempt to kill it.

The bull was getting the better of the one-sided struggle when several of the actress' friends jumped into the ring and forcibly carried her to safety.

A pianist of her company turned matador then and killed the bull.

CITES WIFE'S CONVICTION AS GROUNDS FOR DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4—(AP)—Natalie Colby, who, under the name of Natalie Chadwick is serving a prison term in Auburn prison, New York, for burglary, today was sued for divorce by Charles Colby, Los Angeles merchant. Colby cited his wife's felony conviction as the grounds.

Miss Chadwick, a former show girl, sued Colby for separate maintenance some time ago, but a financial settlement was made out of court and the suit was dropped. The couple was married in June, 1928, and separated a year later.

Miss Chadwick was found guilty on March 10 of selling $10,000 worth of furniture she had taken from the home of Polly Lux, former actress, at Atlantic Beach, Long Island.

REPAIRING FIN OF BRITISH DIRIGIBLE R-100

ST. HUBERT, Que., Aug. 4—(AP)—Two hundred feet above the turf of St. Hubert airport three airship riggers raced against time today to complete repairs to the stabilizing fin of the British dirigible R-100.

While a stiff wind pulled and tore at the linen they held, and a large crowd watched below, the three men laced a large patch over the hole left when the fabric of the fin tore over Father Point, Que., while the ship was flying from Cardington, England, last Thursday.

The fin, which prevents the ship from rolling, is about ten feet thick where it joins the envelope. The tear, however, reached from the envelope to the very edge of the fin, where there is a thickness of only four inches.

10 FIREMEN OVERCOME AT $1,000,000 FIRE IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4—(AP)—Ten firemen were overcome by smoke, and damage estimated by officials at more than $1,000,000 was caused by a fire which destroyed the two upper floors of the Los Angeles Warehouse company's building in the industrial section today. The building, housing sugar, olive oil and fire works, was one of the largest warehouses in the city.

Several tons of fireworks on the top floor added to the danger and forced firemen to don gas masks and heat resisting garments. The exploding of giant "crackers" sounded like machine gun fire. Skyrockets and roman candles flared and spread the blaze to other parts of the building.

SIEGFRIED WAGNER DIES OF HEART ATTACK

BAYREUTH, Germany, August 4—(AP)—Siegfried Wagner, son of the famous composer Richard Wagner, died here today from a heart attack at the age of 61.

His death deeply shocked the large international audiences attending the annual festival of Wagner music and plunged the city into mourning.

At his deathbed were only his wife and the chief physician of the local hospital.

Within a few hours after the news became known, most of the buildings in the city were draped with black, and most of the populace had assembled in the streets to discuss the passing away of the last male descendant of the illustrious family.

BLACK GLOVE NEW LINK IN THE LINGLE MURDER

CHICAGO, Aug. 4—(AP)—A black glove for the left hand, symbol of the killer of Jake Lingle, furnished a new link today between the murder of the Tribune reporter and the killing of where the authorities believe Zuta's Jack Zuta.

In the little Wisconsin cottage foes hid while waiting the chance to kill him, they found another black glove today.

Zuta was reputed to be the plotter of Lingle's death and the officers saw in the glove a reminder that the killers were avenging Lingle, beside whose body a similar left-handed glove was found after his assassination June 9.

Dry Leader Calls For Sympathy And Help

Amos W. W. Woodcock Appeals to Great Mass of American Men and Women.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—(AP)—An appeal for sympathy and support in his new prohibition enforcement program was directed to the people of America tonight by Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock.

Speaking over a National Broadcasting company network, he reviewed the policies of the reorganized enforcement bureau as outlined last week and asked the citizens throughout the country to assist by declining to patronize the illicit traffic in liquor.

"To those who have been making the unlawful traffic possible by affording a market for the contraband," he said, "may I suggest, simply and in no sense officiously—for the decision is yours—is the opportunity to obtain a drink of liquor in an unlawful way comparable in importance to you to the opportunity to contribute to the ideal of a law abiding nation?

"To the great mass of American men and women, I say, give us your sympathy and help. After all, who can object to a fair, honest, earnest and lawful enforcement of a law of the land?"

REP. STATE CONVENTION IN HARTFORD SEPT. 15-16

HARTFORD, Aug. 4—(AP)—The republican state convention to nominate candidates for state offices will be held at Foot Guard armory, Hartford, Monday and Tuesday, September 15 and 16, it was decided at a meeting of the republican state central committee at the Farmington Country club tonight.

Caucuses to name delegates to the state and the various district conventions will be held at Thursday, September 4, the committee decided, and the senatorial district conventions, at which candidates will be nominated for state senators and members for the new state central committee named will be held Monday, September 8.

Selection of the temporary chairman of the state convention, as is customary, was left to the chairman of the committee, J. Henry Roraback, and vice chairman, Miss Katherine Byrne. Usually one of the United States senators is named temporary chairman and as such delivers the "keynote" address, becoming permanent chairman of the convention with the permanent organization of that body.

The republican convention this year will be about a week later than usual, but the dates have the advantages of removing the causes and conventions more than usual from the customary vacation seasons. Committee members see in the late dates an indication that the shorter campaign will mean a greater concentration of effort.

NAVY DEPT. MAY CANCEL CONTRACT FOR DIRIGIBLE

WASHINGTON, August 4—(AP)—A possibility that the navy, for reasons of economy, may cancel the contract for the second of two huge dirigibles from the Goodyear company, became known today at the navy department.

The two lighter than air ships were contracted for at a cost of approximately $8,000,000 as part of the navy's five year aviation program, and completion of the first craft, the ZRS-4, is expected by next May. Actual construction of the second ship, the ZRS-5, has not been started.

Naval officials recalled today an amendment had been added by congress to the bill authorizing construction, under which the navy secretary could cancel the order for the second ship at any time before the first took the air.

Secretary Adams was not in Washington today, and officials said they ddi not know whether he had reached a decision in the matter.

RULING CONCERNING OPERATOR'S LICENSE

HARTFORD, Aug. 4—(AP)—The operator's license of a debtor who has obtained a discharge in bankruptcy covering a judgment based on injury to person or property in an automobile accident, should not be suspended for non-payment of such judgment, according to an opinion written by Assistant Attorney General John Hamilton King, in response to a request by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel.

Section 25 of chapter 27, public of 1929, provides that the commissioner shall suspend such a license and may also suspend the registration of the car involved, if a judgment for a sum other than the costs of nominal damages has remained unpaid for 60 days or more after date of judgment without filing notice of an appeal.

MAN DIED IN MIDDLETOWN HOSPITAL LEAVING $5000 ESTATE

NE WHAVEN, Aug. 4—(AP)—During the more than 25 years that Frederick Dallery, Civil war veteran and recluse farmer, spent in the Middletown hospital for the insane, he had no visitors although hospital authorities believed the man had relatives.

Dallery died recently and now relatives will profit to the extent of more than $5,000 by acknowledging the relationship. That was the amount of Dallery's estate after bills for maintenance and funeral expenses had been paid, it was announced today by Judge Gilson of probate court.

Dallery was born in New York city, a son of George and Alice Dallery. He enlisted in the United States navy at the outbreak of the Civil war.

RENO, Nev., Aug. 4—(AP)—Mrs. Evelyn Marshall Field, daughter of the late Charles H Marshall of New York, was granted secret divorce from Marshall Field III this afternoon.

All papers in the case have been sealed, but it is generally understood that she charged her millionaire husband with desertion. While attorneys refused to discuss the nature of the property settlement and agreement, it is reliably reported that she will receive in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 per year.

To Resign As Com'er Of [illegible]rnal Revenue

[illegible] M. Lucas to Devote [illegible]hole Time to National Rep. Committee Work.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—(AP)—Robert H. Lucas plans to resign his post as commissioner of internal revenue to devote his time wholly to the duties of chairman of the executive committee of the republican national committee.

His resignation will be submitted shortly after the executive committee meets on Thursday and chooses him as its head. The action of the commitee in his case will be final, the group having complete authority to select its own officers.

Mr. Lucas will have active charge of the forthcoming republican campaigns, insofar as the national committee enters into them. His office will be located in the national committee headquarters.

Whatever action the executive committee may take regarding the resignation of Claudius H. Huston as chairman of the national committee and the selection of Senator Fess of Ohio as his successor will be tentative and subject to later consideration by the national committee itself.

This fact within itself will tend to increase the responsibilities that will fall upon the new executive committee head. While Senator Fess will be the nominal leader of the national group, the duties largely will devolve upon Lucas.

This will bring a native of a so-called border stated into the active direction of the affairs of both major political parties. Lucas is a native of Kentucky, as is Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the democratic national committee.

Lucas was appointed commissioner of internal revenue a little more than a year ago, succeeding David H. Blair of North Carolina. Prevously for eight years he had been collector of internal revenue for western Kentucky and earlier had served in Louisville as police court prosecutor.

MOSLEM HEADS ALL-INDIA NATIONAL CONGRESS

BOMBAY, India, Aug. 4—(AP)—A Moslem has been chosen acting president of the All-India national congress, and thus will be commander-in-chief of the national civil disobedience campaign, but communal strife between Moslems and Hindus continued in India today.

At Ballia, in the united provinces, five persons were killed and 16 wounded today when 15,000 parading Hindus were attacked by a crowd of Moslems armed with sticks. The fight became so angry that police fired into the crowd to break up the trouble.

The Hindu procession, formed in defiance of a magistrate's order, started past a Moslem mosque and several Mohammedans gathered around their sacred edifice to stop the parade. Heavy forces of police were required to break up the ensuing trouble.

With the national congress in charge of the Mohammedan Abdul Kalam Azad, the trial of his predecessor, Vallabhai Patel, was put over until August 11.

Patel is charged with six others, including his daughter, Miss Maiben Patel, in connection with a Bombay demonstration last week. All of them refused bail when their trial was set forward today.

MRS. MOONEY APPEARS IN BEHALF OF HUSBAND

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4—(AP)—Mrs. Rena Mooney, wife of Thomas J. Mooney, who with Warren K. Billings is serving a life sentence for the San Francisco Preparedness day parade bombing in 1916, appeared today at the supreme court hearing on Billings' application for a pardon with visible evidence designed to show her husband was guiltless.

Estelle Smith, former nurse, who testified last week Billings told her he was an acid thrower guilty of sabotage during an automobile mechanics strike, but was not a bomber, was recalled and stuck to her story under cross examination. She said Billings, carrying a satchel which he said contained the acid, was in the office where she was employed at 721 Market street until 15 minutes before the explosion.

In a telegram from Duluth, Minn., Duncan Matheson, former San Francisco police captain, advised the justices Miss Smith had never told him of Billings' reported acid throwing, contradicting the nurse's testimony.

DEATHS AND DAMAGE FROM HEAT WAVES AND DROUGHT

Numerous Deaths in the Central States Were Attributed t Heat—Drought in Clinton County, Ohio, Has Driven Farmers to Appeal to the County Commissioner For Work to Enable Them to Buy Bread For Their Families—Louis J. Taber, Master of the National Grange, Describes the Situation as More Serious Than the Nation Understands.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4—(AP)—One hundred degree weather remained an unwelcome visitor over most of the midwest today. From Nebraska to Ohio the temperatures ranged in the 100's except in the Great Lakes region, where a cooling breeze kept the mercury down in the 80's.

The highest reported today was at Hutchinson, Kans., where the mercury reached 111 at 2 p. m. Salina, Kans., had 110 and so did Coffeyville, Kans.

It was 101 in Lincoln, Neb., and 100 in Omaha. The temperature reached 102 in Youngstown, Ohio, and 101 at Cincinnati. Chicago, Cleveland, Toledo, Duluth and other lake shore cities were fairly comfortable in the 80's. The temperature reached 91 in Chicago at 1 p. m., but the wind swerved around to the lake and the mercury dropped to 81 by 3 p. m.

No general relief was forecast, although showers were predicted in various sections to afford temporary solace. Numerous deaths throughout the central states were attributed to the heat, and daamge to crops mounted each day.

In Texas, C. V. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture, said the cotton crop likely would be a million bushels below normal, largely due to the extended drought. Corn fields throughout Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma are baking for want of rain.

WILMINGTON, O., FARMERS SOLICIT EMPLOYMENT

WILMINGTON, O., Aug. 4—(AP)—Driven to desperation by failure of their crops because of the drought, more than 200 Clinton county farmers appealed to the county commissioners for work today to enable them to buy food for their families.

After listening to their pleas, the commissioners ordered that $100,000 worth of road work contemplated for later in the season, be started immediately and the men put to work.

For the last ten days the farmers had been appealing to the commissioners individually for work and received promise of employment when road improvements were started later. Today, they came en masse, in rattletrap automobiles and on foot. They chose Erskin R. Hayes, secretary of the Wilmington Automobile club, as their spokesman. He led them to the court house.

Most of the delegation were tenants farmers and farm laborers, and under the most favorable conditions crops in that section are barely sufficient to maintain the families. They depend to great extent on truck gardens which have been completely burned up by the drought.

SERIOUS FOR LIVESTOCK GROWERS AND DAIRYMEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(AP)—A new heat wave seared the drought-stricken regions east of the Mississippi today as dire predictions arose regarding the results expected if the rainless season continued.

Louis J. Taber, master of the National grange, returning to Washington after a ten-day visit to the affected areas in the middle west, told President Hoover that if rain does not fall within 30 days the drought will become a major catastrophe. He described the situation as "more serious than the nation understands."

The farm leader suggested special freight rates to facilitate the transportation of hay and feed to livestock in the areas hardest hit and that credit facilities be extended to the utmost.

Chairman Legge of the federal farm board said in a radio address from Chicago that the drought threatened livestock growers and dairymen with serious losses. He estimated the corn crop would be reduced in some sections as much as 40 or 50 per cent and termed the hay crop "the smallest we have had in years."

He said bankers and business men are warranted "in extending every assistance possible to help cattle growers and dairymen to purchase the feed necessary to maintain their herds."

William F. Schilling, a member of the farm board, said the rainfall in 14 important dairy states had been only 36 per cent of normal through the growing months. He named Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, North Dakota and Minnesota.

Forage crops, meadows and corn have been badly damaged, he said, and the drought in reducing feed stuffs, has decreased milk production.

23 CHILDREN BURNED AT MOTION PICTURE SHOW

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Twenty-three children were burned, ten of them probably fatally, after their clothing had caught fire from a motion picture film at a child's show this afternoon.

One child struck a match and ignited a pile of films in a corner. The inflammatory material blazed up and their clothing caught fire. Both the Sclinachi brothers were burned in trying to beat out the flames.

AIRPLANE GIFT OF COL. LINDBERGH TO HIS WIFE

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today announced that he has purchased an airplane as a gift for his wife, the former Anne Morrow.

The ship, a 110-horsepower biplane, was put through tests last week by Colonel Lindbergh and he expressed particular satisfaction at the ability of the ship to land on a small field.

Mrs. Lindbergh received flying lessons from her husband last year at Hickville, Long Island, when she learned to fly "solo". Extended flights throughout the country with Colonel Lindbergh, however, interfered with her obtaining a pilot's license.

She won a glider's license while the Lindberghs were in California early this year.

YACHT YANKEE WON RACE OFF NEWPORT, R. I.

MATTAPOISETT, Mass., Aug 4—(AP)—There was a spanking breeze today and an unruly sea and Yankee, Boston's candidate for the defense of the America's cup, showed the other three aspirants for that honor the way, all the 30 miles from Newport to thsi little hamlet.

The Boston boat, sailed by John S. Lawrence and Chandler Hovey, let Enterprise, skippered by Harold S. Vanderbilt, by 20 seconds at the finish line. Whirlwind, the Thorne-Hammond boat which had been regarded as the heavy weather boat of the fleet, did not seem to like the bad sea and finished in third place.

Weetamoe, the Morgan-Nichols boat, was the victim of one of the several sensational mishaps suffered by the boats, competing in the second run of the New York Yacht club annual cruise, and she, for the first ime since competition between the cup candidates opened, followed her sisters home today. Shortly after rounding Hen and Chickens light ship she lost Al Folstrom, a paid hand, overboard. The time lost in picking Folstrom out of the sea virtually eliminated Weetamoe. She did not again set light sails, baloon or Spinnaker and followed the other three in to Mattapoisett by about half an hour.

KEGLER-MURPHY WEDDING IS LARGELY ATTENDED

WILLIMANTIC, August 4—Miss Ellen Smith Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Murphy of 287 Jackson street, became the bride of James E. Kegler, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kegler of Windham road, in a pretty wedding solemnized in St. Joseph's church during a nuptial high mass at 9 o'clock this morning. Rev. Henry E. Quinn officiated at the mass and ceremony. Arthur Roy and Miss L. Monica McKean were heard in special singing. Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance presided at the organ. The attendants were Miss Catherine Murphy, sister of the bride, as maid of honor and Francis Kegler, brother of the groom as best man.

The bride was charming in a gown of English lace over taffeta with a veil of English lace caught up with orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of bride's roses. The maid of honor wore egg-shell chiffon with hat to match and carried red roses. The bride gave her attendant a gold piece and the groom presented his best man with a set of silver cuff links.

A wedding breakfast and reception was held at Brigham Tavern in Mansfield with nearly 50 guests in attendance from Hartford, Windsor Locks, Worcester and Springfield, Mass., and this city. Mr. and Mrs. Kegler left later on an unannounced wedding trip after which they will reside at 50 Park street. The bride was attired in a brown suit for traveling.

Drunken Driver Fined

In police court this morning William H. Nichols, 59, of South Willington, who drove his car across Main street Saturday evening into the side of another machine, causing injuries to two people, was fined $100 and costs when found guilty of driving under the influence of liquor. He pleaded guilty. The accident was the one in which Mrs. Bertha B. Thompson of this city sustained a fractured wrist and her brother-in-law, John P. Thompson of East Hartford suffered severe lacerations. Nichols escaped with slight cuts.

An inquest into the death of Adelia, seven year old daughter of Mrs. Mary Miller of South Manchester, who was instantly killed in an automobile accident at Columbia Green Saturday afternoon, was conducted today by Coroner John Y. Yeomans of Andover.

The coroner questioned a number of witnesses and withheld his decision. Pending a report of his findings John W. Manyak of Hartford, driver of the car in which the Miller child was riding as a guest, is held under bonds of $1,000 on a technical charge.

Dona Thibeault of Putnam, driver of the other car involved, was not held. Coroner Yeomans stated, at the completion of the inquest, that there was no evidence presented of any gross negligence, but apparently both drivers were somewhat careless in approaching the four-corners created at Columbia Green by the intersection of the Jonathan Trumbull and Hebron-Willimantic highways. It appeared that both machines reached the center of the intersection almost simultaneously. At the time of the accident Manyak said that he was traveling at about 20 miles an hour and did not see the Thibeault machine until it was 10 feet away when a collision was unavoidable.

The coroner's finding will be announced within a week. State Policeman Charles Hill of the Stafford Springs barracks and Deputy Sheriff Harvey S. Collins of Columbia were among the witnesses questioned.

ATTACKS BROTHER-IN-LAW WITH BASEBALL BAT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 4—Eddie John, 35, Syrian, is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital suffering from serious injuries sustained during an attack with a baseball bat this afternoon. His brother-in-law, John Eddy, 43, Carey Hill storekeeper, is held under bonds of $100 charged with the assault.

Shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon Eddie John entered his brother-in-law's store carrying a razor, according to John Eddy, with which to do some slashing. The storekeeper said he grabbed a baseball bat and battered down his brother-in-law to protect himself against the razor attack. At the hospital Eddie John was treated by Dr. Nathan Spector for a possible fracture of the skull, five extensive lacerations on the scalp, two of them penetrating to the skull and numerous abrasions and contusions on the head and back.

Officers Arthur Hurley and Albert Montie were sent to the scene by Capt Frank W. McLean and Officers Montie and Roderick Lariviere were later stationed at the hospital to watch over the injured man in the fear that the blows on the head would render him violent.

Today's episode came as a sequel to an incident at the John Eddy store a few years ago when Eddie John stabbed himself in the abdomen with a bread knife, after, it is alleged, he had chased his brother-in-law around the store with a gun.

WESTERLY

COUNCIL CONSIDERS PURCHASE OF BEACH PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Aug. 4—With absentee members being Councilmen George E. Broughton and Joseph Fraser, the August meeting of the town council lasted all Monday morning and closed at noon with the councilmen in executive session.

Former Town Councilman Rogers E. Trainer appeared before the council to state that the executive committee of the chamber of commerce had met that morning and with one exception all members had signed a resolution presented to the town council and which had come from the municipal improvement committee asking the council to call a special financial town meeting to purchase land at Misquamicut, formerly Pleasant View, and which had definitely been offered and was now available for town purchase, being Lots Nos. 92, 93, and 94, plat of building sites, 1909, by C. E. Chandler and S. B. Palmer, Engs., Norwich, and on file in the office of the town clerk. These lots are located some 500 feet east of the Atlantic Beach casino and a 12 foot right of way to the beach fronting on the Atlantic Ocean is available with also a 150 foot strip of land in the rear with the exception of one lot owned by Councilman John Monti. Henry A. Stahle, a resident of Pawcatuck, was the unsigning member who said it was not becoming or dignified for him as a resident of Connecticut to ask the town of Westerly in Rhode Island to appropriate money for the same.

Chairman Harry R. Milner of the municipal committee was also present to speak in favor of the resolution which was introduced and expressed the hope that Councilman Monti might see his way clear to adding his lot to the desired plot and that Senator Howard E. Thorp had been to considerable trouble to obtain an option on what was perhaps the only remaining available ocean front property for sale and that the owners, heirs of Alzada A. Saunders, had set a price of $5,500 and the sale would carry no commissions. The fact was stressed that these heirs, residents of the Shore road, were ready to sell and action must be taken quickly.

Council President Horace E. Burdick said the resolution called for a special financial town meeting the date for which after lenghty discussion was set for Monday, August 18th, the town council to have a previous council meeting on Thursday, August 14th, when they were to sit as a board of canvassers to pass upon the qualifications of persons entitled to vote at such meeting. He hoped that Mr. Monti would see his way clear to deeding his 50 foot strip as the town of Westerly was arvertising its beaches as an attraction to summer visitors and when they got here the town had nothing of its own to offer and as Mr. Milner had stated it was the duty of the town to provide such seashore privileges for its own townspeople that needed it the most were now denied.

Councilman Monti said that there would be a lot of property owners, adjoining the site offered who would object, he himself on one side (the west) of the site and he stated the owner of the land adjoining on the other side was going to object (Raymond B. Case of Norwich, owner of land on the east side of the desired strip.) Also that there were eight or ten land owners of Hartford who would object and if such tract was purchased for this purpose that he would be forced to sell his property on the ocean front by reason of the noise and disturbance which would not even permit him to rent such property. At this point in the discussion it was brought out that representatives of the council and police department of the town had gone to the beach and marked out available passways from Atlantic avenue onto the beach but these signs had been destroyed by adjoining property owners who thus showed their disposition in the matter as to the admittance of the general public to the beach front which was declared to have become almost unbearable to property owners by people from distant points overrunning private property and which if continued without some redress would make beach property valueless and undesirable. A Westerly real estate man, when told of conditions at the beach, said that a property owner with a $9,000 investment had come to him with the complaint that an auto party had come upon his land put up a pole and thrown over a canvass under which a man and woman and five children had undressed and gone into the ocean to bathe across his property and by the windows in plain sight of his summer home.

Councilman Archie Meikle of the police committee declared that in an average check-up of 20 autos, 10 showed Massachusetts licenses, 8 Connecticut, and 2 Rhode Island plates. President Burdick said his experience as a beach realtor had shown him at Watch Hill that people who had come as strangers had been attracted and had purchased beach property and that if strangers were driven out there would be no market for shore property. The people should be provided with recreational facilities at the beach and that the time to purchase such was while land yet remained available.

Councilman James Naccarata thought the move a commendable one.

Councilman Meikle suggested the purchase of the site of Miss Annie Chapman near Weekapaug breachway but was told by other councilmen that the price would be prohibitive.

In preparing the form for the special town meeting call the town solicitor ascertained that with the addition of already owned town land on the pond side of the beach 450 feet for public parking was available. The call which will be submitted to the councilmen for the signatures of at least four members will detail the following clauses:

Will the town of Westerly vote to secure seashore property to be used for recreational purposes? Will the town vote to secure other seashore property? Will the town vote an appropriation for property purchase? Will the town vote to appropriate money for development and improvement of such property as purchased?

While the vote was in process of preparation Westerly Highway Engineer Al L. Leon appeared to say that stakes set at the beach had been pulled up and while this department was at work at the beach what was going to be done about the matter as at this time bounds could be set on highway lines which if removed would bring the guilty parties into court. The pulled up stubs had shown some 11 designated passways to the beach of 12 and 20 foot widths from Weekapaug beach westward.

For the assistance of Solicitor Ferguson and in answer to questions by councilmen Clerk Col. E. E. Whipple produced a book of town records, in which under date of May 7, 1909, there was recorded a covenant or agreement by the Winnapaug corporation of Norwich, Conn., and signed by R. W. Perkins, as president, A. B. Crafts, Mary Crafts, Harris P. Chapman, Alzada A. Saunders, William F. Saunders, Albert Langworthy Saunders and Melissa A. Langworthy, and referring to a plat on file by C. E. Chandler and S. B. Palmer, Engs., Norwich, on which agreements were entered into relative to boundary lines of properties lying between Winnapaug pond and the Atlantic Ocean and the intersection of the same by Atlantic avenue and bounded easterly by Weekapaug Breachway and westerly by Crandall avenue and in which distance eight 12-foot and one 20-foot passways to the ocean front were delineated and the records read: "will be set apart and kept and are dedicated as a public walk and right of way to the beach" and that all deeds to property when passed should contain such clause. There seemed to be a doubt in the minds of some of the council member as to whether these were ever deeded to the town of Westerly and the rights of the town authorities to enter upon such lands, as to cut brush, etc., some of the councilmen citing instances to their knowledge where such land had been used and charged for by indivduals for parking autos and in one case where a house had been erected if only partially on such passways. Before such situation is cleared up the matter may yet find its way into the courts.

Attorney C. E. Roche appeared before the council on the petition of James Agras, proprietor of the Quality Lunch on Main street, asking that his license to operate same might include 24 hours without a 1 a. m. closing as at present time. Fifty or more signatures were attached to the petition. At the close of the session on motion of Councilman Monti with second by Councilman Meikle of the police committee of the council on the recommendation of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, the matter was laid on the table. Before this was done attention was called to night business being sent to New London and Providence, the nearest eating places late at night.

Mrs. Blanche DeRocco, wife of Peter A. DeRocco, owner of the Alba inn, and property on Canal street and residing in a house at the rear, appeared before the council to complain of an uncovered and filthy garbage container at the rear of the property of Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, and located near their property line from which odors were offensive and intolerable as they came in the windows of her home where her husband was ill. She said she had been to Health Officer Dr. Samuel S. C. Webster, who said he was powerless in the matter and that for relief she should go to Dr. Vincent. President Burdick assured her that the matter would be attended to and that Prosecutor Ferguson would send Health Officer Dr. Webster, the law in the matter showing him that he had all power.

Dean of the Westerly tonsorial artists, Richard Joseph Rooney, again appeared at the council session for a long talk (he said it was for the last time and councilmen in sotto voice rejoined they hoped so) to state that he was accused of keeping a "rotten shop and had rotten people come there." At length he went on to explain that if his copper tank had the lid soldered on as directed by the Rhode Island barber commission, as the council had voted to put the town under the state barber law, an optional matter, there was danger of an explosion which he did not care to take. His redress from the council would be for them to vote to rescind their vote which Solicitor Ferguson said there was no provision in the state law and would be a legislative matter now after the vote had already been passed. Mr. Rooney said he had been called to Providence only to "be bawled out." He had caught them at their own game and complained at the time of their dirty quarters with un-emptied cuspidors. Then he proceeded to take the Westerly town council into camp as he had done the state barber commission. Council President Burdick stated that Westerly physicians had recommended the adoption of the regulations of the state barber act as "a very nice thing." Quickly came the rejoiner from Barber Rooney: "You've got a sample of the Westerly doctors before you right here and now with their stinking swill. Other barbers may be scared, I'm not yellow, you can't drive me, stop this law right now in the matter of a state barber commission which has ordered me to have my shop cleaned in ten days and not even given me the benefit of one day taken for the notice to reach me." He continued: "If you don't want to we'll have some one in your places who will!" He taunted: "How far did you get with your Sunday closing? You'd have all the stores open if you persisted. Where has zoning got you, this isn't America any more, you can't build on land you own, by and by you'll hear from the people" and concluded, "Get through bull-dozing the people."

Considerable wind was left in the council fathers sails for they began shortly after 11:00 a. m. to run through business matters in almost record breaking time.

A letter was read from Mrs. Isabell M. Newell, property owner on the Fort Mansfield road, asking the council to inform her by what right the thoroughfare had been closed without first considering the residents and stating her indignation at being asked to contribute $15 for the payment of a special policeman to stop traffic on it. Solicitor Ferguson informed the council that traffic was stopped on the Larkin property and that the cost of the officer was paid for by the Beach association. Councilman Meikle of the police committee said that town constables were available for private employment and that all the property owners of the Mansfield road property with possibly 4 or 6 exceptions favored the road closing to the general public. Councilman Naccarata said he was opposed to town officers with all their habiliaments stopping the people and cited an incident where an over-zealous constable at Miss Annie Chapman's beach site had stopped people crossing when it developed that such people were lot owners across Atlantic avenue and that deeds to their property entitled them to a right of way across the beach. Solicitor Ferguson said the Watch Hill officer had been specially instructed to make no arrest and to only give a court summons if a person warned attempted to push him aside after he had laid a warning hand upon them and the matter might then come before the courts as a civil case, if property owners desired to prosecute.

A letter of Edwin L. Sawyer and Joseph Gervasini with reference to labor employment on the building operations of the Westerly school committee in reference to a town meeting vote for local labor preference was referred to an opinion held by the school committee on its legality and a court ruling was recommended as the council declared itself without power.

Request of Ralph G. Bliven, owner of Wigwam hotel property at Misquamicut beach, that all his property at the beach be placed in a business area, was referred to the Westerly zoning commission, as the council said it had no authority.

A request to the "Mayor of Watch Hill" was read from the census bureau at Washington, asking for a list of all contractors and sub-contractors, and Clerk Whipple was directed to forward the telephone book's listing.

Report for July of Health Officer Dr. Samuel C. Webster showed no contagious diseases for the month and was voted approved.

Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rosai reported for June and July and approval was voted.

Approval was voted July report of Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, showing 14 arrests for the month as follows: Insane person, 2; tampering with electric meter, 1; illegal possession of liquor, 1; intoxication, 2; (Town Clerk Whipple said: "Check that against the large number reported from Norwich); passing auto on right, 1; revelling, 5; peddling without state license, 1; and without town license, 1. Five were taken into custody and one liquor raid was made.

Building Inspector Thomas Wills reported received and granted 11 permits for wooden frame buildings, none for brick and stone, and twenty-five for additions and alterations. There were 34 inspections made and fees received and voted into town treasury amounted to $110.

Master Plumbers Charles A. Davey, John E. Cusack and Earl S. Robinson, present at council session, departed when told time was not sufficient for them to be heard on the adoption of a plumbing code.

Harrison G. Hutchins of Shelter Harbor, on the approval of Chief Brown, was voted a special constable for that section of the town.

Victualling licenses were voted: John D. Traggis, St. Clair, High and Broad streets; Vars Bros. 8-10 High street; Luigi Giuliano 86 Atlantic avenue, Misquamicut.

Tavern licenses were voted Anna E. Ford, Narragansett Inn, Bay street, Watch Hill; Analia Clemens, 15 Crandall avenue, Misquamicut; Anna H. Wade, 242 Atlantic avenue, Misquamicut and Willard A. Senna, proprietor of the Plimpton hotel, Watch Hill.

July monthly bills were voted paid and the town treasurer approval of his issuance of drainage notes, $50,000, Sept. 1, 1930, and due March 1, 1931; school notes, $25,000, Aug. 1, 1930, and due Feb. 1, 1931, and town of Westerly notes in amount of $25,000, Aug. 4, 1930, and due Feb. 4, 1931, at the First National and Old Colony Trust corporation, Boston, at 2.84 per cent discount.

Bill to date for town advertising amounting to $854.24 was voted approved with the statement that the budget amount would be entirely used.

Sewer assessments apportionments were voted residents of Oak and Tower streets, totalling $276.14.

Recorded in the office of Westerly Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple appear the following transfers:

Aug. 1. William H. Clapham and wife, Emma, to Thomas H. Foley and wife of Worcester, Mass., tract or parcel of land with building and improvements at Misquamicut, formerly Pleasant View, bounded southerly by the Atlantic ocean, westerly by land of George W. Carroll, northerly by Atlantic avenue, and easterly by land of A. W. Clapp, being lot No. 42 of plat of building sites, 1909, by C. E. Chandler and S. B. Palmer, Engs. Norwich.

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

MAKE THIS TEST—See for yourself how Calumet Baking Powder acts twice to make your baking better. Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that takes place in your mixing bowl.

After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture rises to the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that takes place in your oven. Make this test today. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure.

It's wonderful what Calumet's DOUBLE-ACTION does for cakes and biscuits

You can feel sure your biscuits and cakes will be perfect when you use Calumet Baking Powder, for it has double-action. Two leavening actions that protect your baking from failure and make it light, fluffy, fine-textured.

Calumet's first action, in the mixing bowl, gets the leavening properly started. Then, in the oven, the second action swells through the batter and holds it high and light—even though you may not be able to regulate your oven temperature perfectly. Bake a Calumet cake and see why it is the largest-selling baking powder in the world today.

Only One Level Teaspoon of Calumet to a Cup of Sifted Flour!

That's the usual Calumet proportion. Be sure to follow it even though you may have been using nearly twice as much with other baking powders. You'll be delighted with this economy! And more than delighted with the results Calumet gives you. Perfect texture! Perfect flavor!

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action. Not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. Calumet is scientifically made of exactly the right ingredients, in exactly the right proportions to produce perfect leavening action—Double-Action. Get a can of Calumet from your grocer today. Notice Calumet comes in full-sized one pound cans.

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 4.— Announcement was made this afternoon by Mrs. Harry Cook of Reynolds street of the marriage, on July 3, of her daughter, Miss Gladys Mae Cook, and Lieut. Harry Raymond Boyd, U. S. A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Boyd of the West Side. The marriage was performed at Webster by Rev. George L. Camp.

The bride, a graduate of Killingly high school, has for several years past been a member of the clerical staff at the Danielson Trust company. Lieut. Boyd is a graduate of the United States Military academy at West Point in the class of 1930, and of Killingly high school.

Lieut. Boyd will report to the commanding officer of the Second corps area on September 12, and on Sept. 27 with his bride will sail from New York for California, for duty at March field, Riverside. He is attached to the coast artillery, with a detail to the air corps.

At the end of this week, William Sangster, manager of the Danielson division of the Connecticut Light and Power company, is completing his work here and will at once be assigned as commercial manager of the Waterbury district of the company.

In token of their friendship and the cordial relations so long existing between them, employes of the company here presented Mr. Sangster with a beautiful and valuable wrist watch at the week. The party assembled at the company building here, and the presentation was made by James Blackford. Refreshments were served.

Within the next two weeks construction of a new line for the Connecticut Light and Power company from the Dyer dam to Danielson will be underway. The distance is about two miles. This new line will carry 2,300 volts. Rights of way all ready have been obtained. The company recently purchased the Dyer dam property from the Connecticut company, which for years developed power there for its trolley lines. The Connecticut company having no further particular need of the property disposed of it to the light and power company.

Sidewalk construction recently completed in that section of the borough now gives an unbroken length of concrete walks around a square made up of Oak, Mechanic, Winter and Spring streets. The last of these walks were completed only recently.

At the present time walks are being built in Academy street. The work there is well advanced, and when completed the entire southerly side of the street between Main and Broad will have good concrete walks, and much of the northerly side similar walks.

The current report relative to the activities of the Civic federation's visiting nurse, Miss Miriam Boomhower, shows that during June and July 34 new cases claimed Miss Boomhower's attention, and that the same number of cases were carried over from May. Gale have been named as sponsors for a chapter of American Air Cadets to be organized here. It is expected that the membership of the local chapter will reach 100. The organization is intended to sharpen the interest of boys in aviation and matters pertaining to aircraft.

Robert Tyrell, formerly in the Connecticut mills organization here, now resident in New Hampshire, was a week end visitor with friends in Danielson.

Concrete is being put down rapidly on the Wauregan-Danielson route. One side of the new highway is already built from a point opposite the Wauregan school house northward to near the Warner farm. One-way traffic is in effect along this section.

Harry E. Back, Jr., who is with the Bethlehem Steel company in Pennsylvania, is visiting at his home here. Samuel Back of Boston is also here for his vacation. They are sons of Attorney and Mrs. Harry E. Back.

It was announced today that $287 was realized on Saturday by the Brooklyn women who arranged a "market garden" in the interest of the Nurses' Home fund of the Day Kimball hospital.

It was indicated today that final figures for the town's financial year that closed July 31, will show even a greater reduction in debt than the $36,500 already announced. The selectmen have their first meeting of the new business year on Wednesday of this week.

Again today the mercury soared into the 90's in Danielson. At various places about the borough readings of 97 to 99 were made. Yesterday a thermometer outside a store in the central part of the business section touched 101 degrees for the first time. The instrument never before had reached the 100 mark.

The Misses Olive and Irene Burns, Alma and Anita Buteau and Christine and Marjorie Brennan are at Misquamicut to spend a vacation.

The special Well Child clinic at the high school Wednesday will be from 9 to 4 o'clock. Dr. Elizabeth Ingraham, head of the Well Child department of the state board of health, will be in attendance with her staff of assistants. The deficit in conducting this year's Chautauqua in Danielson amounts to $8.50 per guarantor. Deficits have been such a regular thing for the past few years that they have come to be one of the chief reasons why the bringing of Chautauqua here has been abandoned.

PUTNAM

DRAWS JAIL SENTENCE WHEN UNABLE TO PAY HIS FINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, August 4—At a session of the city court held before Judge Geissler A. Lawton was found guilty on a charge of drunkenness and was committed to the county jail in Brooklyn for 30 days and as he was not able to pay the costs of court he will have to work it out bringing the sentence to about 45 days. Lawton was sleeping on the fruit rack in front of the fruit store owned by Louis Lombardo about 11:30 Saturday night and Joseph Durand noticed him. Officer Durand woke him up and tried to have him move on but he was not able to move at all so Officer Durand arrested him on the charge of drunkenness. He formerly came from some town in Rhode Is. but it is so long since he had a home that he had to think twice before he could tell the officers where he came from.

The body of Emma J. Philips, formerly of Woodstock, who died February 26 in Janesville, Wisconsin, was brought to Putnam today by train and was taken to the West Woodstock cemetery for burial. The body was accompanied by her son, H. A. Philips of Janesville. The committal services at the grave were read by Rev. Henry Baker of East Woodstock.

The pipe which is now being laid in Putnam for the new water system includes 2258 feet of eight inch pipe which is to go from the Little River bridge to the Day Kimball hospital and will run parallel to the six inch pipe which is there at the present time. On Farrows 665 feet of eight inch pipe will replace the six inch pipe which is there at present and on Charles street from Letters street to Frank street 497 feet of eight inch pipe will replace four inch pipe. This makes a total of 3,420 feet of eight inch pipe which is to be laid.

On Pomfret street east through Front street to Oak street 1658 feet of 16 inch pipe will be laid and on Oak street to the tank and on Oak street and School street north to Furnace street 12 inch pipe. In repairing the water system of Putnam it will not be necessary to touch the memorial bridge as at the time that the bridge was built there were 96 feet of 16 inch pipe laid.

The Perkins-Strongman mill on Church street shut down last Saturday for a period of two weeks. This is the first time that this mill has been entirely shut down since its arrival in Putnam three years ago. The mill however, is expected to run on a full time schedule when it reopens and the shutdown is not due to work being slack.

A large number of people from Windham county went to the farm of William Poole which is located in Ashford, last Friday night to hear J. S. Owens, who is a well known crops specialist, give a talk on the improving of pasture and increasing hay crops. The farm of Mr. Poole has been specially treated and Mr. Owens used this farm as an example of what could be done to improve pasture lands by proper treatment and how more hay could be raised by the planting of alfalfa in the hayfields. After the talk by Mr. Owens the people were invited to ask Mr. Owens any questions in regards the problems that they would like to have explained to them. By the large number of questions asked him it seems as if Mr. Owens' talk interested them and several of the men have decided to try the treatment. This twilight crops meeting was under the direction of Raymond E. Wing, the county agricultural agent.

The two girls Mary Mrazik and Anna Spitz, who were in the car in which Charles Astroski of Webster was killed in Plainfield yesterday are reported by the hospital today as being still in a very serious condition and it is still doubtful whether they will live or not. Miss Mrazik is suffering from a fractured skull, body bruises and possible internal injuries and Miss Spitz has a fractured leg, a few cuts and possible internal injuries. Warren Duclos who was also riding in the car is suffering from body cuts and bruises and shock and although not being as badly injured as the two girls he is being held at the hospital under observation as it is possible that he may have some internal injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. John Billings of South Main street were visiting at Pleasant View, R. I., yesterday with Miss Elizabeth Hoey who is an aunt of Mrs. Billings.

CANADA'S NEXT PREMIER IS MAN OF MILLIONS

TORONTO—(AP)—All the way from a country boy to a man of millions climbed R. B. Bennett, who has led Canadian conservatives to victory and thus will be the dominion's next premier.

He was born 60 years ago in a little New Brunswick village—Hopewell Hill—but it was western Canada that made him.

Bennett's father died when the boy was in public school, but he continued his studies and at 17 was a teacher.

A year later he turned to law and the law led him westward to Calgary, where a new empire was stirring.

He plunged into the civic and political life of the town and within a year was elected to the legislative assembly of the Northwest Territories.

But defeat met his first trial in dominion politics in 1900, and it was not until 1911 that he sat in the house of commons.

Seated as a conservative, his opinions didn't always dovetail with party leaders' plans. But this independence won respect, and he was made parliamentary under-secretary of external affairs in 1916. A year later he returned to his practice.

Millions were bequeathed to him by friends of his youth, Mrs. Jennie Eddy, widow of a pulp and paper manufacturer, and her brother, but much of his fortune is of his own making.

He was made conservative leader in 1927, after three successive elections had been lost.

He has few physical diversions, preferring literature for recreation. He is an omnivorous reader.

JEWETT CITY

DORIS MYOTT GASHED BY PROPELLER BLADES

Miss Doris Myott is a patient in Backus hospital, Norwich, where she was taken following severe injuries received when struck by the whirling propeller blades of a motor boat, from which she was thrown, Sunday afternoon at Beach Pond.

Lional E. Boucher, also a passenger in the boat, and Adam Rojeski, who was at the controls, were thrown into the water, when the light craft made a sharp turn, probably caused by the fouling of the tiller lines, or the result of the rudder striking some partially submerged object. The accident happened about 300 feet from shore in deep water. The two men came up first, then Miss Myott, rose to the surface, fortunately near the boat, which did not capsize, and was floating, with the engine stopped. The girl was able to grasp the gunwale to which she clung until the men swam up and helped her over the side. One of the blades had cut a long deep gash across her chest, an injury which must have been fatal, had not the sharp blades been prevented from reaching a vital spot, because of their contact with the girl's ribs. Another blade inflicted a bad scalp wound. Miss Myott's automobile was near by, and Mr. Boucher at the wheel brought her 10 miles to Jewett City, where Dr. F. E. Rainville, directed that she be hurried to the hospital immediately. Mr. Boucher did that. Miss Emma Dearnley was one of the company of bathers, and for her heroic action much credit is due. She held her injured friend in her arms on the back seat of the machine ministering what aid was possible during the 20-mile drive to Jewett City and then to Norwich. Miss Myott is severely injured, but fortunate circumstances were many. First, the contact of the propeller with the girl's body stilled the engine, so that the boat drifted near, making favorable conditions for the rescue from the water, which was effected by the two men. Then the surgeon at the hospital declared that two such wounds as the young woman received, might easily have been fatal, if in other parts of the body.

Forty-five clamps were used to close the long gash across the breast, and three stitches were necessary in the dressing of the scalp wound. Miss Myott is very well known in Norwich where, until recently she was alto soloist at the United Congregational church, and is a member of the Norwich Choral society. Her home is in Jewett City, where she is employed in the offices of the Aspinook company. Late Monday evening her condition was reported favorable at the hospital.

His father was boss dyer here in the Slater mills at the time of the great flood in '86. DODGE DEPENDABILITY is more than price deep

Owners of the Dodge Six and Eight-in-Line are especially gratified to find that the very features which contribute most notably to the pleasure of owning these fine motor cars are also responsible for their economy, dependability and long life.

The carefully-perfected balance of the engines means less wear and tear from vibration. The floating comfort on the road means that the engine and chassis, as well as the passengers, are virtually free from shock and strain.

The strength and permanent silence of the Mono-Piece Steel Bodies reflect freedom from upkeep expense as well as greater safety. The internal weatherproof hydraulic brakes, which give such reassuringly positive stops, are self-equalizing—require no costly adjusting—reduce wear on tires.

Now more than ever before, Dodge cars combine all of the factors you want most in a motor car. And never has Dodge Brothers ability to give great value been more strikingly demonstrated.

Dodge Six—$835 to $935, f. o. b. factory
Dodge Eight—$1095 to $1145, f. o. b. factory

THE MARATHON CAR
STOPS AT NOTHING

Blistering heat, mountain trails, mud or sand—it's all the same to the standard Dodge Eight sedan which is continuously crossing the country in the Dodge Mileage Marathon. No greater demonstration of dependability has ever been attempted. Over 18,000 miles have been run in the first 34 days.

Dodge Eight closed cars are factory-wired for immediate installation of Transitone, the pioneer automobile radio. Other models will be equipped on order. Ask for a demonstration.

FEDERAL ECONOMY

Without a further reduction of authorized federal expenditures, there can be no assurance that a deficit in the treasury will not exist at the close of the current fiscal year, according to a warning that has been issued by President Hoover. Earlier in the year he made a plea to administrative branches to examine their programmes with a view to seeing where savings could be made and he is appreciative of the way in which they responded, but he feels that circumstances call for a re-examination of figures. Through the first survey, it was the hope that ways might be found to avoid the spending of about $200,000,000 of the sums fixed in the budget. What this survey accomplished is not discussed in Washington advices.

The circumstances that have prompted the President's endeavor, with a new fiscal year barely started, are not to be minimized. A recession in trade means that income tax collections in 1931, along with other revenue receipts, may be less than in 1930. Payments being made this year are based on the business turnover and earnings in 1929, which it is recognized was a decidedly prosperous period, on the whole. Although the two quarterly payments yet to be made in September and December apply to the government year dating from July 1, the succeeding payments will reflect the commercial trend of 1930. It is preparation for an adjustment to the declining sums likely to be turned in to the treasury that Mr. Hoover is trying to facilitate.

Congress did not exceed the aggregate of appropriations recommended by the budget bureau and submitted to the legislators by the president, but the budget does not cover many items that were written into law, either on the suggestion of the administrative branch or through congressional initiative. The examinations undertaken are not designed to interfere with any essential work, but represent a commendable effort to accomplish adjustments in line with tax prospects, as far as they can be ascertained. The policy is most prudent.

LIABILITY TO ARREST

Liability to arrest seems to be on the increase for city dwellers, according to the compilation of municipal statistics by a Connecticut insurance company, from which the conclusion is deduced that one out of every ten residents of the 88 cities studied was arrested for some reason or other in 1929. That is, there were 2,355,428 persons arrested in that year in a total city population of about 25,000,000.

It is such a comparatively simple matter now to have an arrest recorded against one for traffic law violations that the summary shows that nearly one half of the arrest were for that reason, a total of 1,091,963, while those charged with intoxication numbered 364,730, not counting 74,627 arrested for other liquor law violations, and major crimes accounted for 76,360. That leaves about 850,700 arrests for which no causes are furnished. On the other hand, it is estimated that the arrests for crime bore only the proportion of about 15 per cent to the number of crimes reported. Is it to be assumed from this that there were not nearly enough arrests all around and that the proportion of one in ten in the population should have been higher? If the record of increased arrests for the various causes given as compared with a decade ago can be taken as an accurate measure of the urban disregard for law, it may be wondered why anybody nowadays escapes being taken into custody, for the arrests for traffic law violations increased 384 per cent, for intoxication 161 per cent, and for burglary, robbery and theft 212 per cent. These amazing figures seem to indicate either universal lawlessness or an inconceivable activity on the part of city policemen.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

American style creators have come forth with a declaration of independence from the domination of France and particularly of Paris. Designers in the Parisian city dictated early in the year that skirts for women should be lengthened. The response of the style creators for the Associated Dress Industries of America has been a flat repudiation of the authority of Paris and a plain declaration that there would be no change in skirt lengths. Here is the way the president of the American association throws down the gauntlet: "The long skirt of the prewar period is definitely and permanently in the discard. Attempts to popularize it would be met by stubborn and successful resistance."

This is language that the man in the street can understand, but it is reinforced by the following: "It may as well be settled once and for all that Paris fashions are definitely unsuitable to the American woman, excepting as a basis for adaptation or as style hints." The exception noted may seem a bit wobbly, but there is no mistaking this: "Our stylists are jealous of that ingenuity which is everlastingly attributed to foreign sources instead of being credited to America. . . . And we will resist any attempt on the part of the French couturier." The declaration of independence is definite enough. This firm stand will establish the authority of our stylists—and the length of the American skirt.

HAPPY VACATIONS

Happy vacations? Yes, that is what we expect them to be, but it is the unfortunate truth that the promise of happy days by sea or wood or mountain lake often is abruptly and tragically ruined. Safety warnings have been voiced so often that they seem almost trite, but the great vacation month is still ahead of us and it is well to remind ourselves that we cannot be too careful in avoiding possibility of a suddenly terminated vacation time through causes which might be avoided.

Here are some of the reasons why vacations were suddenly brought to an end in so much of the summer that has passed, according to what has been gleaned from the daily columns of the newspapers:

Didn't know the train was coming.
Poisoned by eating tainted food.
Went swimming right after a meal.
Forgot to put out campfire.
Bitten by a poisonous snake.
Handled poison ivy.
Cut by butcher knife.
Cut by hand axe.
Scalded while cooking over campfire.
Burned by campfire.
Didn't know how to swim.
Didn't think the gun would go off.
Didn't think the boat would tip over.

In addition, there were many cases of vacations ending suddenly through automobile smash-ups.

See to it that none of these are recorded against you as you go forth for the period of rest and recreation to fortify you for the labors of the months to follow.

THE WELLAND CANAL

By the first of September the enlarged Welland canal will be ready for its formal opening, a project upon which about $122,000,000 has been spent by the Canadian government. The new channel will be 25 miles long and will have an important influence on the movement of North American commerce, particularly wheat.

Because of the shallow draught of the canal before this improvement, nine-tenths of the traffic using the Great Lakes had been barred from Lake Ontario and the upper reaches of the St. Lawrence river. Boats bringing grain from the western provinces of Canada and the northwestern section of the United States, if they were heavily loaded, could not pass through the old Welland canal but had to unload their cargoes into immense elevators at Buffalo to go from there to the Atlantic seaboard by rail to be loaded onto ocean freighters. Other cargoes were transhipped through the canal in smaller craft that could make the passage. Both were slow and expensive methods.

The limit for the old canal was a boat 260 feet long with 35,000 bushels of grain. The passageway now will accommodate vessels of 663 feet with 553,000 bushels and the trip will be made in eight hours instead of eighteen. To further the use of the big ditch, ample for the largest of present Great Lakes boats, giant terminal elevators are being erected at Kingston and Prescott, the latter being a government project. The rest of the way down the St. Lawrence will have to be by smaller boats, but the Welland improvement will eliminate one unloading which is at present necessary in export commerce with Europe. If the contemplated deepening of the St. Lawrence on to the sea is carried out either by Canada alone or in conjunction with the United States, the enlarged Welland canal is an important link in this freight transportation chain.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON, August 4—Senator Walcott is this summer shining under the rays of a new spotlight, according to stories in circulation at the Capitol City. Every one has long known that Speaker Longworth is an expert violinist; that Senator Herbert of Rhode Island, not only plays the violin like a professional, but has a family of trained musicians as well. Mrs. Herbert was a professional pianist before her marriage, and the four or five Herbert sons and daughters are being trained along musical lines of a high standard. Mrs. Bingham, wife of the senior senator from Connecticut is a fine violinist and was the solo artist at one of the concerts given last winter by the Woman's Congressional club.

Now it comes to light that Senator Walcott is not only devoted to music, a fact long known, but that he likes nothing better than tuck a fiddle under his chin and lead a quartette or quintette of semi-professionals. Walcott is entirely capable of doing it, so those who have heard him play and direct are quite ready to assert. But apparently he has been content to hide his light under a bushel, so far as letting his senatorial colleagues know his talent. Walcott has a camp somewhere in the New England woods, and the story runs that each summer he asks several trained musicians to go there as his guests, and that fiddles and cellos are taken along. Walcott is devoted to life in the woods, and this summer is to cross the country as chairman of the "preservation of wild animal life", to see what protection the wild native birds and animals are now lacking. Walcott will be in his element, for research work and life in the open are his special delight.

The insurgents of the senate seem to have jumped from the frying pan into the fire, by insisting on the resignation of Houston as national committee chairman, only to get in his place, Senator Fess of Ohio.

Fess was the first senator to decry insurgents, and oppose their using the name republicans. He dubbed as "psuedo republicans", such senators as were elected on a republican ticket, only to refuse to follow party leadership or recognize party obligations, as soon as elected. For them he has no sympathy and gives them no quarter. Yet the President is insistent Fess take the chairmanship, just as the President insisted Senator Moses should take the chairmanship of the senate campaign cammittee. And the President now stands by both Fess and Moses as the best men to fill the positions.

Fess denounced "psuedo republicans" on the floor of the senate long before Moses compared them to "sons of the wild jackass", which came from a Biblical quotation where those of the herd wandered away into the wilderness, and failed to return to the fold.

But they hold no resentment towards Moses, and with the exception of Blaine of Wisconsin, are quite content he is chairman. But to have Fess added to the list has upset them quite a bit, and apparently they are trying to block his taking over the chairmanship.

The national committee meets in Washington in September to elect a permanent chairman and it is expected that the executive committee which meets here this week, will elect him permanent chairman.

Fess had been a school master all his life till he came to congress. His last post was that of president of Antioch college, Ohio. Fess brings with him "schoolmastry" traits, to use an expression often heard in eastern New England country towns. He lacks the companionable traits that soften blows that come from Moses, and induce the insurgents to forgive him, even when he makes up faces at them or calls them names. They do not want him deposed, all statements to the contrary notwithstanding. He has announced he will take no sides in primary contests, and they know him to be such a fervid party man, he will do all he can to elect whoever gets the nomination on the republican tickets, whether or not they are his type of republicans.

But they are protesting the selection of Fess, though at this moment it looks as if Fess would be the next national chairman. A notable feature of the Moses—Fess selection is that both were the insistent choice of President Hoover, and who today stands back of them both.

Secretary Arthur M. Hyde, of the department of agriculture, cares as much about fishing as does President Hoover, but he wants it to be big game, like sharks and tarpon, only probably it isn't exactly acurate to refer to "fishing for sharks." However that may be, Hyde wants deep sea, and big fish. He likes Mexican fishing and every time he gets a chance, goes down to southern deep waters for what he calls "real fishing."

Attorney General Mitchell is in sympathy with the big game flare, but he turns to hunting, not fishing for his sport. Mr. Hyde wants to catch a shark, Mr. Mitchell wants to catch a buffalo, or a bear, or something big and with legs that can make the chase interesting. He wants to stalk big game out in the unbroken wilds of the far west. He likes nothing better than take his gun and a motion picture outfit, and beat it to the tall timber. He has brought home many fine specimens of big game, which now adorn his house, and his motion pictures are said to be a tremendous attraction when friends drop in for an informal evening.

Representative Thatcher of Kentucky is another man who takes along his motion picture outfit on travels by land and by sea. Thatcher was head of the United States commission of civil administration in the canal zone before coming to congress. Nearly every year Mr. and Mrs. Thatcher take a trip to the canal zone, during the Christmas congressional recess, and bring back trophies and treasures, and also a series of moving pictures, which they take with skill and exhibit here to admiring colleagues and friends.

We often read that "it is so hot you could fry eggs on the side walk", but never before have we been told by unquestionable authority, that it was so hot in Washington that a chicken was hatched out of a "fresh" egg, right into the hand of a would be purchaser of the crate, and the purchaser was none other than Wilson, one of Washington's best known detectives. It was down at the public market. For two weeks the daily official record had shown the mercury touching from 90 to 110 in the shade. "I want some fresh eggs" said Wilson. "Here are some fine ones, just in and perfectly fresh" said the market-man. Wilson took up an egg, noticed a slight motion, heard a faint pecking noise and in a jiffy out stepped a tiny chicken right into his hand. "By George," said Wilson, "I've seen fellows on the stage pick a rabbit out of a hat but this beats 'um to death" "Charge it up to the heat," said the market man. And Wilson did, but took the chick home to show the family.

Chairman Byrns of the house campaign committee, democratic, is laying his plans to have plenty of money with which to conduct the coming campaign. Byrns is not only chairman but a candidate for election as member from Tennessee. Byrns has stipulated that whatever money he raises for campaign purposes shall go towards electing democratic members of the house from all over the country and no part of it be spent for reducing the democratic campaign debt of 1928, which even now amounts to more than a half million dollars. Byrns predicts a democratic house, but whether he whole hartedly stands back of that prediction or is merely whistling to keep his courage up, is a mater of doubt.

TO BE CONCLUDED

Ann gazed longingly at the bright colored array of magazines in the "L" station newsstand, but particularly did she covet the latest issue of a popular publication displayed there in gay rows. A thrilling serial was "to be concluded" in this number and she did so want to know if the dashing hero arrived in time to rescue the lovely heroine from the kidnappers' clutches and live happily ever after.

But a dime is a thing to be reckoned with when one possesses but three of them. So, reluctantly, Ann turned away from her temptation and paid her fare, leaving two thin dimes in her flat, shabby purse.

Tomorrow was Saturday— thank heaven for that—a pay check, small to be sure—but money, the first in many discouraging weeks, would be forthcoming.

Glancing casually at the assorted humans crowded about her, a familiar picture caught her eye. A man in the seat just ahead of where she clung precariously was about to open the longed-for magazine.

If he would only turn to the engrossing serial! Maybe he would! No, he stopped at an article on aviation, but he's turning—now he's reading the pictures illustrating a new serial—next stop, a short story—turning, turning, at last the story! Oh, will he stop? Maybe he's just looking through the book—no, he's folding back the pages—he's going to read it! And exultant, Ann read, too, shamelessly, over his shoulder as she clung with numb fingers to the swaying leather.

As the car gradually emptied, Ann slid into the seat behind him. On and on sped the train. On and on wove the tale to a thrilling climax—a surprising and delightful conclusion. "Oh!" breathed Ann, "what a lovely ending!"

"Absolutely okay," agreed the young man with the magazine, turning around surprised to meet Ann's embarrassed look and apologies.

"I forget everything, too," he assured her kindly, "when I get wrapped up in a good story."

"End of the line—all out!" called the conductor from the front of the empty car.

"O—oh, I'm miles from my station," cried Ann, remembering the pair of dimes in her purse. Nothing to eat after all—but oh, the story had been so good!

"Well, so am I, but there will be another train back soon."

As they walked down the stairs he noticed how pale and pinched her pretty face looked, how shabby but neat her clothes, and she had no galoshes to protect her small feet from the cold and snow. Poor kid! Looked as if she hadn't had enough to eat lately. "You know, I haven't had any supper yet, and I'm hungry as a bear—let's get a bite in here"—and he guided her gently but firmly into a tiny luncheonette and confectionery adjoining the 'L' station before she could protest more than feebly.

As they perched on the high white stools eating and discussing the story Ann decided he was a very nice young man. He had such honest gray eyes—a man that one trusts instinctively. But that didn't make it all right for her to be in this unconventional predicament. So, with a look at the clock, she said abruptly "It's getting late; I must be going home."

"And so it is! Sorry, but I forget about time when I'm interested—"

A very nice young man—yes, indeed, but—"you'll never see him again, silly! And, besides, Ann Martin, he may be married, for all you know!" she chided herself. It seemed the train had never gone so fast.

"Central station nex-x-t!"

"That's my station," said Ann, rising. "Thank you, and good-by." The nice young man rose, too.

"And it's my station also," he replied. "Now, you must let me see you safely home."

As they stopped before a three-story rooming house he laughed and turned to Ann. "Are you taking me home or am I taking you?"

"Why, do you live here too?" she questioned, bewildered.

"I do. 'All the comforts of home at Mrs. O'Reilly's'—did you fall for that 'ad,' too? Now, I ask you, isn't companionship one of the essentials of a home environment? And I've lived here three months and never met a soul in the place!"

"Nor I," confessed Ann, smiling at his mock seriousness, "but being fiction lovers we became introduced without Mrs. O'Reilly's hospitality."

"M-mm, in the future the 'fiction' won't be necessary," murmured the nice young man to himself as he unlocked the door for them.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—If there is another member of congress seeking reelection whose declarations about prohibition exactly parallel those of Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, the Bystander has not discovered him—or her.

Fish is reported to have declared that in five terms in congress he had said exactly nothing on that subject in the house.

"I have never made a speech on the subject," Representative Fish said at Poughkeepsie. "I have never found it necessary. I will not commit myself to the wets and I will not commit myself to the drys.

"I shall make no statement as to how I shall vote on questions pertaining to prohibition or midification."

Now that is about as odd a campaign declaration on so moot a question of politics for an aspirant for re-election as it is possible to conceive.

Yet the rigidly kept index of the first regular session of the 71st congress, just ended, bears out Fish's statement.

Quite possibly he is the only house or senate member who ever talked at all during sessions and did not get to that subject sooner or later. It must be almost impossible to resist the temptation to barge into that never-ending debate.

There are quite a number of Fish's colleagues who almost never have talked of anything else.

Inspection of the Fish "remarks on" record for the session just closed shows the fact that among the 30 or more subjects on which he did talk, some of them many times, the tariff also is notably lacking.

That is another near-record for silence.

Per contra, what did he talk about "on the hill" this last session? Here you are, taken from the Record index, and, incidentally, it is typical of the extraordinary variety of subjects a member can find to vocalize about:

The Fish "remarks on" list includes deportation of alien narcotic law violators; suspension of Jewish immigration to Palestine; West Point athletics; areial legal experts; budget methods; Norwegian claims; Paris exposition.

Foreign service claims, international dairy congress, passports, communists (many times), sex equality as to nationality, unemployment, Greek independence, veterans (often), educational test for citizenship, loans to farmers, national fur trade congress.

Disabled soldiers' league, world poultry congress, Palestine massacres, religious persecution in Soviet Russia, Chauncey Depew, Haitan commission, Porto Rico schools, ambassador to Poland, gold star mothers.

So Fish was not silent by any means—except on prohibition and tariff.

Clothing Suggestions For The Summer

By Charles D. Cleghorn, M. D.,
Miami, Florida.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute,
Washington, D. C.)

Now that the summer season is here we should learn to make those changes which are consistent with the changed climatic conditions. Changes should be made in diet, in clothing, and probably also in exercise. The general opinion is that as a rule we wear too much. Clothing is worn for various reasons, for instance to keep the body warm, or as a protection from the elements or from insects, or to comply with the law, or for personal adornment.

If a greater portion of the body surface were to be exposed to the air, summer and winter, it might well be a desirable change. We know that a large amount of poisonous waste material is eliminated by the skin, and if the skin is too tightly covered this elimination cannot take place. And since we spend so much of our time in artificially heated houses and offices we should dress for this heat, adding extra garments only when we go out into a colder environment.

As summer approaches all clothing should be lightened. A constantly moist condition of the surface of the body due to too heavy clothing is an unhealthy result and it should be avoided. Air should circulate freely around the body through and underneath the clothing. Perspiration is to be encouraged, but this perspiration must not be allowed to accumulate and remain in the clothing, clinging to the body. It must be allowed to evaporate readily and thus cool the skin while aiding in the elimination we so greatly need.

So clothing should be loose fitting, and of a porous or loose weaved material, allowing the free circulation of air. If the temperature drops suddenly towards night and the day time clothing is too thin, even if dry, to prevent a chilly feeling, some addition to the clothing must be made. No two parts of our large country have the same climatic conditions and so each must be made a study by its residents.

During the summer free radiation of heat from the surface of the body, aided by perspiration and its evaporation, is our greatest safeguard against overheating. Try to wear proper clothing in spite of time honored conventions. Health and life should be placed above social and business convention and in the long run will pay far greater dividend.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Lost Thimble

No matter how the guilty tries,
He's bound to show it in his eyes.
—Old Mother Nature.

Jim Crow had as usual gone down to the cornfield riding on the shoulder of Farmer Brown's Boy. Mother Brown had watched them go. She had chuckled as she heard Jim Crow talking crow-talk to his master as they disappeared.

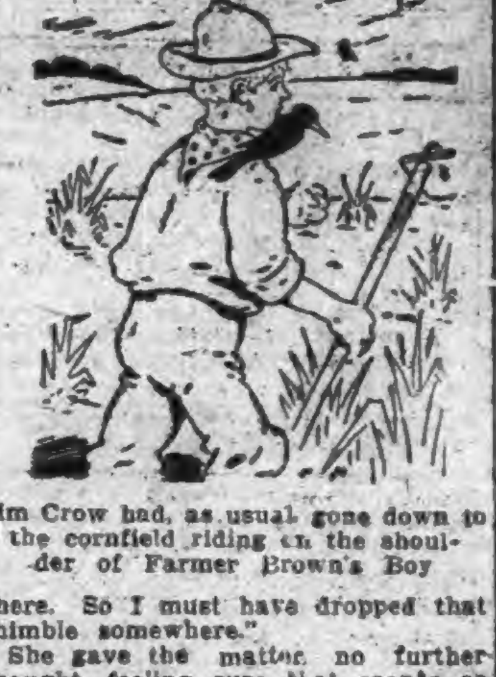
"That black scamp talks just as if he thought we understood all he said," said Mother Brown to herself. "I am glad that he likes to go down to the cornfield. He does a lot of good down there by hunting out white grubs and cutworms and it keeps him out of mischief up here."

This was a busy day for Mother Brown. She had a lot of sewing to do. She sat by an open window sewing and as she sewed she hummed. For a long time she worked. Then she had to go out in the kitchen for something. She laid her work down, put her thimble on the windowsill and left the room. She was gone for only a couple of minutes. When she returned her thimble was missing. Yes, sir, the thimble was missing. At first, Mother Brown thought that she might have been absentminded and possibly have left the thimble somewhere else. She went back to the kitchen to see if she left it there. She couldn't find it. Then she went outdoors to see if it had fallen on the ground outside. She didn't find it there.

By this time Mother Brown had stopped humming. She was anxious to finish her sewing. It was very annoying to have lost the thimble. Moreover, she was puzzled. She couldn't understand how she could have lost it.

"I must have been careless," said she. "When I got up in a hurry I must have dropped it and it rolled somewhere. Well, I can't stop to hunt for it now. I must have another old thimble around somewhere and I'll use that."

Mother Brown rummaged around in her work-basket and finally found a battered old thimble that would do. Then she resumed her sewing. As she worked she heard the voice of Jim Crow down in the cornfield. You see, the wind was just right and Jim Crow's voice carries a long distance. "If that black rascal was up here, I should suspect him of knowing something about that thimble," thought Mother Brown. "But I saw him go down in the cornfield and he is still there. So I must have dropped that thimble somewhere."



Jim Crow had, as usual gone down to the cornfield riding on the shoulder of Farmer Brown's Boy

She gave the matter no further thought, feeling sure that sooner or later the thimble would be found. She knew it couldn't have gone very far. Presently she went out to the kitchen to get dinner. Then she blew the horn which was the signal to Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy that dinner was ready. Jim Crow understood that signal just as well as the others did. He stopped hunting for white grubs and he rode up the Long Lane and into the farmyard.

Mother Brown was standing in the doorway as Farmer Brown's Boy approached with Jim Crow on his shoulder. Instead of riding into the house, as usual, Jim Crow flew up in a tree. Mother Brown noticed this. "Well, you black scamp," she exclaimed, "you must have found a lot to eat this morning. Usually you come right in and tease to be fed."

"Caw, Caw!" said Jim Crow, as if he understood, which of course he didn't. And all the time he kept his sharp eyes on Mother Brown. Yes, sir, he kept his sharp eyes on Mother Brown, quite as if he expected her to do something to him. But Mother Brown didn't notice it and neither did Farmer Brown's Boy. So after a while Jim Crow flew down and came into the house and listened just as if he understood while Mother Brown told about the missing thimble.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Whitney Blake Company

The Whitney Blake company is located on Dixwell avenue, at Pershing street, in the town of Hamden, adjacent to New Haven. The company was founded in 1912 by T. Whitney Blake, with whom was associated Menley E. Chester and George D. Watrous. The factory was built in an open field along the railroad to manufacture braided, rubber-covered telephone wires. Since 1913 the factory has grown from a floor space of 33,000 to 100,000 square feet on a thirty-acre property, including 22 company houses mostly occupied by the company organization.

The manufacture of telegraph wires and automobile cables are now included in the production. During the World war the entire plant was devoted to the manufacture of rubber-covered telephone wires for government use, consisting mostly of army field and outpost telephone wires. To meet the needs of the government, a fireproof addition 60 by 400 ft. was constructed complete in 38 days.

The inspiration and completion of the plant is largely due to its founder and first president, T. Whitney Blake, who died suddenly in 1919. The plant stands today as a monument to his ability as a pioneer in the manufacture of braided, rubber covered wires and cords. Its products are marketed only by three large distributors. The Western Electric company distribute for the Bell Telephone System. The Graybar Electric company distribute for the domestic jobbing, contracting and independent telephone trade. The International Standard Electric company distribute for export throughout the rest of the world, and also manufacture, purchase and distribute for the International Telephone and Telegraph company.

The present officers of the company are: President, L. K. Blake; vice president, H. C. Van Ness; treasurer Harold Weaver; general manager and secretary, M. E. Chester.

WOMEN SHOULD LEARN USES OF MAGNESIA

To women who suffer from nausea, or so-called "morning sickness," this simple measure is proving a blessing Most nurses know it and it is advised by leading specialists.

Prepare a small quantity of finely cracked ice—about a wineglassful. Pour over it a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Sip slowly until the mixture is gone or you are entirely relieved. It is seldom necessary to repeat the dose to end sick stomach or any inclination to vomit.

Its anti-acid properties enable Phillips Milk of Magnesia to give immediate relief in heartburn, sour stomach, gas. Its mild, but effective laxative action assures regular bowel movement. Used as a mouthwash it helps prevent acid erosion and tooth decay during expectancy.

With every bottle of Phillips Milk of Magnesia, come full directions for its many uses. All drug stores have the 25c and 50c sizes. Demand the genuine, endorsed by doctors for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

TRACES OF AGED RACE SOUGHT IN NEBRASKA PLAIN

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Traces of men believed to have lived in Nebraska five or ten thousand years ago are sought by the University of Nebraska this summer.

A university party under direction of Dr. W. D. Strong, professor of anthropology, has set out for eastern and southern Nebraska. They are cooperating with the Smithsonian institution.

Five hundred years ago cannibalism, or human sacrifice, apparently was practiced near Murray in Cass county. Split and charred remains of human bones are found on dwelling sites there.

Fifteen feet below the present surface near Murray an extensive village site has been revealed by the cutting of a creek. There are two sites, one above the other, separated by two feet of water borne clay. Dr. Strong estimates the age of these villages at 500 years.

He assigns an age of 5,000 to 10,000 years to a site on the Platte river near Ashland. Fossilized bones and crude flint instruments indicate human habitation here.

Some of the bones appear to have been broken and burned. They were found in glacial gravel in a creek bed about 12 feet below the present surface.

"Nebraska," says Dr. Strong, "is located in the heart of the plains culture area and in addition is crossed by two great river valleys which were the roads of prehistoric as well as historic migrations.

"We have already abundant evidence that man has lived in Nebraska many thousands of years, and it is also clear that when we know his history here, much light will be thrown on American archeology generally."

RUINS OF LOST YUCATAN CITY STUDIED FOR CHICAGO EXHIBIT

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A small band of scientists has penetrated secrets of a lost civilization of the Mayans in old ruins of Uxmal, once a rich and powerful city in Yucatan, Mexico.

Headed by Frans Blom of Tulane university, the party set up headquarters in one of the ancient temples to photograph and measure the structures.

It is proposed to reproduce Uxmal in miniature for the Chicago world fair in 1933.

They report discovery of important information bearing on the life and customs of Mayans who disappeared from the earth more than a thousand years ago.

They found literally thousands of structures in the forsaken city, some of them not visited by white men in hundreds of years. Before establishing living quarters they were forced to drive out swarms of bats and clean up six feet of dust and debris.

They centered attention on the Pyramid of the Magician, the nunery quadrangle and the Temple of the Turtle, all important centers of the city.

PLANTS' ENERGY GREATER WHEN GROWN IN SUNSHINE

CARMEL, Calif. (AP)—The sunshine stored in plants can be measured by a new method devised at Carnegie institution here.

This storage of sunshine is in the form of organic matter, that is, substance produced by growth. The new measurement gives its heat value in calories. It is reported to the southwestern division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Frances L. Long.

"Sunflower plants," she says, "were grown in a row in which one end was shaded and the other exposed to full sunshine.

"Other factors such as soil and moisture were the same throughout the row, but there nearly four times as many calories per plant produced in the plants at the sunny end of the row than in those at the shade end."

ROOM'S SOUND QUALITIES TESTED BY PHOTOGRAPHY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The trained ear still is the best scientific instrument to record sound qualities of a room, but photography looms as a substitute.

This is the gist of a report to the Acoustical Society of America by Dr. V. L. Crisler of the bureau of standards. The photography is done with the aid of an oscillograph, an instrument that records vibrations in millionths of a second.

The ear tells how good the acoustics are by listening to the echoes. The oscillograph pictures these same reverberations as rapidly diminishing up-and-down waves.

Bell's Tones Explained

NEW YORK (AP)—The sound from a bell comes from vibrations that run both up and down the bell and others that circle it. These account for the several different tones emitted simultaneously.

TOLLAND COUNTY CAMPAIGN FOR BETTER HIGHWAYS

Started at an indignation meeting in Southington early last March when farmers who attended had to drive through mud to the axles of their cars, the Connecticut rural road improvement association is gaining momentum daily in its campaign to "Get Connecticut Out of the Mud."

Preelection activity has brought about the formation of approximately 70 local town associations with an estimated membership of 2,100. Rallies and organization meetings are scheduled in dozens of other towns within the next few weeks.

With the state grange as a nucleus and Louis G. Tolles of Southington, master of the state grange, as guiding spirit, the association has set itself the task of organizing the entire rural population of the state behind a demand for better country highways. A bill asking a large state grant for rural road improvement will be introduced at the legislature next winter. Meanwhile the local associations will endeavor to win candidates for legislative places to support of their program.

Tolland, Holland, Litchfield and Fairfield counties, according to Mr. Tolles, are leading in the organization work, a county meeting at Storrs having given a big send off to the Tolland county campaign. Hartford, where organization is in charge of Deputy United States Marshal A. P. Marsh of New Britain, has 15 organized towns out of 23.

COMMON COUNCIL NAMES TWO NEW SUPERNUMERARY POLICE OFFICERS

At the August meeting of the court of common council Monday evening in the council chambers at the court house, Joseph Tombari of No. 47 Washington street and John H. McNally of No. 69 Spring Garden avenue were appointed members of the supernumerary force of the local police department.

At 8:05 o'clock Mayor Lee Roy Robbins declared a short recess and the council reconvened at 8:15 o'clock. The minutes of the previous meeting were approved without reading, according to custom, after which City Clerk Weston C. Pullen read the return of publication on the hearing relative to the location of four poles on Main street by the Connecticut Co.

Mayor Robbins declared the hearing open and as there was no one to speak for or against the petition, the hearing was ordered closed by the mayor. A resolution was later presented by Corporation Counsel Edmund W. Perkins, asking that the petition be accepted and adopted. He reported that the company had already installed the poles after having received permission from the property owners, but the approval of the council was required according to law. The resolution was adopted.

Petitions were received and acted upon as follows:

From Salvatore Perrone and others asking that Platt avenue be put into better condition and oiled. Referred to the public works with power.

From Mrs. M. F. Noyes and others asking for the installation of a light opposite No. 25 Garfield avenue. Referred to the police committee with power.

From George E. Pitcher asking that the council investigate the use of the car tracks of the Connecticut Trolley company on Main street, between Shetucket street and Cliff street, and to pass an ordinance which will relieve the congestion to traffic at that point and points beyond. Referred to the police committee. The mayor suggested that the chairman of the committee confer with the corporation counsel on this matter.

From Frank B. Disco asking that the council change the name of that street leading from Boswell avenue to Division street, originally decided by the superior court and known as Ann street, to Locust street, so that there will not be two streets in the city with the same name. Referred to the police committee.

The annual report of the city auditor and the auditing committee's report on the cashier's accounts of the water department were accepted and ordered printed in the council journal.

Maurice Looby of the public works department recommended that Timothy Brewer, who petitioned to connect with the Dunham street sewer, be given leave to withdraw. He pointed out that it would be impossible to make the connection because of the lay of the land.

F. Russell Smith of the police commission recommended that Joseph Tombari of No. 47 Washington street and John H. McNally of No. 69 Spring Garden avenue be elected members of the supernumerary force of the local police department. The city clerk was ordered to cast one ballot in favor of their appointment.

John H. Sherman of the police commission reported that electric lights had been installed in front of the residence of Charles W. Burton on North Main street, Cliff street extension, White street and opposite the Knights of Columbus home on Broadway.

Mayor Robbins suggested to the police committee the advisability of erecting a warning light of the blinker style at the intersection of McKinley avenue and Broad street. He reported that there have been many accidents and near accidents at this location and that a warning light is needed. He also suggested that a similar light be located at the corner of Broad street and Broadway for the same reason.

The matter of the proposed changes in the water rates in both the city and town was not presented for action, but will probably come up at the September meeting.

The monthly reports of the street commissioner and city treasurer were ordered approved without reading.

The monthly departmental bills were approved as follows:

Finance $5,517.76, public works $19,963.22, G. and E. $69,213.92, water $5,896.75, police $6,940.96, street lighting $2,323.18, cemeteries $1,220.10, fire $8,007.78, park $925.53, recreation $2,344.78.

MILK SHORTAGE SEEN IN NEW LONDON COUNTY

Crops throughout New London county are threatened by the country-wide drought, which, if it continues, will result in thousands of dollars in losses to farmers in this section. The county is also facing a milk shortage, as pasture lands are fast drying up. While the damage done by the dry spell during the past few days cannot be estimated, agricultural workers feel that if relief does not come within the next two weeks farmers in this section will suffer severely through crop destruction.

Shortening supplies of milk is reported by Clifford L. Hough, manager of the Connecticut Milk Producers' association. Mr. Hough reports that pastures throughout the state are drying up and feeding of animals in barns is increasing in number every day. Green crops, which later in the season are usually harvested for winter use, are being harvested by many dairymen at present because of the shortage of feed.

Producing milk in Connecticut, according to Mr. Hough, is difficult under existing weather conditions. Farmers are producing at higher cost, he stated. At present the supply is in line with the demand.

Connecticut's potato crop is safe. The few showers that have visited the growing sections have been of considerable benefit to the crop. Dry weather has stalled off blight, a fungus disease that under damp conditions kills the potato vines and reduces yield.

Vegetable growers who do not have irrigation facilities are reporting severe losses. Where crops are being grown on sandy land burning has been reported. Sidney A. Edwards, chief of the bureau of markets of the state department of agriculture, believes that Connecticut vegetable growers on the whole have not suffered as much as might be expected. Hot, dry weather conditions is causing early ripening of produce and a movement to market which is too great for the successful handling of the farm products for the growers. Fruit growers are reporting a decrease because of lack of rain.

CONN. COLLEGE HEAD BACK FROM EUROPE

After a six weeks' vacation in Europe, Dr. Katherine Blunt, president of Connecticut college, has returned to her home in New London.

Accompanied by Miss Quaesita Drake, professor of chemistry at the women's college of the University of Delaware, President Blunt went first to England, where she visited several women's colleges.

Only one of the colleges was conducting summer sessions but President Blunt and Professor Drake were the guests at tea or luncheon of the principals or vice principals of four colleges at Oxford and two at Cambridge, and these officials told them many interesting facts about the conduct of English colleges and universities. The office of principal in an English college corresponds to that of president in an American college.

President Blunt noted with interest that the English colleges are much smaller than those of this country, the average student body numbering about 100, and that they specialize to a much greater extent than do women's colleges here. She enjoyed seeing the beautiful grounds, flower gardens, buildings and equipment of the various institutions of learning which she visited.

Later President Blunt and her companion hired an automobile, in which they made a motor trip through the south of England, delighting in the lovely winding narrow roads bordered with hedges which characterize that part of the country.

They made a brief visit in Paris, after which Dr. Blunt left Professor Drake, who will remain on the continent somewhat longer.

President Blunt will be in New London for a week, and will then go to Annisquam, near Gloucester, for a two weeks' visit with her mother before resuming her duties at the college.

STATE ELECTRIC OUTPUT OFF 5% THIS YEAR

During the first six months of 1930, electrical generation by Connecticut's power plants was 5.6 per cent lower than the total amount of power produced during the corresponding period of 1929, according to the monthly reports issued by the United States geological survey. As compared with the first half year of 1928, however, generation for the six months period of the current year showed an increase amounting to 5.2 per cent.

Connecticut generating stations produced in the first six months of this year 631,784,000 kilowatt hours of electricity as compared with a total of 669,366,000 kilowatt hours for the same months last year. The half year figure for the corresponding portion of 1928 was 600,416,000 kilowatt hours. Thus, the production of electricity in this state has been somewhat better than the par of 1928 despite the current trend of industrial activity.

Electrical production totals were less in every month of the half year than in the corresponding month of 1929, but with the exception of March were greater than those of the corresponding months in 1928. The loss as compared with last year was borne both by steam station and hydro generation. The steam plant production was 488,448,000 kilowatt hours as compared with 513,033,000 kilowatt hours last year. The water power output dropped from 156,333,000 kilowatt hours in the first half of 1929 to 143,336,000 kilowatt hours this year.

BINGHAM SAYS TARIFF FIGHT DEPRESSION CAUSE

The protracted controversy over the tariff engendered by a coalition controlled senate, was advanced Monday by Senator Hiram Bingham as one of the causes materially contributing to the present business depression.

Speaking at the annual banquet of the John Ericsson Republican league of Connecticut, at Bridgeport, Senator Bingham said that when the power of the democrats and progressive republicans was apparent, "credit became frightened, faith in the immediate future lessened, a top-heavy stock market crashed and the present business depreciation began."

Asserting that the election of President Hoover and a republican congress and the calling of an extra session for the consideration of farm relief and tariff revision affected business favorably, rather than adversely, the senior Connecticut senator pictured business men, particularly those who control the credit situation, as being timid. And this timidity he said, is due to a natural fear of what might happen in the upper branch of congress over which a whiphand is held by a group virtually anti-administration.

"The action of the coalition of democrats and progressives in insisting upon the publication of income tax returns and in repeatedly giving as the reasons for its action on the tariff bill that such and such a concern was prosperous and had been making money," he said, "very naturally destroyed that confidence in the helpfulness and common sense of the government, which had been so carefully cultivated during the administration of President Coolidge."

The manufacturing and industrial world, according to Senator Bingham, received a "crude awakening" when the "democrats, who had led it to suppose they favored protective tariff, abandoned this position when they were offered an opportunity to join the coalition with the progressives and favored the views of the representatives of agriculture rather than the representatives of industry."

"If the democrats in the senate," he said, "had carried out the intention they expressed during the campaign of 1928, and voted accordingly instead of forming a coalition, I believe that we could have avoided a large part of the present business depression."

In reviewing the seventy-first congress, the speaker said he favored a modification of the national origins clause in the immigration law, "so as to decrease the amount of suffering which is caused at present by separation of families from their dear ones and to increase our ability to secure immigrants of the highest type like those who have come from Sweden, Norway and Denmark."

He spoke highly of the ability of Nicholas Roosevelt, recently given a recess appointment as vice governor of the Philippines, and expressed his hope that Filipino opposition will be withdrawn and his appointment confirmed by the senate.

STATE TO ENTER EXHIBITS AT FAIRS

Exhibits at Connecticut fairs this year from August 27th to October 15th will be augmented by displays made by the state department of agriculture. The department has offered to place an exhibit in at least one fair in every county. To date practically every county has accepted the offer and it is expected as the fair season approaches that every county will request an exhibit.

The exhibits placed by the department are expected to serve a dual purpose for producers and consumers Connecticut farm products will be popularized and the housewife will be shown how and where she may purchase many Connecticut products by grade and thereby be assured of getting quality for dollar. Farmers will be shown how they can make their products more attractive by properly grading and packing, which in turn makes the product more acceptable on the market.

The background of the exhibit will be built around the marketing chain and ten essentials to successful marketing. These essentials as listed in the marketing chain are: consumer satisfaction, good markets, efficient production, standard grades, standard containers, proper identification, sufficient supply, suitable advertising, reliable market information and greater profits. Connecticut products in various grades and standards containers will be utilized to emphasize these points in all exhibits.

IT'S MRS. CHIGGER WHO CAUSES TROUBLE

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—It's the lady of the chigger family that makes one want to scratch, says a health warning issued by the Indiana State Medical association.

Mr. Chigger, it seems, deports himself as a gentleman at all times. But Mrs. Chigger crawls under the human skin, into a little burrow she has made with her long, boring bill, and insists on setting up housekeeping.

It is the housekeeping activities that make its human host so uneasy Jif "uneasy" is the word!

The chigger bite itself is not at all dangerous, the medical association said, but infections may be set up by scratching the "bites."

SARDINIAS-BERGMAN BOUT WILL DRAW CROWD OF 25,000 TO THE POLO GROUNDS

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(AP)—Evidence in the case of Eligio Sardinias versus Judah Bergman, to be given Thursday night into the hands of a jury of some 25,000 fight fans and a referee at the Polo Grounds, was all but complete today. All that remains is to weigh the boys before the final deductions.

Eligio Sardinias, better known as Kid Chocolate, dazzling Cuban Negro, will attempt to give away ten pounds and still whip Bergman, otherwise known as Jackie Kid Berg, Jewish boy from the White Chapel district of London and one of the best and busiest of the lightweights. If the jury has any preconceived opinion it is that Chocolate can't do it. The odds for their ten round tilt stand at 6 to 5 on Berg.

Never beaten in 67 professional and amateur bouts, Chocolate has flashed sensationally in two years of American campaigning. He is considered the uncrowned featherweight champion, a natural 126 pounder, an ebony marvel of boxing ability and speed afoot, a puncher besides. He has been held only once to a draw and holds a decision over Al Singer, the present lightweight champion, as a result of an open air duel here last summer. He is considered unbeatable at his own weight.

But in Berg the Cuban licorice stick is tackling a rough and rugged lightweight who has beaten back the best of the 135 pounders and was considered a more logical contender for the lightweight title Sammy Mandell held than Al Singer, who finally cornered the crown holder and knocked him out in a round. Berg and Singer have never met, but the White Chapel Hebrew has whipped an imposing crop of the division's best, including Tony Canzoneri, the Italian sharpshooter.

Berg is a picture of perpetual motion in the ring, a punching machine that never seems to run down. He climbs all over boxers and sluggers alike, infernally firing leather into their heads and bodies until the best of them have been forced to give up offense in favor of a frantic and unsuccessful defense. Berg doesn't hit hard, but he hits uncommonly often. With the advantage of an eight or ten pound pull in the weights on his side he is favored to sweep right through the brilliant defenses of the Cuban Negro.

The bout is expected to draw a comfortable crowd to the Giants ball yard with the receipt figures estimated at about $200,000. The winner is scheduled to meet Singer for the lightweight title here September 11.

Both boys were ready today to wind up training in the out-of-town camps that have entertained most of the gladiators during the summer. Berg will wind up his preparations tomorrow at Delaware Water Gap, Pa. Chocolate has been training at Orangeburg, N. Y.

GROVE IS STAR OF A'S EASY WIN OVER RED SOX

The Mackmen pounded Lisenbee and Smith for 16 hits, including two doubles, three triples and a pair of home runs.

INDIANS RALLY IN NINTH TO BEAT OUT BROWNS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 4—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians scored three runs in the ninth to defeat the St. Louis Browns here, today, 5 to 2 and capture the series, 3 games to 1. It was Wesley Ferrell's 18th victory of the season.

In Cleveland's half of the ninth, Porter and Morgan singled consecutively and scored on L. Sewell's single. Averill, who had been passed purposely, made the final run from third on a squeeze play.

GEHRINGER'S HOMER IN 12TH GIVES TIGERS A VICTORY

DETROIT, Aug. 4—(AP)—Charlie Gehringer drove the ball into the center field bleachers with the bases full today to break up a 12 inning pitching duel and give the Tigers a clean sweep in the series with the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 3.

It was Gehringer's fourth hit and second home run of the day. The first four bagger came in the third with one man on. As a result of his two circuit blows, he is credited with driving in six of the Tigers' seven runs.

Vic Sorrell held the Sox to six hits. He had only one bad inning, the sixth, when three runs were scored. The Tigers accumulated 13 hits off Ted Lyons, Sox ace.

CITIZENS SWAMP ITALIANS IN FREE-HITTING GAME

One run, a homer by Pheno Tombari in the sixth and final inning, was all that the Italians scored off Boots Greene at the campus last night in Boots' second successive three hit game. Last week the former junior leaguer let the Thermos Bottlers down with three scattered bingles and last night he repeated against the Italians. While he was trifling with the Italians, Greene's teammates pasted Lefty Lucier for 12 hits and eleven runs.

The Cits counted four runs in the second on as many hits and in the fourth added six more. In the latter frame Pete Finn helped the cause along with a home run over the left field fence at a time when two of the bags were occupied. The 11th and final counter was the result of a double and single in the late fifth.

Lucier failed to bother the Cits very much, every man in the winning lineup with the exception of Dee Gaudette connecting at least once. Even Boots got a hit, his first of the season. Lefty, however, added six strikeouts to his ever increasing string.

In the absence of Pete Tombari, who during the day stepped off, Jab Burns caught for the Italians.

The leading hitter was Pete Finn, who hit a double in addition to his homer. Cimmy, Leo Jarvis, and C. Lamory also got a brace of hits. The score:

Thermos And Smoke Shop Tonight.

The league leading Thermos Bottlers go to work at the campus tonight, meeting the Smoke Shop in the third and final game of the season between the two clubs. In the two previous engagements the Hastedtmen won by comfortable margins.

Lately, however, the Bottlers have not traveled so steady and the Smoke Shop is confident that with any breaks at all they will partly redeem themselves for their poor showing to date.

As a result of their win last night at the expense of the Italians, the Citizens climbed to within a half game of the Thermos, so it can be seen that the leaders cannot afford to lose tonight. Should the tailenders upset the Thermos the Citizens will slide into the lead and the present pace setters will drop back into a tie with the Royals for second place. On the other hand, should the Bottlers shake their jinx they will increase their lead to a full game.

Just what Bill O'Brien and Ween Heebner, Smoke Shop pilots, have up their sleeves is more or less of a mystery but it is known that the West Siders were covering all loose Thermos money last night. It is rumored that under the strengthening rule, the West magnets uncovered some nice material. The Smokers refused last night to name their starting battery for the evening. Mike Nickerson will no doubt work from the Thermos rubber with Joe Hamil behind the bat.

THREE HOMERS FEATURE GIANTS' SHUTOUT OF ROBINS

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 4—(AP)—Aided by three home runs and perfect fielding support, Fred Fitzsimmons blanked the Robins today to give the Giants a 4 to 0 decision over the league leaders. The defeat cut the Robins' lead to two and one-half games and sent New York within four games of the top.

Allen, Lindstrom and Terry cracked out the homers while Fitzsimmons was scattering Brooklyn's six hits over four innings. The Giants got to Watson Clark for only nine safeties but the three of the four-base variety proved to be his downfall.

TERRY CONTINUES HIS HITTING TO ADVANCE

With Bill Terry showing the way, one-half of the baseball big six went into a slugging orgy yesterday and added points to their batting average. Terry hit safely three times in four trips to the plate, boosting his average to .401, only three points back of Chuck Klein, who got only one hit off Boston pitching and lost ground. O'Doul also closed in, connecting with three hits in four times at bat for a final average of .396. Simmons picked up four points to go ahead of Gehrig with a batting average of .385. Gehrig and Ruth were idle; the Yanks' game with Washington was postponed on account of the funeral of Mrs. Walter Johnson.

Attention P. N. A. C.!

The Q. C. Jrs., of Jewett City, would like to arrange a week end game with the P. N. A. C. team of the Junior league for this week end. Answer through this paper

I am glad to report that there have been no casualties in the baseball war during the past 24 hours.

All sides seem to be strongly entrenched and waiting for an attack or retreat from the others, which does not seem likely to occur within the next few days.

The air is filled with rumors and counter-rumors but nothing has been given out to the eagerly waiting press. Members of the camps were very noncommittal yesterday.

The only bit of information or rather an unofficial statement was made by one of the governing board late yesterday afternoon. And I might say now that there is a good deal of truth to what he says.

He claims that the rules which have been under fire for the past few days are not rules laid down by the committee for the teams to obey but are rules that were presented to the managers of various teams and were agreed to by these same managers.

Now ain't that something? It looks as if the managers had made a bed that was proving mighty uncomfortable to lie in, and were getting sorry that they tried to make such radical changes in the grand old game.

Now, if I may be permitted a suggestion without having someone accuse the press of trying to run the league, why not get the managers, umpires and the governing board together and go through the rules and eliminate those that are causing so much trouble and are so entirely against regulation baseball.

Well, it looks like there would be another big crowd at the campus tonight for the Thermos club plays again.

Oh, yes, Bill Hastedt, the John McGraw of the local league, will be there. Bill is heart and soul in the game even if he is the most protestingest man in the league.

Bill's a good scout, boys, give the boy a hand.

ITALIANS UPSET ROTARIANS IN JUNIOR LEAGUE TILT

The big upset of the Junior league occurred Monday evening, when the I. Y. M. C. defeated the league-leading Rotarians in a five inning game, 8 to 6.

After trailing for three innings, the Italians landed on Caron, the Rotary's star twirler in the fourth, bunching five hits and three passes for seven runs. With one away, Peltier and Wonnacott walked, Hoffman singled scoring Peltier. Fern got a one-base hit sending in both Wonnacott and Hoffman. Caprilozzi walked. Angelone was retired, but Hastings continued the attack with a single, scoring both Fern and Caprilozzi. Wilk hit to deep center for a home run, Hastings scoring ahead of him. Burelle singled, but Peltier grounded out for the third out, ending the inning.

The Rotary came back with an attack of their own in the fifth, but were stopped after scoring four runs and bringing the score to 8 to 6. Burelle who had pitched a fine game, allowing the hard-hitting Rotary club but two hits, was relieved in this frame by Wilk, who retired the side without further scoring. The score:

Tonight's Game.

The Polish club meets the Duwells in tonight's Junior league game. The P. N. A. C. have been going strong lately, having won their last two games and should give the Duwells, who are now leading the league, a good rub. Probable batteries for the game are Stephanik or Pizzo and Koz for the Duwells and Watters and Kozlowski for the Polish club. Game starts at 6.30 p. m. sharp.

TWO TIE FOR MEDAL IN CANADIAN AMATEURS

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Two players from the United States, Francis W. Ryan of Birmingham, Mich., and J. Raymond Ferguson of Philadelphia, tied today for the medal in the 36-hole qualifying round of the Canadian amateur golf championship. Each turned in cards for an aggregate of 144.

Ryan, after turning in the best round of the day, 69, in the morning, turned the course of the London Hunt club in 75 this afternoon for his aggregate of 144. Ferguson had a par-equalling round of 70 this morning but slipped to 74 this afternoon to tie the Michigan player.

Eddie Held of Great Neck, N. Y., defending champion, found plenty of trouble but qualified easily with 74-77—151. Another strong American contender, J. Wood Platt of Philadelphia, needed 153, and Fred J. Wright of Newton, Mass., turned in an aggregate card of 152.

Trojans Beaten

Saturday afternoon, at Montville, the Q. C. Jrs., of Jewett City, defeated the Trojans by the score of 5 to 0. The fielding of Carrol at second base and the hitting of Zavistoski were features of the game. Connelly, with perfect support by his teammates, was at all times master of the situation.

TWO FAST PRELIMS FOR SHYMA BOXING CARD ON WEDNESDAY

Plenty of real fighting will be seen in the two preliminary bouts to the all star card of the Shyma Boxing club at Martin field tomorrow evening when Al Rodman of Goodyear tackles Young Rochette of Westerly in the four round opener and Vic Darr of Norwich takes on Julio Rossi of Westerly in the six round preliminary.

Both these bouts although much shorter than the star bouts will be productive of plenty of thrills for the spectators. The first bout will bring together two scrappy little youngsters who have been going ahead fast since they threw their lot in with the professionals. Rodman is a clever youngster who can hit with plenty of kick while Young Rochette is the typical slugger who goes after his man from the first tap of the gong and keeps going. Rodman is not adverse to mixing it with an opponent but is a trifle more clever than the ambitious Westerly youngster.

Of course there is much local interest in the match between Vic Darr and Julio Rossi of Westerly. Darr since his recovery from an injury suffered in an automobile accident, is as strong as ever and in his last bout looked mighty good. Darr is fighting an entirely different sort of bout and has cut out his clowning in the ring. Darr goes right after his man in the first round and then follows it up with the same kind of fighting in the next. Those who have seen Darr working out at the Hickey gym during the past week predict that Darr will surprise the local fans who have not seen the boy in action in some months.

All the boys were reported in the best of shape for the bouts on Wednesday night, and will wind up their training today with only light work. Beauregard has been working out with Young Lavigne and Rene Peloquin for the past few weeks and is confident that he can take Lou Piquette of Bridgeport whom he meets in the final bout. Beauregard has met Piquette before and knows his style and has planned his fight in advance. As Piquette is the same type of fighter as Beauregard it is certain the fans will be treated to a real bout.

The advance sale of tickets has been good and with any kind of a break in the weather it is expected that a capacity house will attend the show.

GANSON WINS MATCH FROM COWBOY WAGNER

HARTFORD, Aug. 4—(AP)—Jack Ganson, of California, after 38 minutes and 40 seconds of wrestling threw Cowboy Jack Wagner, of Montana, with an airplane twirl in the star bout of the wrestling matches held at the Hurley stadium tonight. Wagner had the better of the going up until the final episode when Ganson after twirling the cowboy threw him to the mat falling on him heavily and pinning him easily. Jack Wagner was in such pain that he could not recuperate and a doctor was called into the ring to apply restoratives. It was minutes before Wagner came to, an examination in the dressing room disclosed what appeared to be a fracture of the shoulder and Ganson was awarded the match. This was to be a best two out of three fall match.

In the semi-final, that was limited to 45 minutes, Stan Stickney local heavyweight favorite threw Frank DeLamo, of Boston, after 14 minutes and 30 seconds of wrestling with a headlock.

PUBLIC LINKS STARS START TOURNEY TODAY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 4—(AP)—America's pot pourri of golf, the elite of the public courses, tonight had swung a preliminary niblick for the last time in preparation for the opening here tomorrow of the ninth annual public links tournament.

Chasers of elusive figures on bank balances, manipulators of typewriter keyboards, "yes," and "no," men and just plain carefree American youth mingle together in this melting pot of spare time golfers.

Carl Kauffman of Pittsburgh, defending champion, who has held the title for three years, clerks in a steel mill six days a week, devoting that extra day to getting out of standtraps.

Youth holds sway in the list of 119 entries. The average age has been computed as under 30.

Carey, who came here to confer with directors of the Boston Garden, said that Sharkey was willing to meet Stribling on a percentage basis. Buckley and Carey will renew their discussions in New York next week, when Stribling is expected home from England.

GAMES CALLED WITH PLAINFIELD LEADING, 4 TO 0

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WAUREGAN, Aug. 4—With Plainfield leading 4 to 0 and two out in the last of the fourth Umpire Gagnon called the game here tonight because of darkness. This precipitated a near-riot because Plainfield had claimed that Wauregan was intentionally stalling during the previous couple of innings. The two teams meet again Tuesday night at the Plainfield Community House grounds.

FAST BOUTS AT LAWN PARTY TONIGHT

Frankie O'Brien, formerly of Hartford, one of the leading contenders for the middleweight championship of the world, together with a number of other lights in the fistic world, will be the guests of St. Patrick's parish at the church's annual lawn party, to be held at the K. of C. grounds this afternoon and evening. In addition to O'Brien, there is a probability that Ed Hurley, Hartford's premier promoter, Al Weil, former matchmaker of the Boston garden and Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue will be on hand.

The latter is arranging the athletic end of tonight's program so that little more need be said. In addition to an exhibition between O'Brien and a sparring mate, Tommy has arranged several real scraps between sailors from the coats guard base at New London. A local touch will be added to the bill by several of the popular Norwich boys.

In addition to the boxing, there will be several honest to goodness wrestling matches, with a few of the big shots of the business providing the competition. There was a big outdoor show at Hartford last night with a number of the big timers competing. Commissioner Donohue prevailed upon several of the wrestlers to stick around the state long enough to participate in this evening's affair.

The wrestlers who are coming included Jack Ganson, formerly of the University of California, and who has met Gus Sonnenberg for the world's title, and Stanley Stickney, of Hartford.

The boxers include Young Granado, Al Leon, Steve Sombasky and Mike Petite, all of Bridgeport in addition to the local boys.

O'Brien is expected to meet Frankie Busch, former Norwich boy and now of South Manchester in an exhibition. Busch, it will be remembered, has trained with both Jack Dempsey and Max Schmeling, drawing much comment on his work while in both camps

For those who do not get a kick out of boxing and wrestling alone there will be other features to the party. The bill includes horse racing, band concert and numerous other novelties. The racing is something new in this vicinity and is bound to go over big with those who attend twhe party

A Yellow Pansy

To the wall of the old green garden
A butterfly quivering came;
His wings on the sombre lichens
Played like a yellow flame.

He looked at the gray geraniums,
And the sleepy four o'clocks;
He looked at the low lanes bordered
With the glossy-growing box.

He longed for the peace and the silence,
And the shadows that lengthened there,
And his wee wild heart was weary
Of skimming the endless air.

And now in the old green garden,—
I know not how it came,—
A single pansy is blooming,
Bright as a yellow flame.

And whenever a gay gust passes,
It quivers as if with pain,
For the butterfly-soul that is in it
Longs for the winds again!
—Helen Gray Cone.

Rose Song.

Roses white—roses red
With hues and shades and tones between,
Adoring fairies near your bed
Float in the dawn birth-scene:

One fairy strews her colorings
To tint you with her loveliness,
And one a satiny veiling flings
Across your petalled dress;

Another wafts a rich perfume
Caught in the meshes of her hair
As she danced beneath the moon.
In the fragrant air;

This fay comes laden all with joy
With radiance this dancing sprite,
What wonder then that roses move
Our hearts to rare delight?
—Rose Barlow Weinman.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Robber Kitten

A kitten once to its mother said,
"I'll nevermore be good,
But I'll go and be a robber fierce,
And live in a dreary wood,
Wood, wood, wood;
And live in dreary wood."

So off it went to the dreary wood,
And there it met a cock,
And blew its head with a pistol off
Which gave it an awful shock!
Shock, shock, shock!
Which gave it an awful shock!

It climbed a tree to rob a nest
Of young and tender owls;
But the branch broke off and the kitten fell,
With six tremendous howls,
Howls, howls, howls!
With six tremendous howls!

Soon after that it met a cat;
"Now give to me your purse,
Or I'll shoot you through and stab you too,
And kill you, which is worse!
Worse, worse, worse!
And kill you, which is worse!"

One day it met a Robber Dog
And they sat down to drink:
The dog did joke and laugh and sing,
Which made the kitten wink,
Wink, wink, wink!
Which made the kitten wink!

At last they quarreled, then they fought
Beneath the greenwood tree,
Till puss was felled with an awful club,
Most terrible to see,
See, see, see!
Most terrible to see!

When puss got up its eye was shut,
And swelled and black and blue;
Moreover, all its bones were sore
So it began to mew,
Mew, mew, mew!
So it began to mew!

Then up it rose and scratched its nose,
And went home very sad;
"Oh, Mother dear, behold me here,
I'll nevermore be bad,
Bad, bad, bad!
I'll nevermore be bad!"

The Pigeons

"How do you do?" the Pigeon said,
"How do you do—you do?"
She strutted around
And quirked her head,
Lifted her feet
All wrinkled and red,
Reiterating what she said:
"How do you do—you do?"

"How do you do?" her mate replied
"How do you do—you do?"
He hurried and flew
Down to her side—
Fluttered his wings
All open wide
Curving his neck in happy pride:
"How do you do—you do?"

"What shall we do?" she bobbed her head,
"What shall we do—we do?"
The chicks are here
And they must be fed,
Both coo-cooed with joy
As they gaily sped
Back to the little pigeon shed—
"What shall we do—we do?"

"Can it be true?" but sure enough,
"Can it be true—be true?"
There they were—
Not gay nor buff
Without a feather
Nor bit of fluff—
Pigeons surely, though in the rough,
"Can it be true—be true?"

"Oot it ee oo!" mouths open wide
"Oot it ee oo—ee oo!"
The nest of squabs
Began to chide—
She sputtered and cooed
The nest beside,
With wings outspread away he hied—
"Oot it ee oo—ee oo!"

"Watch what I do!" as back he flew
"Watch what I do—I do!
I've brought you some bread—
It's all for you,—
While you're eating this,
'Coo oo! Coo oo!'
I'll go and get some more for you.
"Watch what I do—I do!"
—Wynn Urquhart, in "Glimpses. A Book of the Open Window."

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

The members of the Wide Awake circle have seen or heard of large Christmas cakes that have been made at that season of the year, but probably haven't heard of the monster Xmas cake of many years ago. The largest one ever made was a concoction which Frederick William I of Prussia surprised his soldiers with about 200 years ago.

The soldiers, to the number of 30,000, had just concluded a substantial meal when they were astonished to see a strange vehicle of immense size, and drawn by eight horses, approaching. It was very heavily laden, and as it drew nearer the load was seen to consist of an enormous cake.

Some idea of its dimensions can be gathered from the fact that this amazing cake was 54 feet high and 24 feet broad. To make it some 36 bushels of flour, one ton of butter and 5,000 eggs had been used-up. The ingredients were mixed with 200 gallons of milk, a ton of yeast being added as a "rising" agency. Great as were their numbers, the soldiers proved utterly incapable of demolishing this gigantic cake and they invoked the assistance of all the inhabitants of the surrounding district before it was finally consumed.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Swallows

Dear Uncle Jed: Have you ever watched the graceful barn swallows as they go sailing about the farms? I am sure there is no other bird more graceful.

When the early morning breaks there comes a twittering, chirping sound from the barn as the swallows are beginning to take wing in search for their daily food. Their pretty bluish and black feathers glisten in the sun when they go darting after some unlucky insect or butterfly. While some are gliding and sailing through the air others are sitting on the barn roof pruning their feathers.

From morning till night they can be seen flying and twittering through the summer air. There may be birds of rare plumage such as red and other beautiful colors but I think the common barnswallow is the prettiest of them all.

Finds Bird's Nest Friday

Dear Uncle Jed: A few days ago I was sitting comfortably on my swing when I heard a faint "tweet-tweet." I glanced upward into the tree and for the first time I noticed a nest in between two branches. It was made of hair and light grass woven together.

After studying it for a few moments, I suddenly thought I would climb up the tree and see the nest. That's just what I did. I received as a present from the old apple tree, a good many scratches.

Finally, I got my position so that I could barely peer over the top of the nest. Oh, what a pretty sight I saw! Three little wee birdies were hatched out and a mother bird was sitting on the branch watching them. The young birds were gray with little white stripes all over them. How cunning they were! I wanted to hug them, they were so sweet.

Fearing to excite the parent bird, I silently crept downwards. Just as I reached the ground I saw a bird fly towards the nest with a big worm in his mouth. I suppose it was the father, bringing food to his family.

I love birds and I am always sorry when autumn comes and they must leave. Not having them here all year around, I think we should try to enjoy them while they are with us.

RUTH METZENDORF, age 18
Norwich

The Chuckwalla

Dear Uncle Jed: The name of my story is "The Chuckwalla."

A Chuckwalla is from one to one and one-half feet long, although once in a while one is found two feet long. It is the largest or longest of true lizards in the United States, though in Mexico and Central America the closely related Iguanas is much larger. The Chuckwalla weighs a pound or a little over.

They are heavily built with thick tails and loose wrinkly, scaly skins, wide stomach and narrow head. Generally they are plainly colored, mostly black, but are varied with buffy backs, brown stomachs, or with reddish brown sides and tail. The younger ones are reddish brown with four or five brown dusky stripes around the tail. The older they get the blacker they grow. While sunning themselves on a desert rock of dark color they are not recognized from the rock at a distance.

The chuckwallas live in the hottest deserts of the southwestern United States. In the Colorado desert the Chuckwalla mountains are named for them. They are found where the rocks afford color and protection. Hot slopes are available for daily sun baths. They get no other bath and rarely, if ever, anything to drink, but sunshine.

Their short teeth are only useful for chewing and they never try to bite however rough they are handled.

Their flesh is better to eat than alligator.

I will close now hoping the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story.

ANNIE MITCHELL, age 13

A Good Turn

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you and the Wide Awakes will enjoy reading the story that I have written.

One day as Janet and Alice were sitting on the piazza, an old lady hobbled by.

"Poor Mrs. Paine," said Janet. "She's getting poorer and sicker every day since her husband died."

"I wonder," said Alice, "if we could help her."

"But how?" asked Janet.

"We could give her some money or some flowers to cheer her up. Maybe we could give her both," suggested Alice.

"We could do that," agreed Janet. "Let's go ask mother about it." So both children ran into the house to ask their mother about it. Their mother thought it would be fine. She gave them each some money to buy some seeds to plant their garden.

When they came home from the store they put their seeds away because their mother said that father would help them to plant their garden. So the next day father, Janet and Alice planted the garden.

In a few weeks their garden was full of flowers. Janet and Alice sold some at 30 cents a bouquet. They got $5 from selling flowers. They picked some for Mrs. Paine. They took the flowers and money to her. She was very grateful and soon the whole village heard of what the children did.

Saving a Bird

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about saving a bird. I have a little dog. His name is Lindy. He has a very naughty habit of chasing birds.

There was a sparrow's nest in our honey-suckle vine. One day one of the sparrows was learning to fly. It flew out but landed on the ground. Lindy started after it. I called him but he would not come.

As I was playing ball at the time I picked up my ball and threw it at Lindy. He ran after it and it gave the sparrow a chance to get away.

Vacation in Connecticut.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a little girl from Oxford, Mass., and am staying for a few weeks in Connecticut at my friend's home. When I got to my friend's house there was a big derrick digging in the bank near the house. My! but the derrick can eat a lot in one day. There are many kinds of machines working on the road here and it makes my visit interesting.

I have never heard of the Wide-Awakes before but now I like their stories and hope I can write again.

EDWITCH GOUGLON, Age 10,

A Day at Gardner Lake.

Dear Uncle Jed: Upon awaking Wednesday morning I was a little bit disappointed. It was the day of the picnic to the lake and my disappointment was due to the clouds in the sky. Nevertheless I got ready. By 8.45 a. m. the time to go the sun was beginning to shine.

We left my friend's home at 9 o'clock. The ride to the lake was splendid. Upon arriving at the lake we purchased bath houses and were soon splashing in the water. At noon we ate lunch and an hour later we were again in the water. My friend found a log and we had great fun on it. It was with great reluctance we came in to get dressed.

It was well we did so as a bad thunder storm came up. Our ride home was in the pouring rain.

The Flag

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to the Wide-Awake Circle before, so I want to see if I will be able to win a book. I am going to write you all I know about the flag.

I love our American flag. I learned a poem about the flag. It is very long so I do not think that I ought to write it. The flag has seven red stripes and six white stripes and 48 stars. The flag was made by Betsy Rose.

George Washington asked Betsy Ross to make a flag. She said she did not know how to make it. G. Washington told her how to make it. In about three days it was made.

HELEN GOUDA, Age 8.

My Dog Prince.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell the Wide-Awakes about my dog Prince. Prince is about three years old. He is brown and white. We were planning to go on our vacation and the evening before we left he was killed by an auto. His neck was broken.

Prince was a very kind dog and liked to run and play with children.

In the winter time he used to pull us on our sleighs. He would play ball with us and catch it in his mouth.

This is my first letter to the Wide-Awakes and I hope you will enjoy it.

MARGARET WALSH, Age 10.
Norwich.

Coal.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide-Awakes the story of coal. Coal is the nation's leading fuel to warm our homes, offices, stores, factories, institutions and other places that need steady heat, a thing that our health depends largely on.

Thousands of years ago trees, bushes and other species of plant life were entirely covered and packed down by a glacier which when melted left stones and soil over the decaying matter.

Remaining this way for thousands of years it became a combustible, inflammable substance called "coal."

There is another article, the mining of coal which I will write about later.

It made a pleasant reunion of old friends. A fine picnic lunch was enjoyed, boating and bathing were the sports of the day while nearly everyone took a ride around the lake in the motor boat. STOCK PRICES ADVANCED 2 TO 6 POINTS IN AFTERNOON RALLY IN THE MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(AP)—Strength of the grain markets encouraged bullish activity in stocks during the last hour of trading today.

Share prices, which had declined during the forenoon, bounded upward as wheat soared 4 cents a bushel and final quotations in a wide assortment of issues were 2 to 6 points net higher.

Until the bulls staged their demonstration the market was only a repetition of the dull sessions of late last week; and even with the belated rally the turnover was the second smallest in more than two years, totalling only 1,201,800 shares. Sales in the last 50 minutes exceeded the entire volume of last Saturday.

Wall street heard some alarming reports from the grain belt, still gripped by the drought. While some of these were saying that expert crop statisticians had declined to estimate the damage done since their recent estimates of losses were compiled, the head of the National Grange was informing President Hoover of the seriousness of the situation and traders on the Chicago pit were bidding up wheat and corn.

Speculators for the rise put a bullish interpretation on this news. Bringing forward some of the old pool favorites, such as Radio, they placed buying orders throughout the list of stocks. Covering shorts found the market thin and prices rose rapidly.

There was some mildly constructive news. Resumption of automobile production in Detroit after the vacation shutdowns stimulated sentiment, and additional support was forthcoming in the announcement that steel operations in the Youngstown district were improving. Republic Steel's July orders exceeded the June total.

Optimistic bulls had been pleased by the market's ability more than to hold its own during the recent dull trading, pointing out that its action gave notice of a strong technical position.

American Telephone was a leader, mounting six points in fulfillment of expectations that an advance would follow completion of the new financing. Diamond Match was the day's individual feature, soaring to a new high of 240 and closing 12 points up. Shares like U. S. Steel, American Can, Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas, Johns Manville and United Carbon rose 3 to 3 1-2, while A. M. Byers, Bethlehem Steel, Public Service of New Jersey, Western Union, Vanadium, United Aircraft, DuPont, Radio and American Tobacco "B" rallied 2 or more. J. I. Case and Foster Wheeler gained 5 and New York Central, Westinghouse Electric and Coca Cola 4.

Warner Brothers was under pressure in the earlier hours, sinking to a new low of 33 3-4 and then regaining its 2 point drop. Gulf States Steel broke more than 7 points on uncertainty over the dividend. Reading lost 3.

Although there was no change in the rate on call money, the undertone of that market was firmer as the banks called about $30,000,000 in loans.

The general dullness of the stock market last month was reflected in the report on New York stock exchange member loans on collateral. This showed that these borrowings had decreased by the rather nominal amount of $28,228,922 during July, standing at $3,000,482,297 on the last day of the month, approximately half of the total as of July 31, 1929.

Cotton joined wheat and corn in moving higher, closing up 17 to 28 points on covering prompted in part by weather conditions.

Foreign exchanges were featureless, sterling and the French franc holding firm. Gold withdrawals amounted to $2,000,000, all for Canada.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Aug. 4—(AP)—In a wild struggle to outdo each other's price jumps, wheat today made a greater leap than corn. The corn market, however, surpassed any high price record which corn has heretofore touched this season. Disquieting reports of broadening irreparable damage to the corn crop as a result of unbroken drought and of scorching temperatures, were chiefly responsible, together with an official statement that wheat was worth more as feed than corn.

After scoring a maximum upturn of 4 1-2c a bushel compared with Saturday's finish, wheat closed nervous at 2 5-8a4c net gain. Corn closed 2 5-8a3 5-8c up, oats with a rise of 1 7-8a2 1-4c and provisions showing 2a15c advance.

Provisions showed themselves responsive to the rise of grain and of [illegible]

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(AP)—Changes that were hardly perceptible took place in the bond market today, where the total volume of sales was less than on some brisk half day sessions, approximating $5,774,000. The inactivity appeared to confirm expectations that the market will be idle during August.

The price level as indicated by the averages again touched the high for the year as a result of a moderate demand for rails which were firm.

One of the immediate pieces of new financing is a $15,000,000 offering of Paramount Public corporation 20 year 5 1-2 per cent sinking fund gold bonds to be sold tomorrow at 94 1-2.

Among railroad issues, an especial demand developed for Colorado and Southern 4 1-2s which rose fractionally to a new high. Another spectacular rise carried Chicago and Alton 3s up about 3 points.

Interborough Rapid Transit issues featured the utilities, the 6s and 5s rising more than 2 points. American and Foreign Power 5s reached the year's high.

Several industrials showed strength. Armour Real Estate 4 1-2s established a new 1930 high. McKesson and Robbins 5 1-2s gained 1 1-4 to reach the best price of the year. Oil company bonds were active and firm.

Stock privilege issues profited somewhat by the late strength in shares. American Telephone 4 1-2s rose 3 3-8; Atchison 4 1-2s, one, and International Telephone 4 1-2s gained 3-4. Warner Brothers 6s after losing nearly 3 points recovered all but a fraction.

Trading in foreign bonds was in a wide field of issues, with the one steady to firm.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—(AP)—Business failures during July totaled 1,930, with liabilities aggregating $72,212,746, compared with failures numbering 1,570 and liabilities aggregating $104,699,997 in the corresponding month last year, Bradstreet's reports.

New construction contracts awarded for all types of building in the Metropolitan area of New York during July was valued at $68,861,300, compared with $80,324,000 for the previous month and $177,720,800 in July last year, F. W. Dodge corporation reports.

Wall street reports today said that the announced plan of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey and certain other retailers of gasoline and oil to enter the retail automobile tire business in connection with their service stations involved purchase of the Fisk Rubber company. The oil companies declined to enlarge upon the original statement that the tires to be sold were the product of a maker of standard advertised brands. Bankers for the rubber company declined to comment and officials of the Fisk company could not be reached.

EGG MEN PROPOSE CO-OP TO UNITE POULTRY GROUPS

SEATTLE—(AP)—Faced with a veritable deluge of powdered eggs in the first six months of 1930, Washington egg producers have proposed a national cooperative.

The cooperative would unite all egg and poultry associations in the United States in opposition to Oriental powdered eggs.

Hopes for tariff relief were blasted by the Smoot-Hawley bill, said officials of the Washington cooperative poultry and egg association.

The new act raised duties on shell and frozen products, but did not affect powdered or dried eggs, which they said constitute the greatest menace to the industry.

Norwich Produce Market

Liberal supplies of most native produce continue and only a very moderate demand prevails in any line. Beets, carrots, cabbage, cucumbers and squash sold slow. Native tomatoes are now reaching the market in liberal amounts with a decided drop in price. Green and wax beans were in lighter offerings with Kentucky Wonders bringing the high quotations. Good buys are available in sweet corn. The State Market Bulletin suggests that as the sweet corn supply is rapidly reaching its peak, the housewives should place corn high on their shopping list. No one need fear the corn borer damage when buying, for the price is so low growers are attempting to sell only the best.

Native apples are liberal and moving slow, only in the better grades. Native peaches in light offerings.

Offerings of native eggs were light with graded stock firm and in active demand.

METEOR STREAM TO CROSS EARTH'S PATH AUGUST 11

By Howard W. Blakeslee

(Associated Press Science Editor)

NEW YORK—(AP)—The earth will clash into the heart of the Perseid meteor stream Monday night, August 11.

Flying through space in a stream estimated at 70,000,000 miles wide, these meteors for years have preserved the same thickened cloud in the same portion of their wide path.

So for many years they have been the only annual meteor shower that never failed to reappear. The exact hour varies, swinging between August 11 and 12.

Facing northeast, an observer may begin looking for them low on the horizon after sunset, but the best time to look is after midnight, and fairly high overhead. They stream from the position of the constellation Perseus, after which they are named.

A few of them are bright, with noticeable trails, and blue coloring which indicates intensest heat. But the majority are faint, because they are believed to be on the average little larger than grains of dust, and they usually are not visible even during the height of the shower unless the night is unusually clear and the watcher far from city lights.

The meteors are estimated to ignite at an average height of 70 miles and to burn up at about 50 miles. Usually a few of them may be seen on any clear night from August 9 to 13.

Their orbit is computed to be nearly perpendicular to that of the earth, which spends a month from mid-July to mid-August in cutting across the stream. This meteor river reaches out an immense distance into space.

Oswald Thomas, the astronomer, says they travel in an enclosed, elliptical ring as far beyond the orbit of Neptune as the distance from the sun to the orbit of Uranus. Neptune was the outermost planet until the discovery this year of the new planet Pluto.

Thomas's figures and the latest estimates of Pluto's orbit would indicate that these meteors travel outward somewhere near to Pluto's front yard.

This year is the 1,100th anniversary of what some astronomers consider the first recorded appearance of the Perseids, July 26, 1860.

Records of reappearance were intermittent for hundreds of years, and some authorities trace the present Perseids to a comet supposed to have broken up less than a century ago, and note previously observed meteors as different streams.

YIELDS OF FIELD CROPS INCREASE IN CALIFORNIA

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—(AP)—Estimates of California's field crops for 1930 show an increase over 1929 with the exception of hay, rice and alfalfa.

Barley and wheat head the list of increased crops. The barley yield is estimated at 29,854,000 bushels, and wheat at 13,566,000.

Other yields forecast by the California agricultural department include beans, 5,553,000 bushels; rice 5,940,000 bushels; hay, 8,130,000 tons; potatoes, 5,320,000 bushels; oats, 4,928,000 bushels; alfalfa, 4,040,000 tons; corn, 2,795,000 bushels; sweet potatoes, 1,244,000 bushels.

CALVES NEED WEIGHT? TRY CURIOSITY TEST

AMES, Iowa—(AP)—Otto Schouboe of Shelby county, added 50 pounds of weight per head to a carlot of calves by feeding them in a creep before weaning.

The creep pen with the feed trough was placed in the pasture near a watering place where cows came to drink.

The curiosity of the calves did the rest.

JULY PROVES TO BE BEST MONTH FOR BUILDING SO FAR IN 1930

July proved the best month for building operations in the city, according to the report of Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft, there being 38 permits granted for new construction work. This total exceeds by five the best month of 1930, which was June. The valuation of the new construction work is $58,160 as given by the applicants for the permits, but at least 15 per cent can be added to this as it has been found that applicants are inclined to under value the work that is to be done.

The permits issued during the past month were as follows:

New frame houses	5
New frame garages	10
New brick house	1
New cement garage	1
New stone garage	1
Alterations to frame buildings	14
Alterations to brick buildings	3
Alterations to brick and frame bldgs.	1
Alterations to stone buildings	1
Total	38

During the past week there were ten building permits granted by Fire Marshal Taft, as follows:

To Nellie McNerney to erect a frame garage on McKinley avenue extension for herself. The garage will be 18x18 feet and will have a stone and concrete foundation. The estimated cost is $250.

To Nellie McNerney, to build a frame house on McKinley avenue extension for herself. The house will be of frame construction and will have five rooms and bath. It will be 28x28 feet with a built-in sunporch and an extension on the rear 6x13 feet. The exterior finish will be in wide clapboards with non-combustible shingles on the roof. The interior will be finished in hardwood and plaster. The estimated cost is $4,000.

To Eugene Deshefy, to build a frame dwelling of six rooms and bath at 427 Laurel Hill avenue. The house will be 24x26 feet and will have an enclosed sunporch. The foundation will be of concrete and the superstructure will be of frame. The exterior finish will be in colonial clapboards with composition shingles on the roof. The interior will be finished in hardwood and hard finish plaster. The house will be heated by steam and the plumbing will be in brass and porcelain. The estimated cost is $6,000.

To Irene G. Pullen, to make alterations to the present dwelling at 75 Crescent avenue. Partitions are to be removed to enlarge some of the rooms. The estimated cost is $250.

To Mrs. Elizabeth Reich to erect a two-car frame garage, 17x18 feet, in the rear of her house on Fowler avenue. The estimated cost is $360.

To Lodovico Fasolino, to build a two-car frame garage, 20x20 feet at 32 Grove street. The estimated cost is $150.

To Raymond Carlson, to erect a frame one-car garage in the rear of 16 St. Regis avenue. The estimated cost is $175.

To Percy Willis, to erect a frame two-car garage on Mt. Pleasant street. The estimated cost is $300.

To Abraham Ableman, to make alterations to the present brick building at 65 Main street. The alterations will include the removing of some of the partitions on the second floor to enlarge some of the rooms. The stairway is to be moved to another location and will be finished in steel lath and plaster. A new window will be cut in the present brick wall. The estimated cost is $700.

To Mrs. Fanny Blinderman, to add an additional story of one room on the rear of her property at 37 Thames street. The size will be 16x16 feet. The estimated cost is $1,500 (this permit granted by city council).

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were four sales of real estate as compared to 12 sales for the corresponding week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $15,700 and $37,460.

Only four sales of real estate were record in New London during the past week a decrease of nine sales from the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $14,938 and $91,270.

NEW LONDON

Announcement that the government has finally approved of the deed transferring title to the new coast guard academy site with subsequent indications that actual construction work on the new buildings will now be started within a short time, marks the outstanding development in the local building field this week.

An appropriation of $2,500,000 has been approved for the purpose of building the new academy and of this one third or $850,000 has already been made available to get the work under way. Besides this $10,000 was appropriated by congress to prepare plans and specifications.

These plans, understood to have been completed, provide for 12 buildings ranging in cost from $2,500 to $435,000, besides the construction of roads and grading.

The estimated costs of the various buildings will be as follows: Administration building, $160,000; cadet barracks, $420,000; academic building, $300,000; engineering building, $435,000; gymnasium and armory, $300,000; enlisted men's barracks, $85,000; storehouse, $43,000; boiler house, $75,000; observatory, $2,500; superintendent's quarters, $22,000; officer's quarters, $59,000; wharf and boathouse, $15,000. In addition it is planned to spend $56,000 for walks and roads, $76,500 for grading, $22,000 for fencing, $110,000 for outside piping service and $128,000 for contingencies.

Richard H. Pugh is completing work on a miniature golf course on a plot of land 100x200 feet off Montauk avenue, and opposite from the Lawrence & Memorial Associated hospitals. The construction work will include a caddie house, 8x10 feet, and wire fence around the course with an entrance from Riverside avenue.

Bids are being received on an addition to the Convent here. The enlargement will be 21x38 feet, three stories high. There will be new plumbing and heating, interior and exterior alterations to the present building and changes to the roof.

The following contractors have submitted for alterations to St. James Convent: Contractor Belou, of this town; P. F. Sweeney, of Norwich, and Alfred Bartolucci and Carl Burgess, both of New London. The bids will be opened August 6.

MOST SUMMER COTTAGES NEED SEPTIC TANKS

Plumbing provision is an important consideration when the family is planning to move into its vacation home for the summer months. A metal or concrete septic tank, ready-built may serve to guard health and prevent disease, or the home owner or local mason may construct one of concrete.

A septic tank must be air-tight if it is to give efficient service. If built by using a mix which consists of one sack of cement to two cubic feet of sand and three cubic feet of pebbles. Floor and walls should be laid in one operation to eliminate joints. This is done by supporting the interior form across the top of the excavation so that it hangs four inches from the floor of the pit. As soon as the four-inch floor is placed, the concrete for the walls may be laid. Forms should be oiled to facilitate removal. Concrete should be laid for side walls in six or 8-inch layers. Cover slab is made of the same mixture as the tank and is reinforced with quarter-inch rods.

Where the liquid flows out of the septic tank, purification equipment should be provided. This consists of one or more lines of ordinary drain tile laid with open joints into which the sewage is discharged and allowed to seep into the surface soil where bacteria completes the purification. These tiles are laid about 12 to 18 inches below the surface of the ground and at a pitch of one-half inch to 10 feet to insure good drainage. Where soil is light and porous and ground water level is several feet below the surface 30 feet of tile per person is sufficient. In tight, clay soils 100 feet of tile per person is required.

Fifty gallons for every person served should be the minimum capacity of a septic tank. It is seldom advisable, however, to build a tank holding less than 450 gallons even though only two or three persons are to be served.

CELLAR LAYOUT IMPORTANT IN HOME PLANNING

The home builder who is about to let contracts for the construction of his home will do well to give a moment's thought to the size of his cellar or basement. In the days of the coal bin, with its attendant dust, piles of ashes and rows of ash cans, the cellar had little use other than a storage place for rubbish. Small windows set high in the walls made it dark and difficult to keep clean and attractive, and headroom was usually cut to a minimum.

With the advent of the oil burner, however, all of this changed. Gone are the piles of coal, the coal bin, the rows of ash cans, the ash sifter and the dust and clutter which were their inevitable accompaniment. In their stead is a small, clean and neat oil burner and the modern heating plant steel-jacketed in brightly colored enamel. The two together occupy only a small corner of the basement.

The wise home builder now takes advantage of this fact to make use of the space occupied by the cellar, which is nearly one third of the total usable space in the ordinary house. He builds his foundation walls a few inches higher and takes advantage of the extra headroom thus gained to put in large windows which flood the cellar with daylight, making it attractive and easy to keep clean.

A suitable work bench and ceiling lights, with one or two convenience outlets in the wall into which electric tools can be easily plugged, furnish the man of the house an ideal workshop in which to do the one hundred and one odd jobs that are constantly coming up in every home.

Fire broke out in the home of L. P. Huber, cheese manufacturer at Mikesville, Wis. The summoned fire department could find no water available and so put out the fire by pumping whey from Huber's vats.

ENAMELED SINK MAY BE INJURED BY FRUIT JUICES

The canning and preserving season is the time when the kitchen sink needs especially good care if it is to retain its original luster and finish.

Fruit juices contain acids which are injurious to the porcelain enamel finish of the sink. While these acids are present to a greater degree and in stronger form in the citrus fruits such as oranges, lemons, and limes, they also are present in raspberries, currants, gooseberries, and other fruits which are now in season. These fruits should not be left on the bare enameled surface of the sink for more than a few minutes and the sink should be wiped with a damp cloth and all traces of juices removed after fruit has been on the sink.

If fruit juices in concentrated form are spilled on the sink, the housewife should wash away the juice immediately. If this is not done, the acids in the juice will eat their way into the enamel and the luster and shine of the sink will be destroyed, it will be more difficult to keep clean, and it will be proportionately less sanitary.

Garbage and coffee grounds never should be left in the sink. The plumbing industry has provided swinging garbage containers which may be set underneath the sink and thus be conveniently accessible at all times. The inside vessel in the garbage container is made of vitreous china which is not harmed by fruit juices.

After years of research on the problem of fruit juices and their effect on enameled iron, a hard flint-like enamel has been developed which is impervious to acids. This enamel, called acid-resisting enamel, has a close texture, is extremely hard and is the most perfect enamel coating for plumbing fixtures that so far has been found.

It is more expensive to produce plumbing fixtures covered with this type of enamel, yet the additional cost is slight when figured in terms of increased life for the sink and the greater ease with which it may be kept clean.

RADIATORS BEST PLACED BENEATH WINDOW SILLS

Radiators are placed under window sills primarily because the greatest amount of cold air enters a building through and around the window. The heat arising from the radiator heats this air to comfortable temperature.

From the viewpoint of room furnishing, the space under a low window sill is the place least likely to accommodate furniture. The broad wall surfaces are utilized as background for book case, highboy, or davenport. Therefore again the radiator is most fittingly located under the window.

The modern radiator is designed to enhance the room decoration, rather than detract it. The thin tube radiators with their slender columns and wide spaces between, lend architectural beauty to the interior of the room. Painted to match trim or wall decoration, they combine in a most satisfactory way, beauty and efficiency.

CONVENIENCE OF RUNNING WATER IS AVAILABLE TO ALL

Families owning summer homes, and near electric power lines may have the convenience of running water at all times at a nominal cost through an automatic water system which pumps direct—requiring no large storage tank, and supplies 200 gallons of water an hour.

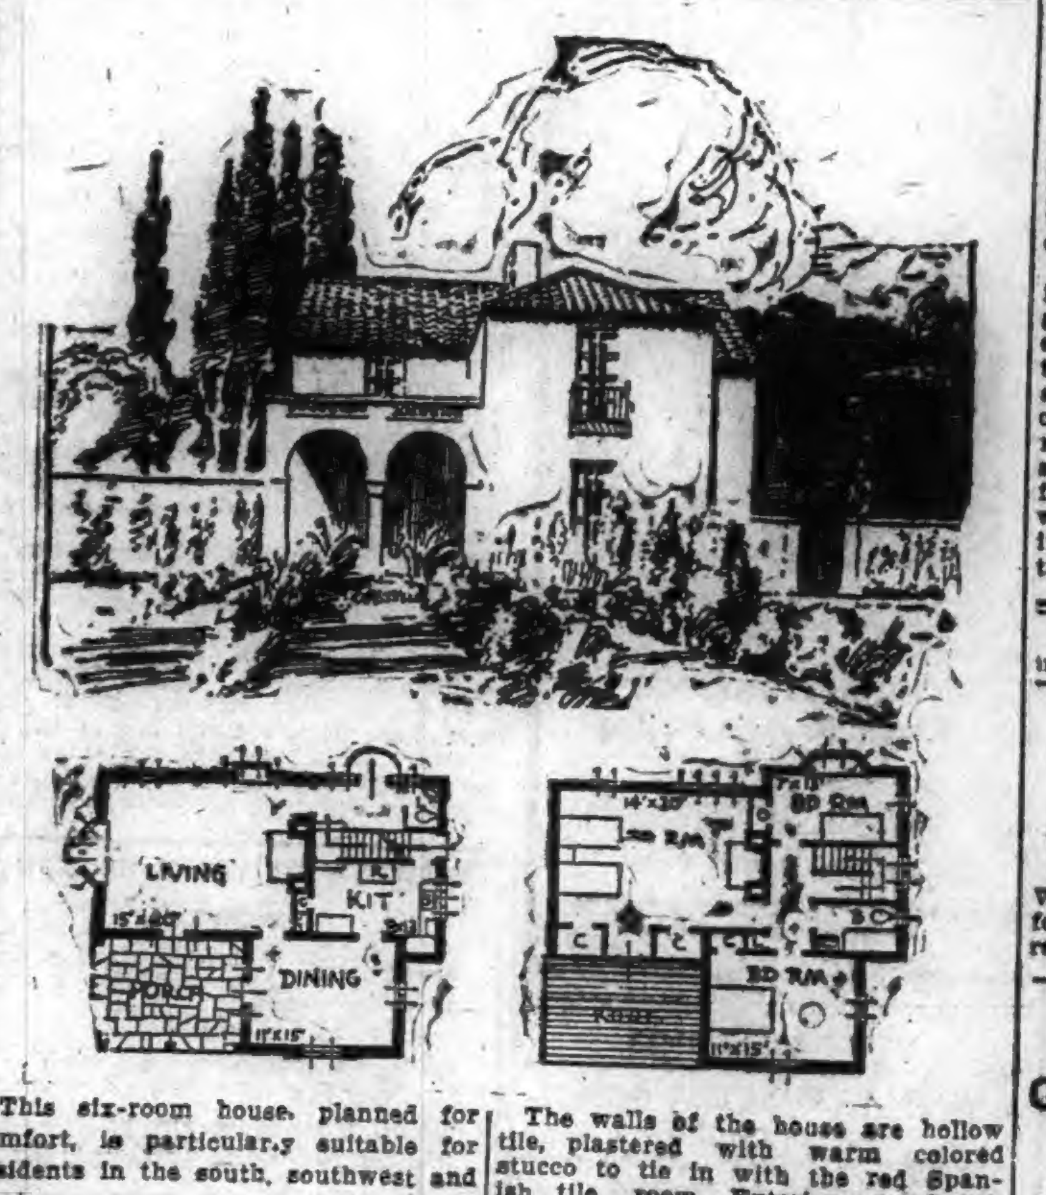
Merely opening the faucet starts the motor, close it and the pumping stops. Power is supplied by a 1-6 horse power induction type motor, which is fully enclosed to prevent tampering and dust infiltration. All working parts are of bronze or monel metal, preventing rust troubles.

With a water system of this type country and suburban homes may have the sanitation conveniences of city dwellings. As the machine is compact and portable, it is easily installed in even the smallest of homes and camps.

TIP FOR PAINTERS

In painting cypress it is necessary that a good priming coat be applied first. The priming coat should be thinned with two pints of turpentine for every gallon of paint. Even more satisfactory than turpentine is toluol or high-flash, water-white coat coat tar naptha. The paint should be thoroughly worked into the surface of the wood in order to secure good penetration. When possible, several days should be allowed for drying the priming coat. The usual undercoats and enamels may then be applied.

Spanish House Designed For Warm Clime



This six-room house, planned for comfort, is particularly suitable for residents in the south, southwest and west.

It is purposely light and airy for warmer climates.

The spacious, well-lighted living room has an outlook onto both the front lawn and garden, and opens onto the garden porch. The dining room also opens onto this porch.

The kitchen is well arranged in several respects. It is handy for service deliveries, and is convenient to the cellar as well as to the front hall.

All the bedrooms have cross-ventilation, and the two larger ones have access to the deck over the garden porch. An awning could be placed above this deck to advantage.

The walls of the house are hollow tile, plastered with warm colored stucco to tie in with the red Spanish tile room. Exterior woodwork should be a dull weathered gray.

The front of the house should face north, thus insuring correct lighting for all principal rooms. A lot 60 by 100 feet is quite adequate, and the closer the house comes to the front of the lot the more room is available for a garden in the rear.

An attractive appearance is added around the porch if it is surrounded by flowers and floored with cool flagging, as shown.

In most communities of average size the cost of building will come between $10,000 and $12,000, although the expense varies somewhat in different parts of the country.

R. P. Gregson's New Harland Road Home

The above is a photograph of the new home of Richard P. Gregson on Harland road recently completed by Contractor George E. Boucher. The house is one of the attractive new homes in that rapidly developing section of the town. It is of early American design with the hip roof and three single dormer windows. The exterior is finished in clapboard with a slate shingled roof. There is a garage attached and a sunporch on the southern exposure.

The interior is very attractive in hardwood, oak floors and hard finish plaster. The interior is also enhanced with colonial fire places. The colonial effect is carried out in the antique hardware with which the house is furnished.

THE MODERN KITCHEN IS MOST CONVENIENT

The task of preparing meals in drab, dingy kitchens often becomes akin to an ordeal. This is so, particularly when the kitchen also has a poor arrangement of equipment or a lack of facilities. It is not necessary, though, for kitchens to be depressing and places of drudgery. Kitchens of this type usually are those that were built years ago, before the modern kitchen improvements were available. Any old kitchen, no matter how great its shortcomings, can be transformed into a place of beauty and charm, and made comfortable and convenient.

If there is not enough natural light, windows can be enlarged or additional one installed. Darkness can be further dispelled by placing a drop light over the stove or in other places where there is not sufficient light.

Cupboards, cabinets, shelves and bins can be built to provide for convenient storage of food, cooking utensils and dishes. Serving dishes stored in the old-fashioned cupboard in the dining room can just as well be placed in twin cupboards at each side above the sink.

Put a small drop leaf table underneath your built-in ironing board, or, if you haven't this, install both by the light plug. You will find a hundred uses for both, and will wonder how you managed so long without them. The small drop leaf table is just the thing for the person eating a late breakfast alone, or the shopper who wants to grab a bite of lunch before hurrying away.

You can give life and charm to your kitchen if you paint your newly installed conveniences either in tones of the same color or in pastel shades and put up some attractive new curtains. Pleasant and colorful surroundings will add pleasure to the routine of meal preparations.

HANDY RULES FOR ELECTRIC DEVICES

The purchaser of an electric iron toaster, percolator or other appliance usually receives with it careful directions for its use, but many users are unaware that the electric cord which carries the current to the appliance requires a certain amount of care as well.

The following suggestions are recommended to maintain the efficiency and prolong the life of electric cords:

Never pull a plug out of an electric appliance by the cord. Grasp the plug itself and pull it straight out without jerking.

When plugging in an appliance, do not turn on the current until the connection has been made, and turn off the current before removing the plug.

When not in use, electric cords should be coiled in loose loops and kept where nothing will be jammed against them.

Do not use worn cords, for exposed wires may mean a shock to the user and a short circuit. If a worn cord must be used, wrap it carefully with thread, preferably silk, or adhesive tape. This is only an emergency repair, and the cord should be replaced.

Avoid dropping plugs on the floor, as chipping and cracking may cause a short circuit.

Keep electric cords dry. Damp cords wear faster and are liable to cause a short circuit. Never attach a plug with damp hands, as moisture at the point of contact may cause a serious shock.

PEWTER LIGHTING FIXTURES POPULAR

The pewter vogue has retained its hold on the country. Through the South and New England old pewter pieces are being sold in large quantities in department stores and novelty shops.

Lighting fixtures are now available in light or dark pewter finishes that give a desirable air of antiquity to even the most modern of homes. Fixtures of early American derivation are particularly beautiful in this covering which is applied over a rust-resisting metal. Candles, lanterns, sconces, or brackets of pewter will fit in with any scheme of decoration whether period or modernistic, lending charm to the interior and entrance doorway of a home.

SOLICITING OF BIDS CAUSES SOME PROTESTS

The soliciting of bids from engineers by cities and corporations has aroused protests from engineering bodies, according to the American Engineering council. The requirement of some municipalities that engineers post bonds for the faithful performance of contracts is also condemned.

The American Society of Civil Engineers and the American Institute of Consulting Engineers, both member organizations of the council, have adopted resolutions opposing these practices.

"Members of the engineering profession who respond to public invitations to submit bids for rendering engineering services," declared the institute, "thereby lower their individual and professional standing, and tend to bring professional standing, and tend to bring indignity and discredit on an honorable profession."

The institute expressed the "sincere belief that the practice of extending and accepting invitations to submit bids for the rendering of engineering services are certainly not in keeping with the elements of professional character and dignity which should—and in large measure do—at present characterise and control the engineering profession, and which form most essential and important elements of the foundation on which the American Institute of Consulting Engineers is established."

The institute held that the element of price is one of the least of the considerations involved.

LEGS ADD STYLE TO KITCHEN SINK

The tendency today is very decidedly toward the sink with legs, plumbing contractors report. Even small sinks 36 inches long may be obtained with legs. Legs are necessary to sustain the weight of all electrical sinks, and the larger double-drainboard sinks, but are not necessary in the case of smaller sinks.

The majority of housewives, however, prefer the sink with legs because of the additional attractiveness which they give to the fixture. When sinks were built with shallow compartments legs were not an esthetic asset. However, now that the majority of the better sinks are made eight inches deep and with an eight-inch apron, the vertical touch added by the legs is desirable. The legs are distinctive and graceful in lines and add to the appearance of the fixture.

Legs are made so that the sink is adjustable within two ranges—one range between 30 and 36 inches, the other between 36 and 42 inches. They are made so they are easily screwed into the sockets at the corners at the end of the sink or they may be placed under the centers of the sink compartments. When the sink legs are placed at the ends of the fixture there is ample room for the swing arm containers for garbage and utensils.

HEAVY SLEEPERS BEWARE

The absolute necessity of fire protection in dwellings becomes apparent when it is realized that an alarming percentage of fires occur between 6 p. m. and 6 a. m., when the family is asleep. The records of one western city revealed that out of forty-three serious fires, thirty-two were discovered at night and that the greatest number in any one hour were reported between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning.

Alaska has four national and 12 territorial banks.

KENTUCKY STRAWBERRIES HELP FARMERS PAY DEBTS

PADUCAH, Ky. —(P)— Western Kentucky's strawberry crop this season enabled many farmers to pay off their debts for the first time in many years.

The crop yielded 312 carloads that brought a gross income of $525,000. The net price to growers averaged $4.25 a crate.

The first commercial shipment of raspberries was made from western Kentucky this year. Dewberries also were shipped. Growers plan increased berry acreage for next season.

Lambs Sold by Co-op

SPARTA, N. C.—(P)—Sheep raisers here are pleased with the results of a large cooperative sale of spring lambs made by the marketing committee of the Alleghany Sheep Growers' association. For immediate shipment, the docked lambs brought eight cents a pound and the long tailed lambs six and one-half cents.

Blackberries Pay Profit

TREZEVANT, Tenn.—(P)—An acre of land planted in blackberries netted B. C. Lundy $415 net profit this year. He sold 132 crates of berries from the lot.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL HEARS FACTS IN LYCEUM THEATRE ASSESSMENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 4—The assessment of real estate in New London, designated by Councilor May as unjust and altogether unfair and which placed in real estate a valuation higher than the property could be sold for under any condition, occupied the time of the city council this evening, and resulted in the passage of a vote calling on the assessor to revise his work and to secure a proper survey of property, for the year 1929, the next that is to be made. The matter came up by the representation of the council July 21 by the directors of the Lyceum theatre that F. C. Burroughs, the assessor, had told the directors of the theatre that the assessment on the Lyceum property would not be higher than it was in the proveious year.

For that reason the directors did not appeal to the board of relief, therefore lost their claim to the abatement of any portion of the tax levy. The matter was referred to the city manager and Director of Law Tro and, and the latter confirms the statement that the council has no right whatever to abate any part of the tax, that authority being vested in the board of relief.

Now F. C. Burroughs, the assessor, denies that he made any such statement as was alleged by F. C. Chappell, a director of the theatre, and sworn to by him before a notary public.

Burroughs said that Mr. Chappell had the talk with John M. Mallon, assistant assessor, and the latter disclaims having told the director that the tax would be kept at the old figure. The opinion of the council, as expressed this evening, was that there had been, what Councilor May termed, serious errors made in the assessment of property and that a movement is to be made to have the errors corrected.

Assessor Burroughs referred to the assessment having been made in "accordance with the replacement cost, less physical depreciation on account of financial depreciation, therefore the assessment was quite high." Whatever the analysis of that statement is, the council appears to be insistent on the correction of assessments and in moving that result.

Fifteen building permits were granted.

The council voted to procure desks for the Jennings school, to replace bookkeeping desks taken out of the High School of Commerce, but not until it was shown that the desks were to be used to accommodate pupils taken from other schools where there was congestion and where recitations in the hallways had been necessary.

Two hundred cords of wood on the watershed were sold to the Spicer Ice and Coal Co. of Groton, at $1.50 a cord and junk, old metal, etc., to the New England Iron and Metal Co.

Ordinances covering the laying of a sewer on Ocean avenue and permits for four-car garages for two-family houses were adopted. The council was invited to attend the city manager's convention in San Francisco. The invitation was filed, that the courtesy extended should not be forgotten.

The American Red Cross, the Baptist church and the Salvation Army, were given permission to hold tag days.

E. G. Swanson gave notice of a suit in damages, unless the city council carried out its agreement when land was taken in Colman street. He claims the condition of the land was not such as was agreed upon.

William M. Nordhold asked permission to deliver addresses in attracting attention of strangers to New London and said he had asked the New Haven railroad to run more special trains here, as an inducement to the building of homes and to have the advantages of this city better known. The desired permission was not granted, nor was it denied.

Joseph Birchall, 34 Maple avenue; Mrs. Anna Feanard, Pawcatuck; Mrs. Elroy Chapman and infant son, Ivoryton; Antone Christina, U. S. Lighthouse service; Frederick Allen, Mystic; Mrs. Mary Hill, 36 Willetts avenue; Miss Adelaide Porey, Gales Ferry; Mrs. Mary Knowles, Eastern Point road, Groton, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

It became known today that he is seeking nomination for the office of member of city council. Mr. Nordenhold is his own campaign manager, for he is circulating the petition that will cause his name to be on the ballot next month when the annual elections will be held. Mr. Nordenhold has never sought public office in the past.

CAPT. E. R. GEER RESIGNS AS MANAGER OF C. M. T. CO.

Capt. Edward R. Geer today tendered his resignation as manager of the Connecticut Motor Transportation company, owners and operators of the bus lines between Hartford and Springfield, Mass., and this city, also the power boat Nelseco, operating between Norwich, New London and Block Island. He has been succeeded by Forrest W. Simmons, who has been assistant to Manager Geer; Mr. Simmons assumed his duties today. Capt. Geer had been head of the New London office of the company since the transportation service by bus was started, several years ago.

ARTHUR PERRY IN JAIL, ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Arthur Perry, about 27, residing at 39 Hamilton street, a prisoner at the New London county jail, attempted suicide Sunday by drinking iodine. His endeavor at self-destruction was promptly discovered and which fact probably resulted in Perry's life being saved. Perry's act was the result of his despondency over being compelled to serve about four months in jail. In the police court last month he was fined $100 and costs, which he was unable to pay and his friends did not go to his rescue. Late yesterday Perry obtained possession of a small bottle of iodine and drank the poison. He was discovered in pain a few minutes later and was rushed to Lawrence Memorial hospital where antidotes were administered. Perry responded to treatment and last night when pronounced out of danger, was again jailed. Perry was arrested about a month ago, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving while his license is under suspension; for the offense he was penalized by the imposing of the fine that caused him to go to jail. The license was suspended upon his conviction in the police court on a charge of perjury, the offense resulting when Perry testified falsely in making application to drive.

FOUR BOOTLEGGERS IN CITY COURT MONDAY

Three men and a woman were in the police court today, charged with violation of the liquor law. Mrs. Augusta Juliano, 108 Golden street and George Montrelli, 57 Warren street, desired a continuance and the court set the date for their trials for Wednesday next. Enerico Magrini, 708 Bank street, pleaded guilty and was fined $200 and costs on each count, keeping with intent to sell and illegal possession. Timothy P. Dyer, 26 Moore avenue, also charged on two counts, pleaded not guilty. He was represented by counsel. Judge Daniel M. Cronin, however, found Dyer guilty and imposed a fine of $200 and costs on each charge. Dyer, through counsel, gave notice of an appeal and furnished a surety on his bond of $1,000 for trial at the next criminal term of the court of common pleas. All the proprietors were arrested Saturday afternoon and early Sunday morning when the police staged the series of raids, together with three other raids where liquor was not found, two raids on Shaw street and the other on Bank street.

Arvol Rothman, sailor, stationed at the submarine base, was charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and was fined $100 and costs. Rothman was arrested Saturday night on Pequot avenue after the automobile had collided with another car. Both cars were damaged.

John J. Cavanaugh, of John street and Joseph Kelly Fishers Island laborer, were charged with vagrancy. Cavanaugh was sentenced to 30 days in jail and Kelly was sentenced to 10 days in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended. Cavanaugh and Kelly, with Arthur Mahan, 42 North Bank street and John Dillon, Learned mission lodger, were arrested on Water street Saturday by a squad of police in an endeavor to rid the streets of loafers, who devote much of their time to drinking and not working. Mahan and Dillon were ordered discharged by Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer.

Alexander Gamala, Waterford, was charged with evasion of responsibility but the count was nolled. He was arrested Sunday night.

Albert E. Jencks, U. S. Coast Guard, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in failing to grant right of way. He was fined $10 and costs. Jencks was arrested Sunday by State Police Officer John Smith.

Norwich Man Parts With $15

Sigfried Polkowski, R. F. D., No. 3, Norwich, was charged with failing to stop at an automatic danger signal. He failed to appear in court and forfeited his bond of $15.

Still Another Forfeit

Alfred E. Tefft, Gilmour street, Norwich, was charged with parking his automobile overtime and as he failed to present himself in court his bond of $2 was declared forfeited.

Simon Schiar, Hartford, charged with blocking traffic at Ocean beach, pleaded not guilty. The evidence was such as to convince the court that the driver had not violated the law and he was discharged. Schiar was arrested Sunday by Patrolman Louis Wheeler.

Joseph Gamier, 105 Broad street, was charged with parking overtime at Neptune park, Ocean beach, having been arrested Sunday by Special Officer Samuel Hyde. He did not show up in court so his bond of $2 was forfeited.

Saul Baylinson, Philadelphia, was charged with blocking traffic on Bank street. Baylinson remained away from court and his bond of $2 was forfeited. He was arrested Saturday by Patrolman George Laboue.

The other cases tried were for intoxication and there were a half dozen of them. In most cases judgment was suspended, but two were fined $5 and costs.

HEBREW BEACH RESIDENTS TOO GREEDY FOR PROFIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 4.—The city authorities this afternoon started action against the Hebrew rulers of Ocean Beach, who have started using their residences for the purposes of commercialism and in direct violation of the city's zoning laws, which prohibit the converting or conduct of a business in certain areas of the beach. As a result of the acts of the owners or lessees of the properties several arrests were made this afternoon. The accused have been ordered to present themselves for trial in the police court. M. Zimmer, 21 Midway place, is charged with conducting bathhouses and selling soda. Abraham Newman, 22 Midway place, is charged with parking automobiles on his property and charging a fee of 50 cents per car, thereby creating a business. Nathan Rosen, 9 Westerly place, has caused a small store to be operated upon the property and is charged with selling soda and confectionery. Mrs. Levy, 16 Boardwalk; Mrs. Boden, 20 Boardwalk; Mrs. Nelstat, 18 Boardwalk; Harry Zamkow, 8 Midway place and Mrs. Luten, Dyke street, are charged with converting a portion of their property into parking stations, charging 50 cents for each car given space; Esan Stanley, 13 Easterly place, is charged with using his property to park cars upon, also having a pony there for hire; P. Harold Devine, 15 Central avenue, this afternoon made complaint to the police that his New England bicycle, painted red and green, was stolen while he left it on State street.

Two drivers of automobiles were arrested this afternoon, charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinances, but were released with a warning to observe the law in the future. Herman J. Schneiderwirth, Yonkers, N. Y., was charged with parking overtime on State street, and John E. White, U. S. Coast Guard, was charged with parking overtime on Bank street.

PLAN NATIONAL MONUMENT TO CONFEDERATE 'ANGEL'

FREDERICKSBURG, Va.— (AP) — Yet another step is planned to heal the old wounds laid open in 1861-65.

A $25,000 fund from nation-wide subscriptions is the object of the Fredericksburg, Va., post of the American legion, to erect a monument to a Confederate sergeant who risked his life that his enemies might not suffer.

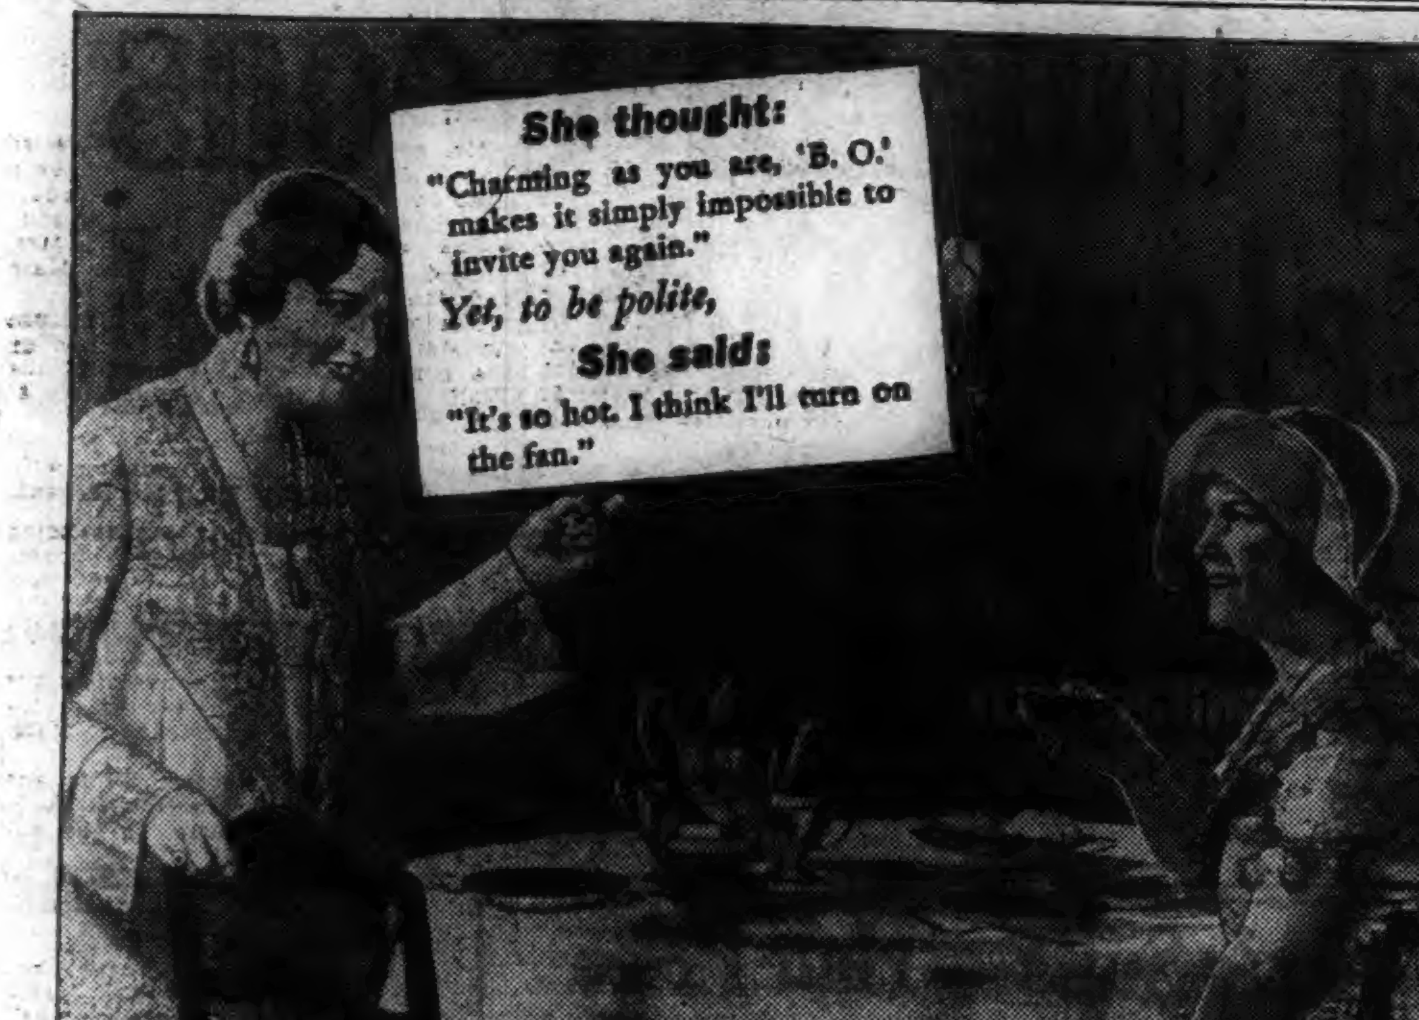
He was Richard Kirkland, "angel of Marye's Heights," who climbed out of a trench at Fredericksburg on December 13, 1865, and gave water to Federal wounded. He fell in action at Chickamauga.

When it is done—heroic bronze figures of two soldiers on a marble base are planned—the Fredericksburg post intends to ask the national commander of the legion to dedicate the monument.

Chinese Seek Schools' Control

SHANGHAI—(AP)—Control of all Chinese schools in the International settlement and French concession is sought by the national government. The schools, western in character, would have instruction in Chinese politics added under the nationalists' plan.

Dry spring weather is expected to cut brown rot in Georgia peach orchards this year.



She thought:
"Charming as you are, 'B. O.' makes it simply impossible to invite you again."
Yet, to be polite,
She said:
"It's so hot. I think I'll turn on the fan."

Made friends quickly but couldn't keep them . . . all because of 'B.O.'

(Body Odor)

The room might be warm. But surely her hostess' manner had grown decidedly cool. Why did something like this always happen? Why couldn't her friendships last?

Now she knows the answer to this question that had puzzled and distressed her for years. A new acquaintance—a woman doctor—talked with her frankly about "B. O.", the polite name for a condition people dislike even to mention—body odor. Pointed out how easily it could be overcome. . . She took the hint. Now she has many friends—is welcome in their homes. No more "B. O."—no more loneliness!

Hot weather warning

Heat . . . humidity . . . sticky perspiration—these are danger signals for "B.O." It is so easy to offend and not know it these oppressive mid-summer days.

We quickly become used to an ever-present odor and don't notice it in ourselves. But others do instantly!

Why not play safe—make Lifebuoy your toilet soap? Like millions of other particular men and women you'll revel in its generous, creamy, antiseptic lather—so abundant even in hard water. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

Now that everybody's talking about the wonderful new Clara Bow talking and singing picture, "Love Among the Millionaires," which is playing at the Palace theater, it seems proper to tell a story about Clara's adventures while making the film.

One love scene of this musical romance takes place on a small love seat. Just as the cameraman was about to shoot the very tense embrace, the seat toppled over, and Clara and her leading man, Stanley Smith, found themselves all tangled in a mix-up of wires, lights and other paraphernalia.

COLIN CLIVE and ANTHONY BUSHELL in "JOURNEY'S END" A Tiffany Production, At the Palace Thursday

The plot of "Love Among the Millionaires" must be well known to most of Norwich by this time. Clara starts out as a waitress in a railroad restaurant. A couple of the local shicks are on Clara's trail but she doesn't give them much encouragement. But when Stanley Smith, a handsome brakeman, comes along, she has lots of encouragement of one kind and another to give him.

Then she discovers that Stanley is no brakeman. He is, instead the son of the president of the railroad. There's a rumpus, and a big one, and there's all sort of fun and folly before the little matters straightened out. Nobody will want to miss the exercises.

Starting Thursday the Palace presents that magnificent war drama, Journey's End, a heart-breaking, yet glamorous recital of death and heroism in the British trenches.

Broadway Theater

A world of men, with no woman within 2,300 miles. That's what Little America, the Antarctic city built by the Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd South Pole expedition, was during the twenty-month adventure. Forty-two men cooked their own meals, mended their own clothes, built their own houses, and did everything for themselves necessary to carry on life.

This world, in which daring achievement and adventurous courage were the necessary requirements for existence, is one of the most romantic ever seen. The film-record of the expedition, "With Byrd at the South Pole," which closes its local engagement at Warners' Broadway, today, is a true-life picture of what took place. It is probably one of the most thrilling entertainments ever screened.

HERE'S COMPETITOR FOR MAYOR WALKER

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—(AP)—If Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York would remain the best dressed official he should look to his laurels.

Gov. W. J. Holloway of Oklahoma is running him a close and dapper race.

It wasn't so many years ago that Oklahoma was Indian territory, but now some events find its governor in formal dress, others in morning or afternoon garments. And when occasion demands he carries a cane.

When the executive attends sporting events he is always fittingly attired and during hot weather he frequently wore white trousers, white sport shoes and dark coat.

MAN CHARGED WITH THROWING PAIL OF HOT TAR ON BULL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MONTVILLE, Aug. 4.—Louis Chapman, of Salem, was arrested by State Trooper Clarence Hoxie, of Groton barracks, Monday afternoon, on a charge of cruelty to animals, on complaint of State Humane Society Agent Preston, of Hartford. Chapman, who is foreman of a gang of workers who oil the road for the state, ordered one of his men Friday, to pour a pail full of hot tar on a bull which was over the wall in the owner's pasture. The bull is owned by William Turski, who lives on the Salem road, in the town of Montville.

He will do his explaining before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church Friday, August 8th, at 2:30 p. m.

Frederick R. DesSurreault. Miss Alice Frechette, organist at the church played the wedding march and the musical parts of the mass. The bride had for her maid-of-honor, her cousin, Miss Loretta Bourdon, and the groomsman was Phino Tombari, brother of the groom. Both the bride and her maid were attractively gowned. After the ceremony there was a reception and breakfast at the home of the bride's father on Pratte avenue, and during the day the newly married couple left on a wedding trip which will take them to Maine. Upon their return they are to reside in Taftville. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts.

YOUNG NORWICH BRIDE FINED IN MONTVILLE COURT

Mrs. Priscilla Palmer Holmes, of 56 Broad street, Norwich, arrested Saturday afternoon by State Trooper Clarence Hoxie, of Groton barracks, on a charge of speeding, after the officer clocked her doing 68 miles an hour along the Norwich-New London highway, had her case tried in Montville before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church, Monday at 2:30 p. m. She paid a fine of $10 and costs.

Mrs. Holmes, a bride of a few weeks, is the youngest of the three daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Palmer, of Lighthouse Inn, New London. She and her young husband took possession of their new apartment in Norwich only last week, following a honeymoon motor trip in Canada. The bridegroom is John Middleton Holmes, of Norfolk, Conn., who has been an aviator with the Pratt & Whitney company, in Hartford, but since his marriage has been assigned to the office force of the Palmer Bros.' company mill at Fitchville, hence with his bride has located in Norwich. Young Mrs. Holmes is a somewhat daring driver, prone to step on the gas whenever there is a straight-away course; but the cruel state cop has no regard for young brides, and when he spotted the Norwich one hitting the high spots he simply held her up and gave her the stern court orders.

The attractive young matron was amply supplied with coin of the realm to square matters with the Montville justice, when he demanded an X for her law infraction, together with the costs of the court.

Underwood returned Monday to his duties at the Merchants National bank, after spending his vacation during July, with his family at Misquamicut.

Those from Norwich Town who are planning to attend the Social Corner picnic at Southington this month when Mrs. Florence Francis (Foxglove) is to be one of the hostesses, were pleased to receive notification Monday that the correct date for the picnic is Wednesday, August 13th. Through the efforts of Mrs. Frederick Harvey of Norwich Club No. 5, who telephoned to Southington this information was spread by telephone locally, as the two dates given on the Corner page Saturday were somewhat conflicting.

Mrs. Mary White, her son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. John Dwyer, of Webster, Mass., were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy of Norwich Town. Mrs. White is Mrs. Kennedy's mother.

NORWICH "LOST" CEMETERY GETS BOSTON NOTICE

The nearly lost old first burying ground at Norwich Town, towards the restoration and preservation of which a number of Norwich people are bending strenuous efforts, has come to the attention of The Nomad, a columnist in the Boston Transcript, who writes of it as follows:

"Mrs. Edith Huntington Wilson has been making a most commendable fight for the preservation from desecration of the old Post-Gager cemetery of Norwich Town, Conn., which is really one of the most interesting cemeteries in New England—a cemetery which in its oldest portion is more suggestive of the ways, as seen in their mortuary record, of the founders of New England than any burial ground that the Nomad knows. The sense of ancient seclusion in it is increased by the fact that one does not enter this cemetery from the open road, but apparently by an avenue leading through private property. And thereby hangs a tale which Mrs. Emily Huntington Wilson has unfolded in a series of letters to The Norwich Bulletin, begging for respect for the old God's acre.

"This old burial ground, called Post-Gager cemetery because it was located in ground bought of Thomas Post, 'to the west of Goodman Gadger's lott,' was first occupied as a cemetery 269 years ago. In recent years, burials on the ground have been few or none. Honorable names are borne on the stones which survive—the names of Captain John and other Masons, the names of Backus, Bliss, Olmstead, Baldwin, Elderkin, Griswold, Bradford, Royce, Edgerton, Huntington and others. But little by little the ground has been encroached on by adjoining owners. A part of it is a cow pasture. The ploughs of strangers are turning up the old headstones. Many of the stones have been built into walls and foundations of houses. The cemetery is town property and nobody has a right to it. Why the desecration? It is apparently because burial has ceased and nearly everybody whose descent is traceable from these old forefathers of the village is dead. Nobody cares.

"It is really an old story. There have been some old New England cemeteries that are gone altogether. The woods have grown up over them. Their stones have first been overthrown and then swallowed up in the mould. First comes the jungle, then oblivion. Others are still in the jungle state. In the ancient Connecticut town of Colchester, a few years ago, a town which has passed almost wholly into the hands of foreigners and strangers, the Nomad found old family lots completely overgrown with masses of brambles, their stones all flat on the ground. Nobody cares, evidently. This ground, which is on the most central spot of the central street of the town, is like the Post-Gager ground at Norwich Town, evidently town property, and cannot immediately be built upon, but there is no sentiment that will save it from the jungle, and some day it must be gone altogether. Have we in New England become partisans of the idea which seems to prevail on the continent of Europe, that there is no use whatever in guarding the resting-places of the dead after the children of the dead are dead too? That cannot be true, for in certain old towns at least the old cemeteries are carefully guarded."

MANSLAUGHTER CASE IS CONTINUED BY COURT

The case of Alexander Chmielewsky, 21, of Grant court, who is charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Meyer Silverman, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Silverman of No. 24 Asylum street, was called in the city court Monday morning. At the request of Coroner Edward G. McKay his case was continued to Aug. 18. Chmielewsky was the driver of the machine which struck and fatally injured the Silverman boy on Maple street Saturday evening. The child died at the hospital three hours after the collision.

The child is alleged to have run into the street in front of the machine, according to Mr. Chmielewsky, who was driving on Maple street towards Asylum, near Harris' garage.

NEW COUNTY HOME DAMAGED BY FIRE

About $300 damage was done by fire early Monday afternoon at the new New London county home building, which is under construction on the Laurel Hill road. A call for assistance was sent to the local fire department and to the state hospital department. As soon as the blaze was discovered a garden hose was put into service and it was squelched before it gained much headway. The blaze was caused from a lighted plumber's gasoline torch, which had been left on the roof of the main building by workmen.

TO USE RAIN POWDER IN AN EFFORT TO BREAK DROUGHT

Dan S. Hollenga, Business Manager of the Alexandria, Va., Chamber of Commerce, Has Ordered 200 Pounds of Rain-Making Powder From New Mexico—Airplane is to Spray the Powder on Clouds in the Hope That It Will Condense Them Into Rain—Drought in the West and South Continues to Blight Crops and Dry Up Streams and Wells—Federal Government Agencies Are Studying the Situation.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Aug. 5—(AP)—Having failed to get Governor Pollard of Virginia to call for state-wide prayers for relief from the drought, Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Alexandria chamber of commerce, has ordered 200 pounds of rain making powder from Arid, New Mexico.

The powder is to be sprayed from an airplane on clouds over Alexandria in the hope that it will condense them into rain.

In addition, Hollenga sent a plea to President Hoover asking him to issue a proclamation for nation-wide prayer meetings "to ask divine aid for rain."

GOVERNMENT AGENCIES STUDY DROUGHT SITUATION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—(AP)—The havoc wrought in widespread areas of the county by scorching, rainless weeks has become a subject of study by various agencies of the federal government.

President Hoover announced today that he had discussed the problem with Secretary Hyde and Chairman Legge and that the measures the federal government could undertake to assist drought sufferers were being determined. He expected a report from the department of agriculture next Monday on the condition in each affected area.

Meanwhile there was no cessation of the heat that beat down on wide reaches of sun-browned vegetation in the east and the middle and southwest. From widely scattered points came reports of showers, but no rain general enough to break the back of the drought fell east of the Mississippi.

The most hopeful note came from Iowa, where fairly general rains gave rise to the opinion that the five weeks drought in that state might be ending.

Elsewhere the sun shone down through moistureless skies, increasing the fire hazard in national forests, drying streams and wells, blighting vegetation and increasing disease possibilities. Corn prospects had been lowered in several states, pastures burned, cutting down milk production, and forage crops were suffering.

Texas and Oklahoma saw cotton prospects withering, along with those of other crops. In Illinois farmers were hauling water long distances to livestock.

Louisville, Kentucky, where the drought has held sway for five months, sought an investigation by the farm board, hoping that it might offer financial aid to farmers to buy feed, food and seed. Gripped by a water shortage, dairies were filling milk cans with water for farmers to take back home. Disease was spreading in the wake of the drought in that state, typhoid being four times as prevalent as last year.

In New York and Maryland, forest fires were springing up, and the danger from such blazes was imminent. Water users were having their supplies curtailed in many Maryland cities. Emergency wells were being sunk in some places.

Local showers brought some relief in Pennsylvania, but the weather bureau warned that it was only temporary. Industries at Gettysburg were closed to conserve water.

In the south, the drought remained unbroken and a mass meeting was called at Charlotte, N. C., to pray for rain. Average August temperatures prevailed, however.

New York, Maryland, Pennsylvania, the District of Columbia and scattered sections elsewhere sweltered under another heat wave.

PUTTING HOGS AND CATTLE ON WHEAT DIET

CHICAGO, Aug. 5—(AP)—A famine of pasture lands and a dwindling crop of corn have combined to put hogs and cattle of the Ohio and Mississippi valleys on a wheat diet.

Scattering rains, heavy enough to be of some benefit in parts of the scorched plains, restored hope to grain and livestock producers of Illinois and Iowa today but elsewhere, for the most part, the blistering dry heat persisted. Some measure of cheer was taken from the announcement of President Hoover that the department of agriculture has undertaken a survey of the drought situation and that the government would leave no stone unturned to assist in bringing relief.

Both wheat and corn prices responded to the disastrous outlook, corn rising 1 5-8 to 4 1-8 cents a bushel on the Chicago market while wheat advanced 2 to 3 cents.

Wheat has risen 7 cents in three days while corn is up 21 to 28 cents above the season's low price record of a month ago.

With September wheat at 31 3-8 to 5-8 and September corn selling at 92 1-2 to 3-4, farmers turned more and more to feed their wheat to stock. The farmers National Grain corporation estimated that 75,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels of wheat would be fed this year, thus automatically relieving the overstocked wheat bins that have long weighed wheat prices down. From the Kansas State Agricultural college came a statement that 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 bushels of hard winter wheat alone was going to fatten stock, while an estimate from Indiana said 40 per cent of that state's wheat would go for seed.

How great a calamity the drought will prove cannot be known for some time, for timely rains might yet save many fields.

THREE DEATHS CAUSED BY AN EXPLOSION IN STAMFORD

STAMFORD, Aug. 5.—(AP)— Fire caused by exploding alcohol fumes, today burned to death three men, probably fatally burned a fourth, and did damage estimated at $35,000 to the plant of Richards and company, manufacturing chemists.

Those who died were George Marshall, 38; Frank Amoroso, 58, and Frank DeMarco.

Majk Kernyehny, 42, has only a slight chance of recovery, hospital attaches reported.

The four men were working in the dehydrating department when static electricity ignited fumes of denatured alcohol. The explosion which could be heard a mile away, set fire to the small building, and blasted windows from three others connected with the plant.

Every available piece of fire apparatus and all firemen were pressed into service to battle the flames for two hours before they were extinguished.

The victims were burned so badly that identification was established only through the fact that they were alone in the building. A fifth man was at first believed to have been killed, but inquiry disclosed that he had not reported for work this morning.

OBITUARY

Isabella M. Alden

PALO ALTO, Calif., Aug. 5—(AP)—Death today ended 80 years of writing for Isabella M. Alden, who gained fame as "Pansy," the name she signed over her first story when she was but 8 years old. This story appeared in a Gloversville (N. Y.) newspaper.

During her long career Mrs. Alden wrote more than 120 books, the best known being the "Chautauqua," "Ester Ried" and "Life of Christ," series. She continued to write, although ill, during the last four years and her last work was an autobiographical volume, "Memories of Yesterday."

Mrs. Alden's illness resulted from two accidents in 1926. She was hurt in an automobile collision and later her hip was fractured in a fall. A month ago her condition became serious and she gradually grew weaker.

LUNDGREN MAY TAKE-OFF FROM OLD ORCHARD BEACH

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., Aug. 5—(AP)—Possibility that Ted S. Lundgren, accompanied by Roger Q. Williams, trans-Atlantic flier, would start his projected round the world flight from the beach here, was seen today in the wording of a telegram sent by Williams to Captain Harry M. Jones, Old Orchard aviator.

The telegram requested information as to the condition of the beach for a take-off of a "heavily loaded plane at low tide."

No date of the proposed take-off was given. Jones wires that the beach was in excellent condition at present.

COOLER WEATHER IN WESTERN NEW YORK

BUFFALO, N. Y. Aug. 5—(AP)—City dwellers in western New York today blessed the cool southwest winds off Lake Erie which brought a 12-degree drop in temperature in 24 hours, but in the rural sections farmers cast anxious glances at a clear blue sky and hoped in vain for the rain which would save their crops.

From all parts of western New York, except the grape belt, came forecasts of tremendous crop losses unless rain came within a few hours. United States weather bureaus in this section promised no real relief within a few days at least.

Fire in the uncultivated muck lands in Genesee county today was burning toward the truck farms in a 5,000 acre belt around Elba and already had burned over a mile.

Ensilage crops were said to have been seriously affected; corn was drying up throughout six or seven counties; beans were shriveling in the intense heat. Some sections reported tomato crops rotting in the fields.

The hay crop had been harvested for the most part before the drought came, but pastures have been seriously burned and in the dairying counties there was fear of a milk shortage.

The grape crop has survived thus far, but vineyard owners said today that it all would be damaged unless rain came soon.

122,728,873 POPULATION OF CONTINENTAL U. S.

WASHINGTON Aug. 5—(AP)—The population of Continental United States on the basis of official preliminary census figures is 122,728,873.

This figure was compiled tonight from official announcements given Associated Press bureaus by census supervisors in the various states after completing the enumeration which began April 2.

Continental United States had 105,710,620 persons ten years ago, while the nation with its outlying possessions totaled 117,859,395.

The country has had the largest numerical increase for Continental United States in its history during the last ten years, despite restricted immigration and a declining birth rate. There was an increase of 17,018,253 in the decade, compared with the previous record increase for a ten year period of 15,977,691 between 1900 and 1910.

Bent On Rescue Work; Shot As Rum Runner

Error of Comrade Cost the Life of Boatswain's Mate Pratt, Father of Five.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.— (AP) — Bullets fired from a coast guard motorboat off Ipswich upon another coast guard craft, a power surf boat out of the Salisbury beach station, in the mistaken belief that it contained rum runners, today had cost one life. A coast guard board of inquiry was scheduled to investigate the shooting tomorrow.

The dead man was Boatswain's Mate Lewis E. Pratt, 30, of Kittery, Me. He was married and the father of a five-year-old daughter. He died at an Ipswich hospital after being hurriedly brought ashore by his companion, Surfman Cleo Falkingham. Falkingham was from Jonesport, Me.

The boat from which the fatal bullets were fired was doing patrol duty out of Base Seven, Gloucester. Coast guard officials did not divulge the names of the crew. When the shooting was reported it was at first believed that rum runners were responsible. It was not until hours later that Captain W. H. Munter, division commander, issued a statement from Boston headquarters revealing that one coast guard craft had fired upon another.

From the story told by Falkingham, Pratt went to his death while voluntarily going in search of a boat that had been afire yesterday. They left their station about 9 o'clock last night and after cruising around a while came upon a boat in the darkness.

"Thinking she might have been the boat we were looking for we approached her," Falkingham said. "When we were about 70 yards from her a hail of bullets greeted us.

"Pratt was up in the bow. He fell and cried to me that he had been hit.

"The shooting suddenly halted and then two flares went up. After that there was no more shooting. Realizing Pratt's condition I headed for Ipswich as fast as I could."

Soon after the incident was reported to Washington a board of inquiry was ordered to convene at Salisbury beach. Its meeting scheduled for today was postponed until tomorrow.

EARLY RETURNS FROM VIRGINIA PRIMARY

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 5.— (AP) — Judge Howard Smith of Alexandria, apparently was the democratic nominee for congress from the eighth district tonight, while Thomas G. Burch continued to pile up a lead over Joseph Whitehead, incumbent, in the fifth district and Joseph T. Deal had cinched the nomination in the second.

With 127 precincts reported out of a total of 154 in the eighth district, Judge Smith, who relinquished his position as circuit judge to enter the congressional primary, had a lead of nearly 5,000 votes over his nearest opponent, State Senator Frank L. Ball. Smith's count was 8,585 and Ball's 3,733. Ball and Keith, who had 3,721, were running neck and neck, while Crandall Mackey had 921 and E. H. Dejarnett 235.

Prohibition has been made the principal issue in the eighth district campaign. Senator Ball is the only one of the five candidates who made a "bone dry" campaign, and was the only one who was declared "satisfactory" by the Rev. David Hepburn, superintendent of the Virginia Anti-Saloon league.

Joseph T. Deal, former democratic congressman who was defeated by Menaclus Lankford in the republican landslide in 1928, will oppose Lankford again this fall, having overwhelmed his two opponents, Mrs. Sarah Lee Fain and Wilson W. Vellines in almost complete returns. With only four of the 126 precincts of the second district lacking, Deal had 6,512 votes, Mrs. Fain had 1,858 and Vellines 1,732.

Thomas G. Burch continued to increase his lead over Joseph Whitehead, the incumbent, in the fifth district, as the returns came in. One hundred and thirty-eight precincts out of the total of 214 gave Burch 9,538 votes and Whitehead 5,193.

DENIAL OF SHOOTING BY THREE BOY SUSPECT

WATERBURY, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Three boys, all under 16 years of age, suspected as principals in the accidental and fatal shooting Sunday of Mrs. Olga Shultz, of Middletown, told Deputy Coroner Walter Smyth today that they were not in the vicinity where the shooting took place. The boys, according to the deputy coroner, gave a good account of their actions all Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Smyth, together with Captain William P. Keegan, of the detective bureau, stated that they will continue their investigation tomorrow and are confident that the boys actually responsible for the woman's death will be rounded up. Mrs. Shultz was mortally wounded while sitting with her husband in the rear yard at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sihau in the north end of the city. Three shots were fired from a wooded section nearby, one of the bullets hitting Mrs. Shultz in the chest and lodging in her back. She died Monday at a hospital here.

27 Prisoners Were Injured In A Riot

Whites and Negroes Fought Over Possession of Baseball Diamond.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—(AP)—Twenty-seven men were injured, seven seriously, late today when 400 white and Negro prisoners on Welfare island engaged in a riotous battle over use of the Recreation Field baseball diamond.

Prison guards broke up the fighting and marched the men back to their cells. The injured were removed to the island hospital. Three emergency police squads from Manhattan and Long Island and a detachment of water police were summoned but their services were not needed. No inmates escaped.

The riot began with a fist fight between two prisoners during the recreation period. White prisoners had complained for several days that the Negroes were monopolizing the ball field. The altercation spread quickly and the fighting became general. Pen-knives, home made weapons and fists were used freely and the guards were forced to use their clubs to quell the disturbance.

Four participants received serious knife wounds, one received a possible skull fracture, and the others were suffering from cuts and bruises.

ARMY PROMOTIONS MADE BY PRESIDENT HOOVER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—(AP)—President Hoover today appointed Major Douglas MacArthur chief of staff of the army and Brig. General Ben H. Fuller, commandant of the Marine corps.

In raising the two to the highest peace time posts in their respective field, the president lifted them above the heads of several officers who topped them in rank. Both have seen long service in the field in various parts of the world.

General MacArthur was the senior officer of the army, however, with sufficient time left before his retirement to complete the full four year term as chief of staff. Seven other officers topped him in rank but all will reach the retirement age of 64 within the next four years.

The promotion of General MacArthur to the full rank of general will become effective November 20 upon the retirement of General Charles P. Summerall. General Fuller will assume permanent command of the Marine corps immediately, succeeding the late Major General Wendell C. Neville. He has been acting commandant since General Neville's death.

Announcing the appointments President Hoover commended both generals as "brilliant soldiers" and said their promotions had been recommended by the secretaries of war and the navy.

STEPS TO HASTEN PEACE NEGOTIATIONS IN INDIA

BOMBAY, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The Indian government today took steps to hasten negotiations that look to peace in troubled India, ordering the transfer of Pandit Motilal Nehru and his son, Pandit Jawarhalal Nehru, to the jail occupied by Mahatma Gandhi at Poona.

The Nehrus, who were prominent among the leaders of the civil resistance movement after the imprisonment of Gandhi, have been serving sentences in the jail at Allahabad.

Two peace emissaries, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and M. Jayakar, who are seeking to reconcile the nationalists with the government, were responsible for the transfer.

They recently visited Mahatma Gandhi in Yeroda prison at Poona, then went to Allahabad to confer with the Nehrus. They suggested that the conversations would be more effective were the three leaders together. The viceroy, Lord Irwin, thereupon authorized the transfer.

Political observers were not particularly optimistic regarding the results of the concession tonight, but they held that it was possible something might develop from the meeting of the three chief figures of the congress movement.

Meanwhile, the gloomy position of Indian trade, as brought about by the congress campaign, was reflected in the weekly governmental appraisement issued tonight.

HIGHER WAISTLINE AND LOOSE SKIRTS THIS WINTER

PARIS, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Higher waistlines and softly gathered skirts arrived in Paris this afternoon for a winter stay at one of the prominent dressmaking houses.

At this particular house belts are from two to six inches above former average levels and skirts are composed of one shirred band sewed to another shirred band and gathered eventually into a straight waist-band.

The wandering waistline and loose skirt may be the beginning of the end for the skin-tight hips and unwrinkled midriffs which have been slender womankind's pride and joy for several years.

The originator of the new silhouette says the tightly swathed long hipline is to disappear. He shows no ankle length or long dresses for the afternoon and gives 12 to 13 inches from the floor as his idea of what afternoon skirts should measure.

There are many evening dresses in his show which stop just above the ankle bone. There also are some ground length skirts with trains.

Instead of the black which dominates day-wear elsewhere, today's exhibitor prefers dark brown as newer. He makes a great point of elaborate tea-gowns as opposed to the cocktail pajamas of the less lady-like year of 1929.

SECOND HOTTEST AUG. 5 IN 58 YEARS IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 5.—(AP)— New Haven, steaming under high temperatures that reached a maximum of 92 degrees at 5 o'clock, experienced the second hottest August 5 in the 58 years the weather bureau has been in operation here. One degree higher was registered on August 5, 1928, and another 92 degree August 5 was chalked up in 1884.

Incidentally, New Haven is in an excellent position to better its heat endurance record of 1928 when there were 12 days with more than 90 degree temperatures, a 58-year record. So far this summer eleven 90 degrees or more days have been recorded.

No cool weather or rain is in prospect, weather bureau officials said.

ADDITIONAL WARSHIPS TO BE SENT UP YANGTSE RIVER

Foreign Governments Aroused by Outrages Against Foreigners in China—Eleven Gunboats at Hankow and Changsha Are to Be Reinforced—Communists Are Seeking to Terrorize Country Folk Into Joining Them—Villages Between Kiukiang and Hankow Have Been Looted and Burned.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Aroused by further outrages against foreigners in China by bandit-communists armies, foreign governments today ordered additional warships to proceed up the Yangtse river to reinforce eleven gunboats at Hankow and five at Changsha.

Despite announcement of the nationalist government that its troops had re-entered Changsha, recently razed by the reds, the situation was considered grave there and at Hankow, which is threatened by approaching communist armies.

The American gunboat Luzon arrived at Hankow today, prepared to aid the U. S. S. Palos, which had five sailors wounded in two clashes with reds recently while protecting foreigners.

Leaving Sasebo, Japan, for Shanghai, four Japanese destroyers were rushing to join others in the Yangtse patrol.

New outrages against British nationals included the wounding of three sailors at Changsha in a gunboat engagement with communists; the probably fatal bayonetting of Mrs. A. R. J. Hearne at Puchen and the sending of a severed finger of a woman missionary with demand for $50,000 ransom for herself and companion, held captive a month.

The communist menace sweeping the Yangtse valley affected the great southern provinces of Hunan, Hupeh, Kiangsi and Fukien. Dispatches from far flung areas throughout these provinces said numerous red bands numbering from a few hundred to 10,000 continued to pillage towns and rob the populace without opposition.

Foreigners throughout these areas were fleeing toward river and coastal cities. Whereabouts of many of them was unknown here. The majority were missionaries, recalled for safety.

Headquarters here of several missions reported varying proportions of their inland staffs had reached places of refuge, while others were bottled up at interior towns, avoiding the reds but unable to reach treaty ports. Still others, it was feared, had fallen into the hands of marauders.

Along the Yangtse, between Kiukiang and Hankow, the communists for twenty-four hours have been looting and burning villages, apparently seeking to terrorize country folk into joining them.

Kiukiang advices said fears were growing that the city was doomed to red attack shortly as 10,000 communists were reported advancing from the west. Additional foreigners departed from Kiukiang today.

COMMUNISTS EXECUTED 2,000 CHINESE IN CHANGSHA

SHANGHAI, Aug 6—(Wednesday)—(AP)—Two thousand Chinese were executed while communists were in possession of Changsha, Hunan province capital, Japanese press dispatches said today. In addition, 4,000 Chinese were missing, either executed or kidnaped.

VIEWS OF POLICE CHIEF ON LAW ENFORCEMENT

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 5.—(AP)—The state should be the main unit around which the law enforcement machinery should be constructed, for the municipality cannot function alone in successfully combating the criminal, Donald S. Leonard, Detroit, of the Michigan state police, told delegates today at the annual convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Asserting that "it is a difficult job for the large city police departments to equip themselves for crime warfare," he pointed out the smaller cities, towns and villages hampered by the lack of trained men and insufficient appropriations "are helpless without assistance from the state."

"The forces of the city, county, state and federal governments must be united in order to oust the racketeer, kidnaper, extortionist, thug and murderer from his present day reign of terror," he said.

Leonard said the rapid growth of the United States, its heterogenous population, the increased industrial activity and the complex organization of present day society were all contributing factors to increased criminal activity.

FOUR MEN DROWNED WHEN SHIPS COLLIDED

COPENHAGEN, Aug 5.—(AP)—Four men were drowned or missing and eleven were rescued today after a collision between the American freighter Chickashaw and the Swedish freighter Femmern, off the Danish coast.

The rescued men were taken aboard the salvage steamer Garm for Copenhagen.

The American ship was only slightly damaged and later steamed toward Copenhagen under her own power, but the Femmern was sliced in two, and the forepart sank. The afterpart was taken in tow.

The Chickasaw, a 3,023-ton vessel owned by the Moore MacCormack company, sailed from New York July 24 for Copenhagen, Stockholm and Leningrad. The Swish ship is of 387 net tons.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.— (AP)— The Costellos got along fine, Mrs. Paul Costello said today in filing suit for separation, until Mr. Costello acted as a judge in a bathing beauty contest at Atlantic City. Then his visits home became "spasmodic" and finally he ceased to come home at all.

UNPREJUDICED JURY FOR DRY LAW VIOLATION CASE

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—A jury which declared itself devoid of prejudice against prohibition and which includes Bruce Barton, author and advertising man, today was selected to try Charles Mrzena, former Methodist minister and self-styled bishop of the Czechoslovak Orthodox Catholic church, on a charge of violating the Volstead act.

Mr. Barton was asked if he had any prejudice that would interfere in his mind with the enforcement of the prohibition law.

"Well, I think it's a bad law," he answered, "but it should be enforced."

He was straightway accepted by both sides.

Bishop Mrzena and eight codefendants are charged with withdrawing sacramental wine, by means of permits obtained through misrepresentation, and diverting it to secular purposes.

Five of the 16 indicted with the bishop pleaded guilty today at the opening of the trial and two, John Pedrykanyn of Youngstown, O., and a New York truckman previously had pleaded guilty. One man indicted has not been arrested.

VANDERBILT YACHT, ENTERPRISE, WINNER

MATTAPOISETT, Mass., Aug. 5—(AP)—Enterprise, sailed by Harold S Vanderbilt, was the first of the four America's cup candidates around the 21-mile triangular course off here today. Weetamore, the Morgan-Nichols boat, was second; Yankee, Boston's candidate, third and Whirlwind, after all but winning the contest, crossed the finish line last.

Whirlwind, sailed by Landon K. Thorne and Paul Hammond, led her three rivals for the honor of meeting Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V over the greatest part of the course. At the end of the first 5.2 mile leg she turned the marker 17 seconds ahead of Enterprise. She had widened her lead to nearly two minutes when she turned the 13.1 mile mark, but somewhere along the 7.9 mile beat home she ran into a soft spot, an area of ocean that escaped the moderate northwest breeze. Before she could work her way out of it the other three boats passed her and she was deprived of a victory that would have done much to establish her as a formidable contender.

DECISION ON LORENZ PETITION WITHHELD

HARTFORD, Aug. 5—(AP)—The decision of Judge John Richards Booth of the superior court on the petition of Henry O. Alcorn and Public Defender Walfrid G. Lundborg, counsel for Lorenz.

The petition is the final effort of Mr. Lundborg to save his client from the gallows at Wethersfield early next Tuesday morning, just after midnight, in accordance with the sentence passed by Judge Newell Jennings on April 24.

DEM. LEADER RECOMMENDS ANTI-PROHIBITION PLANK

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 5.—(AP) — Norman E. Mack, democratic national committeeman, tonight lent approval to the demand of former Governor Alfred E. Smith that an anti-prohibition plank be written into the democratic state platform at the Syracuse convention next month.

"I fully agree with Mr. Smith and Mr. Raskob that prohibition must be one of the important questions raised during the coming campaign," Mr. Mack pointed out. "The New York state democracy always has led the fight for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and must do so again this year."

The Muscogee county grand jury at Columbus, Ga., indicted W. K. Johnson, Jr., federal prohibition agent, for the murder of Ray Rodgers, 20, who was shot to death by the officer while delivering a gallon of whiskey to George Moseley, an undercover agent.

KIDDIES TO GO TO BEACH BY AUTOMOBILE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 5.—Over 100 automobiles are wanted for Wednesday of next week, to assist Willimantic lodge of Elks, No. 1311, in giving 1,000 kiddies of this vicinity their annual outing at Crescent beach, Niantic. The children registered for the outing a few weeks ago and there is growing enthusiasm among this younger element as the date of the big event approaches. Difficulty in securing a sufficient number of cars to handle such a large number of young guests, has led the Elks to ask for assistance from outside the membership, which is about 100 per cent in the donation of cars. The offer of anyone interested in this welfare movement to furnish the use of a car will be accepted with appreciation. Such offers are to be made to Past Exalted Ruler John B. Edgarton or C. Howard Chaffee or by telephoning Leonard Bros. Garage, Inc., or the Elks' home.

Arrangements for the outing are shaping up well. There will be the usual lunch and refreshments at the beach. The outing is in charge of the social and community welfare committee of the lodge, Esteemed Lecturing Knight John H. Wilcox, chairman.

Auto Inspection Here Next Week

Levina O. Howlett, an inspector of the state motor vehicle department, was in town today making arrangements with Police Chief Thomas F. Grady for a campaign against defective auto equipment to be launched here next week as part of a statewide movement. The tests will be made in accordance with the Save-a-Life campaign which New England has adopted. Inspector Howlett stated today that the average motorist has no intention of violating the automobile regulations but there is negligence in many instances while there is also the accepted number of persons who have no sense of responsibility. Defective equipment, especially faulty brakes, have caused many accidents and the tests are expected to result in many corrections which should prove a strong deterrent to many accidents.

The Young People's band of the Salvation Army from South Manchester will appear in a public concert at Lincoln square, Wednesday evening, at 7:45 o'clock, it was announced at the local citadel today. Eddie John, who was beaten down by a baseball bat wielded by his brother-in-law, John Eddy, Carey Hill grocer, Monday afternoon, was still under police guard at St. Joseph's hospital today where he is suffering from numerous injuries. Upon his recovery he will be arrested for attempted assault with intent to kill, this charge being based on statements of John Eddy that the man entered the store with a razor in his hand and that he threatened to kill him with it. Eddy, who forestalled the attempt with the baseball bat, is charged with assault. John is expected to be released from the hospital Wednesday, when both men are scheduled to appear in police court. John has been a patient at the Norwich State hospital and has a police record.

EARL OF BIRKENHEAD ILL WITH BRONCHIAL PNEUMONIA

LONDON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The Earl of Birkenhead, who as a lawyer and politician has been one of the leading figures in British life for many years, is seriously ill with bronchial pneumonia at his home in Grosvenor Gardens.

Physicians said tonight they had noted a slight improvement in the last 24 hours, however.

The earl, who is 58, has been inactive since his return from Biarritz last April. While at the French resort he suffered a broken blood vessel and his condition for a time was serious.

The Earl of Birkenhead has visited the United States three times— in 1917, in 1923 and in September last year.

Owing to the delicate nature of the subjects presented there will be separate shows for Women Only Thursday, August 7th matinee and evening, also Friday, August 8th, Matinee and for Men Only Friday and Saturday evening, also Saturday. No children under 16 years of age will be admitted.

Palace Theatre

Out of the [illegible] that has been written about the war there emerges one play which, in the opinion of most of the civilized world, is unquestionably a masterpiece. This play is "Journey's End," which opens at the Palace tomorrow, and which, because of urgent booking requests elsewhere, cannot be held here beyond Saturday. [illegible]

It is a simple story. A handful of officers in a dugout in the British front line trenches. [illegible]

We see in cross section the whole ghastly panorama of war, yet with all its heroisms, all its eerie romance.

In the meantime, nobody should forget that the Palace today for the last times is showing the one and only Clara Bow in captivity. Clara naughtier and nicer than ever, appears in "Love Among the Millionaires."

SOUTHBRIDGE BROTHERS DRAW FINE AND JAIL SENTENCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 5—Italio and Amerigo Lulli, youthful brothers, residents of Southbridge, were given a demonstration in the town court today that Killingly isn't the particular town in which to start a fight or resist an officer, which they did last Saturday night, without declaring any particular dividends for themselves. They were locked up here after their arrest, spent much of Sunday in cells in the local police station, had their cases continued from Monday, after they had obtained counsel, and were presented for trial this morning. Both were charged with intoxication, breach of the peace and resisting an officer, who happens to be Constable Louis O. Stone. In each instance today the intoxication counts were nolled. Each was fined $6 for breach of the peace, each $25 for resisting an officer and each sentenced to 180 days in jail. The jail sentence was suspended for one year. As they could not pay their joint fines nor cost s, amounting to $18.34 in each case, they were allowed to make a first payment of $25, under an agreement to keep the case open until September 6, by which time they will be expected to clear their deficit with the town court.

FUNERAL.

Mrs. Emma L. Davis.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at A. F. Wood's funeral home on Mechanic street funeral services were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church for Mrs. Emma L. Davis, for many years a resident at South Killingly. Burial was in the South Killingly cemetery. The bearers were Emory Davis and Walter Davis of Plainfield; J. Elmer Kenne, Danielson, A. A. Tillinghast, P. H. Coffey, and Milan D. Whittaker, all of South Killingly.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Charles Warren.

Mrs. Lucy J. Warren died last night at Attawaugan, in her 90th year. She was the widow of Charles Warren, and had been a resident of this town, a long time at East Killingly, during many years of her long life. Mrs. Warren was born in Pomfret December 27, 1840, a daughter of Dodridge and Lucy J. Bromley. Mrs. Warren leaves six children, William H., East Killingly; Cornelia, Sidney and Mrs. Cora Hopkins, all of Attawaugan; Mrs. Lulu Smith of Riverside, R. I., and Eugene Warren of Norwood, Mass. There are also 26 grandchildren, 31 great-grandchildren, and 4 great-great-grandchildren. Mrs. Alton Eldridge of Danielson is one of the grandchildren.

All through this territory trout streams are dwindling in volume and in some instance only a trickle of water is going through them at the present time. Loss of water, though not in such degree, applies to the large brooks, rating streams in some parts of the country. All of this means that the loss in trout is going to be heavy, already is heavy. It is not regarded as likely here that the state will do much restocking of brooks until heavy rains come to relieve the drought. It is understood that the state has many trout for release this fall, and this area is due to get its share of them, when conditions warrant turning them loose.

Old Killingly pond, a mile or so northeast of East Killingly, has become considerable of a summer resort, and a mighty attractive one, too. At the present time the seasonal holiday colony, occupying camps around the shores of the pretty lake, is about at its height. There are no attractions over there other than nature has provided, but it may be mentioned these are ample. There are bathing beaches, opportunities for fishing and canoeing, plenty of shade and almost invariably a good breeze, even on the hottest day. State Bank Commissioner Lester Shippee owns one of the attractive camps at the lake. His parental home is in East Killingly.

Members of the Danielson fire department are awaiting with keen anticipation their annual outing and clambake, which will be held at Old Killingly pond on Sunday, August 17. King George Jacques, a past master at the work, is going to prepare the clambake, though he has done very little of that work this season on account of not being as well as usual.

Killingly grange, No. 112, has its plans far advanced for the big interstate meeting that is to be held in the town hall here on August 18. Invitations have been sent to all the state officers in Connecticut and Rhode Island, and by the returns that have been received indications are that there will be a large attendance. Notices of the meeting have been sent to granges within 50 miles of Danielson. Indications now are that there will be a very large attendance as the result of the efforts of the publicity committee. Killingly grange is the home grange of Rev. Charles A. Downs of Goodyear, chaplain of the Connecticut State grange.

There is advocacy, and it is said to have approval of some of the members of the court of burgesses, of a plan to build sidewalks around Davis park, through Main, Broad and Reynolds streets, the park being triangular in shape. While there is so much pressure being brought to bear on borough officials at this time to build sidewalks here, there and about everywhere in the borough, it may not be possible to get proper consideration of the park walk plan just now, but it will be a matter up for decision later. The borough officials, it was said today, would not undertake construction of walks around the park unless authorized to do so by voters in some regular or special borough meeting. At the present time only gravel walks border the park, the appearance of which would be greatly enhanced by concrete walks, and greatly appreciated by the public.

Cards and telephone messages from members of Danielson military detachments now doing a tour of duty at Camp Devens indicate that they are being punished by the excessive heat. It was hot when they went out at the week-end, broiling during Sunday, the first full day in camp, and little better on Monday. This morning another message from the camp told of the soldiers sweltering under the heat of another oppressive day.

High grade Guernsey milk and cream delivered daily in Danielson by the Wauregan Company Farms. Phone 54-2, Danielson. Orders solicited.—adv.

The possibility appeared to be today that when borough sidewalk builders complete their work in Academy street during the course of the present week they will begin operations in School street.

The drought may, and does, impose its handicaps, but the all-dry weather is helping road builders operating between Danielson and Wauregan and between Hampton and Elliott. They are getting in full time, and progressing splendidly.

Girls at the "Y" summer camp at Black pond in the town of Woodstock are not allowing the torrid weather to interfere too much with their daily routine. There are several girls from Danielson in the camp, which opened for them on Friday last and will continue for a fortnight.

A state highway crew has some repair work to do on the new cable fence between Danielson and Brooklyn. Two automobiles that got into a tangle over there knocked a section of the fence askew, but there was another demonstration that this type of fence does stand up under heavy impacts and is far from being so dangerous to motorists as the old type of wooden fence.

Mrs. John Reed of Melrose is visiting here with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Reed. Mrs. Reed was a resident on the West Side for many years up to the time of her husband's death.

Attention of parents is again called to the Well Child clinic to be held at the school building from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. on Wednesday, with Dr. Elizabeth Ingraham and her staff of assistants on hand.

This was another day of intense heat in Danielson, with many thermometers, where they were exposed to the sun, touching 100 degrees and in several cases 102 and 103.

Leslie Murray of Boston is spending a vacation with his mother, Mrs. Patrick F. Murray, of Academy street.

Out in country areas within a few miles of Danielson drought conditions are again beginning to plague owners of farm lands. Within another week, it is said, unless heavy rains come, numbers of farms will be so short of water as to require hauling supplies in barrels, as was done for a time last year.

Mark W. Bailey, who has been a resident of Saskatchewan for a long term of years, but who lived here as a youth, has purchased the place formerly owned by John Lindberg of Reynolds street at Wauregan.

Henry Gilbert, tree warden of the town and borough, left today for a brief motor trip in New Hampshire.

Miss Lorena C. Beausoliel of New Bedford is visiting with friends in Danielson for a few days.

A considerable number of Danielson people plan to be at Camp Devens, where the 43d division, including detachments of officers and men from Danielson, on next Sunday. There is to be a division review at that time.

Horseshoe pitching is enjoying a great vogue all through this section just now, and some really high class throwers have been developed. Games are being played regular in Killingly, Brooklyn and other nearby towns.

PUTNAM

NEW BANK BUILDING TO BE OPENED AUG. 20

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 5—Elaborate plans are being formulated by the building committee for the formal opening of the new banking home of the Cargill Trust company, which will take place on Wednesday, August 20. The announcement of the opening date was made this morning by President Byron D. Bugbee, executive head of the institution.

With the exception of a few minor details, the bank has reached completion. During the past week the heavy bronze doors at the front of the building were hung.

Shipments of furnishings for the interior have been received and during the next week experts will be at work decorating the various chambers of the banking home. A detailed announcement of the formal opening will appear in this paper soon.

The new home of the Cargill Trust company, one of the city's largest banking organizations, is one of the finest buildings of its type in the state. Its construction throughout embodies the present day type of architecture. It is a building of true individuality setting forth tones entirely distinctive from any other structure in this city and in the state.

C. M. T. C. company "M," an artillery unit which made such an unusually favorable impression upon the large gallery of onlookers Friday morning as it passed in regimental review before Governor John E. Weeks of Vermont, at Fort Ethan Allen, was commanded by Lieut. Allen A. Thayer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Thayer of King street, Putnam, Conn.

Lieut. Thayer is a graduate of Putnam high school and of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. Since his graduation and receipt of commission, he has been with the 13th calvary quartered at the fort.

Mrs. Bernice Billings of Water street, a young matron well known in the city, was handed a ten day jail sentence by Judge M. H. Geissler this morning, when she was found guilty of a charge of breach of peace. A charge of assault also made against her was nolled upon the recommendation of Irving H. Miron, attorney who appeared in her behalf. Execution of the jail sentence was suspended and Mrs. Billings was placed in charge of a probation officer for a period of six months.

Mrs. Billings' appearance in court this morning is the result of a fist fight and hair pulling fracas in which she figured with a neighbor, Mrs. Bellerose, as her opponent. In court this morning Mrs. Billings pleaded not guilty to assault, steadfastly maintained her innocence until the charge was dismissed and only the less grevious offense of breach of peace stood against her, at which time she changed her plea to that of guilty.

The unusual and highly amusing escapade in which the two women figured was revealed in the testimony of Mrs. Bellerose, who apparently went down under the barrage of blows from the fists of her aggressor and neighbor. Mrs. Billings in her story told of overhearing Mrs. Bellerose, "saying things about her." This statement was admitted when the proximity of the houses of both women was described. She said she resented the objectionable remarks and going to the Bellerose porch the battle ensued.

Mrs. Bellerose was put to a disadvantage because of her age and she found considerable difficulty in warding off the attack lodged against her by the younger woman.

A complaint was made to the police by Mrs. Bellerose and a warrant for her assailant's arrest was issued by the prosecuting attorney on Monday. Captain Dubreuil was unable to serve the instrument, inasmuch as the young matron remained in bed during the day and proclaimed herself ill when the police visited her home.

Recovered and feeling much better in the evening, Mrs. Billings ventured out after dark only to be accosted by Sergt A. J. Sponcey who served the process and placed her under arrest.

The condition of Anna Stitz and Mary Mrazik, Webster girls injured in a fatal auto accident occurring in Central Village on Sunday afternoon was reported as critical this afternoon by Miss Falkins, acting superintendent of the Day Kimball hospital. The report said that a slight improvement had been noted during the day in the condition of Miss Stitz, who is suffering from a fracture of the skull and fractures of four ribs.

The Mrazik girl continues in an extremely critical condition. She had failed to respond favorable to medical treatment during the past 48 hours, the hospital report cited. The young woman, only 20 years old, is suffering from internal injuries, fractures to five ribs and a double fracture of the pelvis bone.

Ernest Ramsay, professional at the Putnam Country club, is the author of a small hand book of golf which is meeting with the favor of members of the club. The publication is called, "Interesting Facts for Every Golfer." The work is prefaced with a golf glossary and contains many other helpful hints which if followed should serve to raise the duffer into the par breaking class.

Miss Katherine Byrne, vice chairman of the republican state central committee with Henry J. Roraback, chairman of the committee will name the temporary chairman and deliverer of the "keynote" address for the annual state convention of the party to be held on September 15-16 in Hartford.

Cards have been received here by friends of Harry Thayer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Thayer of King street, who is a student at Braden's preparatory school at Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

"Dangerous Nan McGrew" opens its local engagement at Warner's Broadway today, next to shoot up the town with wild "boop-boopa-doops" and make coos and cuddles grow where only one coo and cuddle grew before.

You guessed it—Helen Kane's the title role player in this picture of wild and wooly Klondike clowning. It's the first picture in which the tiny-voiced queen of cuddlesome "It" has ever been billed as the leading personality.

"Dangerous Nan McGrew" is the story of a singer in a traveling "medicine show" who doubles in Annie Oakley obligatoes on a repeating rifle. Marooned at the spiffy hunting lodge of a wealthy family in the wilds of Canada's Royal Northwest, the "med" show personnel is pressed into the domestic circle as talent for a grand masked ball. It is at this brilliant jamboree that Helen Kane captures an escaped criminal and wins not only the reward of $10,000, but the heart of Stuart Erwin, the bashful beau, as well.

Strand Theatre

"Male against Female" the moving picture the entire nation is talking about opens tomorrow at the Strand theatre in Norwich for a three-day engagement.

This sensational photoplay features Mildred Harris the former wife of Charlie Chaplin and leads a furious attack against sex ignorance.

"Male Against Female" is one of the most frank as well as the most daring and absorbing dramas of the sexes ever presented to the public. It reveals that the greatest curse of the ages has been handed down to mankind due to the mystery and secrecy that surrounds "SEX". It stresses that sex is generally spoken of in whispers but should rightfully be proclaimed to all. Sex is not only the reason for life itself, but also the cause of most evil. Sex enlightenment and knowledge are the only forces able to combat its onward rush of destruction.

Owing to the delicate nature of the subjects presented there will be separate shows for Women Only Thursday, August 7th matinee and evening also Friday, August 8th Matinee and for Men Only Friday and Saturday evening also Saturday. No children under 16 years of age will be admitted.

Palace Theatre

Out of the ruck and welter of all that has been written about the war there emerges one play which, in the opinion of most of the civilized world, is unquestionably a masterpiece. This play is Journey's End," which opens at the Palace tomorrow, and which, because of urgent booking requests elsewhere, cannot be held here beyond Saturday. It is not probable that every one in Norwich who wants to see "Journey's End" will be able to do so during the three days it is here. In other cities, the showing of this play has been accompanied by long waiting lines.

It is a simple story. A handful of officers in a dugout in the British front line trenches. There we see them, Stanhope, the young, lean captain, haggard-eyed with drink and suppressed fear: Osborne, an older man, the first lieutenant, well-groomed, quiet, cultured, a perfect officer; Hibbert a second lieutenant, handsome, yet craven with terror; Trotter, bulky, jovial, a cockney raised to the rank of a second lieutenancy; Raleigh young courageous, fresh from an exclusive English public school, ready to serve and die as one of His Majesty's many second lieutenants in the great and bloody conflict.

We see in cross section the whole ghastly panorama of war, yet with all its heroisms, all its eerie romance.

In the meantime, nobody should forget that the Palace today for the last times is showing the one and only Clara Bow in captivity. Clara, naughtier and nicer than ever, appears in "Love Among the Millionaires."

Eight million dollars will be spent by the Texas & Pacific railway at Ft. Worth, Tex., for improvements.

THE DRY ARMY

One of the interesting developments of the new era of prohibition enforcement authorized by congress in shifting this responsibility to the department of justice is the policy of A. W. Woodcock, the new director of the bureau of prohibition. In a series of conferences with district administrators he announces that he has raised the standard set for agents, approved an increase from 2,000 to 2,500 agents and laid down a set of rules which require that agents shall adapt their conduct to their mission as representatives of the federal government. He has laid down the rule that the agent shall concentrate on commercial traffic in illicit intoxicants, observe strictly the letter of the law in the matter of search, and at all times respect the personal rights of citizens and their normal expectation of courtesy and firmness in dealing with federal officials.

Prohibition enforcement has gone through two major periods of experiment. At first the enforcement army was made up mostly of men whose sole claim to preference was political influence. The executive department of the government was powerless to change this plan because congress refused the necessary reform legislation. It was in this era that disclosures of graft blossomed forth and agents were disclosed in league with rum runners and bootleggers. The pressure of public opinion forced the adoption of a civil service system of selecting agents. But here again more difficulties were encountered from the zeal of young and inexperienced men, who were transferred from one part of the country to another and vested with too much authority and freedom in the use of firearms.

The policy of the new director, which is said to have the approval of President Hoover, diverges from both of the previous methods, for he announces his purpose to recruit a force somewhat similar to the old coast guard or custom service; to select young men amenable to discipline, to school them in the law and in methods of detecting violators, and to require them to use their minds in making cases that will withstand the attacks of defense lawyers in court. Friends and foes of prohibition will join in the view that this is the best suggestion for retaining the dignity of the federal government. And Mr. Woodcock promises that the public shall know the facts as he finds them. What these turn out to be will be another story.

FOR SUPERLINERS

When it was proposed to build two Cunard superliners, each to cost about $30,000,000, it was found that the London insurance market was not able to provide the full coverage, but this difficulty has been overcome by the British government undertaking to provide the necessary additional insurance so that the construction of the giant passenger vessels can proceed. Employment will be given to thousands of workers in the shipbuilding and other industries.

This is only another indication of the practical support which is given the British merchant marine by its government, an encouragement which the United States is at last beginning to afford shipbuilders here. Not only are government loans now granted on favorable terms to builders of American ships, but the new law authorizes indirect subsidies in the shape of liberal allowances for mail carriers.

These British ships will be the first of 75,000 tonnage, setting a new record for size. The Great Eastern, giant of the seas of two generations ago, was a pigmy beside the new steamships, for she was less than 18,000 tons. The Leviathan is just under 60,000 tons and the new American superliners to be built soon with government loaned money will not be larger than the Leviathan. The big British boats will hasten plans for more extensive docking facilities at New York, where piers now are not long enough for many of the present vessels. In this connection there is revival of talk of the old scheme to have a terminal port at the extreme end of Long Island, from which passengers would be transported by airplane or fast trains to New York city. But that is far in the future, and New York will have to set about providing accommodations nearer home for these future monsters of the deep.

RULES FOR ROYALTY

It is the Churchman which reveals that the king of England has compressed his personal code into six simple rules which hang in his "workshop" in Buckingham palace. These are his rules:

1. Teach me to be obedient to the rules of the game.

2. Teach me to distinguish between sentiment and sentimentality, admiring the one and despising the other.

3. Teach me neither to proffer nor to receive cheap praise.

4. If I am called upon to suffer, let me be like a well-bred beast that goes away to suffer in silence.

5. Teach me to win, if I may; if I may not, teach me to be a good loser.

6. Teach me neither to cry for the moon nor to cry over spilt milk.

Simple rules we may say, but if royalty in other lands were trying to follow the code of King George, it would be in better case. If the new king of Rumania were obedient to the rules of the game, his queen would not be a pitiable and tragic figure, virtually compelled to make a choice that is no choice, to bear up under a grievous affliction. If the Hohenzollerns and the Romanoffs had played the game according to the rules, the map of the world would not be as it is. The house of Hapsburg collapsed because it was not following the revised rules of the game of life. The hold which King George has upon his people is revealing of his adherence to his code. The throne of England survives because George V. not only has the brains to understand but a sincerity of purpose in following the rules of the game.

GETTING UNEMPLOYMENT FACTS

Invitations have been given by President Hoover to various economic, social and scientific organizations to name members of a commission on unemployment statistics which he has decided to create. The need for such a commission has been felt for years and was given emphasis recently by the criticism directed towards the census bulletins on employment. It was charged that the census figures were inaccurate because many of the census enumerators were too busy, too careless or too inefficient to obtain exact statistics. It was charged further that the data supplied were juggled and misinterpreted in order to conceal the true facts about the unemployment situation.

President Hoover believes that the census figures on unemployment furnish at least a sufficient basis for a future programme of investigation and study. He seeks, therefore, expert aid in bringing about a revision of the federal statistical service and in devising methods of effecting systematic co-operation between governmental agencies and business organizations.

The proposed commission is not to deal with causes of unemployment but with technical questions of method and organization required to give the nation and federal and state officials adequate and trustworthy information concerning seasonal and cyclical lack of remunerative labor.

In connection with his announcement of the formation of this commission, President Hoover indicated that he was not unmindful of some criticism which has been given of his use of commissions. He said: "To some who are anxious over the appointment of temporary committees and commissions, for advisory fact-finding, co-ordinnating or negotiating purposes, I may suggest that they are not a new necessity in government. President Roosevelt created 107 of them, President Taft, 63; President Wilson, 160; President Harding, 44; President Coolidge, 118. As we need the best brains of the country to assist in government and the co-ordination of public efforts, I shall appoint others. The willingness of our people of specialized knowledge to give such voluntary service as this requires is one of the most gratifying qualities in citizenship."

Commissions do not relieve governments and legislatures of responsibility or of initiative. Still, they may be, and not infrequently are, employed of instruments of evasion and delay. Properly used they are invaluable aids to efficient administrators of public affairs.

TESTING AMERICAN YOUTH

Ambition, character, will to work and imagination are four requisites for success, as Thomas A. Edison looks upon it, and were the qualities which he expected to find displayed in an outstanding degree by the boy who would be the winner of the Edison scholarship test. Such a boy, one may suppose, is Arthur O. Williams, Jr., of East Providence, R. I., whom the judges selected as the winner.

No one who is without what may be called intellectual curiosity would have stood much chance of standing well in the test, for the ingenious framers of the questions wisely required that in addition to the knowledge obtained in the class room, the winner should possess such miscellaneous information as would be gained by collateral reading, or by taking an intelligent interest in world affairs of his own day. Further they required him to have vision, ethical sense and plain every day common sense. The questions covered a remarkably wide range and were well designed to test the competitors' intelligence, memory, habits of thought and capacity for induction and generalization. They included in their scope history, geography, elements of several exact sciences, current international politics and ethical movements. Certainly many an eminent man or woman would not have been able to answer half the questions correctly.

The standard of high mental and moral equipment set up by the examination is at once useful and inspiring, especially to ambitious youth.

TEMPORARY INTERLUDE

The iceboat shot across the expanse of thick ice and neglected to stop when its frozen track began to thin. It eventually crashed through with a brief but mighty crackle and splash. Presently four mittened hands were clutching at the edge of the sheet ice which nibbled away at every grasp like a piece of cheese attacked by hungry mice.

"Are—are you all right?" gasped the young man who had been steering the craft as he reached for the other pair of hands and guided them to a precarious hold on miniature iceberg.

The face turned in his direction was surrounded with the white woolly background of a St. Moritz skating tam, and was calm, although its eyes were exceedingly wide open. The color had not yet paled from her cheeks. "Oh, quite," she assured him. "This is ice water, but I feel quite warm and cozy."

"Hasn't soaked through yet," the young man discouraged her. "These leather suits will last a minute or so. Keep treading water and don't squeeze the ice. Is that shore moving away or anything?"

"Rapidly," said the pretty girl after taking a look. "I never saw land go away so fast. My f-f-feet are getting cold."

"Oh, Daisy!" cried the young man in a [illegible] voice. "I'll never forgive myself for getting you into this mess!"

"Hang on!" she shrieked as he reached for her and the ice gave way again.

"I don't care if I do drown," he told her bitterly. "I deserve to. To take a girl like you and try to give her a good time and end by dumping her into a frozen lake! You— you're s-s-such a pretty g-girl—why—I wanted to marry you!"

"You never m-mentioned it," she told him. "I never thought about it."

"B-b-ut this is a solemn moment, Daisy," her escort continued desperately, "and maybe nobody will come along that shore and maybe we'll never be rescued, and I think it is time for you to stop fooling yourself and acknowledge that you do care for me. If I'm to have just moments it would make them h-happier."

"I feel q-q-queer," she chattered as her ice edge crumbled and she grabbed anew. "It's trickling in around my waist. It's so c-c-cold it's redhot. Maybe I have been unkind, Osborne, and haven't appreciated your d-devotion. There are so few things in life worth while and I don't see how I could have been so blind as to scorn you. I wish I could say something to convince you that this isn't death-bed repentance or whatever you call it."

"Daisy!" the young man cried and then gurgled as he went under when he let go of the ice. He came up again, "M-m-m-my face is rapidly freezing and before it sets entirely I want to tell you how happy you have m-made me—there must be a tear in the back of my jacket. The water's pouring in. I would have given you everything on earth and always let you have your own way. Nobody knows how much time I've got left to tell you all I want to so I've got to hurry."

"And I must tell you," she broke in, taking a fresh hand grip, "how perfectly horrid I see that I've been! I never took you seriously and now I'm getting punished. Why, I even thought I couldn't stand you because you always blinked twice before you spoke and now it looks as though I'd never get a chance to see you bl—bl—blink again! Not a soul has come along. I'm all numb. But I'm engaged to you, Osborne. At least I can do that much."

"D—darling!" chatered the young man. The ice broke again. "Why, I can't even kiss you good-by!"

Her cheeks were paling. "I guess we'll drown all right. It's awful to find out so late how I care for you, Osborne."

There was a surge of people on shore and some one was shouting to them. They were being asked why they did not come in.

"We—we're drowning," yelled the young man indignantly.

"Just walk in," the voice yelled back. It sounded oddly jocular. "Water's shallow all the way in, you dumb-bell!"

Lowering their numb legs, which had been instinctively drawn up against their bodies since their plunge, the two cracked through the thin sheet ice to shore. There were rescuing hands and an emergency bonfire.

"Go away," murmured the pretty girl a bit later when the young man remembered to bend over her with a query as to her health. "You blinked twice right then before you spoke and I can't stand it any better than I ever could. Our engagement is br-broken, Osborne."

"Well—maybe it's just as well," agreed the young man relievedly.—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

Acute Perforation Of Stomach Or Duodenum

By H. E. Randall, M. D., Flint, Michigan.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

There are but a few diseases which afflict mankind in which the patient can tell the exact minute that the attack started. A case of perforation will say that "I was taken sick at 1:15" or if a clerk, "I was reaching for a box when I had a sudden pain in the stomach." Or again, "I was waiting for a street car when the pain started." A mecranic will tell that he was pushing a lever when the pain struck him like a knife.

Accompanying the pain is shock. Sometimes the patient falls to the floor and has to have help to his home or hospital. The amount of shock is proportional to the size of the perforation. A small pin point perforation in a strong hardy man may not be accompanied by faintness and in one case a man walked several blocks to his home, but this is unusual.

Sudden pain in the stomach with shock or faintness is the most characteristic symptom of acute perforation.

In a short time the muscles of the abdomen contract and the abdomen has a boardlike feel. The physician calls this rigidity, and it spreads to all the muscles covering the abdominal organs.

So characteristic are the symptoms of acute perforation that many times the orderlies in our hospitals have made a correct diagnosis in a case just entering the hospital. There is no disease of the abdomen in which the diagnosis is so easy if one is aware of this condition. The pinched features of the face, the lack of color, the rising pulse are warning signs that the patient's life is in danger. The sudden pain in the stomach, the shock and the rigidity of the muscles are all the symptoms necessary to make a positive diagnosis.

In most cases the patients have been having some stomach trouble. There will be a history of pain in the stomach two or three hours after meals. This pain has been relieved by eating, the patients have learned to eat between regular meals often carrying crackers or other food to bed at night to give relief if the pain should be felt. The pain after meals will last for a few days or a few weeks when the patient will have a period of complete relief. Especially will this story be true in the earlier history of peptic ulcer of the stomach or duodenum. One of the peculiar features is that even when the patient is having the pain regularly after meals, there will be no pain before breakfast. These recurring periods of pains and then of relief often six months apart is a peculiar feature of this disease although the ulcer is present just the same in the period of relief as in the period of regular pain after meals.

There are no tragedies of the abdomen more dangerous than acute perforations and recovery depends on prompt diagnosis and operations. The earlier the operation the greater are the chances of recovery. But few recover if operated as late as twenty-four hours after rupture of the ulcer. The surgeon prefers to have his cases in the operating room within four hours if possible because food and gastric secretions are being constantly poured out into the peritoneal cavity, and the earlier the closure of the rupture the less the soiling of the peritoneum.

Sudden pain in the stomach, with shock accompanied by rigidity of the abdominal muscles in a patient giving a history of period of pain two hours after meals, mean acute perforation and requires prompt diagnosis and operation if death is to be averted.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—The history of cloture—limitation of debate—in the senate since it became part of the senate procedure 13 years ago sufficiently indicates the extreme reluctance with which that body resorts to a gag rule.

What would have happened had Senator James Watson, republican leader, made good his threat of cloture to choke off opposition to the London naval treaty, it would be hard to say.

He might easily have failed to muster the two-thirds majority necessary to apply cloture. The senate has done that only four times in its history.

Five attempts at cloture have failed in those same 13 years, and on one of the four times it was carried there was not a vote to spare.

Watson faced a difficult decision in the threat to invoke cloture. Without question many senators favoring ratification of the naval treaty would have voted against the gag rule to get it through. Failure might well have resulted in failure to ratify the treaty at the special session.

Cloture was adopted by the senate virtually as a war measure. For more than 100 years before 1917, it steadfastly refused to limit its powers of debate. It actually laughed at Vice President Dawes plea for strong-arm rules when he delivered his inaugural.

Yet in 1917 the existing rule for limitation of debate was adopted, 93 to 3. It was an aftermath of the defeat of the armed merchant ship bill of the Wilson administration, the last gesture of neutrality made in March, a month before the war declaration against Germany.

That was the occasion when Wilson branded the group of a dozen or so senators who beat the bill by filibuster as "wilful." Three was such a stir of war expectancy in the country that popular opinion fairly drove the senate to add this machinery for steam-rollering opposition in a vital emergency, despite its ancient traditions of the right of unlimited debate.

The rule itself was framed by a bipartisan committee of senators.

Senator Norris of Nebraska is the only survivor of the group of "wilful men" who defeated the armed ship bill, and he voted for the cloture rule when it came along later.

Two others of the "wilful" group opposed it, but the third vote against was cast by the late Senator Sherman of Illinois, who favored the ship bill.

He thought preservation of the power of the minority in the senate to force compromise more precious than even the ship bill.

Probably it would be utterly impossible to add a cloture rule to the senate books now if it were not there. Only the war situation made it possible in 1917.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Thimble Is Found

> Who from his treasure cannot stay
> Is bound to give the thing away.
> —Farmer Brown's Boy

Farmer Brown's Boy was thoughtful. Mother Brown was telling how she had lost her thimble. "I thought I put it on the windowsill," said she, "and I wasn't out of the room over two minutes. If that Crow had been around here, I would suspect him; but he was down in the cornfield with you. So that let's him out. It must be that I didn't put the thimble there as I thought I did, but dropped it and it rolled out of sight."

Farmer Brown's Boy said nothing, but he looked over at Jim Crow a bit suspiciously. It was true that Jim Crow had been with him most of the morning. He had ridden down to the cornfield on his shoulder and had ridden back on his shoulder. But now that he thought it over he recalled that there had been a brief time when Jim Crow had disappeared. His master thought nothing of it at the time. In fact, he hadn't been quite sure that Jim Crow had really left the cornfield. Now, however, he suspected that the black scamp might have been back up to the house, and then returned to the cornfield almost at once.

After dinner Farmer Brown's Boy went out with Jim Crow riding on his shoulder. "Jim Crow," said Famer Brown's Boy, "did you steal that thimble?"

"Caw!" replied Jim Crow. This might have been yes and might have been no.

"I do believe you did," continued his master, "and I'm going to search your treasure house."

"Caw, Caw!" said Jim Crow again.

Now, Farmer Brown's Boy knew where Jim Crow's favorite treasure house was and he went straight to it. He hunted all through it. There were many things in that storehouse and most of the things were shiny. There was the handle of a broken cup; there were two or three white pebbles; there was a ten-cent piece. Farmer Brown's Boy pocketed that with a chuckle. There were many other things, but there wasn't a thimble. Farmer Brown's Boy hunted thoroughly, but there was no thimble.

"Jim Crow," said he, "I misjudged you. Yes, sir, I misjudged you."

"Caw!" said Jim Crow. Caw!"

"It must be that Mother really did drop that thimble," said Farmer Brown's Boy, "We will go in and have another look for it in the house."

He started for the door, but Jim Crow didn't follow. Jim Crow flew over to an apple tree in the orchard. Farmer Brown's Boy went inside the house. Then a sudden thought led him to go peek out at Jim Crow. Jim Crow was watching the house. Farmer Brown's Boy took care that Jim Crow shouldn't see him. Apparently satisfied that he wasn't being watched, Jim Crow flew to a certain knothole and peered into it. Then he thrust his bill in and took something out, with which he appeared to play for a few minutes. He then dropped it back in the knothole and flew over toward the house.

Farmer Brown's Boy let him into the shed and then shut him in there. Then he went straight over to that knothole where Jim Crow had been so busy. He peeked in. Something bright was in there. He put his finger in and he could feel something. The hole was not big enough for him to put his hand in. Finally with a little stick he managed to get out the thing he had felt. It was the missing thimble! Yes, sir, it was the missing thimble!

Farmer Brown's Boy went back to the house and let Jim Crow out. At first, Jim Crow just hung around. Finally, when he thought no one was waching him, he flew over to the tree with the knothole. A moment later Farmer Brown's Boy chuckled as he heard the voice of Jim Crow. "Caw, Caw, Caw!" shrieked Jim Crow. And one did not need to understand what he was saying to know that he was both disappointed and angry.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Wilcox, Crittenden & Company, Middletown.

On a cold winter's day over seventy years ago a group of idlers were engaged in tosating their toes before the stove at Ben Butler's sail loft at Middletown. Foreman Collins was hard at work thawing out frozen sails and punching the ice out of old-fashioned rope grommets.

In the course of Collins' endeavors he was obliged to disturb his idle friends, who appeared somewhat reluctant to relinquish their places near the stove. Half in annoyance and half in jest Collins exclaimed, "If some of you confounded loafers would get to work and invent a metallic grommet, we wouldn't have to do this every time they bring in a frozen sail."

The train of thought suggested by the sailmaker's snappy remark resulted in the establishment of the well-known marine hardware firm, Wilcox, Crittenden & Co., Inc., for one of the idlers, a young man by the name of Eldridge Penfield, acted upon Collins' suggestion, and invented a metallic grommet that soon developed into the sail eyelet grommet.

Mr. Penfield was joined by the late W. W. Wilcox, Sr., the real founder of the firm, who later invented the patent spur grommet, which was adopted by all the leading navies of the world, but the young inventor lost faith in the future of the produce, and bandoned the enterprise. Mr. Wilcox continued his efforts to introduce the grommet to the many sail yards then in existance along the New England coast, and eventually succeeded. Those were the days of the clippers and Mr. Wilcox found a demand for stronger and better fittings which soon developed the line of clews for use in connection with the sails and the clippers that drove the English clews out of the American market. During the years that followed, additions were made to the line, until it has become probably the most complete line of marine hardware in the world.

Wilcox, Crittendon company now manufacturers several hundred items for use in connection with all classes of vessels—anchors, portlights, compasses, steering wheels, etc.

While the company's line originally was manufactured exclusively for sailing vessels, the growth of the motor boat has made great changes, and today the company manufactures a very extensive line of high-grade motor boat fittings—spark and throttle controls, stuffing boxes, ventilators, etc.

The present officers of the company are: President, William W. Wilcox, Sr.; vice president and treasurer, William W. Wilcox, Jr.; vice president and general manager, Phelps Ingersoll; vice president, F. A. Bea[illegible]; secretary, George A. Palmer.

NEW TENNIS COURT AT HOLLYHOCK ISLAND

Work upon the new tennis court at Hollyhock Island, which was begun some weeks ago, under the direction of William J. Fitzgerald, chairman of the recreation commission, upon the reception of a petition signed by 100 citizens, is at an end and the court is ready for immediate use by the public.

The court is located behind the backstop of the baseball diamond and is just inside the entrance to this municipally controlled recreation field. It has been properly taped and lined, a net has been secured, and is now perhaps one of the best constructed courts in the city.

The action of the recreation commission in providing such a court for the public is worthy of commendation, as interest in the game of tennis has been increasing in recent years, both among children and adults, and no opportunity to indulge in this healthful game has been hitherto available except for owners of private courts.

Some years ago the commission attempted to create interest in this sport by providing facilities for indulgence in it upon the Lucas lot in the West Side section of the city, but it is felt that the present location is more ideal and is better suited to the needs of the citizens of the city as a whole.

The construction of a tennis court marks another forward step in the plan of the recreation authorities to make Hollyhock Island a real municipal recreation field. A baseball diamond constructed three years ago has been in daily use, and attendance of children upon the island has been encouraging.

Because of lack of finances the commission is proceeding gradually with its plan of improvement of this property which was formerly a city dumping ground. Chairman Fitzgerald reports the commission is already considering the feasability of constructing a running track around the outskirts of the island so as to arouse interest in track and field events which among children of grammar school age, has been dormant for years.

CITES HARTFORD JUDGMENT AGAINST PERSISTENT PARKER

William H. Shields, president of the New London County bar, received a letter Tuesday from a leading firm of distinguished Connecticut lawyers, requesting that he send them copies of the legal paper issued by him in the recent law suit for damages begun by Mr. Shields and brought by him to the superior court against John F. Donohue and Hannah T. Sullivan for unlimited storing and parking at all hours day and night of their automobile on Church street in front of Mr. Shields' houses.

In the letter to Mr. Shields from this Connecticut firm of lawyers they informed him that they prosecuted and tried in the superior court of Connecticut for a client of theirs a similar case to the Shields vs. Donohue case and that Judge Newell Jennings of the superior court in their case rendered a decision and judgment against the defendant that those lawyers sued for their client; that defendant paid the judgment that was rendered against him and took no appeal from the superior court to any higher court to bring in question against the case that was so decided against him.

CROWDS THRONG K. OF C. GROUNDS FOR ST. PATRICK'S LAWN PARTY

Several thousands persons thronged the grounds in the rear of the Knights of Columbus home on Broadway Tuesday evening for the annual lawn party of St. Patrick's parish, which is its outstanding social event of the season. The numerous booths, effectively decorated with stringers of electric lights and crepe paper, were arranged in circular shape with the boxing arena located in the center, where Roma's band furnished a delightful band concert following a street parade in the business section. The booths had liberal patronage throughout the event.

The feature event of the festival was the programme of exhibition boxing and wrestling bouts, arranged by State Boxing Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue of New London, who was present in addition to Ed Hurley, Hartford's premier promoter and other well known men of the boxing world. The main bout saw Frankie O'Brien, formerly of Hartford, one of the leading contenders for the middleweight championship of the world, swapping punches with Arthur Carr of the Coast Guard. O'Brien showed the fans why he is wearing the New England middleweight championship crown by his superiority over the coast guardsman.

Two other bouts, snappy and replete with mixing, brought together Young Grenado of Hartford and Albert Leon of Florida, and Julius Sombasky and Mike Petite, both of Bridgeport. All of the bouts were for three rounds and were refereed by John Whelan of Hartford.

Jack Gagnon of Boston, formerly of the University of California and who has met Gus Sonnenberg for the world's title, was matched with Stanley Stickney of Hartford, in the wrestling bout. It went for ten minutes with several knockdowns, resulting in a draw.

In the afternoon several hundred children were entertained with a programme of competitive sports, the winners of which were awarded attractive prizes. The games were run off under the direction of Rev. John J. Reilly and John P. Murphy. The matinee performance was in charge of Mrs. Anna McGrory.

TWO DEER SEEN IN CEDAR STREET SECTION

Deer have been known to browse in the outskirts of the city, but not often do they appear in city streets. About 8 o'clock Tuesday evening two young deer, fearing no one, wandered into the Cedar street section and jumped the fence at the residence of J. J. Roath. They remained in his backyard, eating of the tender grass, for some time before they were frightened away by members of the family. With a shake of their small white tails they gently scaled the fence and headed away in the direction of Mohegan park.

Police headquarters was notified and Officer Patrick F. Shahan notified Superintendent Frederick J. Krohn of Mohegan park, as it was thought that the deer might have escaped from the park enclosure. Superintendent Krohn said that none of the deer at the park had been missed and advanced the idea that they were wild deer that of late have been noticed in the woods about the city. He said that recently seven deer, young and old, had been seen around the enclosure at the park.

SEEKS FORECLOSURE OF OLD LYME PROPERTY

The Chester Savings bank of Chester, has filed in the superior court, a foreclosure suit against Leroy Bowman, Kate Cwikla, Anthony Cwikla, and others of Hartford. Property at Sound View beach, at Old Lyme, is involved.

The bank alleges that on April 27, 1923, it was given a mortgage note for $2,500 by one Morris Gross of Hartford, which mortgage was secured by the property at Sound View beach. Gross later assigned his equity to Bowman, who is now in possession. Kate and Anthony Cwikla of Hartford claim to have a $2,000 mortgage; Hartford Wire Works, Inc., allege they have an attachment for $600 and Fred L. Hathaway, of East Hartford, alleges that he has a mechanics lien on the premises for $212.

The appointment of a receiver is sought in addition to the foreclosure.

FREE MOVIE SHOW FOR 1400 PLAYGROUND CHILDREN

Arrangements are being made by Supt. Earle E. Brigham of the playground with Manager R. B. Hamilton of the Palace theatre, to furnish the 1,400 local children, enrolled in the playground, with a free movie entertainment. Mr. Hamilton has kindly donated the use of the theatre and the services of his employes for this occasion, and is already booking a programme suitable for juveniles. The date has not been announced, but will be on a day in the near future.

In past years the recreation commission has been especially fortunate in receiving the cooperation of local theatre managers in arranging for such entertainment for the local children, and this year promises to be no exception.

The children of the county home have been invited in the past and it is expected that these 75 little ones will again join with the playground children in having an enjoyable day. The picture to be shown will be William Haines in "Way Out West".

CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLING OVER $2,000 FROM NORWICH MERCHANTS

Fred Dulenschneider, 23, and Richard Brownell, 25, both of South Manchester, known here as "bad bill collectors," and formerly representing the Norwich Business Men's bureau, were arrested here Tuesday on a charge of embezzlement of between $2,000 and $3,000 from several Norwich firms. The two young men were taken into custody by State Police Officer Hoxie of the Groton barracks as they were coming out of the Thayer building on Franklin square, where the bureau's office is located.

According to the allegations the alleged embezzlers were hired by the Norwich firms to collect money owing to them by customers and traveled about this section of the state in a Ford automobile painted white.

The charge is made that hundreds of dollars were collected by the South Manchester men, for which they failed to make an accounting, appropriating the money for their own use. One Norwich firm is said to have been embezzled out of approximately $890, another for about $200, still another for $50 and others of various amounts. It is possible that additional firms will come forward with charges.

Tuesday evening the two men were taken before a justice of the peace in Montville, where they are alleged to have worked the same game on a Montville firm. They were released under bonds of $2,000 each for their appearance in Montville court on the 14th of August.

Later they were brought back to local police headquarters where they were locked up under bonds of $1,500 each, for their appearance in city court this (Wednesday) morning.

SMOKERS TURN ON THERMOS TO DRAG THEM FROM CITY LEAGUE PINNACLE

Physical and moral punishment was dealt out in generous doses at the Academy campus last night. Nearly half a dozen ball players were actually hurt and mental anguish was brought upon the once mighty Thermos Bottlers. After the field had been cleared of the wounded and the survivors accounted for, Bill Hastedt's gang found to its surprise and dismay that once again they had been humbled, this time by the lowly Smoke Shop club.

The Smokers rose from the depths of obscurity to defeat the Bottlers 6 to 5 in one of the most unexpected upsets of the current City league chase. As a result of the defeat, the Bottlers' second in as many starts, they are no longer lone leaders in the chase, but are sharing for the first time in weeks the pace-setting position with the Citizens. Close behind, not more than a half game, the Royals. The Cits and Bottlers have each won 7 and lost 3 while the Panekmen have finished first in 6 of 9 starts. Should they upset the Ideals this evening they will go into a triple tie with the present leaders.

Getting back to the game itself, the result left a crowd of nearly 2,000 fans stunned but to at least three-quarters of them it apparently brought joy. The burden of being a winner has certainly had its effect on the Bottlers. The mass never strings along with a winner and the fact that the fans were so dead set against the winners in this particular case certainly has affected the playing of the Hastedtmen in the past two weeks.

They wabbled in the game with the Ideals early last week, cracked in the Citizen affair Thursday and went entirely to pieces last night. Playing more like schoolboys than the club, which they really are, they made a total of six official errors and almost as many other slips which can not be recorded.

Bunching hits while the opposition slipped, the Smokers counted in every inning, except the third and fifth. They tallied twice in the first, once in the second, twice again in the fourth and added the final score in the early sixth.

On the other hand, the Bottlers after a good start were held at the mercy of Butsy Weisgraber, Smoke Shop pitcher, until the late sixth. They counted three times in the last of the first, and, as previously mentioned went scoreless until the final frame.

In the sixth, however, the once leaders got to Butsy for four straight hits and two runs and were in a position to score tying and winning runs when the inning ended.

Weisgraber's total allowance for the evening was eight hits but he was free with wildly thrown balls. The former Academy ace hit three in the course of play, beaning Jimmy Mullins in the late first. Jimmy was painfully injured and had to be carried from the field.

Mike Nickerson, the opposing hurler, also got a scalp for his belt. While the Smokers were at bat in the seventh, just before Hank called the game, he tagged Provencher, youthful Baltic boy, on the top of the head with a pitched ball. The Smoker did a tailspin, tumbled to the ground and also had to be carted off. The other injury was to N. Lemieux, third baseman for the Thermos. "Little Lemon" as he is known to many of the spectators was spiked just below the groin by Fitzgerald in the fourth.

With the exception of Breen and Weisgraber, each of the Smokers figured in the offense, Chubby Gibbs leading the attack with three out of five. The score:

Royals vs. Ideals.

A triple tie in the chase for the City league title will exist should the Royals defeat Tony Bernard's Ideals in the game at the campus tonight. Through the defeat of the Bottlers at the hands of the lowly Smokers last night, the members of the Panek clan moved up to within a half game of the joint leaders, the Cits and Thermos.

The standing at the present is as follows:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Thermos	7	3	.700
Citizens	7	3	.700
Royals	6	3	.667

Should the Royals come through this evening the standing will be:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Thermos	7	3	.700
Citizens	7	3	.700
Royals	7	3	.700

On the other hand, should the Royals allow themselves to be taken by Bernard's outfit they will drop well back in the chase. Anxious to get into the lead, now that they are finally within striking distance, the Royals will give everything that is within them this evening and there is little doubt but that Panek will call upon his mound ace, Tommy Simcox, to hold down the opposition.

It will be remembered, however, that the Ideals are poison to the leading clubs. They spilled the Citizens two weeks ago and against the Bottlers last week, well, everyone knows what happened. They are confident of giving the Royals a dose of the same medicine tonight. Bob Shaw will probably work from the Ideal rubber.

TERRY GOES INTO LEAD FOR BIG SIX HONORS

By the Associated Press

Continuing his sensational slugging pace, Bill Terry, Giants' first baseman yesterday moved into the National league and baseball's big six batting leadership. With five hits in six trips to the place, Terry boosted his average to .407, six more points than Chuck Klein, who dropped three percentage points, when he failed to hit Boston pitching. O'Doul got one hit but failed to improve or lower his .398 average while Simmons dropped a point to .384, when he got only one hit in four trips to the plate. Cochrane moved into the big six as Gehrig got only one hit in a double header with the Senators. Ruth also spent a poor day, getting just two hits in seven times at bat. The standing:

ROBINS BEAT OUT GIANTS IN SPECTACULAR GAME

BROOKLYN, Aug. 5—(AP)—The league leading Robins captured a spectacular struggle from the New York Giants today, scoring three runs in the tenth to gain a 9 to 8 decision and an even break in the four-game series.

Brooklyn went into the ninth leading 6 to 1 but the veteran Cuban, Adolfo Luque, weakened with two out and the Giants tied the score, Bill Terry climaxing the rally with a homer that sent three runs across the plate and drove Luque to the showers. Heimach was called in but one double sent him away and Ray Phelps took his turn. Phelps was hit hard in the tenth, the Giants counting twice.

Walker, the fifth and last of the New York pitchers, was on the mound in the tenth when the Robins cut loose, scoring three runs and winning the game. Terry's hitting was a feature, the Giants' first baseman getting five hits in six trips to the plate.

TIGERS RALLY IN 8TH TO NOSE OUT INDIANS

DETROIT, Aug. 5—(AP)—An eighth inning rally that netted Detroit four runs enabled Earl Whitehill to win his eighth consecutive victory today, Detroit defeating Cleveland, 5 to 4.

For seven innings Detroit trailed Cleveland chiefly because of poor support given Whitehill by his infield. Three of Cleveland's four runs were unearned. Akers was the main offender in the field but he made amends at bat in the eighth when he drove the ball over the left field wall, sending in the tieing run and scoring the winning run himself.

Clinton Brown pitched well for Cleveland until the fifth when he sprained his ankle while covering first base on Whitehill's infield hit. He was carried from the field and Walter Miller replaced him. He gave way in the eighth to Harder, who was charged with the defeat.

RED SOX NOSE OUT ATHLETICS IN FINAL GAME

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox took the final of the four game series with the Athletics here today when, staging one-run rallies in the eighth and ninth innings, they beat the world's champions 4 to 3.

Phil Todt's home run in the eighth tied the score and in the ninth Cedric Durst, leading hitter of the day, made a double for his fourth safety and scored the winning run on a single by Otis Miller, who batted for Regan.

Durham pitched cleverly for the Sox but was relieved in the ninth with two on and one out. Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx hit successive homers in the fourth inning. Score:

FRANKHOUSE PITCHES BRAVES TO WIN OVER PHILLIES

BOSTON, Aug. 5—(AP)—Fred Frankhouse held the Phillies to six hits today and the Braves gave the Philadelphians a 6 to 2 setback. Catcher Spohrer left the game with a charley horse before he could join the other members of the tribe in registering at least a single off the Phillies.

Welsh led the Boston onslaught with two singles and a double. The fielding feature was Berger's catch in deep left center at Friberg's expense.

BUD FONTAINE EN ROUTE TO ENTER UNIV. OF CALIF.

Armand (Bud) Fontaine, regular catcher on the Academy baseball teams in 1929 and 1930 and also a football letterman, in 1929, is now en route to the Pacific coast, where he expects to enter the University of California in the fall. Bud left with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Fontaine, of San Francisco, who have been visiting here and expects to arrive at his destination the latter part of this week.

With everything quiet in the baseball situation, no protests, no fights, etc., it looks like the column was going to suffer a relapse this morning.

Somebody says to me last night: "Why dontcha quit knocking the committee of the twilight league and give somebody a little praise once in awhile?" Now that's an idea.

So, as the twilight league has furnished me with plenty of material during the past week I really ought to show my appreciation with a few kind words for those responsible for the league.

Not only that but it will correct the impression that the governing board of the twilight league and the recreation commission are one and the same. Also it will save the recreation commission a lot of abuse from those who are under that impression.

I cannot speak too highly of the recreation commission and the most excellent work they are doing for the city along recreational lines.

In sponsoring the City league they are furnishing amusement for an average of 1700 people every evening, encouraging interest in clean athletics and sportsmanship.

The Junior league, which is now under the supervision of the recreation commission, is encouraging the younger boys in baseball and also furnishing amusement for several hundred grown-ups every night.

Then there are the playgrounds where hundreds of children are taught useful occupations as well as healthful sports and recreation. What could be more deserving of praise than a commission of this sort?

Building note—The contract for a new house on Avery street for Captain Thomas Murphy has been let to Aubrey Potter.

YANKEES DIVIDE HONORS WITH SENATORS IN DOUBLE

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—(AP)—The New York Yankees finally broke the Washington Senators jinx today, winning the second game of the double-header 7 to 1 after losing the first 6 to 1. Victory in the nightcap gave the Yanks their third triumph in fifteen games played with the Senators this season.

Charley Ruffing was largely responsible for the Yankees even break. His homer with one on gave the Yanks a three-run lead in the second inning while he allowed the Senators only nine scattered hits and fanned nine.

Bump Hadley was complete master of the Yankees in the first encounter, striking out seven and giving only eight hits, one of which was Babe Ruth's forty-first home run. The drive measured over 430 feet, going into the center field bleachers for the first time a ball has ever been hit into that section of the spacious New York ball park, Score:

THREE LEAGUES BAND TOGETHER AGAINST DRAFT

CHICAGO, Aug. 5—(AP)—Representatives of the American association, International and Pacific Coast leagues today appointed a committee of three to form a triple entente as protection of their interests against the major league draft-boycott threat.

Walter E. Hapgood, general manager of the Montreal club of the International league was named chairman of the committee which will report its recommendations to a special meeting in Montreal during the first week of December when the boycott threatens to become effective. The major leagues insist that unless the three class AA leagues submit to some form of draft by that time, they will sever all relations with them.

Other members of the committee were Charles Graham, business manager of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League and Oscar J. Smith, president of the Toledo club of the American association.

PLENTY OF ACTION ANTICIPATED AT SHYMA ALL-STAR CARD TONIGHT

TONIGHT'S CARD

Three Star Bouts

Al Beauregard, Taftville, vs. Lou Piquette, Bridgeport, at 120 pounds.

Joe Russo, Westerly vs. Eddie Moore, Bridgeport, at 152 pounds.

Rene Peloquin, Danielson vs. Young Lavigne, New London, at 122 pounds.

Preliminary, six rounds, Vic. Darr, Norwich vs. Julio Rossi, Westerly, at 142 pounds.

Preliminary, four rounds, Al Rodman, Goodyear vs. Young Rochette, Westerly, at 120 pounds.

The above card which will be put on this evening at Martin Field by the Shyma Boxing club looks like one of the snappiest cards of the open air season and should appeal to everyone who likes their bouts torrid and gory. From the lineup on paper there is not a weak spot on the entire ticket and each and every bout should be just as full of action as any bout put on by the Shyma club.

Starting at the bottom of the card there is Al Rodman and Young Rochette, two scrappy youngsters whose ambition is to put his opponent away by a knockout, which means that the show will get away on the right foot. These youngsters fight with all they've got and both have made a very enviable record since entering the professional lineup.

Then there is the six rounder between Vic Darr, local boy who has gained great favor in the home town, and Julio Rossi, popular favorite from Westerly. Darr, who heretofore has been inclined to dancing and clowning his way through bouts, is getting right down to brass tacks and sailing into opponents at the tap of the gong. Rossi, always willing to mix matters with an opponent, is expected to give Darr plenty of opposition, which should make the bout one of the best on the card.

As to the three eight-round star bouts there is no one bout outstanding above the other, all three being real attractions. Although the Al Beauregard-Lou Piquette bout is billed as the headliner the general opinion among the faithful is that the real action of the evening will be seen in the Rene Peloquin-Young Lavigne mill. Whether this is right or not the fans are bound to see plenty of action in both these bouts for here are four youngsters, all in the 120 pound division who fight for the love of boxing.

The other eight-round star bout is between Eddie Moore of Bridgeport and Joe Russo of Westerly. The boys are of the middleweight class and some heavy hitting may be expected. Russo is known as a terrific puncher while Moore is one of the few boys to defeat Lou Brouillard, a favorite with local fans, which means that he is a boy that Russo will have a hard time with.

The bouts will go on shortly after 8:30 o'clock tonight so as to give those who attend the twilight ball games a chance to get to the field in time to see the first preliminary. The bouts have started at 8:15 o'clock before. If weather is fair it is expected that there will be a capacity house at the Martin field arena this evening.

WILSON'S HOMER HELPS CUBS TO TOP CARDS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 5—(AP)—Aided by Hack Wilson's 36th home run of the season and three runs scored in the ninth, the Chicago Cubs fought an uphill battle to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals in the first game of the series here today 5 to 4.

Bill Hallahan pitched masterful ball for the Red Birds until the ninth, allowing but one other hit besides Wilson's homer. In the final frame he weakened, the first two men up making singles. Rhem and Haines finished, Rhem being charged with the defeat.

Chick Hafey and Frankie Frisch also hit for the circuit.

Malone, Chicago starting hurler, was chased from the field in the fifth by Umpire Quigley for using objectionable language.

DUWELLS RALLY IN LAST INNING TO BEAT P. N. A. C.

A last inning rally that netted two runs enabled the Duwell team in the Junior Twilight league at the Duwell field last night to win from the Polish N. A. C. nine. The Duwells entered the sixth and final stanza with the score 5 to 5. Two runs in the sixth gave the Duwells their victory by a 7 to 5 score. The lowly Polish team played surprisingly fine baseball coupled with ten strike-outs for their pitcher, Watters, but they lacked the final punch.

In the fifth inning, the Polish nine threatened to win the game but they managed only to tie the score. With two out, and a man on the third sack, a ball got by Koch, Duwell catcher and was called a block ball by the umpire. The Polish nine questioned this decision, inasmuch as a runner had come in on it. He was sent back to the third sack and failed to reach home when the next man got out.

The Duwells at the present time are tied with the Rotary team for top honors of the league. Each have won all their games but one.

Watters, pitching for the Polish team, had ten strike-outs to his credit. He was rather wild in the first inning, with the result that the Duwells on a base hit and four successive passes secured their runs. He struck out three men in the first inning. He was nicked for only five hits.

The Duwells on the other hand used three pitchers to stop the onslaught of the Polish team. They garnered seven hits to score their seven runs.

In the last inning, the Polish team made a vain, but gallant attempt to win the game. The first man up, Kozlowski, secured a free ticket. When Powichrowski attempted to sacrifice he popped up to Sydlo with the result that a double play was executed. Petrowski, the last man for the Polish team to bat struck out. Stepanik, star pitcher for the Duwells, was thrown into the breach in the final stanza by Manager "Wacco" Riley.

BERG IS DOWN TO 134 1-2 POUNDS WHILE CHOCOLATE IS ONLY SLIGHTLY LIGHTER

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK Aug. 5—(AP)—A battle of wits, sometimes the most entertaining thing about a prize fight, is enlivening interest in the duel of Jackie Kid Berg and the ebony bomb of Cuba, "Keed" Chocolate, at the Polo grounds Thursday night.

For weeks before the match was made the managers of the gladiators argued about the weights, a crucial problem when a lightweight and featherweight clash, and in the time honored manner of the trade both pilots sought the advantage. Berg agreed to come in at 134 1-2 pounds, eight ounces under the lightweight limit, while Chocolate, a genuine 126 pounder, was permitted to scale whatever he wanted.

Today the weight controversy seemed to have swung to the Whitechapel whirlwind's favor for Berg, finishing his training at Delaware Water Gap, Pa., scaled at exactly the mark set for him while Chocolate, having grown a bit, seems to be having trouble in preserving his status as a featherweight. If Chocolate's poundage carries him into the lightweight class, he will have lost the sympathetic advantage of the little fellow against the big 'un as well as the perfect alibi in defeat—that he gave away too much poundage.

The bickerings of the managers was carried into the New York state athletic commission today. The Chocolate forces have expressed the opinion that Berg, a perpetual puncher of boundless energy, doesn't play exactly fair in that he fails to step back after being broken from clinches. This move, of course, would seriously hamper a brilliant boxer of the Cuban's style, gambling for victory on keeping the warfare at long range.

So Pancho Guterriez, manager of the Cuban licorice stick, appealed to the boxing commission for a referee who would make Berg step back on the breaks. He spoke for fully a minute before William Muldoon, the austere veteran of the board, stopped him short. Gutierrez came forth from the council chambers blushing furiously. Officially the commission informed him that it selected its own referees without the help of fight managers and that it usually selected good ones.

Strangely enough for a match involving two extremely popular and pleasing athletes, the ticket sale at Madison Square Garden has been disappointing. The apathy of the faithful, deepened by a long series of foul endings and the abrupt departure of Sammy Mandell within a round in his title defense against Al Singer, has been clearly expressed by an almost complete absence of lines at the ticket windows. Predictions as to the gate receipts have been scaled steadily downward during the past week until it now seems that the Polo grounds will accommodate no more than $150,000 worth of customers Thursday night. Ticket prices are the same as for the Mandell-Singer match, which drew $129,000 in net receipts.

The effect of radio broadcasts on the gate receipts of fights will be tested thoroughly by the garden with this match. The bout will not be put on the air, but if the receipts are not swelled by those who usually draw up easy chairs within reach of the dials, then the broadcasts will be resumed at the next outdoor show.

LOTT BEAT DELARA IN SECOND ROUND MATCH

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 5—(AP)—George M. Lott, 2nd, of Chicago, youthful American Davis cup star, made a successful debut here this evening in the forty-seventh annual invitation tennis tournament of the Meadow club, conquering John DeLara, of Los Angeles, one of California's newest stars, 6-4, 6-3 in the second round.

Lott arrived this afternoon in New York on board the S. S. Majestic from Europe, along with the other members of the American Davis cup team. He was whisked down here by automobile and long after the other players had gone to their dinners took the court with DeLara and caught up with the rest of the field by his straight set victory.

The Davis cup star showed signed of being out of condition against the Californian, hitting wildly with both forehand and backhand and serving many double faults He was too strong for DeLara despite these shortcomings, however, and was always in front.

Bill Tilden, Wilmer Allison and Berkeley Bell, the other Davis cup stars entered in the tournament, are scheduled to put in their first appearance tomorrow morning. Allison and Bell have matches scheduled in the singles, but Tilden will not play until the doubles start Thursday. Frank Hunter will be his partner.

FLOWERS KAYOES GROGAN IN THE OPENING ROUND

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—(AP)—Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y., Negro, knocked out Tommy Grogan, Omaha lightweight, in the first round of their scheduled ten round bout at the Queens boro stadium tonight. Grogan weighed 138; Flowers, 136.

The end came after two minutes and 19 seconds of the opening round.

They slugged it out from the first bell until Flowers landed a heavy left and then a right to floor Grogan for a count of nine. As the Omaha boy got to his feet, the Negro thudded home an uppercut that dropped Tommy to the canvas again. Gamely the Westerner tried to get to his feet but the count of ten found him resting on one knee.

POETRY

The Rose Is a Royal Lady

The rose is a royal lady
That loves the lordly sun;
The violet haunts the shady
Cool cloisters of the sun.

I would not wed with roses,
And nuns they never wed;
I love the country posies
Where I was born and bred!

I love the gorse and heather,
And bluebells close beside—
I'll find my cap a feather
And kiss a highland bride!

—Charles G. Blanden.

Refuge

I shall go down from the stark, gray-stone towers,
Out from this town—the dogs howl at its gates—
The sad clock strikes the eternal hours
And my refuge waits.

I shall go forth with sandals and a crust,
Before the evil, stupid, friendly feet
Have stopped my singing mouth with choking dust,
Stamped from the common street.

For hope has planted vineyards in a place
O valleys where a heart may lie at ease,
And dreams can daily with a shy, young thought,
Naked among the silver birchen trees.

There Æolus will play a willow harp,
Soft as the autumn light upon a hill
And dipping swallows leave tight water rings
Which widen with a motion that is still.

—Hervey Allen.

"Oi kin prove it, mum," rejoined the Irishman. Then, turning to a laborer at hand, he added, "Kelly, you're fired!"—Pullman News.

STOCKS SOLD OFF IN THE AFTERNOON AFTER ADVANCING IN THE MORNING

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Stocks advanced in the morning and sold off in the afternoon today. Trading was more active on the rise than on the decline, largely because of activities of bullish professionals whose purpose was to push their favorites through the old highs for the recovery.

In one or two instances, notably U. S. Steel, they succeeded; but there were no strenuous efforts to force the issue and when the market began to drag profits were taken.

Speculative attention was again focused on grain prices and weather conditions. Reports of rains were supplemented by later advices that the drought was generally maintaining its grip and corn, after sagging in the early dealings, resumed its advance, closing 1 5-8 to 3 3-4c higher. The gains in wheat ranged from 2 3-4 to 3 1-4c. Cotton broke $1 to $1.50 a bale here on reports of showers in the southwestern belt.

Part of the heaviness that developed during the later hours of today's trading appeared to be based on a realization that the situation in corn and wheat belts may be more serious than Wall street had been inclined to believe. Some of the weaker shares were the farm implement and can issues, the latter yielding on prospects of a reduced pack. International Harvester lost two points, J. I. Case, 3 1-2; American Can, 1 1-4, and Continental Can, a major fraction.

The market's leadership on the rally was provided by U. S. Steel, which was bid up to 170 1-4, the highest price in two months, before its strength was expended. It dropped two points from the top but was off only a fraction at the close. Radio, Standard Oil of New Jersey, and General Motors were also well supported, although all showed small net losses.

Early estimates of steel operations showed a small improvement in ingot production. Some independent companies were said to be working on a basis almost one per cent higher than last week, while U. S. Steel shaded higher.

The morning sprint in share prices embraced the merchandising, chemical, rails, motor and motor accessory shares, bringing out gains of 2 to 4 points in Allied Chemical, Columbian Carbon, American Tobacco, Johns Manville, Eastman Kodak, Foster Wheeler, R. H. Macy, Vanadium, Auburn Auto, Union Pacific, St. Louis San Francisco, Louisville and Nashville, Missouri Pacific and Atlantic Coast Line. Most of these gains, however, were surrendered later.

Warner Brothers Pictures rallied 2 points on covering prompted by a renewal of reports that John J. Raskob was to be made chairman of the board, but lost its rise. American Telephone was heavy all day, losing a couple of points net on profit-taking from Monday's six point advance. Youngstown Sheet and Tube was a late feature, rallying several points on a few sales and closing 8 higher. Gillette, General Refractories, Worthington Pump and Corn Products were off about 2, while DuPont, Westinghouse Electric, Republic Steel, Consolidated Gas, International Telephone and American and Foreign Power sagged a point.

The money markets have failed to exhibit uneasiness over the loss, and today's stiffening of the call rate to 2 1-2 per cent—the first change in a fortnight—was attributed to conditions that normally prevail during the early days of the month.

Foreign exchanges were firm.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Steel ingot production for the past week averaged about 58 per cent against 57.5 per cent for the two preceding weeks, Dow, Jones and company reports.

Unfilled orders of the Allis Chalmers Manufacturing company as of July 31 totaled $16.670,000, against $17,926,000 at the end of June and $14,896,719 July 31, last year.

Exports of raw sugar from Cuba for the first seven months of 1930 aggregated 1,459,805 tons, of which 848,829 tons were shipped to the United States and the balance to Europe, Canada and other ports, the New York coffee, sugar exchange reports.

Warner Brothers Pictures has concluded negotiations with Famous Players Canadian company for the exhibition of Warner Brothers Pictures, First National and Vitaphone in Famous Players Canadian theatres.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Trading in today's curb market was notable primarily for the sluggishness of the utilities, and the launching of a vigorous bull drive in Ford, Ltd.

Of the day's total turnover of only 391,900 shares, one of the year's smallest, 90,800 shares were in Ford, Ltd., or about 23 per cent of the day's activity in this market. The stock was bid up 4 points to a new high record of 22 7-8, and closed at 22. The previous 1930 high was 19 7-8. Last year, the peak was 21 7-8.

The utilities, usually the dominant group on this market, eased in sympathy with the group on the big board. United Light A was again in fair demand, rising 3-4 to 43, and closing at 42 1-4, but Electric Bond and Share, which usually dominates this group, lost 1 point.

The oil shares were mostly steady to firm, in sympathy with pool operations in Standard of New Jersey on the big board. Gulf rose more than a point and Pacific Western, concerning which merger rumors have been rife, sold up fractionally to 16. Cities Service was fairly active, losing 1-4.

In addition to Ford, Rainbow Luminous was a firm feature in the largely neglected industrials. The class "A" stock rallied more than 2 points to above 12.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Lively interest was displayed in railroad bonds today. On the strength of the improved inquiry for both first and second grade carrier obligations, many issues forced into new high ground for the year as more active trading developed.

The averages showed that railroad bonds, which have been climbing slowly for several months, reached a new peak at 107.9. The extensive accumulation was responsible for an improvement in the sales volume which was at low ebb Monday. A few utility and foreign issues joined the advance.

The Paramount Publix 5 1-2 per cent bond offered at 94 1-2, sold at a small premium on the stock exchange. The $15,000,000 offering was quickly over-subscribed and the books closed.

Brisk bidding for the rails enabled some to rise spectacularly, 1 to 2 points, while the general level as shown by the averages advanced .4 of a point, a large gain.

Bonds reaching new high prices for the year, included Atlantic Coast Line first 4s, Chesapeake and Ohio refunding 4 1-2s, Chicago Union Station 4 1-2s, New York Central 4s, Northern Pacific 5s, St Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railway 4s.

Utility issues moved irregularly higher. New York tractions were strong.

The price level of foreign issues was little disturbed.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Moves by President Hoover to furnish government aid to drought areas, gave a powerful upward impulse today to prices of all grain, especially corn. Largely owing to market effects of a statement which the president issued relative to government relief, corn quotations went soaring above any point heretofore reached this season, and up 5 1-4c a bushel from today's bottom level.

Both corn and wheat closed feverishly at virtually the day's top prices, corn 1 5-8a4 1-8c higher than yesterday's finish, with wheat at 7-8c net advance and oats 1-2a1 3-8c. Oats followed corn rather than wheat.

Provisions reflected upturns in the value of hogs.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

The severe hot and dry weather is having its effect on native produce in lessening offerings and bringing poorer quality, and the outlook is very serious unless relief comes very soon. Tomatoes and all kinds of beans were in comparatively light supply and market firmer for good stock. Sweet corn is coming in moderately with field showing effects of the drought. Beets, carrots, cabbage, cucumbers and squash were liberal and mostly unchanged.

Native apples were plentiful, but very few fancys. Ordinary stock was hard to dispose of at any price, but good graded stock was in active demand at good prices. Native peaches are found very lightly, but the shipped in product was liberal and moderately priced.

Supplies of Connecticut eggs are decreasing and the market is showing a much firmer tone. Poultry was unchanged.

THREE WHO BEAT UP SYRACUSE MAN HELD UNDER BONDS AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 5—As a result of Charles B. LaFrance, 514 Walden avenue, Syracuse, N. Y., being taken for a ride during the early hours of this morning, then beaten and robbed, Thomas Rudd, 150 State street; Hughey Devlin, 707 Bank street; well known prize fighter, and Tony Christina, 113 Shaw street, were in the police court today charged with felonious assault and robbery. Because of all of the facts not having been obtained, the case was continued until tomorrow that the investigating officer, Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh may obtain information deemed necessary to prove the crime with which the youths are charged. Rudd, who has admitted beating and robbing LaFrance, was held in bail of $3,000 and Devlin and Christina were held under $1,000 bonds each.

LaFrance, who is a guest at the Hotel Mohican, went to Ocean Beach last night, accompanied by George Walker, assistant manager of the Mohican store and George Gilmore, 216 Huntington street, employed at the store as a baker. The three youths had been drinking and they went to the New London police department dance. During the stay there LaFrance, Walker and Gilmore became separated and when LaFrance could not be found, Walker and Gilmore left the dance hall.

LaFrance, however, formed the acquaintance of Rudd and the pair went to Fort Neck where the former was formally introduced at a speakeasy and where additional liquor and wine was purchased by LaFrance. About 1:30 o'clock this morning, LaFrance and Rudd went to a Bank street restaurant and there they met Devlin and Christina. Rudd requested the use of Christina's automobile to drive LaFrance to the hotel. Because of the youth being intoxicated, Christian refused to permit Rudd to drive, but consented to their being driven to the hotel. Rudd and LaFrance entered the rumble seat and Christina and Devlin entered the front seat, with Devlin doing the driving. When the hotel was reached, Rudd instructed Devlin to drive to Broad street and when passing the city line and Devlin had driven about two miles, he was requested to drive to a side road. This he did and then Rudd requested that the car be stopped. All alighted and while in the highway, Rudd attacked and beat LaFrance, who was knocked down and while he was on the ground and partially unconscious, Rudd rifled the stranger's pockets, relieving him of $28. Rudd wanted to leave LaFrance in the road, but Devlin and Christina would not consent to this, so LaFrance was placed in the rumble seat and the trip to New London was resumed. When returning through Broad street and at Williams park, Rudd instructed Devlin to drive to Huntington street and when in front of Bulkeley high school, LaFrance was carried to the school grounds and left. When the three were returning to the automobile, LaFrance partially regained consciousness and began calling for help. A sailor and a girl, who occupied a motionless car on Huntington street heard the cries and as the roadster sped away, the sailor and girl went to LaFrance's assistance and the girl communicated with police headquarters. Sergeant John Courtney and Patrolmen Braxton Hill and John Sullivan responded and caused LaFrance to be taken to police headquarters, LaFrance said that he had been in the company of Rudd and the officers went to the latter's home and arrested him.

At police headquarters, Rudd denied emphatically that he had been with LaFrance. He admitted having been in a fight, but claimed to be ignorant of the identity of his opponent. Sergeant Cavanaugh was brought in on the case and after grilling Rudd an hour the latter finally confessed to having administered the beating to LaFrance, taking his money. Devlin received $12 of the money and $5 was given Christina.

Before going to his home and immediately after leaving LaFrance on the school grounds, Rudd asked to be driven to Ocean Beach because he was supposed to go to his employment there at 6:30. When on Montauk avenue, near Ferry street, Rudd asked to be driven to his home and he was taken there. Rudd is not employed at Ocean Beach, in fact he is without employment.

When the case is called in court tomorrow, Rudd, Devlin and Christina will be given into the custody of state police for the crime of which they are charged with committing was in Waterford, and not New London. They will be given a hearing in Waterford town court Monday next.

Earl Fain and Alvin Smith, members of U. S. Coast Guard, stationed at the state pier, were in Groton town court yesterday charged with intoxication, although their arraignment was because of their annoyance of a young woman resident on Thames street, Groton. Last Friday night Fain and Smith were on Thames street about 11:30 and when the young lady was on her way to her home, near Broad street, the sailors attempted to form an acquaintance with her. When the bluejackets attempted to speak with her, the young woman ran to her home, followed by the sailors. State Police Officer John Smith, on his way to his home from the barracks observed the sailors and arrested them. Yesterday each was fined $5 and costs.

RICHARD McCRARY FINED $25 PHILLIPS CASE NOLLED

Richard McCrary, 34 Denison avenue, and Francis Phillips, Pequot avenue, were in Waterford town court yesterday charged with rape. McCrary was fined $25 for he pleaded guilty. A nolle was ordered in Phillips' case, for it was shown that while he was a witness to the attack upon the girl by McCrary he took no actual part in the assault. Phillips, however, was ordered to pay the costs of the court. McCrary is the owner of a motorcycle, and a week ago he offered to take Margaret Wilson, 15, of Hamilton street, for a ride. McCrary drove to Waterford, to property owned by Edward C. Hammond on the Niles Hill road. By arrangement, Phillips followed on his motorcycle and a short time after the arrival of Phillips, McCrary started to assault the girl. He was detected by Constable Chester Brigham, for the officer happened along at the opportune moment. McCrary and Phillips were arrested and locked up.

TWO NORWICH BUREAU COLLECTORS ARRESTED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 5—Richard Brownell and Fred Dulenschneider, of South Manchester, representing the Norwich Business Men's bureau as collectors, were arrested in Montville tonight by State Police Officer Frederick Johnson charged with embezzlement. They were locked up and will be given a hearing, probably during the present week, but not until the state police have concluded their investigation.

Brownell and Dulenschneider, it is understood, were hired by the Norwich bureau to make collections in various towns of the state and instead of turning in such collections they appropriated the money to their own use. This is said to have been the case in Montville and when that fact became known to the bureau, the state police were requested to arrest the men. Officer Johnson was assigned to the case, it was represented that Brownell and Dulenschneider had made collections in Montville for which they had not rendered an accounting. They were found by Officer Johnson about 7:30 o'clock and were brought to police headquarters here and made prisoners. The state police will continue investigations and it is believed that additional evidence of their defalcation will be revealed, for it is understood that other collections for the bureau have been made and no return recorded.

WESTERLY, Aug. 5. — Probate Judge Edward M. Burke held the bimonthly session of probate court in the probate court chambers of the town hall on Tuesday afternoon when probate matters were disposed of as follows:

Estate of Emma J. Doust. Helen Gertrude Wilson, an heir at law, appeared in court on the estate of her grandmother and the interest of a brother, John Doust Wilson, of Lynn, Mass. In an inventory filed, Judge Burke called attention that the name of John Wilson was not signed which Attorney Dunn explained he would see was attached and that all assets were properly listed. Attention was also called by Judge Burke to the fact that no guardianship account of Emma J. Doust had been filed with the court which should be the first move. Miss Wilson stated that her mother, Mrs. Martha D Wilson, had been appointed as the guardian on the estate of Emma J. Doust, in Sept. 1920, and that Emma J. Doust had died in March, 1926, and that she, herself, had done most of the work although she thought for the first six months Thomas Perry of the Washington Trust company had acted, and that it was her belief that a charge of 5 per cent for services would be made by her mother. Attorney S. H. Davis asked that the case be kept open as he had just been called in and direction was given for a conference between attornies by the court.

On the petition of Harry H. Coleman, a creditor, requesting an accounting from Martha D. Wilson, Helen Gertrude Wilson and John Doust Wilson of Lynn, Mass., Judge Burke stated that at the request of Attorney John Ferguson, the matter was continued until the next court session.

Estate of Albert P. Pendleton. Petition was received from the Washington Trust company, represented in court by Trust Officer Thomas Perry, asking that will of testator, who died an aged resident of Westerly, in which it was named as sole executor without bond or inventory, be admitted to probate. Lengthy will was read by Clerk Whipple in which many antiques were specifically bequested to residents of New London, Newport, Alton, R. I., and heirs in New York state and relatives in and about Westerly. Public bequests were $100 to People's Mission, Pawcatuck, and $50 to the Westerly Historical society from an estate estimated by Mr. Perry to have been $65,000. Witnesses to will, Clarence E. Roche and Rogers E. Trainer, appeared in court to testify, and with no objection, it was admitted to probate. Bond was made $85,000 without surety and Clarence E. Roche was named appraiser.

Estate of Sarah A. Segar. First and final account was presented in court by Thomas B. Segar, husband of deceased, and case was continued two weeks to have presented a receipt and release from a minor legatee.

Estate of George W. Pappin. First and final account continued, with a petition for an order of distribution continued two weeks by request of counsel.

Estate of Robert J. Allyn. Petition received from Louise G. Allyn, widow, and the Hartford, Connecticut Trust Co., executors of the $10,000,000 estate of the testator who, as the owner of the Allyn house, Hartford, in which city he died, leaving real estate at Watch Hill, that they be issued letters as executors of property in Rhode Island. With no objection, the same was granted and letters testimentary ordered issued. A joint and several bond without surety was ordered in $4,000 ad damnum. Edward B. Coy was named appraiser.

Estate of Annetta K. Stimson. Inventory received and ordered recorded.

Estate of William McGinn. Petition received from Industrial Trust Co., by James M. Pendleton, asking leave to sell property on Washington avenue at public auction. Without objection leave was granted to sell same to pay debts and for not less than $1,700.

Estate of Johanna Kelley. Petition received from Michael Bottamer, of Evansville, Ind., who now comes forward to claim legacy from the estate on which the Washington Trust Co., was the executor and which was paid into the registry of the court on April 15, 1919, an affidavit being filed by Charles Butler. Petition was granted.

Estate of Lewis S. McNeil. Request was received from the Industrial Trust company that the legality of its claim against the estate be passed upon. Walter C. Hiscox was named by the court to represent the estate.

Estate of Charles E. Webster. Petition received from Harold Munro Smith setting forth his claim to two funds in the court registry left by his uncle, Charles E. Webster, whose death occurred fifteen years ago. The matter was continued for proper proof.

For speeding his automobile on the Noosenock Hill road on Monday evening, Solomon Berzin, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was apprehended by a troooper of the Hope Valley, R. I. state barracks in the town of Hopkinton, brought before Acting Judge, Clerk Herbert P. Clark, in special session of the third district court and pleaded guilty of operating his car at an unreasonable rate of speed. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs, which he paid.

John W. James of New London, when arraigned, charged on July 29th with the operation of a Chevrolet truck on which there was no reflector, summoned by Officer Whitmarsh, pleaded guilty. On being found guilty he was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 and costs.

By request of Acting Prosecutor Weeks a continuance to Aug. 26th was granted in the reckless driving case against Edward Mista of 600 Norfolk street, Dorchester, Mass.

John Henry Motley of East Rockaway, New York, failed in court appearance on a reckless auto driving charge and his cash bond of $40 was called and declared forfeited after court summons had been made by Officer Whitmarsh. Costs were $12.95.

A witness, Police Officer J. C. McLaney of Groton, at the time of the crash a driver on the truck, testified that while the truck was proceeding towards Milford, after leaving Savin Rock on date in question, Hogan, with plenty of room to pass had crashed into the truck while it was by the roadside with a dead engine.

BRITTON SAYS CORN BORER UNLIKELY IN SWEET CORN

Connecticut housewives who find insects crawling about their sweet corn need not always be alarmed for fear of the European corn borer. Bad as this pest is, he does not cause all the mischief in corn, according to Dr. W. E. Britton, entomologist of the Connecticut Agricultural experiment station, which cooperates with the United States department of agriculture in the quarantine that forbids the shipment of any corn on the cob out of eastern and southeastern Connecticut.

"Two other insects also attack corn, the corn ear worm and the common stalk borer," Dr. Britton says, "but neither inflicts such economic damage as the corn borer. None of them is poisonous. If the cook discovered something nibbling at the ear she is preparing for dinner, it is probably the corn ear worm, although in a heavily infested area, the corn borer may get into the ears. The stalk borer prefers the stalks and is seldom found near the kernels.

"The European corn borer, Pyrausta nubilalis Hubn., is the smallest of the three worms, being an inch or less in length. It is white, gray or pink and marked with small black dots. It burrows lengthwise or crosswise in the stalks, leaf veins, and ears, including the cob. Though primarily a pest of corn where the infestation becomes severe, the borers enter the stalks of celery, rhubarb, beets, beans, gladiolus, dahlias, asters, zinnias, chrysanthemums, and some of the larger grasses and weeds."

Both of the other corn pests are native American insects.

"The corn ear worm, Heliothis Obsoleat Fabr., is nearly two inches long and is distinctly striped lengthwise," says Dr. Britton, "but it varies in color from light green to dark brown or purple. Almost always, one finds it feeding upon the silks or kernels at the tip of the ear, but some times it works downward to the base of the ear.

"Every summer the corn ear worm is carried into Connecticut on early sweet corn from the south and some years the moths fly in September, but they do not live through the winter. The corn ear worm is common in the west and in the south, where it is called the 'cotton boll worm' and the 'tomato boll worm.'

N. L. COUNTY REPUBLICANS MAKE PRELIMINARY PLANS FOR OUTING

A special committee in charge of the arrangements for the state-wide republican outing that is sponsored by the recently formed New London County Republican club, at a meeting Tuesday, in New London, tentatively selected September 24th as the date for the outing.

The committee will tour the county within the next few days to view several sites that are under consideration and will meet again Thursday for the purpose of selecting a general reception committee to be composed of party leaders through the county.

Republican leaders in this county are confident that Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers of New London will be nominated for governor at the republican state convention to be held at Hartford, Sept. 15 and 16 and if their hopes are realized the outing which has been planned will take the form of a ratification meeting. It is expected that the affair will be attended by leaders and party workers from every section of the state and plans are being made to accommodate 500 or more persons.

The committee which is arranging for the affair is composed of Judge C. C. Costello, Groton, chairman; William L. Apley, New London, secretary; John M. Mallon, Jr., New London, treasurer, and Col. W. Ellery Allyn, Waterford. Judge Daniel M. Cronin of the New London police court, president of the New London County Republican club will serve as an ex-officio member of the committee.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Aug. 5—At the monthly meeting of the common council tonight there was presented a petition from a number of property owners living on Pomfret street beyond the Day-Kimball hospital, in which it was requested that an eight-inch water main be extended along the thoroughfare to afford adequate fire protection to that part of the city.

The petition was signed by Mrs. Grace Nickoloff and two others, whose residences are in that section near the city line. The matter of enacting an ordinance to prohibit users of the city dumping ground from carrying uncovered loads of garbage and refuse through the city streets was referred to the ordinance committee for consideration.

The report of the police department showed 15 arrests during the month of July and fines and costs collected in the city court amounted to $453.04. The Mexican Petroleum Co., through its attorney, A. Macdonald, Jr., petitioned for a building permit to erect a gasoline distributing station on the property north of the Whipple and Gilpatric Coal Co., on Providence street. Municipal approval of the proposition was granted.

City Clerk Thomas P. Ryan read a lengthy list of property owners who have failed to make payments of curbing assessments due the city. It was voted to place the accounts in the hands of the corporation counsel who will be instructed to take legal proceedings.

Any violators detected will be summoned into court and fined. For the past few months the Hartford officers have been inspecting machines in various parts of the state and have made numerous arrests for infractions of the motor vehicle laws.

FORMER NORWICH MAN KILLED IN CHICAGO

Funeral services for Vladimir Humeck of 1125 Belden avenue, Chicago, formerly of Norwich, were held at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning at the parlors of Corcoran and Lyons, Main street, followed by services at St. Nicholas Russian church at 9:30 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. Father Wladyslaw, who also read the committal service at the grave in St. Nicholas cemetery. The bearers were Harry Diachyshyn, Harry Kovalchuk, Nicholas Tymchek, Louis Cuprak, Henry Chenette and Robert Huntley. Many relatives and friends attended the services.

Mr. Humeck died Friday morning at a Chicago hospital, from injuries received Thursday evening in that city, when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver while alighting from a trolley car. He was born in Austria, 36 years ago, the son of Anna and John Humeck and came to this country when a boy, residing in Norwich for several years. On Oct. 15, 1921, he was united in marriage with Cleora Huntley, the wedding taking place in New York city. Mr. Humeck had been employed at hotels in various parts of the country. He was a member of the Waiters union, No. 25, of Chicago.

PLAN NO INCREASE IN PRICE OF MILK

The heat wave continued unabated Tuesday and the drought remained unbroken. Farms throughout the county are badly in need of rain and pasture lands are fast drying up, threatening a shortage of milk. However, no increase in the price of milk is being contemplated by the milk producers, according to Clifford E. Hough of the Connecticut Milk Producers association who says that the present supply is in accord with the demand. If, however, the drought is not broken before the end of the month, the price of milk may be raised and it may be necessary to import milk from other states, he said.

During the last year, the price of milk had to be raised because of similar circumstances, but the milk producers throughout the state are learning how to keep up their production even under such conditions as now confront the dairymen, Mr. Hough said. The producers are being taught to increase the grain feed for their cattle, and to give them greens raised for just such emergencies, he added.

Turkey Producers To Meet

Today, (Wednesday), the Turkey Producers association will hold its second biennial meeting at Storrs. At noon they will have a luncheon in the Community house and will devote the afternoon to talks on and discussion of problems directly related to the rearing of turkeys. A trip to the turkey experiment plot at Connecticut Agricultural college is included in their program.

DEPT. COOPERATES WITH LOCAL HEALTH OFFICIALS

In connection with the sanitation of camps, the state department of health cooperates with local health officers in checking up on compliance of camps with the sanitary code. Two additional sanitary inspectors are employed in the summer months for this work. Inspections comprise examinations of water supplies, sewage and refuse disposal, washing facilities, sleeping quarters, kitchens, food storage and milk supplies.

The vast majority of camp managements in Connecticut have cooperated to the fullest extent with local and state health agencies. It is believed that the general conditions of Connecticut camps range up well with the best. Effort is made to inspect all camps once or more each season. Sanitary ratings are not published but the state department of health is glad to advise prospective campers as to the sanitary ratings of any particular camp at the time of inspection. Some of the smaller camps, particularly non-profit camps, are often handicapped by lack of funds in carrying out all improvements as rapidly as they desire, but it is felt that with continued cooperation on the part of camp managements, practically all camps in Connecticut can be advanced to a sanitary rating of "Good."

These camps have in their charge thousands of children and adults seeking health benefits during the camping season and it is obviously the duty of health authorities to attempt to protect campers against health dangers due to lax or incompetent management.

LEAPED FROM PLANE WHEN WING BUCKLED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Aug. 5—The lone airman who escaped death by leaping out of his plane and landing in a parachute after a wing was sheared off the plane during a test flight over Buttonwood, R. I., yesterday was Charles H. S. Weaver, 24, of Thompson. Weaver is a brother of Mrs. Mary Weaver Weed, wealthy Thompson woman. He was putting the plane through a number of test paces at a 5,000 feet altitude over Buttonwood when he centered into a tower dive. One wing buckled under the strain and was wrenched off.

The flyer hurtled at terrific speed through space in the uncontrolled wreck before he finally jumped out with a parachute and floated the last 1,000 feet to earth. He landed in a tree and sustained comparatively slight injuries. The plane fell into a back yard within a stone's throw of a picnic party and buried its nose deep into the earth at a spot only ten feet away from a group of horror-stricken children.

Weaver is president of the Hillgrove Flying field, near Pawtucket. He is a licensed pilot and has about 150 hours of flying to his credit. To show his nerve in traditional flying fashion he boarded another plane upon returning to the airport and went up for a half hour flight over the city of Pawtucket.

RAILROADS PROFFER AID TO RELIEVE DROUGHT EFFECTS

Road Officials Have Advised President Hoover That They Would Cooperate to the Fullest in Any Measures Decided Upon by the Administration—Mr. Hoover Plans No Action Until He Receives a Report From the Department of Agriculture, Next Monday—Requests For Relief Are Pouring in to President Hoover and Governmental Agencies.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The possibility of "production credit" for cotton and livestock through emergency interpretation of the agricultural marketing act drew the attention of investigators today as President Hoover and his cabinet surveyed relief measures for drought-stricken areas of the country.

Fresh reports of depleted feed and water—and even human food—supplies indicated that drought damage, continuing unabated in almost all sections, might run high into the millions of dollars.

A report on avenues open to the farm board for getting production credit into the hands of the farmer was to be made public tomrrow by Carl Williams, member representing cotton. Whether the board would be able to follow any of the suggestions, Mr. Williams said, could not be determined until members returned to Washington for a conference Chairman Legge, now in the Pacific northwest, was not expected at his office before August 20.

Williams was expected to discuss in particular the possibility of providing funds to feed livestock through the National Feed and Finance corporation, a subsidiary of the National Livestock Marketing association.

The federal money would be used to acquire the capital stock of the regional credit groups, which would be authorized to discount livestock paper at federal intermediate credit banks. The process would permit the pyramiding of $5,000,000 of farm board funds into $35,000,000 of credit. Most of the cash loaned to farmers would come from local financial institutions affiliated with the intermediate banks.

In the meantime requests for relief of an entirely different nature—approximating flood and tornado relief—continued to pour in to the president and various governmental agencies. No action was anticipated before Monday, when the president was to be given a detailed report of drought damage by the department of agriculture. Secretary Hyde, en route to Washington from a tour of the west, was to confer with Mr. Hoover immediately upon his return tomorrow.

Railway officials throughout the areas affected by the drought advised the president today they would cooperate to the fullest in any relief measure decided upon by the administration. Mr. Hoover had indicated it might be necessary to provide a sharp reduction in freight rates on hay and feed into sections hard hit by the drought and low cost or perhaps free transportation of livestock from drought-swept areas to more favorable grazing lands.

Adding to the serious note of requests already presented by members of congress, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, was said at the white house today to have offered undertaking at the next congress to refund the money if the farm board would divert all available funds to drought relief.

Officials of the federal farm loan board expressed a willingness to go as far as consistent with sound principles to extend aid through the intermediate credit banks, the farm land banks and the joint stock land banks.

PLAN TO INVESTIGATE CRIME PROBLEM IN DETROIT

DETROIT, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The unsolved killing of Radio Announcer Jerry Buckley, together with Detroit's entire crime problem tonight appeared destined for investigation by a 23-man grand jury.

The decision to petition the Wayne circuit court for the calling of such a jury was announced today by James E. Chenot, prosecuting attorney. The petition will be taken before Judge Lester S. Moll, presiding officer of the court tomorrow. It is customary for the court to grant such a request.

The petition, according to Chenot, "will speak for itself." It will not only request a determination of who killed Buckley and their motives but will also ask that all the ramifications of the case be investigated.

Should the grand jury be called, the slaying of Buckley July 23 would form the pivotal point of its investigation. However, the jury would also have for its consideration at least ten recent gang killings thus far unsolved by the police.

The Duke of York left the castle today to play a round of golf at the Carnoustie course, and J. R. Clynes, the home secretary who must officially record the birth, went for a motor tour of Forfar county. Their absence gave rise to a belief that the birth was not expected immediately.

CONFLICTING STORIES ABOUT KILLING OF COAST GUARDSMAN

SALISBURY BEACH, Mass., Aug. 6.— (AP)—Conflicting stories of what happened Monday night off Ipswich when one coast guard boat on rum patrol fired upon another going to the aid of a burning motorboat, killing a coast guardsman were heard by a board of inquiry.

The surviving member of the crew of one boat and the two members of the crew of the other failed to agree as to the number of warning shots fired before a burst of machine gun fire took the life of Chief Boatswain's Mate Louis A. Pratt, of the Plum Island station. Surfman Cleo Falkingham, Pratt's companion, said that he heard but one shot, apparently a rifle shot. Chief Machinist's Mate Hugh Olmstead and Fireman Clifford Hudder, of the Gloucester station, who manned the other boat said seven warning shots were fired from a pistol and when the apparent rum runner turned as if to flee the machine gun was brought into play.

The board, headed by Commander S. R. Sands, of Portsmouth, N. H., went into conference for the purpose of making an immediate finding at the end of the hearing late today. This will be forwarded to Boston and thence to Washington.

ECONOMY PLAN FOR LARGEST POST OFFICES

WASHINGTON, Aug 6.—(AP)—A new uniform postal collection and distributing system is planned by the post office department for the 55 largest post offices in the United States.

This action will b etaken, the department announced today as the result of surveys in 19 large cities beginning last September which have produced economies in operation and greater efficiency.

The new system already has been inaugurated in 15 of the cities surveyed. It includes adoption of standardized methods at all the post offices and a uniform collection and delivery system.

The results have been achieved, the department said, "without one regular carrier or clerk being dropped fro mthe payrolls." The plan was worked out by Arch Coleman, assistant postmaster general, and William R. Spilman, chief post office inspector.

Cities surveyed were New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Cleveland Indianapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, Louisville, Nashville, Memphis, Birmingham, Atlanta and Jacksonville.

In all but New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, the surveys have been completed and the new methods of operation are in effect.

MAN DROWNED IN RACE WON BY KING GEORGE'S YACHT

COWES, Isle of Wight, August 6—(AP)—King George, on board the royal yacht Britannia, today scored a decisive victory over his fleetest rivals but lost the zest of victory by witnessing the sinking of one of his competitors and the drowning of a steward.

The present regatta is his majesty's first yachting adventure since his serious illness and by winning the Britannia chalked up its two hundredth victory.

The race was exciting and throngs witnessed it ashore. The result was immensely popular and greeted with rousing cheers when the royal craft went over the mark half a minute ahead of White Heather.

The fatality occurred at the start of the twelve-meter event. The Lucilla, owned by J. Lauriston Lewis, was hit fairly by A. A. Paton's big cutter, the Lulworth and was smashed so badly that she remained afloat less than three minutes, the Lulworth rescuing the survivors of the Lucilla's crew and abandoning the race. The Britannia was nearby and King George and other members of the royal family were standing on her deck, from which they witnessed the tragedy as the royal yacht swept on in the lead with the Astra, White Heather and Westward coming up behind.

The drowned man was William Saunders, steward of the Lucilla.

NEW SYSTEM OF HEARINGS BY RADIO COMMISSION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—A new system of conducting hearings will be inaugurated by the federal radio commission in September.

The calendar which is now being prepared, will include as many as possible of the 360 hearings now pending before the commission, with the remainder to be spread through the year.

Under the new system virtually all of the hearings will be conducted by the commission examiners, headed by Ellis A. Yost of Huntington, W. Va. The examiners will brief the testimony and submit it to the commission with recommendations. Heretofore the commissioners have conducted all hearings.

Another departure from the previous policy will be notification of a station cited for a hearing of the reasons why it must be shown to be operating in the public interest.

In the event that a station is cited for deviation from assigned frequency, operating without a license or with excess power, or for other causes, it will be soapprised at the time that a date for its hearing is fixed. Up to this time offending stations have been obliged to submit their defense without knowing which regulation they were alleged to have violated.

Briand Promoting The "U. S. Of Europe"

Is Shaping Program to Be Submitted to the Geneva Conference.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—(AP) —The [illegible] office believed it had in hand [illegible] the foundation material u[illegible]ch may be erected the futur[illegible]ted States of Europe," as th[illegible]eply, Switzerland's, was rec[illegible]o M. Briand's memorandum [illegible] proposed economic union.

A conference in Ge[illegible]xt month will provide the [illegible]y further steps in the develo[illegible] of the idea.

Officials read in the [illegible]eply of Switzerland approval of the foreign minister's program and saw no detrimental feature in the expression of belief that the federation should not encroach upon the prerogatives of the League of Nations nor involve obligations that might cause any member to abandon neutrality.

M. Briand's assistants in the foreign office today plunged into the task of correlating the data contained in the 26 replies and shaping up the program which will be submitted to the Geneva conference.

Belief was expressed in official circles that the agenda probably would be communicated in advance to the powers invited to participate in the union and to attend the Geneva session.

The report which will be submitted in advance of the conference will summarize and compare the many responses and seek to tabulate for ready reference all of the points of agreement and disagreement.

The Swiss reply said that Switzerland was willing to collaborate towards finding remedies for the present economic and political conditions of Europe but must declare anew that she could not enter into any engagements which might affect her regime of neutrality—which is the very basis of the political status of the Swiss confederation.

CHARGE OF WIFE MURDER AGAINST "MODEL HUSBAND"

AMARILLO, Tex., Aug. 6—(AP)—Incriminating evidence uncovered by two newspaper men caused the filing of a murder charge today against A. D. Payne, Amarillo attorney, whose wife was killed when the family automobile was blown to pieces by a infernal machine here June 27.

Payne, arrested last night after Mrs. Verona Thompson, formerly his secretary, had signed a statement, indicating his infatuation for her provided the motive for plotting his wife's death, was held in the county jail at Stinnett. He was taken there as a precautionary measure. Feeling against the man who had once been known by his neighbors as a "model husband", prompted his removal from Amarillo.

When arrested Payne had on his person two penciled letters ready for mailing to the sheriff and chief-of-police, purported to be from safe-blowers who were confessing that they had placed the explosives in the Payne automobile by mistake the night before the explosion.

A. D. Payne, Jr., who was riding with his mother when the car blew up, was permanently maimed by the blast.

Mrs. Thompson told officers Payne had made love to her and when she protested she could not encourage his attentions because of his family he told her he could "fix that". She said they had gone on trips together.

Evidence against Payne was gathered by A. B. MacDonald, reporter for The Kansas City Star, and Gene Howe, editor of The Amarillo News-Globe. Howe asked the Star to assist in the investigation after Payne visited him and complained a thorough effort had not been made to solve the mystery of the explosion.

Shortly after MacDonald visited Payne he got the statement from Mrs. Thompson, he said.

Officers who investigated the blast expressed an opinion that a bomb or infernal machine had been planted beneath the driver's seat of the automobile. They said they found evidences of nitro-glycerine and T.N.T. in the wreckage.

UPRISING IS THREATENED BY REPUBLICANS OF SOUTH

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—A southern uprising against the handling of patronage below the Mason and Dixon line by the administration factions of Postmaster General Brown arose tonight on the eve of the meeting tomorrow of republican party leaders to select a new chairman for the national committee.

Horace A. Mann, President Hoover's southern campaign manager in 1928, whose followers asserted their independence at a convention in Savannah, Ga., last week, issued the warning, but denied he would attempt to obtain a hearing at tomorrow's meeting of the party's national executive committee.

Mann said the "leading republicans" of the south would not stand for "designing political high-jackers invading the southland every four years to "rob her of the right to a legitimate representation at republican national conventions."

Postmaster General Brown himself entered the controversy by saying the resolution passed at the Savannah meeting of "eight disgruntled men" would not make the "slightest difference in postoffice appointments.

Brown said he belonged to no patronage committee except insofar as appointments to his own department are concerned. He added his sole purpose in setting up advisory committees in four southern states was to "get the best possible postal service, not subject to barter."
